LAST year Canada exported to Great Britain goods to the amount of $33,504,000. In the same time our exports to the United States, including the Government estimate of under valuation, totalled $39 520,000. Our exports were made to the latter country in the face of a high tariff—over the custom wall, while a free market was given our goods in England. The Globe thinks this destroys the taxationist contention that Great Britain is our natural market.

THE addle-pated apostles of adulation and high taxation who ascribed good harvests to Sir John Macdonald and his "national policy" are not all dead. Even in this day of discredited trade policies and avenues of traffic strewn with the bones of blasted hopes and slaughtered trade theories there is found a Conservative journal bold enough to advance the theory that the rapid growth of the cheese industry in the last years is due to a duty of three cents per pound on cheese. The Globe points out that this courageous advocate of taxation does not point out how an import duty could enable the Canadian cheesemaker to get access to the free British market and there sell nearly $9 000,000 worth of cheese in a year. Nor does it throw any light upon the fact that of butter, which enjoys the protection of four cents per pound, we export altogether only 1 780 768 pounds, of the value of $431,765. The theory that the duty of three cents per pound is at the bottom of the prosperity of the cheese industry is about as intelligent as the savage's notion that he causes the eclipse to disappear by beating vigorously upon tom-toms and tin pans. The cheesemakers have prospered by studying the taste of the British public, by keeping on the alert for improved methods of dairying, and by equipping their dairies with all the modern appliances. The butter industry will grow by precisely the same means.

THE Brooklyn (U.S.) Citizen, in discussing the duty on tin plates comes with the following reflections upon the result of a third of a century of tariff-tinkering and hot house trade development. The Citizen says: We have monkeyed with the tariff for thirty years, and have never succeeded in diminishing our imports without diminishing our exports in an equal degree. In other words, we have increased the demand for labour in one quarter, only by diminishing it in an equal degree in another quarter. It may, therefore, be assumed that the McKinley tariff will have the same effect. And in the case of the tariff on tin plate it is easy to see why the tariff will have this result. Tin plate is used in making tin cans; and canned goods are a considerable article of export from this country. The new duty on tin plate will at least check, and perhaps ruin, our foreign trade in these goods. This will throw out of employment the labourers who make the cans, the farmers who raise the food which is canned, and the men employed in the canning factories. Again, tin plate is used in making tin ware, which is also extensively exported from this country. Of course, the new duty on tin plate will have the same effect on the foreign trade in tin ware as on the foreign trade in canned goods, and injure labourers for the same reason. Under the present duty, therefore, while we pay more for everything into which tin plate enters as a raw material; we shall probably, if the industry is introduced, add a few more to our already large stock of millionaires, but we shall not give additional employment to American labourers. On the contrary, American labour is to be taxed so many of dollars for every dollar of benefit it receives in return.

FINE CATTLE.—Mr. John Mounsey has some very fine specimens of thoroughbred cattle. He took many prizes at the fall shows. Mr. David Wood, across the road, also has some fine cattle but they are more adapted for milking purposes.

POTATO CROP.—The potato crop here is a failure, some have not bothered taking them up, and others that have are surprised when they open their pits to see the numerous rotten ones presenting their appearance.

HUNTERS RETURNED.—Mr. David Baxter and company have returned glad at heart with the success they had. Well, we are glad to announce they had, for their load home composed six deer, they sold one of those on the road for $12 This will likely entice more to try their luck next fall.

FALL PLOUGHING.—Farmers are nearly all finished ploughing, quite a lot has been done, and we hope to see them have a good crop next year.

SELLING FAST.—Lambertson's safety lamp burners are selling very fast in this section. The general agents is not trying to push their sale, either. As the saying is, they push themselves.

CENTREVILLE.—Mr John Mooney is around the village. We wish him joy. He certainly is a good citizen.

BAILIEBORO.—This village is losing one of its most prominent citizens, Mr. H Nesbitt. He held a high position in society and had many friends, who, we are sure, wish him happiness in his new home in Peterborough.

FRAZERVILLE.—Nothing has happened here lately of very much importance. It is only necessary to say they are all well.

NEEDLER'S MILL CAVAN.—Mr. Needler, owner of the mill, is putting rollers into the above named mill. The ones with the discontinued. We hope this is for the farmers' profit.

BREVITIES.—Some farmers are killing their pigs and taking them to market. Rubber stamps may be obtained here from M. E. Hutchinson. Mr. C Murney has left here and is working in a saw mill. Miss Anna Farr, that used to teach school section No. 5, is now teaching in Ottawa.

Cavanville.

From Our Own Correspondent.

We are sorry to hear that the teacher of school section No. 2 is going to leave at Christmas. We understand that she is going to Chicago. She will carry with her the best wishes of the section.

Mr. Robert Pue has met with a painful accident. While working with a team he stooped down to fix a bolt in the whiffletree when one of the horses kicked him in the face, knocking out several of his teeth, and cutting his face badly. We hope he will soon get better.

Mr. H. Perrin has returned from Cobourg, and is now busy threshing away as hard as ever.

Many would like to know who that young gentleman is that drives a white faced horse to Garden Hill every Sunday.

Mr. F. Byers and Miss E. Byers have been visiting friends at Pontypool.

Mr. H. Margood, of Toronto, is visiting friends in this locality.

Farmers are complaining of potato rot.

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

TORONTO TOPICS.

Death of Father Vincent—Killed by a Circular Saw.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—Father Vincent, Vicar General of the archdiocese of Toronto, ex-provincial of the Order of the Basilians, ex-superior of St. Michael's College, and for many years professor of theology and French within its walls, succumbed to his long struggle with death at 15 minutes to 5 on Saturday afternoon.

Father Vincent was in his 63d year and was a native of France. He studied theology and the classics in the Basilian colleges at Anonay and Aubinas in the land of his birth. He came to Toronto 28 years ago with Rev. Father Soulerin, the founder of St. Michael's College, being ordained priest of the order of St. Basil three years later. He first filled the office of treasurer, and 21 years ago was advanced to the more important one of superior. He was made provincial of the order in 1885, holding it until the spring of the present year, when his feeble health compelled his retirement. His only known surviving relative is a sister, who is a nun in France.

William Tobin, a recent arrival from Bracebridge, working in Shannon's shingle mill, Dufferin-street, met with a fearful fate on Saturday afternoon. He slipped in passing a circular saw, falling on it, almost cutting him in two. The unfortunate man lived about 1 hour and 20 minutes.

Saved by a Dollar.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 1.—About 10 o'clock this morning an altercation occurred on the street between W. F. Richards of The Clarksburg Telegram and Mr. Edward Bassel, son of the Hon. John Bassel, a member of the West Virginia bar, in which the latter was seriously, if not fatally, wounded, being shot in the back, at the base of the spinal column. Bassel, it seems, opened fire on Richards, the ball striking him in the side. The shot would have proved fatal had not the ball struck a silver dollar in his vest pocket, which changed its course. Richards shot Bassel after Bassel had fallen to the ground. The affair grew out of an attack of Richards through the columns of The Telegram upon the private character of Mr. Bassel, sr.

Dropped Dead in His Garden.

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 2.—Mr. James Roblin, a highly respected citizen dropped dead in his garden last evening, apoplexy supposed to be the cause. He leaves a large family. Mr. Ewing, collector of customs, Cobourg, W. P. Brower, reeve, and W. H. Williams of Bowmanville are sons-in-law. Three sons, Fred, music dealer, 346 Queen-street west, Toronto, Charles of Ingersoll and James the eldest of California, besides two daughters unmarried.

Dwellings Closed in East London.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Whole blocks of dwellings in the east end of London have been closed by order of the authorities, having been pronounced absolutely unfit for human habitation. The County Council has a scheme on foot to purchase the land on which these rookeries are situated and erect improvised dwellings in their places to be rented to the poor at as low a rate as will suffice to pay the bare interest on the cost.

Victorian Cabinet Crisis.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 2.—The members of the Colonial Cabinet have resigned in consequence of the passage yesterday of a vote of want of confidence by the Victorian Parliament. The action of the Colonial Parliament in adopting a vote of want of confidence in the government was due to the secession from the government supporters of the members of the labor party.

Purify The importance of purifying the blood in the spring is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

100 MEN WANTED.

I want one hundred persons, male or female, each to buy a piece of property from me during the next few days.

Rich men are advancing the prices of their property from 10 to 50 per cent., but poor men cannot afford to hold, and have to sell even at a loss. Their loss will be your gain, and now is your time to make money.

A hundred dollars in a Saving Bank will return you four dollars in a year. The same amount invested in properties which I have for sale, I am confident will yield in the same time from 25 to 50 per cent., and you must know that there is no safer investment in a rising town like Peterborough.

Reader I know you cannot but feel that Peterborough is destined to be a large city and that property must advance in price, then why do you hesitate in buying? Hesitate no longer. Come in and invest $25 or $50 and I feel safe in saying that I will double it for you within one year. Are you too honest to make money so fast Come in and investigate. I want you to understand what I have to sell and that it is to your interest to buy. I will be in my office to meet you any time you name to 9 p.m.

THE HANGMAN'S ROPE.

IS READY FOR BIRCHALL'S HANGING ON THE 14TH NOV.

The Executioner Who Will Officiate at Woodstock Talks About His Ghastly Job and Expected Victim—Birchall Is Be Jerked up.

The executioner who worked off Kane, Toronto, Smith of London, Davis at Hamilton, besides fifteen other murderers in various parts of the world, said that it was settled that he was to go to Woodstock to hang Birchall.

"You'll find Birchall a difficult man to hang."

"Not at all. When you understand how to do your work there is no difficulty about it."

"You have had him described to you, then?"

"Yes. He's a man weighing from 140 to 145 pounds, and stands about five feet seven."

"And for his size has a tolerably thick neck?"

"But remember he has never done any hard work; that makes a difference."

"In what way?"

"A man who has worked hard is a good deal stronger and more muscular in the neck than one who has not. I shall allow him more drop than either Kane or Smith, but not so much as Pete Davis."

"Are you going to use the old fashioned drop scaffold, then?"

"No. We will jerk him up. I have the weight here. It weighs 350 pounds, and is the same one used on Kane, Smith and Davis. Now, Davis had the biggest neck I ever saw. He was like a young bull; the muscles just stood out like cords on it. I knew I was going to have a job breaking it, but I succeeded. I stacked the rope six feet. Imagine the force a 350 pound weight would gather in falling six feet."

"What slack did you give the rope for the others?"

"About four feet. That would give less than half the force that six feet would. You see there are a lot of things to take into consideration. There is weight, age, build, habits and temperament; you must study them all to judge of the drop necessary."

"What's temperament got to do with the length of drop you'll give a man?"

"A good deal. Take the murderer who is determined to die game. He won't give up till the last, and it's a good deal harder to kill him than the craven who breaks down before he leaves his cell and has to be taken out to the scaffold limp, helpless and half dead before he is hanged at all. Now as for Birchall, he'll either walk to the gallows with a swagger or else have to be carried there. He'll either say to himself, I'm Birchall: everybody is looking at me, or else he will be too frightened to think or say anything. That's the kind of a man he is."

"What drop would a slack of six feet be equal to?"

"In Davis' case it was equal to a drop of 13 feet."

"I noticed in London your manilla rope twisted and caused you trouble. What kind will you use this time? Cotton?"

"Oh no! cotton gives too much. I'll use a hemp rope. I'm having one properly stretched for Birchall now. And I'll tell you this, I'm going to bring that rope back with me. I suppose relic hunters will make a dead set for pieces of it, but they won't get an inch of it. They have destroyed enough ropes for me in the past."

"Talking about methods," said the executioner, "the Chinese have the neatest and quickest method. I saw 13 worked off there one day."

"How do the Chinese do it?"

"The thirteen were all put kneeling upright in a row, and the executioner walked along behind them with a sharp sword and slashed off their heads, one by one. It didn't take him more than a minute or so to do the whole job. Every blow sent a head off, neat and clean, and there was no delay. I thought to myself I should like to have the job at a dollar a head. A fellow could have made money."

An execution is rather an expensive thing for a county. Except for the sheriff's attendance there are no fixed fees. The tariff of statutory fees fixed by the Legislature for the sheriff provides for executions in the following manner:—

Carrying into execution the sentence of the court in capital cases all such sums as are unavoidably disbursed to be taxed by the court or judge who passed the sentance.

Attending and superintending the execution in such cases, $20.

The sheriff, therefore, puts in a bill of his expenses, whatever they happen to be, to the county, and they are paid. The hangman, if he is a good man, usually gets about $30 and expenses. Then there is the cost of erecting and removing the scaffold and various other items which run up to several hundred dollars. Not the least among these is the farce of holding an inquest on the dead man. The law provides that the victim shall be hanged by the neck until dead. It then further provides that a coroner's inquest shall be held on the remains to ascertain the cause of death. That means an expense of $20 or $40 more. Sheriffs as a rule, however, found as they are of fees, would refer to forego their $20 and have no executions.

Old Wines.

The rage for buying old wines is raising the price to an enormous figure, as was seen at two sales by auction last month. Now, if there be one law of nature which knows no exception it is that all things organic are subject to decay, and wine is an organic product, and when its ripest stage is reached and passed the process of decomposition begins. You may stave off the decay for a short time only, by alcohol and other devices, but it goes on. Yet when an "old cellar" is auctioned fabulous prices are paid for undrinkable wine. In 1858 there was a Madeira sale in Paris, when forty-four bottles were bought by Rothschild for their weight in gold. The wine was from the famous 1814 pipe of Madeira, which had lain at the bottom of the sea for thirty-six years.

The consecration of the Very Rev. Denis O'Connor, president of Assumption College, Sandwich, as Bishop of London on Sunday, 19th Oct., was a very imposing and interesting ceremony. The was consecrated by His Lordship Archbishop Walsh of Toronto in the presence of ecclesiastical dignitaries from all sections of the province, St. Peter's Cathedral being crowded upon the occasion. After Bishop O'Connor had been installed the laity of London presented him with an affectionate address promising fealty to him. He made a brief reply thanking all for their kindness in attending, and especially the people of London for their unsought promises of aid.

Careless Use With a Gun.

FRELTON, Oct. 31.—George Ross, son of John Ross, storekeeper, was out shooting in the woods near the village when the gun accidentally went off, and the charge of shot entered his arm near the elbow, coming out at the shoulder. He is very low but may recover.

The Oyster.

"Once upon a time," runs a legend of an apocryphal period, treating of the discovery of the oyster, "a man of melancholy mood, walking by the sad sea waves, espied a venerable oyster, hideous with clinging parasites and sea weeds. So ugly was the object and so unkindly the mood of the man, that he kicked it before him until, protesting at such unusual treatment, the oyster gaped wide with amazement and wrath to its own everlasting undoing, for by this act it laid bare the luscious, cream colored treasures within. Curiosity for the moment getting the better of his gloom, the man inserted his finger and thumb between the shells and lifted the creature for closer inspection. Prompt to resent this insult added to injury, the outraged mollusk snapped his pearly door upon the intruder's fingers. Releasing the wounded digit the man naturally put it to his mouth to soothe the pain, which was quickly forgotten in the new sense called into action.

"Good," said he, and sucked his thumb also.

"And then the fact of his great discovery burst upon him, and then and there, with no other condiment than the juice of the animal, with no foaming brown stout or pale chablis to add zest, with no thinly-cut, well-buttered brown bread, did that solitary, anonymous, but no longer melancholy man, inaugurate the oyster banquet."—New York Herald.

Both Are Right.

Precision (carrying on argument in cars, appealing to Commercial Traveler)—Which do you say, sir—put up "at" or put up "with" an hotel?

Commercial Traveler (promptly and with decision)—Both. It's easy to put up at most of the hotels on my circuit, but to put up with them is what tries a man's nerve and temper.

Worse Than the Eggs.

In the Restaurant.—"Waiter, these eggs are old and very unpleasant. Call the landlord." "But I assure you, sir, you will find him very much more unpleasant."

Before it is too late to secure your seats for the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club Concert, call and do so at Gresham's drug store. The plan is filling up fast and the good seats will soon be appropriated, for the public realize that these concerts will be one of the best musical treats ever presented to the music loving people of Peterborough. The Boston Herald says of their success in that city:—"The concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club attracted an audience that overflowed the auditorium with an enthusiastic crowd of music-lovers. The audience was fully just fied in its appreciation, and the charming gems were most thoroughly enjoyed, and have shown the admirable abilities of the leaders." Don't miss this great chance of hearing the best of music. Friday evening, Nov. 7th.

Our Young Women.

Last Saturday evening was the occasion of a very pleasant event at the "Y." The members had issued tickets for a free reception to young women. In spite of exceedingly unpleasant weather about fifty guests gathered in the cosy parlors of the Society. Music, vocal and instrumental, was given by members of the association and others, while the various parlor games added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Gay laughter and social chat filled the rooms, proving that those assembled were convinced of their welcome and had the genuine at-home feeling. The famous "Y" Coffee," with substantial edibles, received due attention, and at 10 o'clock the guests departed with many expressions of grateful appreciation. This reception was introductory. "Y" hall will be open every Saturday evening through the winter from 7.30 till 9 o'clock, sharp, as a resort for young women who spend that evening out. We strongly advise our young girls to leave the street on Saturday evening and enjoy an hour in "Y" hall.

Are Hand Bills a Nuisance?

A Test Case in which all Merchants are Interested—Is the Town By-law Valid?

At the Police Court this morning three George street merchants, Messrs. Knowles & Son, dry goods, Gough Bros., clothing, and J. K. Stratton, of the Peterborough Book Store, were arraigned on a charge of a breach of the by-law which prevents the scattering of hand bills upon the streets on Saturday. The boys who had been distributing the bills were also summoned. These were understood to be test cases.

The section of the by-law under which they were charged, was an amendment passed on Nov. 4th, 1889, which read as follows:

"And no person shall scatter about, or throw, or cause to be thrown on any street, in said town, any dodger, hand-bill, advertisement, or other paper, and no person shall deposit on any sidewalk or street in said town, any sweepings or other refuse or rubbish from any shop or building."

The bills complained of were of the ordinary size. Knowles & Son's dodger was headed: "Take notice, at the new dry goods store we are offering goods at prices to suit everybody," etc., and containing some of the reduced prices offered. Gough Bros. presented a "crusher" in the line of overcoats, and a "plum" in ready made clothing. The Peterborough Bookstore advertised Bibles, Hymn Books, Prayer Books and Devotional Books of all kinds for every denomination and at lowest prices.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, conducted the prosecution and Mr. W. A. Stratton the defence.

Constable Adams stated that he watched the boys distributing the bills Saturday morning at the G.T.R. station to the people as they came off the train. The boys put the bills in the people's pockets, in their baskets and under their arms. He did not see the boys throw any bills away nor did he notice any of the persons receiving them throw the bills away. The constable himself got the hand bills produced in court from the boys, when he forbid them to distribute any more. Some of the bills afterwards were dropped in the street, but he could not swear that the boys did not afterwards pick up the bills as soon as they reasonably could. He told the boys to pick up the loose bills.

MASTER THOS. HENRY, of Gough Bros., said that when he came to the station Constable Adams and the other boys were there. They stayed there till they were done distributing, but they did not distribute more than 50 or 70 bills altogether. He put some of the bills in the hands of the people or in their baskets, but none under their arms that he could remember of. The witness also testified that when any of his bills fell to the ground he picked them up, and he saw before he left that there were none lying on the ground. He took only about forty bills from the shop altogether.

MASTER WELLINGTON LANGFORD, employed by F. Knowles & Son, corroborated the preceding witness, and said he took care, as he had been instructed, to pick up the bills that were dropped to the ground.

POLICE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE thought there was no use of going any further with the case, and the remaining witnesses were not called. Mr. Dumble said the boys had evidently followed their instructions, and in the natural course of things some of the bills fell to the streets. The question was whether the words "scattering about" in the by-law covered a case where the boys put the bills in the hands, baskets or pockets of the people.

Mr. EDWARDS contended it did, because he held that the inevitable result of distributing bills, no matter how carefully it was done, was the scattering of a large number about the streets and causing the nuisance which the by-law sought to remedy; and the picking of them up was to mitigation of the offence.

Mr. STRATTON said he understood the by-law was directed particularly against travelling show people, who make a practice of sending a dozen boys out upon the streets and scattering the bills broadcast, but did not apply to merchants who issued their advertisements as carefully as they had done.

Mr. KNOWLES asked what the tax-paying merchants were to do to make their business a success if they were to be deprived of this means of inviting the people to their stores.

Mr. DUMBLE said the boys had followed the instructions of their principals, and he did not suppose any of them had been told to "scatter the bills about." But when a certain proportion of the bills go upon the street as a result of this practice, the question was whether this method of advertising should be allowed to continue, and whether the by-law was red the case. He reserved judgment to have time to think it over.

Weather Notes.

Eastmore and Peterborough.

Everything is beautiful in its season, so were snow and and hail on the last evening of October. As the old wiseacres say, there never was an October without snow, but in 1890 with old age and failing memory, our white-winged visitor had to take a running hop, step and jump from the Rocky Mountains to reach here before the four-faced cupola chimed the last parting salute and ushered in November. The month has been all that could be desired, without extremities of either heat or cold, the hottest being on the 2nd and 3 d, the coldest the 29th and 31st, leaving the mean temperature of the month at 45° 25-31. We had no thunder storms during the month, and although rain fell on 15 days, it fell only to the depth of 2 inches and 29-100 of an inch. Aoreal lights on 4 nights—2 at 11, and 2 at 11 degrees. Fog on 2 nights. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, respectively, namely: South-west, 10 days; south-east, 6 days; north, 1 day; east, 4 days; north-east 2 days; and north-west 8 days.—THOMAS TELLFORD.

The Eighth Anniversary.

St. John's Dedication Festival Commemorating the Eighth Anniversary of its Restoration—Progress and Prosperity—Largely Attended Services, Both Morning and Evening.

Eight years ago St. John's church, as now restored, was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God. Last Saturday, All Saints' Day, was the dedication anniversary, and the formal commemoration was deferred till Sunday, Nov. 2nd. There were three services during the day—at 8 30 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. All were well attended, the congregation taking great interest in the services and evidently anxious to show their gratitude to Almighty God for the blessings he had showered upon the church the past year. The Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, in making the announcement of services for the coming week, took occasion to refer to the healthy condition in which all church interests were, and to the progress that had been made the past year. In material matters especially, this had been most marked. Since the last anniversary celebration the floating debt of $1400 had been reduced to $280, and in every way there was great cause for thankfulness. And there were indications that increased spiritual interest had been awakened. There was an unusually large number of communicants at both the early and the mid-day celebrations of the Holy Communion—perhaps the largest number that ever communicated in one day in the history of the church. At the 11 o'clock service the sermon was preached by Rev. Allen Pitman, of St George's, Toronto. His subject was founded on the incident in the book of Daniel, which records the prophet's habit of prayer. It was treated in a plain, pithy, practical and striking manner. The reverend gentleman uses the simplest possible language, and the directest reference to the wants and needs of his hearers. His sermons, in style of oratory, point, pith and simplicity of speech, are quite out of the grooves of ordinary pulpit orations.

A good-sized congregation, more than one-half of which were young men who occupied the middle seats, gathered in St. John's church last night to listen to the special sermon by Rev. A.A. Pitman, of St. George's church, Toronto. The sermon was directly to young men, and particularly the members of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, a flourishing society in connection with the church, which was originally known as the Young Men's Guild, and has for its object the encouragement of church work among young men.

The service was taken by the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, who before the sermon began, took occasion to remark upon the improved financial condition of the church which enabled them to labor in a much larger moral field and extend the church organization to the glory of God.

Rev. Mr. Pitman's sermon was concise, pointed and practical, and just the kind calculated to reach young men. He took for his text Psalm cxxii, 1:—

"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the House of the Lord."

These words, he said, were spoken by a man who was far away from his own country. In his exile at Babylon he had a desire to see his native place, and he speaks these words in answer to a request of his band of compatriots who had determined to once more see the temple of their forefathers. To these words the reverend speaker directed the attention of the congregation, because there were many who were not glad to go to the house of God. There were even those who professed to say that one could live as well without God, but feeling His power above us we were indeed glad to come to His House, and worship. The reverend speaker then contrasted the attitude in which men entered the church and the theatre. Was there not such a thing as sneaking into the house of God, with a listless, yawning air and throwing oneself into the seat without any interest in the service. Such a person could not get any good there. Various reasons were then given why we should be glad in entering the house of the Lord. We come here not only to get good but to give good, to cement our fellowship and to forget the world. Sometimes a man says he prefers to say his prayers in the open air. That was sheer cant, a neat way of telling a lie, he not having the courage to say he did not want to enter the church. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew's had the standard of faith before them; such excuses as these had no place in them. We also come here to think of the saint from whom we were divided by the stream of death, and the reverend speaker answered the question, "What have the dead and gone saints to do with us?" by explaining that, in the spiritual, as in the physical life, we have entered into the work of those who laboured before us. Also we come to church to pray. Prayer was work, but there were commendable sentiments also, to which no objection could be raised. Foul words, profane oaths, obscene songs, bad habits, were none of these. It was the duty of the St. Andrew's Society to encourage and propagate proper amusements in connection with the church. Then some came here to rest from the cares of the world, and as such they were indeed glad to go to the House of God. Then others came because it was the only church in which they could worship, because it is the one way by which they can follow Christ. It was with them no question of direct descent from the fountain-head Christ was the head and founder of the church, while there had been no dissenting body in existence more than 200 years. Their rules were laid down in the Prayer Book where all might read and follow them. As members of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood it would help them to keep their good name untarnished, and as sons of Christ they would be able to repeat in all sincerity the words of the text. He urged them not to be laughed into neglecting their Prayer Book, but go to church and take their share in the service, and

"Bear unscathed through battle's stormy field, Honour's bright, and virtue's stainless shield."

Heredity of Crime.

Curious Phases and the Direful Results of Inherited Disease.

Doubtless crime is often committed from the mere love of it.

The identity of "Jack the Ripper" remains undiscovered, so we do not know what impelled him to the commission of his atrocious crimes. Little doubt he was insane, his actions controlled by an abnormal condition of the mind; it is plain none of the ordinary reasons for crime prevailed in his case. He was, perhaps, a victim of some hereditary taint, which drove him to acts against which his will revolted and from which, in his rational moments, his soul recoiled in horror.

A French novelist of realism makes the hero of a late novel of such a character. He was a locomotive engineer, a thorough y competent and reliable man; but if he chanced to behold the white throat of a woman a wild frenzy seized him; he could not control a desire to plunge a knife into it.

He was aware of his infirmity, fought it with stubborn will, denied himself the society of women, and for years controlled himself. At last he meets his fate; finds pleasure in her society, with no return of his old longing for blood, until he flatters himself he is safe. But one night she meets him with gleaming throat bare; the uncontrollable impulse seizes him; he cannot resist; as she throws her loving arms about him he thrusts the knife into her neck and—she falls, a victim to the madness of tainted blood.

Fortunately for the victims of ordinary forms of inherited disease, they may protect themselves before it obtains dominance in the system. Inherited kidney disease is especially dangerous, but may be successfully resisted. "In 1883, I was so near death's door with an inherited and complicated case of Bright's disease," writes James H. Dove, 217 Baldwin st., Alpena, Mich., August 11th, 1890, "which had baffled all remedies and medical assistance obtainable, that I was given up by friends and physicians as beyond all recovery. To this extremity I was induced to try Warner's Safe Cure, which very soon gave me relief, and led me to persevere in its use, until I again became able to attend to my business. My case is well known in this community, and I feel fully warranted in recommending Warner's Safe Cure in cases of kidney disease, knowing full well that I would long since have been in my grave, had it not been for the use of this remedy."

Men and women inherit genius, talent, all mental and physical qualities; and it is now well established that all phases of physical, as well as mental disease, are transmissible.

Police Court.

MONDAY, Nov. 3rd.

Robert Sutherland and Percy Fuller were charged by Mrs. Gifford with having taken a gate off her premises and wrenched the hinges Hallowe'en. Both boys proved an alibi and were discharged. Mrs. Gifford could not be persuaded that the two defendants were not guilty, despite the overwhelming evidence offered, and thought it pretty hard times that an unprotected woman should be used like that without redress. She asked the magistrate if next Hallowe'en she might "use a little shot," and that would prove who did it.

H. Lapiante, butcher, and John Craig, restaurateur, were charged with a breach of the forestalling by-law on Wednesday last. Mr. Lapiante admitted having bargained for some fowl ten minutes before eleven o'clock, but he thought as it was so close to the legal hour he ought to be let off. Mr. Craig said he bought a large quantity of fowl early in the morning but not for purposes of sale. He used all the fowl for the dinner that day, and he considered as he had done so he had committed no breach of the bylaw. The magistrate replied that the bylaw was very strict, and did not allow a trader to even ask the price of goods before the hour of eleven o'clock. Both defendants were fined $2 and costs.

A Remark Overheard.

A Poet's Reflections on the Fallacy of Appearances.

[While walking down George street I passed two farmers standing conversing. One of them made the remark: "That is Telford, the poet." "That?" said the other, "A plain dressed and plain looking man? I would not suppose there was much poetry in his head.']

I am the man, though very poorly dressed,
Likewise plain-looking, I admit my fate,
From my appearance do not form your test,
With rainbows are the internal properties,
Fine feathers always make fine birds, I know,
By many that old proverb is held true;
Judge not a man from his great outward show,
For you may be most bitterly deceived.
A shining pate may deck a calloused head,
Though nicely darkened to the very skin,
A few weak talents may be lying dead,
A massive head, but lack of brains within.
Think not all great, fine broad-cloth adorn,
Dress, like bird's plumage you admiring scan
Like sunbeams glittering in the early morn,
Reflecting but the shadow of a man.
All is not gold that glitters to the eyes—
No proof of knowledge rich attire displays,
Real intellect concealed and deeper lies
Unlike and seldom shedding forth its rays.
A fine appearance in no such man's plan—
The face is stamped by the Creator's plan,
Comely or plain externally in matters not,
The soul, thoughts found all beautiful in the man
Think not real worth is only found in those Polished by fashion and veneered with style,
In plain brake heads and plainest working clothes,
Bright talents smoulder in obscure exile.
To be a man he need no be a swell—
Master strokes often are but thin,
To know man's worth you must break through each shell.
Free heaven-sent genius you may find within.
The riches, jewels, by kings no que nsadored,
Untold them in land gilt rims to be eyed,
The sea, the rock and earth must be explored,
Before the seeker can secure the prize.
Within man, the same pursue the searcher's plan,
Cast looks and dress like chaff unto the wind,
Fathom the depths of Knowledge in the man,
The range of thought and boundaries of the mind.

WILLIAM TELFORD, Smith.

Pontypool.

The Presbyterians of Pontypool and vicinity, including Ballyduff and Janetville, having been deprived of Presbyterian service by the resignation of Rev. George McKay, and being anxious to have said services continued, petitioned the Presbytery of Peterborough to send a supply, which they did last May, in the person of Mr. James Binnie, M. A., a student from Queen's College, Kingston, who has laboured among the people of his different charges with remarkable success and acceptance, having won the esteem and best wishes of all those with whom he came in contact. Having to sever his connection with the people, by returning to Kingston for the completion of his collegiate course, a tea and entertainment were gotten up in order to afford the people a last opportunity for a social meeting with Mr Binnie, and to demonstrate the good wishes entertained for him. A farewell address and purse were tendered Mr. Binnie.

POACHERS AT LONG POINT.

Detective Murray Looking Into the Doings of the Rascals.

LONG POINT, Nov. 2.—Government Detective Murray spent a couple of days here last week, having been instructed by the Attorney-General's Department to make inquiries regarding the alleged outrage committed by poachers on the grounds of the Long Point Shooting Club. Poachers steal in and shoot the deer, and only lately killed five, placing their heads on pinnacles as a sufficient notice to the club that they would shoot the deer whenever they wanted to. Poachers have been arrested from time to time, but as the law at present stands all the company can do is to sue the poachers for the value of the deer slain. The poachers have built a house on a scow and anchor close to the company's preserves, and when any of the gamekeepers come in view they put on heavy masks so that they cannot be recognized, and if they are followed they retreat to their scow. A few days ago the head gamekeeper, W. J. Ferris, pursued a number of the poachers and when he got close to them one of them struck him a heavy blow in the face with a paddle, knocking him out of his boat. On Monday last two officers the president of the club had brought from Toronto to assist the gamekeepers followed some of the poachers and they, as usual, retreated to their scow. The officers were close upon them when one of the poachers pointed a gun at the officers and said that if they came an inch further he would blow their brains out. Detective Murray made the fullest investigation and will report to the Government. Several of the members of the Long Point Club belong to similar organizations in the United States, where they are accorded the fullest protection, and they feel that the laws here should be so amended as to afford them the same protection.

WEDDED AND WIDOWED.

Bereavement of the Daughter of Congressman Butterworth.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Miss Mary Butterworth, daughter of Mr. Benjamin Butterworth, who yesterday at 3 o'clock became the wife of Mr. Haughwaut Howe, was today at 12 o'clock made a widow. The circumstances attending the wedding were very romantic. The patient had been confined to his bed for some time, and his physicians attributed much of his weakness to worry over the thought that he could not keep his engagement to wed Miss Butterworth on the appointed day. It was thought that the performance of the ceremony would hasten his recovery. The bride and her parents gladly concurred in the suggestion, and shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the marriage was solemnized.

After the marriage ceremony Mr. Howe appeared to be greatly relieved in mind and to suffer less pain than for some time previously. Toward evening, however, he grew rapidly worse. Throughout the night he was delirious, and struggle succeeded struggle. Every effort was made by his physician to protect the heart of the patient and to quiet him. Mr. Howe's ravings increased in violence, and it was even necessary to make use of hypodermic injections to quiet the patient.

A sad night it was for the young bride. All through the weary watches she sat by the sick bed, not retiring or resting for a moment until 6 o'clock this morning, when she took an hour's rest. Later on, as the morning passed, Mr. Howe's heart was found to be jumping at a fearful rate, and shortly after noon he died. Grouped around the bedside at the time were the young bride of a day, Dr. and Mrs. Roosa, Dr. Magruder and Isaac Roosa.

Mr. Howe was the son of the late Colonel Frank E. Howe of New York, and was well-known both in this city and New York. At the time of his death he was dispatch agent at New York for the State Department. He had held the position of private secretary to Postmaster James and disbursing officer of the International American Conference.

His death was a great shock to the young wife, who is a great favorite in Washington society.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

All diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strong or man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT OF QUANTITY, not merely a sensation or tension, and the quantity or current is the great saturative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular System.

Remember that the Dorenwend Belt is the very latest invention in the line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

USURPED A GRAVE.

JOHN CROFT APPEARS AS IF OUT OF THE GRAVE.

Remarkable Case of Mistaken Identity at Hamilton. A Wife Identifies a Corpse as that of Her Husband and Buries Him With Honors—Croft Turns Up Alive.

HAMILTON, Nov. 3.—John Croft, who it was supposed died suddenly in a hotel in St. Thomas, whose supposed remains were brought to Hamilton and buried, is not dead, but living. He is in London, and has read with a considerable degree of interest the account of his sudden death, the identification of his body, its removal to Hamilton and its burial. The circumstances of this case make it one of the most remarkable cases of mistaken identity on record.

Some 11 weeks ago John Croft, a moulder, residing at 36 Margaret-street, this city, left home to look for work at his trade. It was understood that he had gone to St. Thomas, for he was well known there, having lived in that town for many years. Since his departure his family received no word from or about him until about 10 days ago, when the intelligence was received that a stranger had suddenly dropped dead in the Wilcox Hotel, St. Thomas, and that he had been identified as John Croft, of Hamilton. J. Taylor and L. L. Irving, of this city, friends of the family, went to St. Thomas and closely examined the body of the dead man, but could not recognize in the features of the dead man the features of John Croft. Mrs. Croft herself, accompanied by Mrs. William Monck, went to St. Thomas and examined the body. They did not positively identify it, but were inclined to believe that it was the body of Croft, and their belief almost developed into absolute certainty when the marks on the body were compared with what Mrs. Croft knew to be marks on her husband's body. Afterwards William Monck, sr., William Monck, jr., and Miss Mary Croft viewed the body in St. Thomas, but they could not positively identify it. In the other hand, it was positively identified by Messrs. Axford, Charles Gilbert, Neil McAlpine and wife, of Southwold as several others who had known Croft for years. The last doubt in the minds of Croft's relatives vanished when Dr. Duncombe described the marks on the dead body, which so perfectly corresponded with those which it was known were borne by Croft that the doctors declared it to be impossible for any two men to resemble one another so closely in that respect.

How the Body Was Identified.

These are the marks of identification:

There was a scar on the back of the neck of the dead man. Croft had a scar in exactly the same spot, the effects of a carbuncle.

On the crown of the dead man's head was a scar the result of an old wound. Croft had had a scalp wound in the same spot, so serious that it had been necessary to have it stitched on the scalp of the dead man's body was a conspicuous scar. Croft had a scar of the same kind in the same place.

Two of the dead man's left ribs had been broken. Croft had had two of his left ribs broken.

Croft had had three teeth. The same three teeth were missing in the dead man.

The dead man was the same height and general build as Croft, and wore a chin whisker identical in appearance with Croft's.

The dead man's hair was black and Croft's was gray. But the doctors declared the hair of the corpse had been dyed.

Even to the clothes the identification was complete. All doubts as to the identity of the remains were finally set at rest. The body was brought to Hamilton, and last Wednesday it was followed to Burlington Cemetery by a sorrowing relatives and many friends and there buried. The funeral was managed by Court Hamilton, I O F., of which Croft was a member. Rev. G. A. Mitchell was the officiating clergyman. Through Croft's membership in Court Hamilton his widow became entitled to the insurance which he carried on his life.

But It Wasn't Croft

In spite of all the positive marks of identification, however, it now turns out that the dead man who was identified as Croft and who was buried as Croft was not Croft at all. Mrs. Croft received a telegram last night at 10 o'clock from a relative of hers in London named Albert McMillen, stating that John Croft, her husband, was in London and wanted his wife to go to London to meet him. Mrs. Croft left for London this afternoon.

Where Croft Has Been.

Nearly all this time John Croft has been quietly working in a lumber yard at Tonawanda, N.Y. He is not much of a newspaper reader, and was quite ignorant of the fact that he had died in St. Thomas and been buried in Hamilton, until a few days ago, when his employer showed him a paper containing these interesting scraps of his biography. Then Mr. Croft determined that it was about time for him to go home. He started, but when he got as far as London he stopped, not knowing exactly what to do, for he dreaded the possible effect that his sudden appearance would cause. He consulted his relative Mr. McMullen, and the telegram received last night by Mrs. Croft was the result of consultation.

And now who is the dead man—Croft's double, who is usurping his grave?

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Joubert, the Boer General, Pays a Visit to Toronto.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—Gen. Joubert, governor of the Transvaal republic, member of the executive council of five and superintendent of inland affairs which gave the English so much trouble in 1880, arrived in town yesterday morning from Montreal. He is staying at the Queen's and is accompanied by Mrs. Joubert, his son and niece. They left Cape Town July 3 and have visited most of the countries of Europe and expect to return to Pretoria about February next. The General's trip is partly for the purpose of perfecting trade with the country and partly to examine the institutions of the. While in Chicago he will make arrangements for the representation of the Transvaal at the World's Fair.

Regarding the war with England General Joubert said:

"Our country is at peace at present with England, but if we are so it is only because we are a small, weak, powerless nation compared with them. Have I ever thought of arming for mourse. No. I am not proud of the part I took in the trouble with England. I simply did my duty to my countrymen. A publication of the history of these wars, written by myself, would do us no benefit whatever. But I would like to write, and probably will do this some time or other a history of the contemptible manner in which England has treated or rather persecuted the Boers from the time she first occupied the Cape till the present day, and I am sure that the English people would find in that history enough blots on the name of England for forbearance and fair dealing to darken the lustre of the sun which shines over them. The world at large has seen made to believe that the principal reason for which we seceded was that England interfered with the slave trade, but they do not know that we have laws which for all the taking of a colored child from its parents or the sale of one with a flog of 500 Rijksdaalders, the equivalent for $500, for both buyer and seller or five years penal servitude, with ball and chain to defend. They also quite cite us for exactly call our wars of extermination against the Kaffirs but I defy the English to compare the result of their cruel and fierce unnecessary expeditions against the natives with our own."

Victorian Cabinet Crisis

MELBOURNE, Nov. 2.—The members of the Colonial Cabinet have resigned in consequence of the passage yesterday of a vote of want of confidence by the Victorian Parliament. The action of the Colonial Parliament in adopting a vote of want of confidence in the government was due to the secession from the government supporters of the members of the labor party.

LUCKY BALDWIN'S $70,000.

How the Big Turfman Nearly Won $100,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The first half of the Linden meeting closed to-day. Elizabeth and Linden will each have eight days of racing to-morrow. Beginning Tuesday Elizabeth's meeting will contain seven days, and then Linden will again be given a chance and will close the season Wednesday, Nov. 19. There can be no criticisms about either of these tracks. The racing has been honest, the management has been liberal and the class of people who have attended have been unusually good. Neither track has spared money, and the result of a liberal management has been the satisfaction of horsemen and the thorough enjoyment of the public.

The riding of Barnes, "Lucky" Baldwin's jockey, was criticized by The World when Barnes came here from Saratoga last summer. It was common talk at the time, and the attention of the judges was called to Barnes' queer performances. Broad Church had an interview with "Lucky" Baldwin at Lexington, Ky., and Mr. Baldwin confirms all that has been said about Barnes. Broad Church says:

"Lucky Baldwin arrived here last night from Chicago and left this evening for his California home. I had quite a talk with him last night and he was quite outspoken in speaking about his own stable and turf matters in general.

"What are your stable winnings for the season?' I asked.

"Very nearly $70,000,' he responded, 'but they ought to have been beyond the $100,000 limit, and they would if I had a square deal. By gad! I lost at least six stakes I should have won, and do you know how I lost them? I'll tell you. No use in mincing words, I was——

"I wouldn't care to put in print the strong language Mr. Baldwin used, but he certainly had not kindly feeling for his late jockey. Next to Murphy, Barnes used to be nearly as good a jockey as any beam ahead of what a jockey should be—at once capable, quiet and honest. Is it possible I could have been mistaken in my estimate? And now they have ruled off quite a prominent trainer and turfman right here, which muddles and distracts and confounds every sort of preconceived notion and baffles all ordinary estimates. Can such things be and overcome us like a summer's cloud?"

WINNIPEG.

Sudden Death of a Count's Cousin—Killed by Lightning.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3.—Harry Desmoncourt, cousin of Count de Simoncourt and his business manager here, died on the prairie last night a short distance from town. He was accompanying his brother part of the way to the Stonewall, and when the race course, five miles from the city, was reached complained of being ill. They turned back to town, but the oxen which they were driving became mired and they started to walk. After proceeding a few minutes Harry laid down and exclaimed that he could go no further. He was carefully wrapped up and his brother went for medical assistance, and on returning with which an hour later found the poor fellow a cold corpse. Heart disease was the cause. No inquest will be held.

One of the brick arches in the new land titles office in Brandon fell to-day burying three workmen in the debris. One named Lockwill was seriously injured.

Mrs. Batter's infant child was killed near Moosejaw, while playing with a mowing machine. Her husband and eldest daughter were killed by lightning three or four months ago, and this was the sole remaining child.

In Martin-Luxton criminal libel suit to-day defendants' second plea was thrown out, but allowed in amended form. To this complainant demurs, but if demurrer is not held good evidence of widest range will be admitted.

John Evans was drawn into a cogwheel at Rat Portage saw mill Saturday and his leg crushed up to the knee, necessitating amputation.

A Neglected Hero.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Monday saw the grave close over one of England's great explorers. Sir Richard Burton lies buried at Trieste. His remains, however, will lie only temporarily in the Adriatic port where he was British consul. They are to be almost immediately conveyed to England for interment in the family vault in Hertfordshire.

The hope has been expressed, and it will be widely sympathized with, that the opportunity will be seized for a fitting national recognition of the important services rendered by so great a man. It is a fact that Sir Richard Burton was shamefully neglected in his life-time. The "persons in authority" with whom Sir Richard had to deal may be accused, says The Newcastle Chronicle, not merely of a want of magnanimity, but of a lack of justice. So illustrious an explorer and scholar as Sir Richard Burton surely deserved something better than a second-rate consulship in an unhealthy town. He merited, at least so soon as his ill-health was made known—which was some time ago—that his full term of office should have been remitted and his pension granted to him.

He is not likely to be easily forgotten by the bulk of his fellow-countrymen. As an African explorer alone his claims stand high, for was he not a pioneer in darkest Africa and the adventurous discoverer of Lake Tanganyka? But Sir Richard was more than this. He was a soldier, a hunter, a man of science and a wonderful linguist. He was besides a brilliant and voluminous writer. The works of Sir Richard Burton would, it is said, if collected fill a decent-sized bookcase.

He was one, as has been said of him, of whom England may justly feel proud, though the regret cannot fail to intrude itself that his services should have been so poorly requited.

ANOTHER SPEECH FROM THE OLD MAN ELOQUENT.

Fierce Fighting Between Turks and Armenians—Several Soldiers Killed.—The Sultan Says He Will Protect all Christian Subjects.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Mr. Gladstone started on his return to Hawarden from Scotland today. When the train reached Montrose a large number of Mr. Gladstone's friends were in waiting and gave him an enthusiastic reception. This scene was repeated at Arbroath.

At Dundee a number of his admirers presented him with a walking stick and a luncheon basket. When Peebles was reached the train was met by a large crowd and a delegation of workingmen presented Mr. Gladstone with a traveling rug.

Mr Gladstone delivered a short speech at Peebles. He referred to the speech made by Lord Hartington at the Liberal Unionist meeting at Edinburgh Friday last and said Lord Hartington was evidently not well satisfied with the result of his doctrines. The only doubt in Lord Hartington's mind was whether the time had arrived to surrender. The Liberal Unionist party, Mr. Gladstone declared, was broken down and the followers of it were dreadfully broken up by the results of the recent bye elections for members of the House of Commons, which were most satisfactory to the Liberal party.

A Boy Dies from Whisky.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 3.—The Umbria arriving this morning reports a strange incident three days after leaving New York. A steerage passenger left her son Frederick Kamp, aged four years, alone for a short time. When she returned from the deck she discovered the boy was drunk. He had found a bottle of wine in one of the berths and had drunk half of the contents. He was unconscious, and the surgeon was at once called, but notwithstanding all his efforts he was unable to revive the child and it died. The boy was buried at sea.

Frenchmen Applaud the Verdict.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—At Versailles to-day a woman was acquitted of the charge of murdering her husband, the verdict of the jury being received with applause by the spectators in the courtroom. It was shown during the trial that the defendant, whose name is Guerin, traced her husband to a villa, where he kept a mistress. Calling him out, she stabbed him to the heart as he crossed the threshold. The dying man, as he fell to the ground, exclaimed: "Kiss our child for me all is over." The jury gave its verdict of acquittal without hesitation.

Refused a Dukedom.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—It is now an open secret that Count Von Moltke has refused the title of Duke of Sedan, which the Emperor no only offered but pressed upon him. As it is, Von Moltke is at present in the Herrenhaus as a member for life. So the stern, silent soldier refused honors which would merely have been titular and honorific, without enlarging his sphere for doing good in the Vaterland.

In Sight of Thousands.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3.—During a circus performance here, which was attended by the Czar and the members of his family, one of the trained horses suddenly became vicious and made an attack on Giniselli, the manager of the circus. The horse knocked the man down and bit him and trampled upon him, mangling him in a terrible manner in full view of the spectators. The Czar and his family abruptly withdrew from the private box and left the building. A general panic among the spectators followed and the performance closed.

FOUR TRAINMEN KILLED.

THEIR DEATH DUE TO AN OPERATOR'S ERROR.

The Unfortunate Victims Terribly Crushed—Buried Beneath the Debris of Colliding Locomotives—Heavy Loss of Rolling Stock.

SYRACUSE, Nov. 3.—The undue officiousness of a boy telegraph operator named M. A. Clark caused a terrible wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad at Rock Cut, a station three miles south of this city, at 5½ this evening, resulting in the death of four persons.

The New York and Pacific day express train from the south does not stop at Rock Cut, but passes the station at the rate of 40 miles an hour. Before the express was due at Rock Cut a coal train from Syracuse arrived at the station and had been run in on a switch on the north side of the main track, standing well up towards the east end of the switch. As the express approached Clark from some unaccountable reason concluded that the switch was open, and running outside swung it over. As the switch was turned the express swung on to the side track and the crash of the engines spoke the result. The firemen and engineer of each engine were caught in the wreck and ground to death. Their names were:

James Doyle, Scranton, Pa., engineer of coal train.
Myrtle Fernand, fireman of coal train.
Michael J. Burke of Syracuse, N.Y., engineer of express.
Jeremiah Lee, fireman of express.

The body of Engineer Doyle was found lying by the fence beside the track. The body of Fireman Fernand was found buried under tons of wreckage. Burke's body lay under a great mass of twisted iron and wood on the south side of the track. The body of Fireman Lee was found tightly wedged in between the body of his engine and the cab.

GREAT FIRE IN 'FRISCO

The Grand Hotel, the Finest in the World, Destroyed.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—Fire broke out to-day in the Grand Hotel and extended to the whole block bounded by Market, New Montgomery, Stevenson and Second-streets and destroyed a large number of stores and offices, also the Burlington Hotel. The total loss is $1,500,000.

Both the Burlington and Grand hotels were completely destroyed. The guests became panic stricken and rushed to the sidewalk with what valuables they could carry.

There were several narrow escapes, many of the guests being carried out when nearly overcome. The Board of Trade rooms, the Pullman Palace Car Company's rooms, and the G.N., the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific ticket offices and almost a dozen business offices were all damaged. The fire was due to spontaneous combustion.

The Grand Hotel was opened in 1870 by Johnson & Co., and was then considered one of the finest hotels in the world. It was 7 storeys high and had a frontage of 200 feet in Market-street. Two years ago about half of the block was leased to other parties and was called the Burlington Hotel.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Election Petition Matters. A Mysterious Romance Wife or no Wife. The Libel Action Against the Globe.

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday the motion for the examination of Birchall in the case of Greene v. The Globe was not argued yesterday. Mr. Hilton appeared in support of the application, but counsel for the defence sent up word that he would not be able to go on with the motion till this morning; so the motion will be argued to-day. In reply to the motion the defendants file an affidavit in which they say it will be unnecessary to examine Birchall, as they believe the plaintiff is not the Greene to which Birchall refers in his confession.

The master in chambers yesterday gave judgment in the case of Allen v. Township of Yarmouth dismissing the defendants' application for leave to have a medical examination made of the injuries sustained by the plaintiff's in being thrown from a wagon. The plaintiff alleges that the accident whereby they were injured was owing to the defective state of the defendants' road.

An order for the examination of all books, papers, ballots, counter foils, etc., used in the Kingston elections was granted yesterday in the protest against Aid. Metcalfe, M.P., Lane.

Some time ago a motion was made on behalf of the petitioner in the North Bruce election petition to have the petition tried in the township of Amabel, Kent County, and the defendant is an ex reeve of that township, and said to be worth $30,000. Julia Hamilton is a Spanish girl and was only 15 years old when she met the defendant, who was a guerilla soldier in Mexico during the mining trouble. She was a servant of one of the mining engineers and when asked by the defendant to marry him professed her ignorance of the marriage ceremony, but was satisfied with his assurance that if she lived with him as his wife it would be all right and the marriage would be considered legal. This she did and continued to live with him till August last, when they separated after a dispute, he having called her some harsh names and, it is alleged, accused her with incest with one of her sons. Mrs. Netherton possesses no proofs of her marriage beyond written acknowledgments by her husband that she is his wife. Six children were born to the couple, five of whom are still alive. The defendant sets up no marriage and alleged that they only lived together. The alleged marriage took place in 1881.

Mrs. Birchall will arrive in Toronto from Woodstock and will collect the printing which have been in circulation here (including one at The World office) and proceed to Ottawa to present them in person to the Minister of Justice. Two English petitions were received at Ottawa yesterday signed by 700 and 300 residents of England and Wales praying for commutation of the sentence. The petition is signed by the mother, half-brother, sister-in-law, half-sister & half-sisters, husbands, half uncles, half aunts, half nephews and other relatives of the prisoner.

[illegible] Skelding, one of the oldest inhabitants of York, died Sunday at Scarboro' village, where he had lived for over half a century. His father was a soldier in the British army, who was sent out to Toronto, then Little York, early in this century with his regiment. He subsequently entered the service of Mr. Cruikshank and Mr. Skelding was born in that gentleman's house in the year 1805. When about 15 years of age his family moved to the lake shore, near Scarboro', where they purchased a farm. The country was then a continuous forest, abounding in wild animals, and peopled for the most part by the aboriginal Indians, and the deceased was able to recall numerous reminiscences of forest adventure. After living on the farm for a number of years, he removed with his mother and sister to Scarboro village, and there he has remained. One of the most respected of the men who knew the dangers and toil of the early pioneering days. He left $100 by his will to the Old People's Home Toronto.

DR. BARNARDO'S BENEFICENT SCHEME.

There has just been issued by the EXAMINER printing establishment a neat little pamphlet, entitled "Dr. Barnardo's Homes Colonization Scheme." The scheme proposes to make of the outcasts of the Old World useful, self-supporting, and, moreover, productive citizens. To give a clear idea of this benevolent and, what is better, beneficent undertaking, let us watch Dr. Barnardo pick up a wretched, starving, ragged waif in the slum streets of London. He is put into one of the "Homes," worked over into the semblance of humanity, given a thorough training as circumstances will admit of. The lad is then transferred to the Canadian Boys' Home, 214 Farley Avenue, Toronto, whence he is sent out in due course, and placed with some farmer as a farm servant. During the past eight years a large number of boys have thus learned the modus operandi of farming, with sufficient thoroughness to manage a farm on their own account. Such of these lads, and those only, as have saved of their earnings a sufficient sum, it is proposed to assist. Their habits of industry and steadiness and their thrift warrant them being selected as objects of this new scheme. The young man is furnished by the Toronto Home with a colonist ticket to Russell, Manitoba, where the Barnardo Farm Home is situated. The manager of that home selects a homestead for the settler. As soon as the necessary entry shall have been made the settler will be provided with an outfit, consisting of oxen, plough, cart or wagon, harness, provisions, etc., for the purpose of commencing operations on the homestead, the value of such outfit to be in a certain proportion to the amount of cash the settler is able to deposit with Mr. Owen, the Superintendent of the Toronto Home. The amount advanced is in no case to exceed twice the amount of the original capital of the settler. The amount advanced the settler will be free of interest for the first twelve months, after which four per cent. will be charged. In fact, the young man is presented with the most liberal opportunity of establishing himself on a farm of his own and becoming a landed proprietor, and, in the course of time, a wealthy, or at least, well-to-do yeoman—a striking contrast to what his life would have been in the slums of London, had he not been rescued by Dr. Barnardo's far-reaching hand of relief from the misery, crime and degradation of the slums. Critics of Dr. Barnardo's work have perhaps been premature. The above aspect of his work can be only accorded the heartiest commendation. It is something the EXAMINER has long ago advocated the Dominion Government should do on an elaborate scale. Millions of acres of fertile soil are awaiting the settler, and there are thousands of persons willing to become those settlers if they could only have a helping hand extended and a little capital advanced to set them up in the world.

BALFOUR'S IRISH TOUR.

He Returns to Dublin With His Arm in a Sling, but Happy

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Mr. Balfour has returned from his visit to the west of Ireland. The move has been in its way almost as much of a success as Mr. Gladstone's campaign in Midlothian. He secured the confidence of the people by appearing among them without escort, police or military. Moreover, he presented the rare spectacle of a Chief Secretary actually inquiring into the griefs and sufferings of the people on their own ground, investigating the causes before their eyes and listening in person to their complaints. Whatever may have been the motives of Mr. Balfour, it is to his credit and to that of the people that he was treated with respect wherever he went; that in some places he received the unwonted honor of cheers, and that throughout not a hair of his head was harmed where thousands had their children to curse him and hundreds were ready to shoot him on sight. Important measures will be laid before Parliament for the improvement of Ireland. To immediate relief a large sum of money will be devoted, and work on the new system of railways will begin at an early day.

To a number of gentlemen who have called on Mr. Balfour, offering suggestions for remedying the distress which threatens, he has replied that while approving many of the suggestions for improving the fisheries and increasing communications, he pointed out that the Government had already many large schemes in contemplation in Mayo, Donegal, Cork and Kerry, and would not therefore, be able this year to undertake in Galway more than one line, which line will cost over £300,000. When these schemes are accomplished there will be an opening up of railways in Western Ireland such as no man has expected within this generation.

Mr. Balfour carries his arm in a sling. The cause is an accident that happened while he was closing a window at Costello Lodge on Thursday. The injury is not serious.

PERISHED BY THE ROADSIDE.

A Partially Demented Woman Dies in a Field from Exposure.

NORWOOD, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Burns of Asphodel township, an aged lady of partially unsound mind, wandered away from the residence of her son, Timothy O'Grady, on Saturday and was found dead in a field this morning, two miles from home. The family, supposing she had gone to a neighbor's, did not attach any importance to her absence, and it was not until Sunday morning that a diligent search was prosecuted. This morning the dead body was found in a field adjoining the roadside. The old lady must have been out in all Saturday night's rain and a snow storm which lasted all Sunday afternoon and evening. The body was still warm when found.

A CRUSTY BAKER.

Shoots His Daughter-in-Law—He Kneads Hemp.

NANAIMO, B.C., Nov. 3.—Sunday evening J. Addington, senior partner in the baking business of Addington & Son, shot his daughter-in-law in the head, smashing her skull. During the morning the father and son had quarrelled. In the evening Mrs. Addington, jr., accompanied by a Mrs. Hirsch, went into the shop. They were there confronted by the father-in-law, Addington, with a revolver in his hand. The woman retreated to the sidewalk, but Mrs. Addington subsequently entered the shop, where she was shot twice. After the shooting, Addington rushed from the house, but after wandering about some time returned and went to work. He was jailed. Mrs. Addington was conveyed to the hospital. The doctors hold out no hopes for her recovery.

BOLD ROBBERY OF AN EXPRESS AGENT

Two Burglars Steal Several Thousand Dollars in Meadville, Penn.

MEADVILLE, Penn., Nov. 3.—One of the boldest robberies perpetrated in this city for many years occurred at 10½ last evening at the office of the Wells Fargo Express Company. The agent, C. F. Moore, was alone in the office, which is situated the width of the street from the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio passenger station and in a locality where scores of people are continually passing, and was counting the contents of his cash drawer before balancing his cash account, when a rap on the door drew his attention. He placed the money in the drawer, stepped outside the office railing and opened the door, admitting two strangers. Upon entering, they bade him good evening, then levelled a revolver at his head and cautioned him not to move or make an outcry on pain of instant death. He was then bound and gagged and laid upon the floor. The robbers then opened the large safe, which was unlocked, and tore open and appropriated the money packages valued at from $5000 to $15,000, after which they made their escape. Mr. Moore was so securely tied that it was fully half an hour after they left him before he freed himself.

He describes his assailants as follows: One large, middle-aged man, wearing a flowing beard, evidently false, and the other a young sandy complexioned man about 30 years old. Fortunately for the company the money the agent was counting when he was interrupted, amounting to several hundred dollars, was untouched by the robbers. When the safe had been ransacked the robbers searched Mr. Moore, but evidently were disgusted with the value of his watch and the contents of his wallet, for they returned the same to him with the remark that they could do better. The police are now searching the city for the robbers, but they have not yet been able to discover the slightest clue.

Vessels Bound for Toronto Wrecked.

OSWEGO, N.Y., Nov. 3.—The schooner Caroline Marsh, owned by Capt. John Ewart of Port Hope, loaded with coal for McGill & Co., Toronto, drifted ashore near the life-saving station last night and is a total wreck. The schooner Undine, owned by Capt. Alexander Ure, with a cargo of 400 tons of coal for Toronto, struck one of the rock ledges off Braddock's point during last night's storm and sank. The crew escaped in the yawl but lost everything they had.

Purify The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing exclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

The Wonderful Cheap Men.

100 MEN WANTED,

I want one hundred persons, male or female, each to buy a piece of property from me during the next few days.

Rich men are advancing the prices of their property from 10 to 50 per cent., but poor men cannot afford to hold, and have to sell even at a loss. Their loss will be your gain, and now is your time to make money.

A hundred dollars in a Saving Bank will return you four dollars in a year. The same amount invested in properties which I have for sale, I am confident will yield in the same time from 25 to 50 per cent., and you must know that there is no safer investment in a rising town like Peterborough.

Reader I know you cannot but feel that Peterborough is destined to be a large city and that property must advance in price, then why do you hesitate in buying? Hesitate no longer. Come in and invest $25 or $50 and I feel safe in saying that I will double it for you within one year. Are you too honest to make money so fast. Come in and investigate. I want you to understand what I have to sell and that it is to your interest to buy. I will be in my office to meet you any time you name to 9 p.m.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

INTERESTING PARAGRAPHS FROM ALL SOURCES WORTH PERUSAL.

Bleaching by Electricity—Iron vs. Steel Rails—Value of the Range Finder—Thunder Storms and Milk—Electric Motors for the House.

With the co-operation of Dr. S. Wier Mitchell, Prof. Fullerton, Prof. Dolley and others, researches are in progress in the University of Pennsylvania on the rate of which the nervous impulse travels in motor and sensory nerves and in the spinal cord, the time of reactions, and of more purely mental processes, memory, and the amount forgotten in a given time, the time of bodily and mental processes in diseases of the nervous system and in other directions. The apparatus now used in the laboratory of experimental pyschology for measuring the time of physiological and pyschological processes is considered the most complete in the world.—New Orleans Picayune.

At the recent convention of the British association one of the speakers said he was in a position to bear witness to the value of the range-finder. Some years ago a friend of his had occasion to make a survey of some land, but had been threatened with violence by those who were opposed to his operations. For this reason he had been unable to measure the ground in the usual way with the chain, but he had arrived at a sufficiently close approximation by using his theodolite and adopting principles almost identical with those carried out in designing the range-finder. The powers of the range-finder have been infinitely increased in this country by the application to it of electricity. The electrical range-finder is employed not only by all the modern war vessels, but also by an increasing number of American merchant vessels.

How much longer will a steel rail last than an iron one? Our experience here is comparatively new on this important subject, but it is said steel will last fully three times as long as iron. The Great Central Belgian Railway commenced collecting statistics upon the durability of steel rails as early as 1869, in which year it laid down a certain quantity of steel rails and a certain quantity of iron rails. 75 85 per cent. of the latter have since been replaced, while the steel rails have been replaced only at the rate of 1. 07 per cent. These figures represent average durability, and not the durability upon portions of the system over which a heavy traffic is daily carried. The steel rails laid down in 1866 upon the Ledelinsart & Marcinelle Incline held up bravely for the first twelve years, in spite of this severe strain, only 0.86 per cent having been withdrawn up to 1881. In 1882 however, they began to give out, and the proportion of replacements rose to 48.37 per cent., while in 1883 it was further carried to 50.77 per cent. Steel rails last much longer than iron rails, simply because they possess a greater homogeneity, and are less liable, in consequence, to lamination and disintegration.

A good deal has been written on the souring of milk during a thunderstorm, and some interesting experiments on the relation of electricity to this phenomenon have been undertaken in Italy. It was found that the passage of an electri-current directly through the milk not only did not hasten, but actually delayed acidulation, milk so treated not becoming sour until from the sixth to the ninth day, whereas milk not so electrified became markedly acid on the third day. When, however, the surfaces of a quantity of milk was brought under the balls of a Holtz machine the milk soon became sour from the ozone generated.

The latest arrival among small engines for household and other uses is the electric motor, and its special fitness for a wide range of application is being daily more and more recognized. In capacity the electric motor is now made to range from small fractions of a horse-power up to relatively large sizes, so as to meet the requirements of the constantly increasing number of users. Some of the very small sizes, designed especially for such light work as running sewing machines, jewellers' and dentists' lathes and drills, etc., have been arranged to work with battery currents, and the outfits would seem to offer every possible convenience for the accomplishment of satisfactory work.

A new process of bleaching by electricity has been devised for the textile trades. By its use the need of bleaching powder is done away with. The current is taken direct from the dynamo to electrodes placed in a wooden tank containing a solution consisting of calcined magnesia, hydro-chloric acid and water. Up to this time the solution has no bleaching properties; in other words, no chlorine is present. After, however, passing a current of a specific voltage and amperage through the solution for 100 hours, it exhibits .25 of 1 per cent of fixed chlorine, which bleaches yarn and tow in as many hours as it has hitherto taken days, without impairing the strength of the material.

Profits in Sheep-Raising.

The young man, then, who is to succeed well in growing sheep for the above-mentioned purposes must attend to several requisites. He should begin with good grade shearling ewes. Let him adhere to this cross, using only vigorous and well-bred rams. The lambs may be dropped on the grass if the Christmas market or that of Great Britain is the one sought. The ram lambs among them should, without fail, be castrated when from four to six weeks old. When weaned, a grass of rape should be ready for them, which will push them on, at little cost, rapidly for the market. As rape will not grow on heavy soils, a grain ration of oats, oats and peas, or oats, peas and oilcake, may take its place. When intended for shipment to Britain it is probable that it will be found a good practice to shear them early in September, and then to feed them through the winter, in lots not too large, in one pen. The food may consist of hay, some roots, and a grain ration of oats and peas in equal parts. Lambs treated thus will bring fully $6 to $7 per head at the holiday season, and fully $8 to $9 per head in the spring for shipment to Britain. When farmers can get these prices for their lambs and average one each per ewe, which is a low estimate, they are making money at the business, for the fleece of the dam and the manure obtained will probably pay her keep.

The old plan of selling lambs for an average of $3 each in autumn to the local butcher should be discarded. Raise a better class of lambs and they will find a better market, with a correspondingly better price. Never allow the ewes for breeding mutton lambs to become more than four or five years old, or there will be difficulty in preparing them for the market. When they are to be turned off also there is no cheaper fattening food ration than rape.

Horse-Shoeing.

The annexed resolutions, says London Live Stock Journal, embody the results accepted at the conference on horse shoeing, held in connection with the Animal's Institute. 1. The foot should have only so much horn removed from it at each shoeing as is necessary for the proper fitting of the shoe, and no more. 2. The frog should take a bearing on the ground, but no other part of the hoof should be weakened to give this healthy action. 3. Shoes cannot be too light if they give sufficient wear. 4. The width of a shoe need be no more than is necessary to cover the bearing surface. 5. Nails are the most secure and simple fastening for horse-shoes, and a properly-driven nail never does any harm. 6. The most important requisite in horse-shoeing is the adoption of a correct system, not the use of any special form of shoe. 7. All shoes should have a level bearing on the foot, extending from the toe to the heel. The ground surface of the shoe should follow the form of the ground surface of an unshod foot when it has traversed on a level road. 8. No better form of shoe exists than a narrow one, made rather thicker at the quarters than at the heel and toe. 10. The recent proposal to affix shoes on feet without nails by bread projections into the hoof and by pressure round the wall is impracticable and injurious. 11. No advantage follows the retention of shoes on a foot more than four weeks, as the growth of the horn in that time produces a disproportionate hoof. If in this time a shoe is not worn out it should be removed.

IN FRANCE,

THE providing of one's own soap at hotels! Permit me to remark that this is one of those things than we do here. I am strongly of opinion that every one when travelling should carry his or her own soap as one takes one's own hair-brush or sponge. It is much more cleanly, and there can be no better providing in this respect for the hot sun and warm winds and dust of travel than a cake of which, under such circumstances, I have found very efficient in the prevention of sunburn and allied annoyances.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The property of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home Institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefitting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

Club

Nothing Like it this Winter.

Among all the amusements and entertainments of the coming winter there will be nothing that will bear any comparison in point of musical merit, excellence and enjoyment, with the concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening next; therefore, you cannot afford to miss it. The inexhaustable "local talent" you have with you always, but it is rarely that a musical organization like this visits Peterborough. Seven first-class artists, each a virtuoso with his instrument, must give divine music. Reserved seat plan at Greatrex's drug store.

An "Englishtown" Auction.

This morning there was great excitement in "Englishtown." Two neighbours got into a controversy over the weather, one saying that we had had Indian summer—the other saying it was yet to come. They came, at length, to blows, and were damaging each other badly when their respective wives took a hand in and settled the row. But that was not the best of it. When peace was restored, they all agreed that hawley bros.'s teas were the best and cheapest in town, like their coffee and glassware. dw

The Newsboy and His Papers.

At the police court this morning Mr. Peter Brosseau, of the Oriental barber shop, was charged with having assaulted Master Willie Edmison last Saturday night. It seems the boy was in the shop selling papers, when some one, unknown to the barbers, in jest carried them off and in searching about the place for them the lad looked into some cases where he was told not to, and not going out when ordered Mr. Brosseau caught him by the shoulders and shoved him out, the boy alleging that he further assaulted him with a mild kick. Master Edmison afterwards received his papers from one of the patrons of the shop who had taken them away. According to the evidence there was no case of assault proven, and the case was dismissed.

MUNICIPAL MELANGE.

Lively Discussions at the Town Council Meeting.

The Edison Sidings Not Yet Settled—The Electric Lights Further Deferred—Some By-laws Held Over Till the Next Meeting—A Committee's Opinion of Popcorn—Distribution of Hand Bills Discussed and Sent to a Committee—Very Little Business Done.

The first steps towards the annexation of Peterborough and Ashburnham were taken at the town council meeting last night when Councillor Calcutt, from across the river, mounted the Mayor's platform and realised his portly personage in a chair alongside the chief civic functionary; and the aldermanic style in which Ashburnham's representative conducted himself augurs well for the quality of the ward councillors from the east who shall enter the council chamber when the amalgamation of the two corporations is brought about in the near future.

The town councillors present were Mayor Stevenson, and Messrs. Hartley, Kendry, Langford, Rutherford, Moore, Dawson, A. Hall, E. H. D. Hall, Kelly, Davidson and Cahill. The proceedings were marked at intervals by animated discussions, and at times sparks of fire flew from the eyes of some of the speakers, until the very atmosphere grew heated with the increasing warmth of the debate.

WATER STREET FRONT.

A communication was read from Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, regarding the road allowance on Water street between Sherbrooke and Wolfe streets, he giving it as his opinion that the council could pass a by-law to open it, leaving it to a subsequent survey if necessary to determine whether any part of the street has been washed away.—Received.

AN OBJECTION RAISED.

The Toronto Real Estate Investment Company notified the council that they would object to any action on the part of the corporation which would flood their property with water. They understood the town intended to run the water off Weller street upon their property, and they protested against it.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

The F. C. Austin Manufacturing Co., of Boston, wanting to sell the town a ditching machine.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

ASSESSMENT APPEALS.

The following appeals were referred to the Court of Revision:—

G. N. W. Telegraph Co. objected to their assessment.

Miss Woodgate, of the Barnardo Home, asked for remission of taxes upon that institution.

Mr. T. Cavanagh also objected to his assessment.

Miss Lumsden, President of the "Y," applied for remission of taxes against the union.

Mr. John S. Boswell, agent of the E. Burnham estate, appealed against the assessment thereon.

The North British and Mercantile Insurance Company furnished a statement of their income over expenses in the town, by which their assessment was to be fixed.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

A communication was read from Mr. Geo. Hilliard, offering the whole of his property in the south ward for $6,000 or the right of way for the C.P.R. rising through it for $3,000.

Another was read from Mr. Thos. Tait, General Superintendent of the C. P. R., enclosing two plans of proposed sidings into the Edison Company's works, either of which they were prepared to go on with when the Council desired.—Referred to the Manufacturer's Committee.

Mr. Hilliard's communication aroused considerable discussion. The councillors at the last meeting were given to understand that they could get the right of way for $2,750, and they thought it strange that to-night they should be asked for $250 more.

Mr. Langford said that he had stated it on his own authority at the last meeting, but in conversation with Mr. Hilliard that day he had declined to take less than $3,000.

The Mayor expressed his opinion that the town was being "fleeced" at every opportunity, and he was disgusted with the whole thing.

There was some talk concerning the progress the committee had made re the siding, and the Mayor said he intended going to Toronto in the morning to close up the matter if possible.

The communication was referred to the Manufacturer's Committee.

UNFIT FOR MAN OR BEAST.

Mr. RUTHERFORD presented the following report:—

To the Mayor and Council:

Your License Committee beg leave to report, and recommend granting a shooting gallery license to M. Lockington, and that, on account of his infirmity, he be only charged one dollar per month, payable in advance, on condition that he permits no game of chance or otherwise to be carried on on the same premises, the police to have supervision of the place.

In regard to the application for a license to open up a popcorn stand, your committee, after a thorough examination of samples sent in for their inspection, pronounced the stuff unfit for man or beast. Not recommended.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

THOSE ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Mr. A. HALL, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, said he was not prepared to make a report, as at the last meeting of the Committee there were only three members present besides himself, and as the report adopted by the majority of one did not meet with his approval he was not prepared to make a report.

Mr. RUTHERFORD said that Mr. Hall had promised to bring in a report, and said he was trying to bulldoze the council because he could not pass the all-night light motion some months ago.

Mr. HALL replied that on the second of June the 29 lamps recommended were passed but the 40 all-night lights referred back. He had done all in his power to have these 29 lamps put up. But at the next meeting the resolution was referred back to the committee, and since that time he had not been able to get a meeting of the Committee together until Friday night, when Mr. Moore moved that two lamps be struck off. There were 35 lamps originally ordered, but they had cut off the lights from some of the most important parts of the town, particularly in the north end. Under these circumstances he could not recommend the report, which he had drawn up. He said further that Mr. Rutherford had done all he could to block this report.

Mr. DAWSON rose and emphatically stated that Mr. Hall's statements were not true. Mr. Hall has done everything in his power to cancel those 29 electric lights, which were very much needed.

Mr. KENDRY said a report recommending these 29 lights ought to have been in long ago, and he believed Mr. Hall would not bring it in because he could not get the all-night lights passed. But he could not favor the report unless there were lights at Hilliard's mill, the hospital and other places.

Mr. HALL said that was just the reason why he opposed the report. It did not do justice to all parts of the town. It had been passed by the committee but he could not read it.

Messrs. KELLY and KENDRY began to move amendments to the list, which had never been presented, but, after some general discussion, they were ruled out of order, and the matter was dropped on the understanding that the committee would meet again.

OPENING UP A STREET.

Mr. LANGFORD presented a by-law to open up Water street, from the C. P. R. tracks to Wolfe street, along the water's edge.

Mr. CAHILL wanted the street opened up from Wolfe to Sherbrooke streets.

The MAYOR said this by-law was for the purpose of enabling the Government to build a wharf on the Water street allowance, which is now fenced in.

Mr. MOORE said the C.P.R. Company was opposed to opening up the street from Sherbrooke to Wolfe streets, as the crossing at their tracks would have to be made level, and it would be very dangerous.

Mr. CALCUTT explained that people could not drive over the tracks, for the wharf was ten feet below its level. Besides, Mr. Rogers, the engineer, had arranged the wharf so as to allow of a passage under the bridge, if it was wanted.

Mr. E. H. D. HALL and Mr. Langford did did see how the passing of the by-law would injure the C. P. R., but Mr. Kendry and Mr. Moore thought it not just or courteous to the railway, when they were so much interested as to send telegrams asking that no proceedings be taken until they be heard from.

Mr. DAVIDSON said the telegrams were sent by the railway company in order to bark the by-law until it would be too late for the wharf to be built. Mr. Moore was speaking in the interest of the C. P. R. because he was their solicitor.

Mr. MOORE.—I am not their solicitor.

Mr. DAVIDSON said the councillors were there to represent the town's interests and not the C. P. R. company.

Mr. LANGFORD said he had gone over the ground with an officer of the company, whose only request was that there be no provision in the by-law for crossing the track. He was otherwise perfectly satisfied.

The MAYOR said that it would not be good policy for the town to disagree with a railway company that had done as much for the town, when a few days delay would do no harm.

Mr. CAHILL said the general public were to be considered, and without wishing to injure Mr. Law's works or the C.P.R., he requested that the street be opened up from Sherbrooke street down.

On motion the by-law was withdrawn from further consideration until the next meeting Wednesday night.

THE FIRE LIMITS.

Mr. W. B. Ferguson, of the Rathbun Company, stated to the council that he had been served with a notice by the Building Inspector which would have the effect of driving them out of town. He had been ordered to cease from piling their lumber or other combustibles on their premises within the fire limits, or disposing of it thereon.

The matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report upon the validity of the by-law.

DISTRIBUTING DODGERS.

Mr. J. K. STRATTON, of the EXAMINER, addressed the council with reference to the construction placed by the police upon a town bylaw passed in 1889, which was construed by the police to mean that it was the intention of the council to prohibit the distribution of dodgers. He said he believed the police had exceeded the intention of the council in the matter at the time of passing the bylaw, and reminded the council that several merchants had appeared before the magistrate that morning. He asked the council to express by resolution or by an amendment to the bylaw, how far merchants could go in this matter. If the rigid construction of the bylaw by the police were sanctioned, the printing offices would thus be deprived of a considerable source of revenue, and he believed the council should regulate the size of dodger they wished to limit the distribution of, if they desired to prohibit any. While he believed in the policy of using the columns of a newspaper for advertising purposes, still it must be borne in mind that there was always a certain class which business men were unable to reach through the newspaper, and they, therefore, must appeal to them through a medium like dodgers or hand-bills. He hoped that the council would take a common-sense view of the matter. If the spirit of this bylaw were insisted on, he contended that the printing offices would be seriously handicapped and deprived of no inconsiderable source of patronage and revenue.

Mr. DOBBIN, of the Review, endorsed the remarks of Mr. Stratton, and hoped the council would find a remedy for the difficulties complained of.

The MAYOR stated that the police had exceeded their duty in this matter, and, after some general discussion by the council, the matter was referred to a committee to report.

COACHING THE HACKMEN.

Mr. MOORE presented a by-law, which had been prepared at the request of the C. P. R. Company, to prevent the importuning of passengers by hackmen or parties at the railway stations.

The by-law received some discussion and only two readings given it at the present sitting, and the council adjourned till Wednesday night.

FARMERS AS MANUFACTURERS.

Prof. Jas. W. Robertson at a Dominion Convention at Ottawa.

The farmer in providing food for the world is not merely a producer, but he should be a manufacturer—a manufacturer of raw materials into finished products of far more value. Let me give you one instance to clinch my argument: We had in a ton of barn-yard manure, the very same substances which compose the food we consume. The substances found there would not be worth more than $2.50; yet these same substances, when manufactured in the laboratory of nature under the skilful direction of man, through the soil, the plant and the animal, will give him a finished product worth $2,500. He makes 10 cents worth of material worth $100 by the refining and enriching of that material through the processes of nature with his own labor and skill. I would like to make that plain. A man buys a ton of pig iron at a certain price. He smelts it, he casts it, he polishes it and puts it into the proper place in a machine. He has then given to that iron perhaps a tenfold value per pound to what it formerly possessed. A farmer, however, gives his raw material a thousand-fold value by the exercise of proper skill; and he has lots of room for the exercise of that skill in the direction of and application of labor.

Then there is a growing demand for food of concentrated quality. A great while ago men were content to live on more bulky food, not so palatable, not so nutritious. As an instance of this, let me cite the fact that in England to-day the consumption of milk is quite five-fold larger per head of the population than it was 25 years ago. The same is true of Canada. Let a man think of his own table and family's consumption, and he will see that they consume five times as much milk as twenty years ago. The consumption of cheese in our Dominion has grown quite five-fold per head of the population within my memory, as far as figures that I can examine would tend to prove. Let me just sandwich in here this statement: That the consumption of cheese by the people who live to the south of us, in that prosperous and mighty Republic, has been increasing until now it is five-fold as many pounds per head of the population as it was twenty-five years ago. I see in that fact the promise that in a very short time we will have the whole of the British markets for ourselves, so far as the supply of cheese from this side of the ocean is concerned, and the American nation will become an importing nation instead of an exporting one. The population is growing far faster than the production of milk, and the consumption of cheese is increasing proportionately faster than the supply. I do not think we can go on making more cheese than we can find people to eat.

But production of cheese fools the tendency all along the line is to make them finer and to make them cheaper, and the cheaper we can make the best class of food the more profit will we make from agriculture. When we can get fine food on the market, within the reach of every poor man, there will be no possibility of glutting the market with butter. Instead of trying to have butter very fine and scarce, so that the price would be 40 cents per pound, I would like to see our farmers able to produce the finest class at a profit to themselves, saleable at 15 cents per pound. Perhaps we cannot do it. We cannot do it now, I know; but I think within the next twenty-five years we will be able to produce butter at a profit at 12 cents per pound, and if we can get 25 cents a pound for it, so much the better. It should be the effort of our producers to insure our property by reducing the cost, and if prices do go up we have so much more profit.

Mayor Stevenson is in Toronto To-day. He will see the C. P. R. authorities and endeavour to have some decision reached in the selection of a route for the siding into the Edison Co.'s works.

An Extraordinary Journey.

An opportunity will occur within a few months to make a trip around the world under novel conditions, and in a manner not likely to be repeated. Advantage will be taken of the early sailing of the new and magnificent twin-screw steamships now being built for the Trans-Pacific Service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, to afford to the public a "Round the World" excursion of a most extraordinary character.

The steamship "Empress of India" will sail from Liverpool for Hong Kong about the 15th January, 1891. At Hong Kong she will take her place in the trans-Pacific line, for which she has been built, sailing via Yokohama to Vancouver, the Pacific terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

On her voyage to Vancouver she will call at Gibralter, Naples, Port Said, Suez, Colombo, Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Nagasaki, Kobe and Yokohama, stopping a day at each of the ports named, and at Port Said sufficient time will be allowed to enable passengers to visit Cairo and the Pyramids.

In connection with this voyage tickets will be issued "Around the World," including choice of steamship lines across the Atlantic, and a rail trip over the Canadian Pacific Railway from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

The rate for this wonderful journey will be $600, including meals and berths. Programme with maps showing the route, and giving full information as to stop-overs, etc., can be had at any of the Canadian Pacific Railway offices.

The second and third steamships of the line will leave Liverpool about the 15th February and the 15th March, 1891, respectively, taking the same route.

THE U. S. ELECTIONS.

M'KINLEY RE-ELECTED BY INCREASED PLURALITY.

Heavy Democratic Gains Throughout the Union Delameter Said to be Defeated in Massachusetts.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Elections were held to-day in thirty-nine States and three Territories. Idaho, Maine, Oregon, Vermont and Wyoming had previously held their elections. There were no elections in Alaska, the District of Columbia, Indian Territory and Oklahoma. The three Territories holding elections were Arizona, New Mexico and Utah. The five states already mentioned have elected to the Fifty-second Congress nine members, all Republicans. There will be 332 members in the next House, two more than at present, owing to the admission of Idaho and Wyoming.

Of the thirty-nine remaining states the following nine elect only Congressmen, having held their local elections earlier in the years: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Rhode Island and Virginia.

The Democrats have made gains in every state, and have carried some states heretofore considered as unpregnable.

The returns are very incomplete.

New York.

Tammany's nominee, Mayor Grant, has been re-elected in the city.

In the state The Albany Argus claims that the Assembly will stand 69 Democrats to 57 Republicans, giving the Democrats a majority on joint ballot and electing a Democratic senator.

Delaware Said to be Defeated.

Returns from different sections of Massachusetts show large Democratic gains. The Republican ticket is probably elected by a reduced majority. The Democrats have thrown out a portion of Patton, claiming his election as governor by 10,000 majority.

Pennsylvania was the most important of the State elections. The issue there was clearly defined as Quayism, represented in the nomination by the Republicans for Governor of George W. Delamater, who was forced on an unwilling convention by Senator Matthew S. Quay, the Republican boss of Pennsylvania. His opponent on the Democratic ticket was Robert E. Pattison. A labor ticket, with Thomas P. Rynder for Governor, was run. The Prohibitionists nominated John D. Gill. In 1887 Pattison was elected Governor through a split among the Republicans. The state is naturally Republican by about 40,000 majority, but the present canvass has been one of the hottest ever waged.

Ohio.

Ohio has gone Republican by majorities ranging from 5000 to 20,000. The McKinley district, the hub of the Congressional campaign, on account of its national importance, went decidedly Republican, although under the recent gerrymander it had a normal Democratic majority of about 3000. The officers elected were a Secretary of State, 21 Congressmen, etc.

North Carolina.

Returns from this State show a Democratic gain over 1888 of 445.

South Carolina.

Tillman (Dem. and the Farmers' Alliance nominee) has elected governor, with the entire Democratic ticket, and the seven Democratic Congressmen have majorities throughout the state. The fight in this state was a desperate one.

The Farmers' Alliance, after a hot campaign, captured the Democratic organization and nominated as the straight Democratic candidate for governor B. R. Tillman. This nomination was distasteful to some of the adherents of the clique controlling the state, and against whom Tillman had made charges of fraud and corruption, and they nominated A. C. Haskell. He was endorsed by the Republicans.

The Democrats Win Massachusetts.

William E. Russell (Democrat) is probably elected by 2000 plurality over J. Q. A. Brackett (the retiring governor who sought re-election. Brackett extended the liquor interests without reality of making the prohibitionists. The Democrats have gained at least two congressmen.

Maryland.

Maryland sends an unbroken Democratic delegation.

West Virginia.

The entire Democratic ticket is elected.

Missouri.

Democratic State Committee claims the election of a solid Congressional delegation.

Notes.

At several precincts in South Carolina the ballot boxes were stolen and no election was possible. The negroes voted slimly.

At Pine Bluff, Ark., a deputy sheriff shot a prominent man in a row and indiscriminate exchange of shots between the Republicans and Democrats followed, in which two other parties were wounded.

The Australian ballot system worked satisfactorily in Indiana. There was a large vote polled.

President Harrison voted in the second ward in Indianapolis, but Mrs. Harrison's ballot being the 152d one cast in the precinct. The next man who exercised his suffrage was Samuel Brossman, a Democrat, whose vote cancelled the President's, as Brossman voted a straight Democratic ticket.

McKinley's campaign was one of the features of the whole election. Little Mac began his campaign on Oct. 7 and ended Monday night. There was an immense quantity of fireworks, pomp and parade, and 85 speeches were delivered, 1,551 miles covered by rail and 340 additional miles by wagon road.

The negro vote also fell off in North Carolina, owing to the exodus and apathy of the voters.

The Newfoundland Difficulty.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—In an interview to-day in regard to the dispute between France and Great Britain concerning the Newfoundland fisheries, M. Delpeuch, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, suggested as a basis for a settlement of the dispute that England should pay an indemnity to the French cod and lobster fishermen, and recognise the right of the French fishermen on the Grand Banks and Newfoundland, but to all the ports of Newfoundland. He also suggested that England should give France territorial compensation in Africa in return for the surrender by France of her rights on the French shore of Newfoundland, France retaining only her privileges on the Grand Banks, where privileges are held in common by everybody.

Five Gallons of Gold.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 4.—On the old Rupert homestead, just west on Augustine, Kan., John Rupert and James Holloway were excavating this morning for a barn foundation on the site of an old stable. Rupert's pick struck something which gave forth a metallic ring, and the men worked until they unearthed an iron pot of about five gallons capacity. Its lid was rusted and it took several blows with the pick to loosen it. When it was finally knocked off a shining heap of gold coin was revealed. The pieces were of various denominations, many of them bearing date preceding the Mexican War. The aggregate value is about $3,000. It is believed that the pot was buried during troublous border times.

Died of a Hangover.

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 4.—There was born to the wife of Frank Stone, near Wabash, last night, a baby weighing exactly 1½ pounds. The infant, a girl, is perfectly formed in every respect and is but six inches in length.

NONE OF THE DEAD FOUND

A THOROUGH SEARCH FOR THE BARNEGAT WRECK'S VICTIMS.

The Tughoat That Was Sent Down Does Not Return and Additional Forces are Despatched to Recover the Bodies. The Masts of Steamer and Schooner are Above the Water.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Twenty-five bronzed sailors, the only survivors of the ill-fated steamship Vizcaya, which was sunk in a collision with the collier schooner Hargraves off Barnegat, stood on the deck of the Spanish steamer Cuinad Condal yesterday afternoon as she swung out from pier 21, North River. They were attired in new suits of clothes and each had money in his pocket, the gift of J. M. Caballos & Co., the American agents of the Spanish Transatlantic Steamship company. The men will be shipped from Havana to their homes, where wives and children await their coming.

The tug which was sent to the wreck by the agents to cruise around the scene of the wreck and to search for floating bodies did not return to the city, but Thos. Bonnis, one of the employes, did. He reported to the firm that the masts of both of the sunken vessels are swaying above water in a rough sea and a heavy wind. The wrecking steamer L. J. Merritt left Stapleton, Staten Island, at 11 o'clock last night fully equipped to rescue the bodies imprisoned in the sunken hull of the Viscaya. Caballos & Co. sent down J. Barrett, Michael Dillon and Thomas Bonnis as their direct representatives. An undertaker, a corps of embalmers and two of the most expert divers in New York accompanied them.

A cablegram from Havana yesterday requested the agents to spare no expense in rescuing the bodies of Mrs. Calvo and her child and maid, and to have them sent to Havana for burial. When the schooner's bowsprit swept the decks of the Viscaya Juan Pedro, the millionaire planter of Cuba, was standing on the bridge with Capt. Canal and the third officer, and was seen to run and jump into the sea, which probably engulfed him. Mr. Caballos has issued orders for the recovery of his body if possible. Mr. Ismard, Mrs. Pedro, who is in Madrid, Spain, will sail at once for her desolate Cuban home.

The captain of the tugboat has been instructed to telegraph at once to the agents here as to the body is recovered and identified, so that a correct list may be obtained of the victims of the collision. Should the weather prove propitious and the sea calm the divers will go into the cabins, staterooms and forecastle of the wrecked Vizcaya.

The Spanish consul has received an official report from First Officer Felipe Ibaza, Second Officer Canal and Chief Engineer Francisco Lens and Seamen Ramon Martinez, Jose Casarrego and Ramon Perez. It is a detailed statement substantially as given orally to the reporters, except that they unite in the declaration that the schooner did not carry any sidelights, as the laws of navigation require. They fail, however, to say which officer was in direct charge of the steamship at the time of the collision, but admit that Capt. Canal was on the bridge with the third officer and was issuing orders.

Much comment was made yesterday over the singular reticence of the captain of the Hargraves and the mystery which surrounds him since he reached Philadelphia, especially in view of the damaging statements concerning his behavior by Mate Walker, who was refused admission into the lifeboat that saved the other nine members of the schooner's crew.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvo, who were drowned, had only recently lost their two-year-old daughter. The child ran to her nurse, who was warming some milk on a alcohol stove. The stove was upset and its burning contents splashed over the child. In spite of the efforts of the physicians she died in great pain from her burns. The death shook Mr. Calvo's mind and his physicians advised him to travel. He was on his way to France, intending to stop in Havana only a few days.

HIS BASE REVENGE.

A Jilted School Director Forbids Lady Teachers to Marry.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Nov. 4.—The Board of School Directors at Cherokee has just issued an order calculated to inspire mingled consternation and revolt among the teachers affected—or at least among those who parse their given names in the feminine gender.

In Sheraden, a suburb of Western communities, the men outnumber the women, so marriageable members of the latter sex are in great request, and very naturally a number of the fourth accordingly. Even young women of the town, unbeknown to a short-sighted, dissembling, self-temporary expedient while arranging their minds which one of their numerous suitors to make happy for life. As to the alert and accomplished young ladies who disguise their potent sex as schoolma'ams' ferules, they have had an embarrassment of riches in the way of matrimonial offers, ranging all the way from the "I have been down about Wheeling" to the "I have been up to the second director" theme. The result has been that few of these blandishments have taught more than one or two terms before resigning to get married. Of course this has sadly interfered with their usefulness as teachers. It is difficult even for the feminine intellect, to give undivided attention at once and the same moment to a problem in algebra and the momentous question whether the wedding dress shall be of cream satin or white frille. Besides, when the wedding day happened to fall in the middle of a school term, it was often difficult to get another teacher to finish the work thus abandoned for more important business.

These considerations have moved the directors to promulgate the cruel decree that hereafter every teacher will be required to sign a contract agreeing not to get married during the school year. It is understood that the young ladies involved have not yet sufficiently recovered from their indignation to calmly decide whether they will meet this outrageous order by letting the Cherokee youth hereafter languish in ignorance or by establishing a matrimonial boycott against the offenders themselves. It is hinted that the said order originated in the vengeful mind of a director whose addresses had been consecutively declined with thanks by no less than three of the young ladies, at whose matrimonial rights and most precious liberties the Machiavellian stroke is aimed.

The Parisian's Rough Passage.

MONTREAL Nov. 4.—The Allan steamship Parisian, Captain Ritchie, came into port yesterday afternoon, having left Moville last Friday week at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving at Father Point shortly after mid night on Saturday. This run, especially at this late period of the year, is exceptionally good. The present passage was the Parisian's worst during the season, and it is long since she encountered such a succession of high seas and gales. Her funnels bore unmistakable traces of the "salt sea waves" when she docked yesterday. The paint was cleaned off them, and thick layers of salt had taken its place. From leaving Moville until the Gulf of St. Lawrence was reached, the decks were never dry. Waves as high as our highest building, swept over the Allan liner and for second she was lost to view. This was continued during the entire passage, but the engines were never once altered during the voyage. The good time made by the Parisian is all the more remarkable from the heavy odds which she had to contend against.

THE WORLD OF LONDON

AS CRITICISED IN EDMUND YATES' LETTER.

The Duchess of Edinburgh in St. Petersburg—Valuable Presents to a Bride—Murdered on His Wedding Night.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Duke of Clarence is looking much better and is undoubtedly stronger than he was.

The Duke of Edinburgh goes to Germany next week for a fortnight on a leave of absence in order to attend the royal wedding at Potsdam, and he will pay a brief visit to Coburg before returning to England.

Although it is the custom in Germany to delay sending in wedding presents until just before a marriage, Princess Victoria of Prussia has already received a large number from her relations and friends. The most magnificent of them is the gift which Empress Frederick presents. It consists of a tiara, necklace, brooch and earrings of large sapphires, diamonds and pearls.

The Queen of Roumania has been greatly benefited by a visit to England. Her nervousness has entirely disappeared.

Count von Moltke has suffered more severely than is generally admitted from his recent excitement. His attacks of cramps are not of a very serious kind, but his eyes have suddenly become so inflamed as to cause much anxiety to his friends. He will leave Berlin for his beloved Cresian, on the Bohemian frontiers, as soon as the doctors pronounce him fit to travel.

The next Budget may bring Mr. Goschen a great deal of glory but will certainly give some trouble. The brewers are working to secure the repeal of the three pence added to the beer duty two years ago. They say that the added duty is really paid by them and it is practically an income tax on brewers.

Mr. Akers Douglas' remarks about a general election has been accepted on both sides as a warning that there is every probability that the Government will ride to safety throught the storms of the session, but that Parliament in its fifth year is always liable to a sudden break-up. At the Central Liberal Association Mrs. Akers Douglas' observation has created much activity, and in constituencies where Liberal candidates are still wanted the association were warned to bring them out without delay.

The doyen of the Naval Medical Service and senior F.R.C.S. of England passed away last week in his ninety-first year, without obtaining the knighthood or other recognition of his scientific services for which he longed so earnestly. Robert McCormick was one of Sir Astley Cooper's favorite pupils at Guy's, and after taking part in most of the great Arctic and Antarctic expeditions of the century retired, some 70 years since to a cottage in Shady Lane, Wimbledon, which he christened Hecla Villa, where he surrounded himself with a collection of natural history specimens, wrote voluminous memoirs and nursed his grievances. EDMUND YATES.

A Huge Slice of Africa Seceded to England.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The territory of the fierce Barotse, who range over 225,000 square miles of land above the famous Victoria Falls, on the north side of the Zambesi River, has fallen under British governmental protection. The king of the Barotse has solemnly promised to abolish the killing of alleged witches and the terrible custom of human sacrifices. Nothing of importance is done among the Barotse without a human sacrifice, in most cases a child. First the fingers and toes are cut off and the blood is sprinkled on the boats, drum, house, or whatever may be the object in view. The victim is then killed and thrown into the river. The burning of men for witchcraft is carried on to a terrible extent. Not a day passes but some one is tried and burned.

A WEDDING FEAST OF DEATH.

A Bridegroom Murdered on the Day of His Marriage.

GLASGOW, Nov. 4.—A wedding feast in the Italian colony here last night was broken up by a murder. While the feast was progressing an Italian named Lorenzo Marc Antonio made his appearance in the room and was ejected. In a short time he returned and the bridegroom and a number of guests attempted again to drive him out. Antonio resisted, drew a knife and plunged it into the breast of the bridegroom, who fell to the floor a corpse. When the bride saw her husband lying dead before her she uttered a wild shriek and fell upon his body unconscious. The assassin was overpowered and handed over to the police.

A Steamship on Fire.

COLCHESTER, Nov. 4.—The new iron steamship Reynolds of Toledo on her way from Buffalo to Toledo, when abreast of Colchester lighthouse last night about 8 o'clock was discovered to be on fire between decks the full length of the vessel. Communication with her coal bunkers was cut off so that in consequence she had to be beached half a mile west of Hackett's dock where she remained all night and until 6 p.m. to-day, the fire burning fiercely all the time between decks but was finally flooded out. Her cargo consisted of 1600 tons of hard coal and 400 tons of miscellaneous freight. The fire caught among a quantity of jute and sakum stored between decks.

AN IMPOSING CEREMONY.

The Funeral of the Late Father Vincent—Many Dignitaries Present.

TORONTO, Nov. 5. The remains of Vicar-general Vincent repose peacefully in the plot of the Toronto Basilica in one of the prettiest spots in the cemetery on Yonge street. The obsequies attending the funeral of the ex Provincial were on a scale of magnificent solemnity rarely witnessed even in the Catholic Church. The body lay all Monday night in the Church of St. Basil, nuns of the order of the Precious Blood kneeling around the bier in one of silent prayer. The interior of the church had been draped in black and the sombre hue of the hangings chilled the light of day as it struggled through the stained glass windows into the church. The altar, while buried in violet tapestry, the mourning color of the church, was illuminated with almost countless tapers, which threw their soft light on the face of the dead reposing in its casket within the rails of the sanctuary.

Grand requiem mass was sung at 10 o'clock, the church being crowded to the doors with a congregation composed of all the prominent Catholics not only of the city but of the province. The Episcopate was represented by Archbishop Walsh, Archbishop Cleary, Bishop Dowling of Hamilton, Bishop O'Connor of Peterboro, Bishop O'Connor of London and Bishop O'Mahony, Vicars-General Laurent and Rooney, Dean Harris, Dean McCann, Archdeacon Campbell (Orillia),

BIRCHALL AGAIN.

The Beswell Murderer Says Suicide is Cowardly.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 4.—The new rules and regulations respecting the prisoner Birchall that went into effect on Saturday are briefly: The prisoner is not to be allowed to read the newspapers; no reporters are to be allowed inside the jail; all communications to the prisoner to go through Crown Attorney Fall; no more of the MSS of Birchall's biography to go out, except through Mr. Bail.

In conversation with a gentleman a short time ago Birchall remarked that "no man with any pluck would ever commit suicide." While this may be true it may not cause the jail officials to relax their vigilance.

Birchall will be Examined if the Law will Allow of It.

Mr. Hilton, appearing on behalf of the plaintiff in the case of Greme v. The Globe, moved before the master-in-chambers at Osgoode Hall yesterday for an order for the examination of Birchall, the condemned criminal, as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff.

T. Langton, Q.C., appeared on behalf of the defendants and vigorously opposed the motion. He contended that it was unnecessary to examine Birchall for the purpose asked as the defendants in their statement of defence admitted that this Greme was not the one meant. He cited from Cox's criminal cases as authority to show that a criminal under sentence of death could not be examined as a witness. An Irish case was cited by Mr. Hilton, a later case than the other, to show that the above case had not there been followed and that a convict had been so examined.

Whether the examination asked will be allowed or not depends largely on the construction put upon certain sections of the "General Evidence Act," and the learned master, in reserving judgment, said that he thought if it could be done the order for examination should be made.

Mrs. Birchall in Town.

Mrs. Birchall and her sister, Mrs. West-Jones, were in town yesterday on their way to Ottawa, where they will present to the Minister of Justice the petition for a reprieve and commutation of Birchall's sentence. Accompanied by Mr. Dugald MacMurchy they visit the different places where the petitions had been deposited and collected them. They dined at the residence of Mr. G. T. Blackstock in the evening and then left for the Capital.

MINING IN ALGOMA.

Prof. Goldwin Smith and Mr. Duncan McIntyre Invest Heavily.

SUDBURY, Nov. 4.—Since the visit of the Iron and Steel Institute activity in mining matters has increased. A Griffin crusher passed through here from Boston to White Fish to be used in treating gold and silver ore. This marks the beginning of mining operations in earnest in the Fairbank district. The test pits which have been sunk in Fairbank and Creighton show that as depth is reached the ore increases in both quantity and richness. Mining experts who have been examining the district state that the indications in the vicinity of Gordon Lake and the Vermillion River are most favorable. Prof. Goldwin Smith of Toronto has been investing heavily in this district. Mr. Duncan McIntyre, vice-president of C.P.R., has also acquired considerable tracts of mineral lands. The Sudbury district is just now the centre of attraction for American and English capitalists.

HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND.

Speech by Dr. Clark, M.P. For Caithness.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Dr. G. Clark, M.P. for Caithness, North Britain, addressed the Scotchmen of Toronto in Richmond Hall last night. The Hon. O. Mowat presided. There was a large attendance.

Dr. Clark is a man of mark in the Mother Country. A native of the county of Burns, he is one of the honest men of whom the poet speaks when he sings of

Auld Scotland's hills are grand,
But honest men and bonnie lassies.

He has been far-travelled, using very observant eyes with brains behind them in the study of men and things. He became acquainted on his travels with the famous Boer leader, General Joubert, in whose company he arrived in the city on Monday from Montreal. He is Consul-General in London for the Transvaal Republic, and is recognized authority on South African affairs.

But it is as a friend of the Scotch Crofters that he is best known in Great Britain. Some seven years ago, when the Crofter agitation was at its height, he did the cause yeoman service in Parliament, and when the Royal Commission was appointed he went north to Caithness to prepare the case for the Crofters. This visit had the result ultimately of connecting his name with Caithness as the representative of the county in Parliament. His first election was in 1885, and on Mr. Gladstone appealing to the country on the question of Home Rule for Ireland he was again triumphantly returned in 1886.

Dr. Clark has decided opinions concerning Canadian affairs, maintaining that there are but two courses open to Canada, viz., annexation to the United States or a federation with the Mother Country. He wants a federation of the British possessions, in which Canada should have representatives at Westminster.

Mr. Mowat, who is an honorary president of the Caithness Association, briefly introduced Dr. Clark. He spoke of him as one who took a deep interest in the masses of the people, an old friend of humanity.

Dr. Clark fittingly acknowledged the address which had been presented to him and proceeded with his address. He spoke first of the Scottish crofters, and said they had now been put in possession of property with absolute security of tenure, the condition being that they pay a fair rent, and the question of what is a fair rent being determined by the courts. The case of the crofters had in the course of investigation been found to be rather understated than overstated. Mr. Balfour had denounced them as maligning the Highland landlords, and had stoutly maintained that no such thing as racks-rents existed. But the case had been proved up to the hilt. They were now fighting the question as to whether the commissioners are carrying out the letter, not to speak of the spirit, of the act. The contest related chiefly to the full value of improvements. They had now to fight for the enlargement of holdings. The commission had already given a verdict in their favor, and Liberal members of Parliament were pledged to give what had been asked.

The speaker then referred to the poor people in Manitoba who had unfortunately come out in an unfavorable year and whose sufferings had been great. He was not against emigration absolutely, but so long as there were millions of waste acres at home and 56 per cent. of Roseburn and the Lews was in the hands of sportsmen he would contend for the right of the people to occupy the land.

The Manitoban scheme was a complete failure, principally owing to the methods of carrying it out. They did not pick the proper people, but sent old men ignorant of agriculture. Many of them had gone to the lumber trade some 800 miles farther west.

In the last part of the address dealt with Scottish Home Rule. The movement was said to rest on mere sentiment, but such sentiment was not to be decried. Sentiment was at the root of all great national movements.

Died From a Broken Leg.

HAMILTON, Nov. 4.—Matey Johnson, son of George W. Johnson, headmaster of the Riverson school, died this morning from the effects of a fall while at play, which fractured one of his legs in two places. His suffering was so terrible, the injured limb becoming greatly inflamed, and paregoric appeared to have no effect on the poor little fellow. THANKSGIVING.

To-morrow is the day set apart by the authorities as a day of national thanksgiving. As a nation we have abundant reasons for gratitude. Peace within all our borders; bountiful harvests, the absence of pestilence and plague; freedom from destructive storms, floods and other calamities. We may have some things to complain of—we should be oppressively perfect and ultrahuman if we had not, but it is best at this time to keep such things dark. If we begin to balance account with Heaven in that manner the worst-off of us will come out terribly in debt. A man must be in a very bad way if he has not something to be thankful for. A hungry sage was bewailing his hard lot in that he wished to go abroad to seek something to eat and he had no shoes. Presently he looked out of his window and saw a poor wretch dragging himself along without feet. The hungry sage was put to shame for grumbling about having no shoes. So with the most. We have very much to be thankful for, that others have not, and the best of us have so much more than we deserve. National thanksgiving is a national duty, and personal thanksgiving is also a personal duty. And it will require that each individual perform his duty in this regard, so that the national thanksgiving will be complete. If all men could only realize the height and length and breadth and depth of obligation to Almighty God, then all the churches in the land would not, to-morrow, hold the multitudes that would crowd their gates and enter into their court with praise.

All good gifts around us
Then thank the Lord, O thank the Lord,
For all His love.

A COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE

In Monday's EXAMINER was a reference to a phase of Christian work, which is deserving of the warmest commendation, both on account of the spirit that prompts it, and also for the practical benefits it is intended to bestow. Reference is made to the Saturday evening receptions to young women given by the members in the parlours of the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union. It is high time that a counter attraction should be presented to the dangerous temptations which George street presents to young girls on Saturday nights. It is impossible to understand the terrible indifference, actually criminal, of those parents who allow their girls to parade the streets on Saturday nights, especially, without any suitable escort; for a female companion, more giddy and possessed of more giggle than herself, cannot be regarded as a proper escort. Do parents ever think that their daughters who are allowed such liberty may be on the broad road to destruction, both moral physical? Of the two, the parents are the most to blame. Girls are naturally inclined to indulge in such ramblings, and, if not restrained and induced in time to refrain, are as sure to fall into evil ways as the sun is to set. The street is the devil's school room, and his classes are in full blast at night, and the most apt and promising pupils are the girls (and boys, too) who frequent the streets after dark without proper protection. But many of these girls have no pleasant homes, and many may have homes to which the streets are many times preferable. Girls need recreation and relaxation after a hard week's toil, and, in too many cases, the unthinking cruelty and exaction of a heartless mistress, and the street is the only place they can go for relief. To such, the rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association are a haven of refuge—a harbour of safety. Here they may spend a pleasant hour, enjoy social intercourse, receive entertainment, listen to music and, if they please, join in the music themselves. There is the attraction of a warm, bright, cheerful, homelike room; of books, periodicals, games, etc., etc., and an ethical atmosphere that, unlike the jostling streets, has no immoral tendencies. In thus providing a refuge for young girls to frequent on Saturday nights the young women are doing a good work. They are worthy of the substantial encouragement of those who appreciate the value of human souls, who feel as followers of the great Master, that it is their duty to lend their efforts to comfort and help the weak-hearted, and to raise up them that fall or are like to fall in the slippery paths which the Saturday night streets of a town like Peterborough present.

SHOULD WAKE UP EARLY, TOO

The EXAMINER has had the pleasure of frequently calling attention to the superiority of the cheese made in this county and district. Our cheese makers and patrons take an intelligent interest in the manufacture of cheese, and their early adoption and practice of improved methods, as they are discovered, has placed them in the front rank, and deprived the western makers of the pre-eminence they hitherto have enjoyed. The advantage has become so marked that the Woodstock Sentinel-Review is moved to make a wail like this:—

"Attention is drawn to the fact that the dairymen of Eastern Ontario are making a better quality of cheese, a higher average, than those of this western district. This is a serious and regrettable state of affairs. This is the time of the dairy season; and it should continue to produce the finest cheese on the continent. Our dairymen should wake up. It will be a tremendous loss to them if they lose the first place in the English market. There is no good reason why any factory here should fall behind the highest standard of excellence. Care, science and intelligent energy alone will secure it. There is a great deal to be said in favour of a dairy school, although, perhaps, the same results could be obtained through institutes and travelling instructors. Such a school, near Woodstock or Ingersoll, the centre of the dairy district, might do a great deal of good. But dairymen need not wait for outside help. They should determine to make no cheese but the highest grade."

Of course, Oxford dairymen should wake up, as our contemporary advises them, but they will have to wake up wonderfully early to get the start of the cheese-makers of the Midland district, and of Peterborough county in particular.

THE Woodstock Sentinel-Review very aptly satirizes the hypocritical zeal for the welfare of Protestantism, which was so ridiculously rampant at the time of the late Ontario general elections and so lamentably quiescent ever since:—"The enemies of the Protestant religion seem to have been very active of late. Premier Mowat has spoken at Woodstock on the Evidences of Christianity; Hon. Mr. Dryden spoke earnestly at the Baptist convention here on Foreign Missions and other church topics; Hon. G. W. Ross at Brantford Sunday School convention on the S. S. Teacher's Possibilities; and Hon. Mr. Harcourt on Adaptation in S. S. Teaching. Unless Mr. Meredith, Mr. Birmingham and their young Toronto candidates see to it, the religious interests of Canada are not worth a day's purchase. It is clear that 'Protestantism is in danger.'"

Herbert's first impulse was to leap forward and speak to Joe, but he did not do it. There was a fascination in sitting there unknown and watching the familiar faces. Then the lad glanced around and noticed the stranger of the morning. Herbert saw him whisper to his father, who looked carelessly over his shoulder. A sudden start, the light of recognition on the man's honest face, then an arm came over the back of the pew and Herbert's hand was seized with a hearty grasp. It was the first friendly greeting. It warmed his heart, and he felt like a boy home from school as he joined in singing the familiar Thanksgiving hymns.

After service there were hearty greetings characteristic of Thanksgiving morning in a Canadian country church. No one was absent, and everybody knew that had been away had come home—the son from the city, the young girl from boarding school, all gathering under the family roof tree on the day of festive reunion. Herbert was the center of a welcoming group of old friends, each of whom insisted upon bearing him off to share the family turkey. As greetings and invitations poured in upon him he could scarcely realize his desolation and loneliness only a few hours before.

Joe Phillips, however, insisted upon claiming him. He had been one the first to recognise him, he said, and had the best right. With many promises to "look in" before he left town, Herbert entered the family carriage with Joe, Joe's wife and Margaret, the young folks following on foot.

The town had grown out around the old Phillips mansion, but it was still a stately residence, standing in the midst of generous grounds, with the same majestic elms sweeping its roof. As Herbert walked up the path to the front door between trim rows of old fir trees, the years since he stood there saying trembling farewell words to Margaret were crumbled up to nothing. He had discovered that she was Margaret Phillips still, and he wondered if she remembered that parting. He feared she did not, for she treated him with easy familiarity. He wished she would blush and look down when he spoke to her, as she did in the old days.

The fragrance of Thanksgiving greeted them as they entered the house. When the family were all seated around the loaded table Herbert, accustomed to the dainty courses of a city dining room, marveled at the amount of turkey, chicken pie and boiled ham which was heaped upon his plate, together with every vegetable native to the soil. Somehow he ate it all with keen relish, and had appetite left for plum pudding and numerous pieces of pie. Mrs. Joe laughingly declared that a rule of the house on Thanksgiving day was that "everybody must taste of everything," and Herbert had no inclination to rebel. He wondered that he felt so much like a boy. There is nothing more contagious than the hearty cheer of a Thanksgiving dinner.

"MARGARET, DO NOT SEND ME BACK."

Herbert was impatient for a chance to talk with Margaret, but not until evening, when the young folks went to a party, and Joe and his wife were entertaining a neighbor, did he find himself alone with her, and then he did not know what to say. He was skilful in the art of making pretty compliments to women of society, but in the presence of this calm, beautiful woman he felt bashful and awkward as a youth of 20.

"Margaret, I have been a fool all my life!" he exclaimed suddenly.

"I am very sorry to hear it. Did you come back to the old place to confess it?" she said, laughing.

He grasped her hand, and all the pent up feelings of years, the struggles, the indifference at times, the loneliness always, the wish and the hope for the future, burst from his lips.

"Margaret, do not send me back to my lonely, dreary life. Help me to forget it, Margaret, and—forgive me."

"Herbert, there is nothing to forgive," she said, drawing away her hand. "My life has been very happy. I have never wished to change it. I do not wish to change it now, it is better as it is. You must not feel lonely or dreary. You have friends here who will always welcome you, who would have welcomed you before had you come."

She smiled as she spoke, and Herbert saw that his passionate words had made scarcely a ripple upon her heart. For the moment he felt as if he had been shipwrecked on a desert island, yet at the close of the evening, as he walked back to his hotel, he whistled an old love song, and was in high good humor with himself and all the world. He was determined to work with all his heart and soul to win her.

It was a long and desperate struggle, but in the end Herbert gained a brilliant victory. There was a grand wedding at the old Phillips mansion on the next Thanksgiving day, and now Herbert insists that Margaret was waiting for him all those years, while she declares that she was not.

That is thoroughly point upon which they do not agree.

Purify Your Blood

the importance of a pure blood in good condition is generally known, and yet there are many people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing positive in the power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

OLD FACES IN NEW DAYS

WHEN Herbert Russell arose on Thanksgiving morning and pushed aside the window curtains he wondered why he had come. It was no satisfaction after all. His disappointment began the night before when the train dropped him at the station and he rode to the hotel in a rattling, uncomfortable omnibus through streets ablaze with electric lights and lined with shops, the windows of which were filled with goods suited to the requirements of a factory town.

He knew that in the twenty years he had been absent the water power of the stream where he used to fish when a boy had been utilized, that mills had been built, and that the place had clear ed from a quiet village to a town of considerable importance, still he was not prepared for the magnitude of the transformation. There had been no railroad within ten miles when he went away, and he remembered as if it were yesterday the summer morning when he mounted the old stage, all his possessions in a trunk strapped on behind, and all his money, a very small sum, in his pocket. He had started out with all the confidence of youth that the world could be conquered, and he had conquered it. He had been successful from the very outset, and now he was one of the solid merchants of the city where he had located. He was a favorite in society, and his luxurious bachelor apartments were the envy of all his associates. Still he did not feel that his life had been a success. It was empty. He was 42, and already little lines of white appeared in his dark hair, and yet he was alone in the world. In the struggle for fortune he had forgotten to seek for love and home.

It was in one of the hours of loneliness which came to him often now that he suddenly determined to spend Thanksgiving in his native town. He had no relatives left there, but at least the place would be familiar. It was not familiar, and he was disappointed. Only the outlines of the surrounding hills reminded him of his boyhood home.

It was a clear, frosty morning. Ice had formed on little puddles in the street, and the air was crisp and bracing. After breakfasting in the stuffy room of the hotel in company with a party of loud talking travelling men and a few "regular boarders" Herbert put on his overcoat and went out into the street. He wished to go first of all to the graveyard where his parents were buried. He wondered if he could find it among all these new surroundings.

As he walked along he saw here and there houses which he recognized—roomy, old fashioned farm houses which once had stood among broad, open fields, but were now crowded in between modern cottages, the verandas and bay windows of which formed a striking contrast to the square, severe outlines of the older buildings. And there was the old village green. A neat iron fence surrounded it now, and it was laid out in walks edged with maples, their branches, bare of leaves, forming sharp silhouettes against the cold November sky.

On one of the grass plots a party of boys were playing ball. Herbert leaned on the fence to watch them. How many Thanksgiving games of ball he had had on that green in his boyhood days! He longed to seize a bat and enter into the sport "with the other youngsters," he said to himself, smiling grimly as he remembered his gray hair. He looked around for the little church which once stood facing the green, where he had swung restless, boyish feet through many long sermons. There was a church there on the old spot. Herbert was sure it was the same building, for he recognized the narrow, pointed topped window in the belfry, but the high steps, which were so slippery in winter, had disappeared, and the entrance was level with the sidewalk an addition had been built at one side the building had been painted brown; it was white in the old days—and modernized in various ways.

The old grave yard was a half mile from the church. Herbert remembered that it was reached by a country road that branched off from the turnpike. The turnpike had become the main street of the town, and he noticed by the signs on the corners that it was now Broadway. New streets crossed it in all directions, and he was at a loss which to take. A group of boys were standing near the fence watching the game.

"Will you kindly tell me which of these streets leads to the grave yard?" asked Herbert.

"The first to the right leads to the new cemetery, sir," said the tallest of the boys.

As the boy turned toward him Herbert started and came near saying, "Hallo, Joe!" but he checked himself, realizing that the lad could not even have been born when he left the town.

After explaining that the old grave yard was the object of his search, and receiving the correct information, he walked up the street. The houses grew more scattering as he approached the spot where the old inhabitants were sleeping, and as he passed between the two granite posts into the circle of umbrella trees which formed the entrance to the yard he began to feel at home. Dried stalks of golden rod and asters brushed his knees as he walked between rows of old gray stones carved with familiar names. Here, at last, a white marble slab bore the name of one who had been in the full flush of physical health when he went away. He began to wonder if all those whom he had known were dead. Standing on a knoll near the centre of the yard was the massive granite monument he had ordered erected over the graves of his parents. It looked pompous and ostentatious to him now as he saw it among the peaceful, humble surroundings. [illegible] and stained and stained to unite its [illegible] with the [illegible]. His parents he could not remember. They died when he was an infant, and he had been cared for by an uncle, kind in his way, as Herbert now thought of him, although he seemed stern and hard to the lonely orphan boy. As Herbert looked at the mound which marked the old man's resting place he felt a pang of remorse that he had not been more grateful for the home which sheltered his youth.

Suddenly his eye fell upon a marble slab, "Sacred to the memory of Stephen Phillips." So the proud old squire was gone! Herbert had always thought of him as living and ruling his family with despotic hand forever. He looked anxiously at the names upon the stones in the old squire's family group. Was Margaret, too, sleeping under the grass? With a sigh of relief he saw that her name was not there.

Margaret! Her face, rising up through the mist of years, had been before his eyes as he journeyed toward his native town. How ridiculous it was! He laughed to think that a boyish fancy should come back to him. Still he knew he had never forgotten it. It was on Margaret's account that he started out into the world. Her proud father frowned on him, and she was submissive to the old man's will. He never asked Margaret to be his wife, but he was sure when he left her that she understood him. He intended to go back and claim her when he had won riches to give him the right. The riches came sooner even than he hoped, but he never went back. He remained [illegible] he had not done it. He had never seen a fair face that did not grow less fair as he compared it with Margaret. He had even cherished her memory as a secret grief, which at times gave him a feeling of superiority over those of his associates who were happily married. She was probably married herself now, and had forgotten him. It irritated him to think of it.

A church bell ringing for Thanksgiving service vibrated clear notes through the frosty air. It was the same old bell. Herbert could never forget its tone. The call was irresistible. Leaving the grave yard he retraced his steps to the church.

As an usher gave him a seat he noticed that the high, old fashioned pulpit had been replaced by a broad, open platform with a small reading desk, and although the pews appeared the same their doors had vanished. He remembered the click of the button and the feeling of imprisonment it gave him as his uncle closed the pew door and fastened it before service.

The congregation was gathering. There were many faces, those of new comers brought to the town by the mills, which revived no memories; but there were others, the sight of which made Herbert feel that he was living in a dream. One couple whom he remembered as lovers came up the aisle followed by a group of young people. He recognized the faces of father and mother at once, although twenty years had changed the slender youth to a portly family man and the bashful girl into a serene matron. Then came three sisters, stout and silvery haired, evidently old maids, all of them, although Herbert remembered them as belles of the village. He thought with a little thrill of triumph of the time when one of them had wounded his youthful pride by refusing to dance with him at a rustic merry-making long ago because he was only a boy.

There were other faces which recalled many forgotten events of his boyhood—some of people he remembered in middle life, now grown aged, others of old school mates, serious now with the dignity of years. It was strange to think of them treading the quiet old paths all the long time which he had spent in the noise and bustle of the world. He was adored if he had grown as old as they. He could not realize it, and yet some of them looked at him as they passed up the aisle with the mild curiosity awakened by the sight of a stranger. He saw that no one recognized him, and he felt more lonely than before.

The pew in front of where he was sitting remained empty almost to the last. Then two ladies entered, followed by a stout, middle aged man and some young people, one of whom Herbert recognized as the lad who had directed him to the grave yard. He knew now why he had almost said, "Hallo, Joe," for the stout man at the head of the pew evidently the lad's father, was Joe Phillips, his old comrade. And, yes, one of the ladies was Margaret! Herbert could see only her side face, but that was enough. That clear cut profile was graven upon his memory like the profile of a Roman empress upon an antique gem lasting for all time. She had grown older, but she did not look like an old maid; her girlish beauty had changed to that of a sweet maturity; there was not a fretful line on her placid face. The old lady was probably Joe's wife, but her face was not familiar. Joe had not married one of the village girls. Herbert wondered if Margaret was married, too. The fact that she was with her brother on Thanksgiving day meant nothing, for New England women always flock home for the family festival.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

An "Englishtown" Ruction.

This morning there was great excitement in "Englishtown." Two neighbours got into a controversy over the weather, one saying that we had had Indian summer—the other saying it was yet to come. They came, as taught, to blows, and were damaging each other badly when their respective wives took a hand in and seized the row. But that was not the best of it. When peace was restored, they all agreed that hawing bread's teas were the best and cheapest in town, like their coffees and glassware. dw

Makes out a Good Swim.

The C. P. R. globe-circling trip when it comes to be thought out, fairly makes one a good swim. The idea of a trip from Peterborough to Peterborough—round trip tickets only $600. But the round trip means round the world. From Peterborough across the ocean to England, thence by C. P. R. steamer through the Mediterranean sea, Suez canal, Indian Ocean, China and Japan seas, and Pacific Ocean to Vancouver, thence across the continent to Peterborough. By this route are shipped direct from Japan and China newly brew's incomparable teas, the best in Canada, pure and fragrant.

A Suicidal By law.

The town of Peterborough will soon be in the anomalous position of entering an action against itself, through its officers. A covered addition is being built to the weigh scales on the market square, for the protection of the market clerk and the public doing business at the scales on rainy days. The erection of a wood structure within the fire limits is a direct contravention of the by-law, but the spectre Pope is at a loss to find the responsible party—whether it is the chairman of the Market Committee, who is a ket-ected, or the carpenters doing the work. Probably the first named gentlemen will be summoned to defend the action which Inspector Pope contemplates instituting. If the case comes to trial it will remind one of the man who made a sword to chop his own head off.

The Dear Irish Boy.

The Chicago Journal of September 16th, 1890, says:—"'The Dear Irish Boy' differs from other alleged pictures of life and doings on the Emerald Isle, because its leading character is not a young, good-looking, sweet singing and graceful dancing and green-stockinged fellow with plenty of nerve. Mike McClutchey is the name of the 'star' character, and Mike is not the kind of fellow one would care to be associated with. He isn't the dear Irish boy. The play is composed of a series of dramatic situations, and comedy scenes which follow each other in rapid succession. There's a murder, abductions, persecutions, and a sprinkling of good dancing and singing, the whole forming an interesting entertainment. Gus Reynolds assumes the role of Mr. Mutchey and does some effective work. George Timmons, as a brave young Irish lad who loves a pretty girl, is pleasing, and Ollie Evans makes a dusky Colleen, who is clever and graceful in dances. The play is drawing good houses at the People's Theatre this week."

Other Veterans.

Mr. James Wason, of 617 Rubidge street, is one of the survivors of the rebellion, having served his country as a volunteer in 1837-8-9. He joined in Peterborough in December, 1837, and participated in the famous march to Toronto. He was first attached to No. 1 company, Queen's Own, under Lieut. Carver (who still lives near town), Major Brown, Lieut.-Col. Kingsmill and Lieut.-Col. McDonell. Mr. Wason was sub-brand drum-sergeant, and in that capacity was at Drummondville and Chippewa. He was discharged in the fall of 1838, but was again brought back to Peterborough in 1839 to drill company 3, Seventh Battalion, Aut. C. militia (Capt. Benson). Mr. Wason, who has been a resident of the town for fourteen years, is in his 74th year.

Mr. Patrick Gowan, J. P., of the 5th concession of the township of Ennismore, and one of its first settlers, entered the service in Peterborough, put in his service in assisting to suppress the rising of 1837-'38, and was regularly discharged. His company officer was Capt. Murphy. Mr. Galvin is now 89.

The Red-Coated Rangers.

Preparing for the Annual Inspection—A Good Muster Last Night.

The 57th Battalion mustered nearly full strength at the dress parade last night, and acquitted themselves creditably. The regiment will make a good appearance before the D. A. G. to-morrow.

Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers was in command last night, and the other staff officers present were Capt. Donnistoun, Adjutant, Majors Bell and Edwards, and Surgeon Hannley.

The following orders were read:

By order
R. MAX. DENNISTOUN,
Adjt. 57th Batt., P.R.

Headquarters, Peterborough, Nov. 4th, 1890.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers, commanding the 57th Batt. of Infantry, "Peterborough Rangers":

No. 1.—The Battalion will parade for inspection by the D.A.G. on Thursday morning next at 9 o'clock in Review Order, with helmets and leggings.

No. 2.—A class for those desiring to qualify as non commissioned officers will be held by the Adjutant every Tuesday evening provided a sufficient number of volunteers present themselves for the purpose. Candidates will hand in their names to the Adjutant.

Col. Straubenzie, the inspecting D.A.G., will inspect the troops on Riverside Park about ten o'clock Thursday morning.

After the drill last night the staff officers entertained the Captains at an oyster supper, which was the profit for losing the rifle match at the recent battalion matches. A jolly evening was spent.

Police Court.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 5.

The court was in a lenient mood this morning and dealt kindly with all the offenders who appeared.

Thos. McGinty the young fellow who was remanded 10 gaol a week ago on a charge of vagrancy, promised to be "a man" in future and was discharged. He is not the Mr. McGinty who has so recently joined the Salvation Army.

Chas. Nicholls, an able-bodied man who has just served a term for vagrancy, again applied for admission to the gaol and was given three months for vagrancy. Charles is an artistic painter and grainer, and has been exercising himself upon the woodwork of the new portions of the county buildings. He wished work, and thought there was better scope for his abilities in the gaol than outside.

The girl Martha Johnston, the victim of a Galway man's lust, who is will be remembered to the police for protection in her trouble, was given a ticket to Kinmount, which is near her home, and ordered to return to the township where her ruin had been wrought, where she would be in the hands of friends, or at least acquaintance.

Mr. Charles Butler, who is erecting a frame addition to his premises on Queen street, was summoned to answer to a charge of infraction of the fire bylaw. Judgment was reserved.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Yesterday afternoon the ladies' auxiliary met. Mrs. H. S. Griffin presided. The attendance was large. Arrangements are being completed for holding an "Art Loan" during the month. Committees were appointed and will report at adjourned meeting on Monday afternoon next. With the ladies' usual earnestness they are going to help us to get rid of that terrible incubus—debt.

The Board of Directors met last evening, Mr. Ecroyd, president, presided. Much joy was felt as the result of the work done as reported by the committees and the General Secretary. The report of Mr. Richardson, chairman of the Devotional Committee, was cause of devout thankfulness to Almighty God for the showers of blessing we have received. The following extracts from the reports will indicate why we should praise God. 14 young men accepted Christ, and in reduced to pastors; 16 signed the pledge; all the religious meetings have been growing in attendance and interest through the month. Finance Committee has done good work during the past month, and are going to make a strong effort to wipe out our debt. 17 new members were received, and much gratitude was expressed at the great interest our young men are taking in our work by their work and money.

Mr. Jolly, one of our members, has kindly consented to issue a class in short hand, this kind offer was graciously received.

The Junior Branch is growing in numbers and interest weekly. Mr. J. A. Fife will give a talk with experiments in chemistry.

Special efforts will be made to make the Week of Prayer both helpful and interesting to us all. We ask the prayers of Christians, and shall hope to see their hearty co-operation in bringing the unsaved under the influence of the Spirit of the Lord Jesus. Sunday next will be Y. M. C. A. day in all the churches. Special sermons will be preached in all the churches, and offerings taken in most of them, for our work among the young men of our town. Rev. Mr. Patterson, Toronto, will preach in St. Paul's at 11 a.m., and at 7 p.m. in George Street Methodist church; also at 4 p.m. he will address a men meeting, for men only, in the Opera House. At the close of services in the evening a gospel and song service will be held in the George street Methodist church, when short addresses will be given by Rev. Mr. Patterson and the pastors of our town. Singing led by the choir under Mr. Seward. During the week special meetings for prayer will be held afternoons at 3 o'clock for the public, to be addressed by the pastors and others, and evening evangelistic services at 8 o'clock for men only.

We thank Bruce Chown for two volumes for the library.

A Session Short and Sweet.

The School Board Holds its Regular Monthly Meeting—Business Transacted with Neatness and Despatch.

It was a short and quiet meeting that the School Board held on Tuesday evening. The session lasted only 45 minutes. Mayor Stevenson was absent, and Mr. Deane occupied the chair in his stead. The other trustees present were Messrs. Burnham, Boucher, Bradburn, Dumble, Ferguson, Hamilton, Keadry, McKee and Wrighton.

INTERNAL ECONOMY.

Mr. Dumble presented the following report:—

The Committee on Appointments to whom the matters hereinafter mentioned were referred, beg to report:—

As to the application of Mr. Walkey to be paid an increase salary for the time he was engaged in teaching Mr. Smith's room, your Committee cannot but regret that the application was made, for your Committee realize that while Mr. Walkey gave his best services to the Board, yet the position gave Mr. Walkey many advantages, and was of great value to him in fitting him for the position he now occupies, and in advancing him in his profession.

As to Mr. Jeffris' application your Committee recommend that his salary be $1.000 a year, reckoning from the beginning of next year, in fulfilment of the understanding upon which he was engaged.

Regarding Miss Becket and Miss McLennan, your Committee recommend that they be paid the same salaries as all other teachers on the staff doing the same grade of work, and that this rate of salary be reckoned from last Easter.

The Committee recommend that Miss Cameron's salary be at the rate of $250 a year from Sept. 1st.

Your Committee report that Miss McFarlane has been engaged with Miss Davidson as assistants to Miss Warner.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE QUESTION OF FEES.

Mr. JOHN WEBER appeared before the board with regard to his school taxes. He had been up till about six months ago a resident of the North Ward, when he moved outside the town for the benefit of his health, and he was charged fees as being an outsider. But he still worked in the town, and he felt the tax for his five children was too much for him. He wished to continue sending his children to the town school, but did not feel able to pay the full fees.

Mr. DUMBLE said that, although no doubt Mr. Weber's case was a special and deserving one, yet the Board must be careful in dealing with it not to set a precedent which would lead scores of others living just out the limits to try to evade their taxes in the same way. If it was done for one it would have to be done for another.

The Chairman and Mr. Keadry thought some special arrangement might be made in this case, but the other trustees were of opinion that the law should not be interfered with.

A HANDSOME OFFER.

Mr. Smith, Principal of the Central School, stated that Sergt.-Major Rundle had undertaken to apply his spare time to the drilling of the Central School pupils, which he would continue if the Board authorized him to do so.

The Board, through Mr. Dumble, expressed its gratification at the dutiful way in which Mr. Rundle had undertaken to fill his office of drill instructor, and generously permitted Mr. Rundle to occupy his time in this way—at the same salary as he had previously been receiving.

The Board then adjourned.

Largest Man Now Living.

John Hanson Craig, of Danville, Ind., Who Weighs 907 Pounds—Forty-One Yards of Cloth Needed for a Suit of Clothes.

Indiana now lays claim to the heaviest man in the world in the person of John Hanson Craig, of Danville, Hendricks County.

Mr. Craig was born in Iowa City, Ia., in 1855, says the Chicago Times. When quite small his parents removed to Kentucky, where they lived until John was about thirteen years old. At birth he weighed eleven pounds. When eleven months old his weight was seventy-seven pounds. From this time on his gain in flesh was phenomenal.

At the age of two years his weight was 206 pounds. During 1858 his parents took him to New York city, and entered him as a contestant in the baby show inaugurated by P. T. Barnum, and he was awarded a cash prize of $1,000 as the largest and heaviest child on exhibition. At the age of five years his weight had increased to 302 lbs.

During the next six years his weight increased to 405 pounds. The following eight years his weights increased 196 pounds, causing him to tip the beams at 601 pounds.

At the age of twenty-five his weight was 725; at twenty-seven it had increased to 758 pounds. During the next year he gained 34 pounds, making his weight, at the age of twenty-eight, 792. From that time on his weight has been gradually increasing, until now he tips the scales at 907 pounds.

Mr. Craig has never been ill a day in his life, is a very delicate eater, is not addicted to the use of intoxicants, and does not use tobacco in any form.

Mr. Craig stands 6 feet 5 inches in his shocking feet, and measures 5 feet 4 inches at the hips. It requires forty one yards of cloth to make him a full suit—coat, vest and pantaloons, and it takes three pounds of yarn to make him a pair of stockings. He wears No. 12 boots.

The father of Mr. Craig was a very small man, weighing from 115 to 120 pounds; his mother was a small woman, not weighing over 110 to 115 pounds.

His wife is a beautiful woman, about thirty years old, small of stature, and will weigh perhaps 130 pounds. Her luxuriant raven black hair falls in graceful curls, reaching below her waist. Mr. Craig says he fell in love with his wife when they first met, and as she has never tried to wear the trousers he still adores her as much as he did the day they were married.

Taxation Reform.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Allow me to draw the attention of your readers to the editorial from the Globe of to-day:—

The Business Tax.

It is to be hoped that the City Council will accept the proposition made at the last meeting of the Business Tax Committee and and substitute for the present personalty tax a business tax of not more than the current general rate on the rental value of the premises used for business purposes. This will not increase the burden of the retail merchants, as would have been done by a seven and a half per cent. tax on rentals. If we take Yonge street on both sides from King to Bloor streets it is found that the total valuation is $4 500,000 and the rental value $318.000. Along that street there are few wholesale houses, yet the total return of personal property is $655.000. On Yonge street then the difference in favour of the merchants by accepting the business tax will be as between paying taxes on $655,000 of personality at, say fifteen mills—as the rate is likely to be—or on $318,000 of rental value at the same rate. Thus they will save over $5.000 yearly by the change. It may be pointed out that the increase in realty during the past year alone is greater than the whole assessment of personalty, and that the municipal taxation of Toronto is rapidly becoming a taxation of realty alone. While income and personalty combined only amount to some $15 000 000, the assessment of real property is $132.000,000, and of this, $82,500,000 is the value of land. It seems to be only a question of time, in the opinion even of the assessors themselves, as to the adoption of the realty basis for municipal taxation, the other items being now a mere fraction of the total. There is no doubt that such a system would benefit the smaller householders who now have to pay on all their income as well as their realty holdings, while the larger fish escape income taxation in some mysterious fashion, and are generally almost devoid of personal property by their sworn statements. Realty lies out of doors, its value is known and can be demonstrated, therefore it is a more equitable subject on which to levy taxation.

The system of tax reform is being presented in various degrees. This one is endorsed by the Globe. Mr. Ball is going to stand, I believe, this next municipal election, on the right of the merchant and producer overagainst the landholder or speculator in taxation in favour of the promoter of trade. The question is no fad. You cannot dismiss it, you know, with a wave of the hand. If it is right, it must win. Thanking you,

Yours, etc.,
J. HAMPDEN BURNHAM.

THANKSGIVING, 1890.

Fountain of mercy, God of love,
How rich Thy bounties are!
The rolling seasons as they move
Proclaim Thy constant care.

When, in the bosom of the earth,
The sower hid the grain,
Thy goodness marked its secret birth,
And sent the early rain.

The Spring's sweet influence was Thine,
The plants in beauty grew:
Thou gav'st refulgent suns to shine,
And mild, refreshing dew.

These varied mercies from above
Matured the swelling grain;
A yellow Harvest crowns Thy love,
And plenty fills the plain.

Seed-time and Harvest, Lord, alone
Thou dost on man bestow;
Let him not then forget to own
From whom his blessings flow.

Fountain of love, our praise is Thine:
To Thee our songs we'll raise,
And all created nature join,
In sweet harmonious praise.

Seven is the number of perfection, and thus a fit type of the manner in which their music is performed.

Seven is the number of first-class artists in this club, every one an artist and all playing together as one man.

Seven is the number of musical sounds of the scale, woven by these seven performers into a mighty wreath of melodious harmony.

Seven is the day November on which the club will appear in Bradburn's Opera House.

Keene.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The grim messenger of death has again entered our midst, under very sad circumstances, and removed one of our old and highly respected citizens, Mr. Alexander Campbell, who passed quietly away at his residence in Keene, on Tuesday, Oct. 28th, in the 74th year of his age, surrounded by those near and dear to him. Mr. Campbell a few days ago left his family intending to go to the post office, but missing his footing fell down the stairs from top to bottom and was taken up insensible. Medical aid was called in and he rallied for a few hours when he again became unconscious and remained so until death. A sad ending for so useful a life. Mr. Campbell was one of the oldest (if not the oldest) business man of our village. He was native of Paisley, Renfrewshire, Scotland, and came to Keene and started business in 1842, where he remained until death. He will be missed not only by his particular friends but also by all who knew him.

The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Andrews from the house of the deceased and attended by a large number of sympathizing friends.

The bereaved friends and relatives have the sincere sympathy of all the people.

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS

A BUDDHIST FESTIVAL OF DEATH IN CHINA.

Villages Looted, the Buildings Burned and Native Converts to Christianity Placed on a Funeral Pyre—Balfour's Successful Tour in Ireland—Warmly Received

Twenty native converts to Christianity were killed and their bodies thrown into the river.

BALFOUR'S IRISH TOUR.

He Reaches Donegal, Where He Has an Enthusiastic Reception.

DUBLIN, Nov. 5.—Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, accompanied by Miss Balfour, Colonel Sir J. West Ridgeway, Under Secretary, and Thomas Browning and George Wyndham, private secretaries to the Chief Secretary, left Dublin at 7¾ o'clock this morning on a tour over the routes of the proposed railways in Donegal. The train on which the party was traveling passed Portadown and Strabane without demonstrations of any kind being made. When Mr. Balfour arrived at Donegal a crowd at the station gave him an ovation. Cheers were also given for hosts. Dillon and O'Brien.

Mr. Balfour received a deputation of Donegal officials, including Father McFadden, the parish priest, and Mr. Pearson, a railway director, with reference to relief employment. From Donegal he drove to Killybegs, being heartily cheered on the way. There the residents held a meeting, the parish priest presiding, and presented an address to Mr. Balfour asking for a deep water pier in connection with the railway. Mr. Balfour thanked the residents for their cordial reception and expressed his sympathy. He feared that distress would be inevitable in some parts of the country, but he hoped that the railway and other works would enable the people to tide over the crisis. Mr. Balfour and party thence proceeded to Carrick

Electricity for Naval Uses.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Great interest is taken in naval circles on the possibilities of the application of electricity to naval uses. At Brisbane, Queensland, the Labor Federation has issued a manifesto announcing that the strike is ended and that the men ought to resume work.

Wounded in the House of His Friends.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Sir George Errington, formerly, Mr. Gladstone's delegate to the Vatican, in a speech to-night censured Mr. Gladstone for condemning the Simmons mission. He assured his hearers that European powers thought there was nothing derogatory in treating with the Pope as a sovereign.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 5.—The Viedomosti, referring to the possibility of Asia Minor being the scene of future hostilities between Russia and England, strongly advises the extension of the Caucasian Railway to Kars.

A MODERN JUDAS.

A Lindsay Doctor Mulcted in Heavy Damages for Libel.

LINDSAY, Nov. 5.—The case of McMurchy against Dr. Clark of this town, for libel published in The Victoria Warder over the soubriquet of "Swipes," occupied the Assize Court nearly all day. The accusations made against the plaintiff were of a very strong character, such for example as, "he was kicked out from being a school teacher because of drunkenness and taking liberties with young girls that confiding parents had placed under his care, that he was ready to insult his father and betray his friends for a mere pittance, that he was worse than the archtraitor Judas, who betrayed our Lord—Judas, becoming sensible of the wrong he had done, made away with himself, but the plaintiff had not the courage to commit suicide."

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff, and assessed damages at $5300.

A Fireboy at Chesley.

CHESLEY, Nov. 6.—Sunday morning, some neighbors noticed the large stone house, on the lot adjoining the German Church, near Desboro in the township of Sullivan, was on fire. The house was owned by one Smith who a short time ago left for parts unknown. In the morning it was discovered that the barn was a mass of flames, and in a short time only blackened ruins marked the place where it once stood. Smith owned another farm a short distance from this, and the barn on this was burned last June.

An Imposing Ceremony.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The corner-stone of the Masonic temple was laid to-day with impressive ceremonies of the Masonic order. The presence of the sublime princes of the Oriental consistory and of the members of the Scottish rite in full regalia and uniform made the display imposing. The land on which the structure will be erected is worth $2,000,000. The building is to cost not less than $3,000,000. The seventeenth and eighteenth stories will be occupied by the Masonic body.

Ice Houses Burned.

FENELON FALLS, Nov. 6.—The most northerly of the ice houses on the shore of Cameron Lake was totally destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock last night. Only one train-load of ice had been taken out and it contained about 3500 tons the property of the Grenadier Ice Co. of Toronto. The ice was valued at $2000 and was insured for $500. The fire is supposed to have been unintentionally caused by an old tramp.

STANLEY AND HIS ACCUSERS.

Troup Makes a Series of Charges Against the Explorer.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Troup's book adds little to the interview already published. Troup credits Stanley with a preconceived idea of the cause of the disaster to the rear guard and with the rejection as untrue of any statement failing to fit that idea. He enlarges upon the difficulties of a young and inexperienced officer like Bartellot in dealing with the wily Tippo Tib, whom Stanley himself was hardly able to manage, in addition to keeping control over a camp of natives. Troup quotes a letter from Stanley to Bartlelot, in which Stanley expressed distrust of Tippoo. Troup says he is ignorant of the terms of the contract with Tippoo, but it was reported that the promise to supply porters was only conditional, and that the payment was to be Emin's ivory. He declares it was in obeyance to Stanley's orders that the rear column waited at Yambuya in preference to throwing away its stores until Tippoo's arrival, when the column started with all that the porters would carry. Troup asks whether, considering the disasters that even then befell them, Stanley could have expected their miserable camp, which had been denuded of able men by Stanley, to advance without Tippoo's help. He relies upon extracts from Stanley's orders to Bartlelot to refute the charges of delay. He says that after 7½ months had passed, Bartlelot and a section of the expedition were willing to try to advance, but the remainder, including himself, dissented, because Stanley had impressed upon them the importance of preserving the stores. He repeats that Bartlelot had ample warnings of the danger he incurred in venturing out alone. Lieut. Troup is inclined to acquit Tippoo Tib of the charge of treachery.

Stanley Talks Again.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—In an interview here to-day Henry M. Stanley maintained the truth of his previous statements regarding Major Bartelot and the rear guard of the African expedition. He said that Bartlelot prodded with a sharp stick and struck and kicked the native woman whose husband shot and killed him. The woman had awakened Bartlelot by drumming and refused to obey him when he ordered her to stop making the noise. The woman's husband killed Bartlelot while the latter was in the act of beating the woman. Mr. Stanley was asked, "Was there any accusation against Bartlelot, as is generally supposed, of immoral conduct with the chief's wife?" "No," was the quick reply, "I never said any such thing as that nor intimated it. There was no immoral action of any of the men as far as I know.

"Were the stories about the natives being treated cruelly true?" was asked.

Mr. Stanley answered: "The log book of the camp signed by Bartlelot, Jamieson, Bonny and Ward was simply one long account of remorseless flogging and inhumanity. One man had an ulcer seven inches in diameter, which was full of maggots, caused by a severe beating. Bartlelot even kicked his little boy Smith, from the injuries of which he died. One man had a piece of raw meat because he was nearly crazed with hunger and sickness. For this he was ordered to receive 300 lashes. The doctor told Bartlelot it would not stopped it would kill him. When the man was able he ran away, but was captured and shot by Bartlelot's orders. Bonny said to me a few days ago, 'I haven't told you half of the horrors that existed in the camp, but it will all come out some time.' The exploiter justified at some length the orders he gave to Bartlelot about marching etc. It is said Mr. Stanley when he returns to England will bring an action for libel against Major Bartlelot's brother in order to sift the matter to the bottom so that the world may judge of the case. Mr. Stanley was given a private banquet to-night.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Sam H. Thompson, clerk at the Queen's Hotel, was married last night to Miss Lillian Winnett at the residence of the bride's father, 195 Beverley-street. The bridesmaids were the Misses Edith and Ina Winnett, sisters of the bride. The groom was supported by Mr. Joseph Kilgour and Mr. Alexander Hutchinson. Rev. Dr. Parsons of Knox Church performed the ceremony. The bride was attired in white satin with orange blossoms. The bridesmaids wore white satin and tulle lace costumes. The trimmers were the Misses McGaw and Winnett. Handsome presents were received from the many friends of the couple, among them being a solid silver service from Montreal travelers, a purse of gold from guests of the Queen's and a solid silver coffee service from Mr. Thompson's fellow-employes in the office. A set of antique sixtures from and Mrs. McGaw was much admired. They left on a two weeks trip to Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, New York and Boston.

On Wednesday night the Grand Trunk track men at Brighton found a man lying near the track with his right leg frightfully mangled. He gave his name as Edward Shanahan and his address as 56 Pearl-street, Toronto. He could give no idea how he came to be where he was found, and had no recollection of the accident which had befallen him. Yesterday morning he was brought to Toronto and sent to the Hospital.

Some of the prominent Christians of all denominations have extended an invitation to the Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Dowie of Melbourne, Australia, to visit Toronto and hold a mission in Association Hall, lasting three weeks, afternoons and evenings, which they have accepted, and the meetings will commence on the 16th. Mr. Dowie is a graduate of Edinburgh University and is considered one of the best platform lecturers of the day. His subject will be Divine healing through faith in Christ, which is in direct opposition to Christian Science. Mr. Dowie's meetings along the Pacific coast were very successful, as the large halls were not able to contain the crowds that flocked to hear him.

Jockey's Accident

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The weather was fine to-day, the track in good shape and the attendance large

In the four straight races the favorites broke even, carrying off two and losing two.

Longshot was the big favorite for the hurdle race and took it handily. In the first race Bob Garrett threw his jockey at the half-mile post and the lad was quite badly hurt.

First race, 5½ furlongs—Coldstream 1, Dover 2, Kanesville 3. Time 1.09.

Second race, 6 furlongs—Painkiller 1, Tanner 3, Mabel 3. Time 1.15.

Third race, 5 furlongs—Kitty T. 1, Helen Rose 2, Willard 3. Time 1.02½.

Fourth race, 1 mile—Iceberg 1, Ofaleose 2, Golden Reel 3. Time 1.45¾.

After Many Days.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 6.—About a month ago Mr. H. D. McCarty's grocery store was broken into and considerable property stolen. The matter was placed in the hands of the police who, ferreted out the perpetrators of the crime, one of whom, a young man named Kay McKay, turned Queen's evidence and divulged the place where the goods were concealed. On the strength of the information thus received two other lads named Haffey and McGee were arrested and brought before the police magistrate. In the meantime young McKay disappeared from the scene and as he was the only witness to the case the prisoners were remanded to give the prosecution a chance to recover their wings.

GOSCHEN ON GLADSTONE.

ENGLISH STATESMEN WHO ARE GIVEN TO SIMILIE.

Goschen Compares the Gladstonians to Advertising Quacks, and the Old Man Eloquent Says the Government Resembles a Man with the Toothache.

HALIFAX, Nov. 6.—Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking here to-night, denied that the result of the by-elections proved that the cause of unionism was failing. A few reverses at outposts were not going to determine the issue of a great campaign. "The Gladstonians," he said, "resembled advertising quacks promising relief for every kind of human ailment." The Unionists would do their best to find genuine remedies for existing evils. He was confident that the steady good sense of the country would approve honest methods of social and political progress in preference to trusting to the guidance of quacks.

CARLISLE, Nov. 6.—Speaking here to-day Mr. Gladstone said that if the clause contained in the Licensing bill, submitted to the House of Commons last spring by the Government, had become law it would have cost the country £300,000,000 to purchase forfeited licenses from publicans. Parliament, he said, is now wearing out its life. The Government is avoiding dissolution as a man with a bad tooth avoids dentistry. The recent bye election for members of the House of Commons had set the seal of doom upon a long endured iniquity and pointed to the beginning of an era of peace.

The Franco-Russian Alliance.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, during the debate on the foreign estimates M. Delcasse of the Right renewed the attack on the African convention with England. He advocated an alliance with Russia on the ground that the interests of France are identical with those of Russia.

M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs, declared France was peaceably inclined and threatened nobody. At the same time she did not conceal the fact that she was placing her armies in a position in which they would be ready for every emergency. With reference to the British occupation of Egypt he asked if anyone could suggest a practical means of obtaining the immediate evacuation of the country. France, he said, must wait for England to fulfill her promises.

Referring to the Newfoundland dispute he said the matter was the subject of recent negotiations, which were now proceeding as actively as possible.

When the estimates for the War Department came up M. Cavaignac, on behalf of the committee on war estimates, said every possible economy had been effected. Notwithstanding [illegible] France was not spending more than Germany, despite the extra expenditure of France [illegible] Germany [illegible] expenditure of France [illegible] Germany [illegible] took the initiative in [illegible] strength, and France [illegible] Law. Uneasy Lies the Head.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 6.—The police precautions against the Nihilists have been increased. No visitors are permitted in the vicinity of the Alexander Newski winter palace. The railway stations at St. Petersburg and Gatchina are also guarded and the minutest examinations are made of every train traversed by the Czar.

Found Dead in Bed.

AURORA, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Ellen Neilas was found dead in bed by her daughter last night. She had retired in her usual health. A son died at Hamilton two weeks ago

Mrs. Walkington, mother of Mrs. James Reynolds, died very suddenly at the residence of her son, near King City. She retired apparently in good health, but on making her appearance on Sabbath day in rising her daughter-in-law went to her room to awaken her and found her on the floor unconscious. She remained in that state until she expired. Apoplexy is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Suicide of a Blacksmith Near Newmarket Yesterday.

NEWMARKET, Nov. 6.—This morning Mrs. Cowieson, going to call her husband, George Cowieson, blacksmith, of Bethaven, to breakfast, was horrified to find him dead. He had hung himself on the stable. Lately he had lost all his property, and had been drinking heavily in consequence.

THE WRECK ON THE C.P.R.

Engineer Kyle of West Toronto Junction Killed Near Owen Sound.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 5.—A collision occurred early this morning on the C.P.R. near this place which resulted in one death and serious injury to two others. There is a heavy grade between Owen Sound and Flesherton, and it is customary to send out a "wild cat" engine to assist freight trains at this point. After aiding a train a light engine in charge of Engineer James Kyle and Fireman Smith was returning to Owen Sound and in coming down the grade near Chatsworth met the passenger train which left Owen Sound at 5½ a.m. A collision was inevitable, and Engineer Weeks of the express, together with his fireman, jumped from their engine and escaped injury. Engineer Kyle was instantly killed. When removed from the wreck he was found standing erect in his usual position when on duty, with his hand on the lever and the other by his side. Stephen Smith, fireman, and John Harrison, brakeman of the wrecked engine, received severe injuries, which are not likely to prove fatal. The passengers on the express train all escaped uninjured.

The train was due in Toronto at 10.35, but did not arrive until 2½ this afternoon. When the railway authorities received word of the accident Assistant Master Mechanic G. Preston left at once on a special to get the road in shape again. The body of Kyle was brought to the city last evening. He resided in West Toronto Junction and leaves a wife and one child. He was connected with the Toronto, Grey & Bruce before the C.P.R. took hold of the road, and was looked upon as a reliable engineer. The error is said to be entirely his fault, as he had no orders to be on the line in the passenger train's time. It was thought that his watch was out of order and he expected to get into Owen Sound before the passenger left.

The Great Majority

Of cases of scrofula and other blood diseases are hereditary, and therefore difficult to cure. But we wish to state in the most positive, emphatic manner that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula in every form. The most severe cases too terrible for description, have yielded to this medicine when all others failed. If you suffer from impure blood in anyway, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE THRONE OF JUSTICE.

MURDERER BIRCHALL'S WIFE PLEADS FOR JUSTICE.

Mrs. Birchall Presents the Petitions in Person to Sir John Thompson and Expresses Belief in Her Husband's Innocence—About Five Thousand Names Attached to the Various Petitions.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Birchall and her sister, Mrs. West-Jones, arrived here this morning and registered at the Russell. Mr. D. MacMurchy had an interview with Sir John Thompson and the head officials of the Justice Department at 11 o'clock. In the afternoon Mrs. Birchall, accompanied by Mr. MacMurchy of Toronto and Mr. C. H. Mackintosh, M.P., presented petitions from various peoples in Canada to Sir John Thompson. The petition is said to be signed by 200 barristers, 30 or 40 clergymen, bankers, medical men and church dignitaries. Mrs. West-Jones remained in the adjoining office. The Minister of Justice received Mrs. Birchall most kindly, she being visibly affected. Mr. MacMurchy dwelt upon every salient point for the defence.

Mrs. Birchall then came forward and presented the petition. She said that she fully believed in her husband's innocence, and that time would show how true this was. Her life would be blighted, and two honorable families ruined. The unfortunate lady was visibly affected, tears gathering in her eyes as she sank into a chair covering her face with her hands.

The Minister of Justice said he felt a deep sympathy for Mrs. Birchall, that he would give careful attention to all the petitions and the evidence.

Mrs. Birchall then took leave, she and her sister returning with the deputation to the Russell House.

After the interview the cabinet council met. There is a general impression here that Birchall will hang. The petition bore 5000 signatures.

A Motion to Examine the Prisoner in Woodstock Jail Refused.

The master in chambers yesterday gave judgment in the action of Greene v. The Globe, refusing the order for the examination of J. Rex Birchall as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff. The learned master remarked that in the face of the case of Reg. v. Webb he could not make the order. The statute, he said, did not go far enough to make the evidence of the condemned man good. The motion was dismissed with costs.

Mr. Hilton asked the master to refer the motion to a judge. This Mr. Dalton said he could not do, as he had delivered judgment, but he said he thought this was a case in which the appeal should be facilitated, and directed that the parties should argue the motion before Chief Justice Galt, who was then sitting. It was ultimately arranged between the parties that the motion should be enlarged till Friday, when the appeal will be argued.

A motion is to be made in the same case for an order that the plaintiff, who it is alleged is a man possessing no financial means, furnish security for costs. Greene was examined as a witness on the motion before Special Examiner Bruce yesterday afternoon.

SEVERAL PASSENGERS KILLED.

By a Collision on the New York & Western Railway.

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 5.—On the N. Y. O. & W. Railway to-night, between Carbondale and Mayfield, an engine while trying to make a switch crashed into a passenger train going in an opposite direction. The engineers and firemen escaped by jumping. Charles Finnigan of Carbondale, a man named Burke of Jermyn and an unknown man were killed. They were passengers. Several other passengers were painfully hurt.

Preferred Death to Punishment.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—Detective Carpenter has returned from Concord, N.H., with Vital Soucy, charged with criminal assault and jail breaking at Beauharnois. Soucy gave his guardians much trouble during the time he was in Concord jail, and became so dangerous that two guards had to be left in the cell all the time. On two separate occasions he attempted suicide by hanging, once stringing himself with his braces, but he was cut down before he had time to carry out his intention. At one time he made a rope out of his clothing and again made an unsuccessful attempt on his life. Failing in this he bethought himself of fire and twice set fire to his bed, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done. On another occasion he demolished his cell door. These playful fancies of his became monotonous to his guardians and they were rejoiced to see him take his departure. But when Mr. Carpenter arrived Soucy was unwilling to return with him, declaring emphatically that he would never come back alive. But he did. It was not without a struggle, however, for he resisted stoutly and managed to carry away a piece of the sheriff's thumb as a souvenir. It was fully an hour before he could be quieted and taken away.

A Canadian Murdered.

SHELBURNE, Nov. 6.—Mr. Anson Garneau of Drayton, brother of Mrs. Smith, wife of the editor of The Economist, was found dying in the street in Baltimore, Md., on Friday night, Oct. 24. He was removed to the hospital, where he died shortly after. He had been shot and robbed. It appears his parents had a letter from him about the middle of October stating that he was going to take a pleasure trip for a couple of weeks, and they were to write until they heard from him. He was then living in Richmond, Va. They suppose that he had only arrived in Baltimore a short time before he met his sad end. A letter in his pocket led to his identification.

Trunk Line Presidents Meet.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—A joint meeting of the Trunk Line presidents and representatives of the Central Traffic Association was held to-day, was fully attended and very harmonious. It was decided to restore rates to the basis of last year. The rate on wheat goes up to 25 cents per hundred and on corn to 22½ cents, to take effect on the 20th inst. The new rate on dressed beef to New England will be 4c cents instead of 4c cents. It was decided to abolish commissions on tickets in joint committee in the territory between Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and the Atlantic seaboard. The controversy between the Grand Trunk of Canada and the Lake Shore about differentials will be settled by arbitration.

A Young Lad at Barrie Blows off His Nose.

BARRIE, Nov. 6.—Robert Johnson, a young son of Neil Johnson, who lives near the gasworks, was playing with companions in Watkins boathouse and had a bottle of gunpowder and matches. The result of this combination of boy, gunpowder and matches was an explosion which nearly killed the boy. His thumb is severed from his hand, part of his nose was blown off and he is otherwise scarred for life.

Another Big Deal in Canadian Concerns by English Capitalists.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Another syndicate of English capitalists is on the tapis, and should the negotiations at present pending prove successful the transaction will be one of the largest consummated in Canada.

The interests which the syndicate is endeavoring to make its own are the Rathbun company, the agricultural implement factories throughout Ontario, the Millichamp showcase works, the Toronto Brewing and Malting Company. The Rathbuns own and control a car wheel foundry, a car factory, terra cotta works, sash and door factories, a flour mill and a factory for the production of methylated spirits from sawdust. They also own a railway from Deseronto to the main line of the Grand Trunk and the controlling interest in another short line. They own also a large number of barges and schooners and all except two of the steamboats on the Bay of Quinte. The syndicate have offered the Rathbuns $4,000,000 for their properties, but the latter want $6,000,000.

TAXATIONISTS REBUKED.

The result of the American fall elections Tuesday last was a Waterloo rout for the Republicans and a great triumph for the Democrats. The Republicans are the apostles of high taxation, and this defeat shows that the people are wearied with the burden of taxation upon everything—weary of paying increased prices for the necessaries of life for the enrichment of a few millionaires. On the other hand, the Democrats are in favour of tariff reform, with a decided bias towards reciprocity with Canada. Of course, the result of the elections and the defeat of McKinley, the author of the McKinley tariff, will not immediately affect that measure, but high taxation has received a death blow, through the fatal results may not immediately ensue. But the good time is coming.

MR. CAHILL WANTS JUSTICE.

And Will Have an Open Street or Satisfaction.

A Troublesome Right of Way Thirty-three Electric Lights Ordered—What it Cost to Move the Town Clock—Light in the Arcade Wanted.

The town councillors fairly talked themselves out of the oysters at the meeting Wednesday night. A few minutes to ten o'clock a note was sent up to the mayor, which read:—"We are through business before ten o'clock. Oysters." (An almost unprecedented event). Then the electric light matter came up, the councillors grew loquacious again, and before they found time to adjourn it was twenty minutes to eleven.

The meeting was quite a lively one. Mr. Cahill and Mr. Dawson did some pretty tall talking, the former threatening the corporation with legal action and the latter pitching into his opponents on the electric light question, and the chairman of the committee in particular, with vigor.

There were present Mayor Stevenson and Messrs. Langford, Rutherford, Moore, Dawson, A. Hall, E. H. D. Hall, Davidson and Cahill.

The first business was the third and final reading of the by law to prevent the importuning of passengers at railway stations by hackmen and porters. The by-law was adopted.

GATES ON THE STREETS.

Mr. DAVIDSON, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, read a copy of an agreement which he had had prepared in duplicate between the railway company and the corporation regarding the erection and maintenance of gates at the crossings on Charlotte and Simcoe streets, in accordance with instructions at a recent meeting.

On motion of Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Davidson, the Mayor and Clerk were instructed to execute the contract, subject to the opinion of the town solicitor as to the form thereof.

A TROUBLESOME RIGHT OF WAY.

Mr. LANGFORD'S by-law providing for the opening of Water street, from the C. P. R. track to Wolfe street, was presented for a second reading

Mr. MOORE read a letter from the solicitors of the C. P. R. Company, urging the council to stay proceedings, as they had been led to infer from remarks passed by Mayor Stevenson in Toronto Tuesday that the corporation intended, or, at least, had the right to extend the street across their track, which they would strenuously oppose, as it would be a most dangerous crossing. They would equally oppose any proposition to have a passage under the bridge. They asked that the by-law be not dealt with until Mr. Thos Tait, General Superintendent of the C.P.R., could be consulted.

Mayor STEVENSON said that, as the track was eight feet above the level of Water street at that point, there was not the slightest grounds for the fear of the C.P.R. Company; Mr. Langford adding that in this by-law there was no question of crossing the track involved.

A LAW SUIT THREATENED.

Mr. CAHILL demanded that the by law be passed as originally drawn up, providing for the opening up of Water street, from Sherbrooke street to Wolfe. Mr Cahill emphatically denied having any desire to injure or harass the Bridge Works, but he demanded a thoroughfare along the river front. Warming up on receiving some slight opposition from Mr. Langford and Mr. Davidson, who argued that no by-law was necessary to open up Water street from Sherbrooke street to the track, but that it could be done at any time on the authority of a resolution,—Mr. Cahill said he was bound to have an open street along the river front, not in his own interest but for the public, and he would sue the council, if it was necessary, to get it.

Mr MOORE suggested that perhaps the council would get into trouble in opening up the water front, the property being in Mrs. Leonard's possession, but the Mayor said that according to the terms of sale parties acquiring properties along the river front knew perfectly well that the road allowance could be opened up at any time. With regard to Mr. Cahill's request, he said that the council some time ago gave the use of portions of the street to Mr. Law and the C.P.R. track, which were of great benefit to the town; but in the other case the street was occupied by a private individual. That was the difference.

After some further discussion the by-law was finally adopted, the reading being "to open that part of Water street lying between the southern limit of the right of way of the C.P.R. to Wolfe street."

AN EXPENSIVE TIMEPIECE.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the accounts of R. W. Munnaster, $220.00, and M. McFadden, $50, be paid.

These expenses were incurred in moving the town clock to the new place.

Some of the councillors thought the price was too high, but Mr. Moore explained that the actual cost of moving was only $50, but it cost over $200 to purchase necessary improvements so as to have the work done well. New bands and rods cost $21 or $22; new chime $80, which was reasonable enough; the painting cost $35; Mr. E. Rutherford charged $6 for moving the bell and placing it in good position. All these were necessary expenses, and it would be well for the public to understand where the great cost of the moving came in.

After some discussion the motion was passed.

THIRTY-THREE ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

Mr. A. Hall moved, seconded by Mr. Dawson, that the Electric Light and Power Co. be instructed to put up 33 electric lamps, to burn 300 nights in the year, and that all the gas lamps now burning till twelve o'clock be cut off when the above electric lamps are completed. The lamps to be placed in the following places:—One each at the corners of these streets:—Dickens and Murray, Sheridan and Brock, College and McDonel, Harvey and London, Water and Dublin, Water and Simcoe, Water and Charlotte, Aylmer and King, Bethune and Sherbrooke, Aylmer and Dalhousie, Aylmer and Smith, Bethune and Wolfe, Stewart and London, Bthune and McDonel, Stewart and King, Simcoe and Stewart, Park and Paterson, Simcoe and Reid, George and Spaulding's Bay, Aylmer and London, Park and Westcott, Reid and McDonel, Park and McDonel, Park and Bon Accord, Park and Elm, Park and Weller, Park and Gilmour, Bthune and Charlotte, half way between George and Aylmer street on Simcoe, half way between George and Aylmer streets on Hunter, one at Hilliard's mill, one west of Mrs. Denison's residence, one at the corner of Water and McDonel streets.

Messrs Langford, Davidson and Cahill urged that the resolution be not passed on account of the heavy expense involved, the Chairman of the Finance Committee remarking that it would amount to half a mill increase in the rate and he could not see his way clear to voting for such an expense.

Mr RUTHERFORD thought the town was in need of the lights and the resolution should be adopted.

Mr. MOORE believed the townspeople would pay willingly for a good electric light service, and it would amount to less than one-third of a mill on the dollar.

Mr. LANGFORD thought it was extravagant to have some eighty electric lamps to take the place of the ninety gas lamps they had formerly. It was understood they were to save money on the electric lights.

Mr. DAWSON stated that some of the men who were talking against the electric lights were not so economical in other things. There were parts of the town that had neither light nor water. He went so far as to say that there was a ring or combination in the council in this matter.

Mr A. HALL and Mr. DAWSON then "had it out" with regard to their respective positions in connection with the electric lights.

Mr E. H. D. HALL expressed himself as opposed to the resolution because it did not do justice to the outskirts.

A vote was then taken and a tie resulted, Messrs. Rutherford, Moore, Dawson and A. Hall for the yeas; Messrs. Langford, E. H. D. Hall, Davidson and Cahill, nay. The Mayor cast the deciding vote in favour of the resolution, and declared it carried. The opposition raised the point of order that notice of motion should be given as it involved the expenditure of money and had to be carried by a majority of the whole council (eight.) The Mayor ruled that it was old matter and was not affected by the rules.

LIGHTS FOR THE ARCADE.

Mr. A. HALL moved, seconded by Mr. E. H. D. HALL, that two gas jets be put in the two arcades, to burn all night. Mr. Hall explained that the arcades were made a rendezvous for men and boys at night, and they were so dark that the police could not drive them on; as a result the arcades were very filthy.

Mr. LANGFORD contended that Mr. Bradburn's arcade was private property, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that Mr. Bradburn be allowed to place gates on his arcade, the gates to be open during the day time, and may be closed at night.

Mayor STEVENSON stated that by the lease Mr. Bradburn was bound to keep the passage open.

Mr. DAVIDSON raised the point of order that Mr. Bradburn's arcade was private property, and the town could not light it.

Mr. A. HALL then presented his motion as regards lights for the town building arcade, and allowed that portion referring to lights in the old arcade to stand as a notice of motion.

The first motion was carried and the amendment dropped.

The council then adjourned.

RIOT AT A BULL FIGHT.

One of the Espadas Impaled on the Animal's Horns.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 4.—At the Jockey Club's second annual meeting on Sunday a bull fight was given, at which more than 10,000 spectators were present. The celebrated Guanamo bulls furnished sport, with Zoreto and Ferrar as first and second matadors. The work fought badly for the matadors, and while Zoreto was attempting to kill the third bull he was caught on its horns, spun as though he was a top and tossed into the air. He fell to the ground and was again gored by the infuriated animal. It was found he had three deep wounds, which it is believed will be fatal. Five more bulls were let in the arena, but none fought well. The spectators became enraged and fleets were hurled among the spectators. After all the bulls had been pierced into the arena the carcasses were wrenched off and thrown on the heads of the people in the alleyways. The bandilleros escaped any personal injury on the streets. The plaza completely wrecked.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of having the blood in perfect condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing like Hood's Sarsaparilla to positively clean the blood. This peculiar medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

RECIPES FOR THANKSGIVING.

Mock Turtle Soup—Fifty years ago always ushered in the Thanksgiving feast of the South. As it is one of the most nutritious and economical of soups, and one whose ingredients are at some time of the year within the reach of every farmer, we give the most approved method of making it. Scald and thoroughly scrape and cleanse a calf's head; crack the skull, remove the brains and tongue whole, and soak all for an hour in salted cold water. Put all over the fire in a large soup kettle, with four quarts of cold water, some parsley, a bay leaf, several stalks of celery, half a good-sized carrot, one medium-sized turnip, two onions, six whole allspice, and as many peppercorns. Simmer slowly, and when the tongue is tender remove it for a separate dish. After two hours cooking, or when the flesh will slip from the bones, remove the best portions of it, and continue the simmering for four hours longer, then strain, and set away to cool. Meantime make a stock with the carcass of a cold roast chicken, or the water in which one was boiled, together with beef and veal bones and the usual soup vegetables. This stock should be strong. The next day remove the fat from both soups. Put a stewpan over the fire, with butter the size of an egg; when it bubbles, stir in one ounce of ham, cut in dice, and a heaping tablespoonful of flour. As soon as it browns, add one pint of the beef and chicken stock and one quart of the calf's-head stock, both boiling hot, half a pound of the flesh cut in dice, the juice of half a lemon, and, if you care for wine, a glass of sherry. Let it come just to a boil; remove, skim, and pour into the tureen over thin slices of lemon and hard-boiled eggs cut in dice. You may add egg balls or force meat balls if you care to take the trouble to make them, but it is quite good enough without. The remainder of the flesh will make a dish of mock terrapin, the brains make delightful croquettes, and the tongue can be served with spinach, or with tomato or tartare sauce.

Ham Boiled in Cider.—Nowhere except in the country can this dish be had in all its perfection. After you have once eaten a ham cooked in this way all other methods will seem insipid. Cleanse a ham thoroughly in cold water, scrubbing all salt and rust from the outside rind. Line the bottom of a large kettle with a bunch of fragrant hay; cover with sweet cider, and as soon as it commences to simmer place where it will keep just at the simmering point. Cook twenty minutes to the pound, and test by probing with a skewer; if you can twist this around easily it is done. Lay on an inverted sieve while you sprinkle over the top fine bread crumbs mixed with brown sugar; dot with tiniest bits of butter and dashes of black pepper, and let it brown in a quick oven.

Boiled Turkey.—Unless you are prepared to give this your very best attention, cook it in some other way, as nothing is more quickly spoiled by carelessness than boiled fowls. Singe, draw, and truss a ten-pound turkey, put a piece of butter inside and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Put in a kettle with a carrot, an onion, two leeks, two stocks of celery, and some parsley; cover with boiling water, and simmer slowly for two hours—longer if the bird was an old one. Take from the kettle and keep covered and warm while you make an oyster sauce. Put a pint of strained oyster broth over the fire; in another saucepan melt a large tablespoonful of butter, and stir in two of flour until smooth; turn on the hot oyster liquor slowly, stirring the while, also a pint of the hot turkey broth. When smooth, add three dozen oysters, salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and a gill of hot cream. This sauce scorches quickly, and can be made most safely in a double boiler. Mask the turkey with some of the sauce and send the rest to table in a boat.

Cauliflower au Gratin is a nice vegetable for the holiday table. Drain a large, well-cooked cauliflower, break into flowerets, and arrange on a baking dish, stalks down. Pour over a mixture made with a gill of bechamel or white sauce, four ounces of cheese grated Parmesan is best), two ounces of butter, the beaten yolks of two eggs, and salt, pepper, and nutmeg at discretion. Stir this over the fire until well mixed and pour over the cauliflower so as to mask in entirety; smooth into a dome-shaped mound, and sprinkle with grated cheese and brown delicately in a quick oven.

Baked Potatoes in Cases also make a pretty dish. Bake potatoes of an equal size until done; cut a small piece from the side of each potato, scoop out the inside with a small spoon, mash well with butter, pepper and salt and a little cream; beat until very light, and fill the potato skins with the mixture, heaping it irregularly at the top. Set in the oven to color slightly.

In the Nursery.

Flossie—It's Fankegivin', ain't it, mamma?

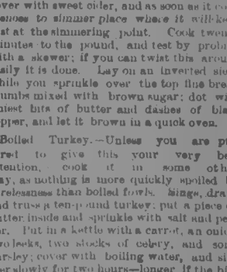
Mamma (wearily)—Yes, Flossie.

Flossie—What's you doin' to dive fanks for, mamma?

Mamma (impatiently)—I don't know, Flossie.

Flossie (cheerfully)—I know, mamma. I dess you better dive fanks cause I isn't twins.

Only a Question of Time.



Mr. Blugo (viewing the table)—My dear, where did you get all these fine things for Thanksgiving?

Mrs. Blugo—You'll know when the bills come in.

Everybody's Day.

One thing is quite certain—that no matter how desolate one's hearth or however lonely one's heart, we all can and should keep Thanksgiving, if not for ourselves for others, and in so doing we will find happiness lying far, far deeper than the gay laughter and thoughtless merrymaking, only possible for those who have passed but very few anniversaries and who have seen but very little of life.—Mrs Frank Leslie.

A Fearful Supposition.

Mrs. Slimdiet (the landlady)—Will you have some of the turkey, Mr. Dashaway?

Dashaway—You di suppose for a moment, madam, that I wanted it all.

An Exception.

She (gratefully)—Well, everybody has something to be thankful for.

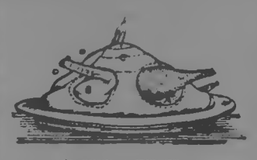
He (carnally)—Except the turkey.

Gentlemen Only for Pitcher's Castoria.

CARVING THE TURKEY.

The Science of It—An Art Everybody Should Understand.

Thanksgiving brings in the turkey season, and every man, woman, boy and girl ought to know how to skilfully carve the bird after he is on the table. Few indeed there be who thoroughly understand the art of dissecting this noble fowl.



CARVING A TURKEY.

A skillful carver places the fork in the bird, and does not remove it until the whole is divided. The turkey having been relieved of strings and skewers used in trussing, should be placed on the table with the head or neck at the carver's left hand.

First insert the fork firmly as indicated in the figure, then remove the whole leg and thigh by a cut shown at a; next remove the wing by a cut, as at b, letting these parts lie on the platter. Then cut downward as many slices at the breast, the white meat, as may be desired (as shown in the lines at c); then make an opening into the cavity of the bird, hidden in the figure here given, by the leg, for dipping out the inside dressing. Next separate the leg from the thigh or second joint. The side-bone is removed by cutting down from above as shown at d d. The wing gives one good cut, that nearest the body. If one side of the turkey is not sufficient, the other may be carved in the same manner as described. A keen blade is indispensible on this occasion.

Struck the Wrong Man.

Landlady—How is the turkey, sir? Or perhaps you are not a good judge.

New Boarder—I ought to be, madam; I am in the leather business.

Reckoning the Cost.

In 1792 The Norwich (Conn.) Weekly Register calculated the cost of Thanksgiving in Rhode Island and Massachusetts to be:

85,694 mugs of flip,	Extra.
40,000 plum puddings,
85,694 turkeys or geese,
128,541 chicken pies,
514,164 minced pies,
514,164 apple pies,
257,082 rice or potato pies,
514,164 tarts,
1,028,328 pumpkin pies,

besides wine, nuts and apples.

Success of the Carbons.

Mr. John Binden, representing the Brooks Manufacturing Company, has just returned from a five weeks tour of Canada in the interests of the carbons made by the firm. He reports that everywhere the tests were most satisfactory and he took large numbers of orders. This will be gratifying intelligence to the people of Peterborough, who will hope that this young industry may continue to thrive.

Soldiers of the Army.

The Salvation Army celebrated Thanksgiving Day by a special jubilee at the barracks.

Next Sunday and Monday there will be anti-lethargic meetings at the barracks, and on Monday night there will be a grand gathering of officers from all over division. The meetings will be led by Major Spooner, assisted by the Ensign and Scribe.

To Begin Building at Once.

Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., this morning received instructions from Mr. Kreasi, manager of the Edison Company's works, to proceed at once with the work of construction of their buildings here. Mr. Belcher is retained as their architect, and an engineer will arrive in a few days to superintend the work. The Edison Company apparently mean business. A large quantity of the stone required for the foundations is on the ground, and seven car loads of joisting and lumber are waiting the completion of the new siding for transfer to the premises. A staff of men will be at work on the foundations in a few days.

There Will be no Action.

Building Inspector Pope had a consultation with the police magistrate this morning with reference to laying an information against the market clerk for a breach of the fire by-law. Mr. Dumble advised no action. He was of opinion that there had been no breach of the spirit of the law, and the Inspector would not be guilty of neglect in overlooking this case. The addition to the market scales was a necessary one, it was isolated and could not endanger other property, and, besides, it was only a temporary erection until spring. If an action was instituted it would fall back upon the town, and the by-law would become a burlesque. For these reasons he thought it better to take no notice of the matter. Inspector Pope accepted his advice.

A Thrilling Drama.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat says:—"The Standard was crowded last evening, the occasion being the first production here of The Dear Irish Boy. The play is a characteristic Irish one. All kinds of villainy is planned and carried out in the brief space of three hours. Murders are committed, ghosts appear, and in short nothing is left undone to put as much excitement as possible into the production. There is little in the story that might be termed original. A man falsely accused of murder forms the leading theme and the villains revel in gore and downright cussedness until everything is cleared up in the end when Mike McClatchey, the leading villain, dies. It is probably enough to say, without entering into particulars, that the company is a good one and in fact above the average of companies of that nature. There are specialties introduced to vary the monotony of killing and love making and the audience just went wild with enthusiasm. The villains were hissed, the heroes and heroines applauded and all were called before the curtain. Dear Irish Boy will be played all the week."

The Annual Inspection.

The 57th Battalion, Peterborough Rangers, on Parade—Lt.-Col. Rogers' Narrow Escape—Sergt.-Major Rundle has Resigned.

Thanksgiving Day in Peterborough is regularly marked by the annual inspection of troops, and once a year the Rangers undergo a critical examination by the Deputy Adjutant General of this district. On Thursday the inspection took place on Riverside Park. The battalion had almost full strength, and that the redcoats acquitted themselves creditably is manifest from the uniform praise received from the inspecting officers, Col. Straubenzie, D.A.G., and Major Lewis.

The volunteers and the band made a fine appearance, and their movements were watched by several hundred civilians. Peterborough is proud of her home guard of citizen soldiers. Their parades always attract crowds of spectators.

The regiment appeared on parade as follows:—

PARADE STRENGTH.

FIELD OFFICERS.—Lt.-Col. J. Z. Rogers in command; Majors Bell and Edwards.

STAFF OFFICERS.—Capt. Adjutant Dennistoun, Surgeon Halliday, Paymaster Major Howard, Quartermaster Forbes.

Four Staff-Sergeants.

Band, 22 pieces.

"A" Co.—Lt. Hamilton (40th) in command; 2nd Lieut. W. Hamilton, 34 non-coms and men.

"B" Co.—Lieut. Schofield in command, 39 non-coms and men.

"C" Co.—Capt. Hill, Lieut. Stevenson, 39 non-coms and men.

Color Party.—Lieuts. Haultain and Hayes in command.

"D" Co.—Capt. Lee in command; 39 non-coms and men.

"E" Co.—Lieut. Matthews in command; 39 non-coms and men.

"F" Co.—Capt. Brennan in command, Lieut. Loch; 38 non-coms and men.

Total strength of regiment on parade, 266.

The roll showed over strength. There were a number of officers and men absent by leave. Captains Langford and Miller were on the field, the former in undress uniform. Capt. Miller was on the sick list.

INSPECTED BY THE D.A.G.

Whilst waiting the arrival of the D.A.G. the battalion was put through a number of movements. Col. Straubenzie and Major Lewis made a critical inspection of the dress and arms of the men, and they expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the neat, bright, soldier-like appearance of the regiment as a whole. Each company received a word of praise from the inspecting officer, and it would be invidious to particularize one company when all did so well.

In the march past the men were steady and won the encomiums of their superior officers.

The regiment was drilled in a number of movements by Col. Rogers, Majors Bell and Edwards, and Capt. Brennan, after which a return was made to the shed, where after the roll call the men were dismissed.

THROWN FROM HIS HORSE.

An accident occurred to Lieut.-Col. Rogers on the homeward march which he was fortunate in escaping from so easily. His horse had been very restless during the parade, and on Hunter street it plunged so viciously that Lieut.-Col. Rogers, though a good horseman, was thrown from the saddle into the muddy street. As he fell he succeeded in loosing his foot from the stirrup, and the horse ran on. Col. Rogers' handsome uniform was much soiled, his sword bent, and his trousers torn by the horse's feet in its plunging about. His arm was also wrenched and hurt. He, however, continued the march on foot to the drill shed.

SERGT.-MAJOR RUNDLE RESIGNS.

Sergt.-Major Rundle made his last appearance with the 57th at the inspection. For reasons of a private nature he has resigned his office, and also his position of care taker of the drill shed. The Sergt.-Major was an enthusiastic and competent drill instructor, and was well liked by the men. The regiment will miss his services.

The Battle of the Banquet.

Gallant Charge of the 57th and their Allies upon the Snowden House Larder—The Officers of the 57th Entertain Lieut.-Col. Straubenzie at a Complimentary Dinner—Toasts, Speeches, Songs, Etc.

The complimentary dinner to Lieut.-Col. Straubenzie and staff by the officers of the 57th Battalion, was given at the Snowden House last evening, and it was a very pleasant and successful affair. There were about fifty officers and guests present, who highly enjoyed the well served spread made by mine host Snowden. At the centre of the long table sat Col. J. Z. Rogers, having on his right Lieut.-Col. Straubenzie, the guest of the evening, R. Z. Rogers, Lieut.-Col. 40th Battalion, Cobourg, Col. Poole, formerly commanding officer of the 57th Battalion; and on the left, Lieut.-Col Lewis, Brigade Major Brockville, and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P.

Capt (Adjutant) Dennistoun occupied the chair and acted as toast master, while the vice-chair was occupied by Lieut. Schofield, No. 2 Company.

The toasts were given and heartily drunk in the following order:—

"The Queen," was drunk with the exemplary enthusiasm that Canadian soldiers are able to infuse either at their banquets or on the battle field.

The next toast was a combination one including the Governor-General, the Lieut.-Governor, the House of Commons and the Local Legislature, coupled with the name of Mr. J. R STRATTON, M.P.P., who responded. In the course of his remarks he paid a well deserved compliment to the smart and soldierly appearance of the 57th on parade during the day. He felt sure that the commanding officer was, as he had good reason to be, proud of the men and their officers, of the band, of his staff and of the battalion altogether. He hoped that the officers and men of the battalion would give the sitting member for the Commons no peace till he induced the government to erect a suitable drill shed and armory here. Then they would be securing a well deserved boon for the volunteers, whose benefits could not be fully appreciated till they were enjoying them.

Letters and messages of regret were read from Capt. Mason, No. 1 Company, Montreal; Jas. Stevenson, M.P., and Dr. O'Gorman, of Cobourg.

The next toast, proposed by Major Edwards, was "The District Staff." In doing so he said that inspection day used to be a day of dread but since the guest of the evening had assumed his present duties things had taken so great a change that now the day was one of pleasure. The toast was of course heartily drank. Lt.-Col. Straubenzie, in replying, referred to the vastly improved condition of the 57th. He never saw them look so well nor turn out so creditably on parade as that day. Officers and men were cleanly and properly equipped. He hoped the very necessary and almost indispensable building, an armoury, would be secured, and he hoped the citizens would unite in securing this great need. Other places had armouries erected by the joint efforts of the citizens and Government. He had been in the Northwest where some of the members of the 57th figured in the Riel uprising, and he could bear testimony to their bravery and their devotion to their duty.

Col. LEWIS also referred in complimentary terms to the guests of the evening and also to the efficiency of the battalion.

"Our Guests" brought to his feet Col. Poole, formerly commander of the "Rangers." He felt quite at home, and without boasting, he said he might lay claim to being the father of the 57th Battalion, and to being, with a single exception, the oldest volunteer in Peterborough, and he was very proud of his offspring, the Rangers.

Lieut.-Col. R. Z ROGERS, who made the speech of the evening, after expressing his pleasure at being present, as a guest of the Peterborough Rangers, referred in very flattering terms to the highly creditable appearance made by the Rangers in Toronto last summer. He was proud of the fine representation that our district made at that time. He pointed out that No. 2 military district had many advantages over this district (No. 3). It had the military school, and the benefit of the example of the permanent corps, and of their help in military demonstrations, therefore, a higher proficiency might be expected. He was glad to be able to state in the presence of the Deputy Adjutant General, that the currently opinion expressed in Toronto on the occasion referred to was not at all unfavorable to the regiments from the Third Military District. In reference to assistance acknowledged from an officer of his (the speaker's) regiment, he said he and his fellow officers would always be glad to be able to contribute to the mutual good feeling that always existed between the Northumberland and Peterborough battalions. Speaking of friendly intercourse, Col. Rogers thought we had had a true case of reciprocity of surgeon. When Dr. O'Gorman removed into his limits he was glad to be able to offer him the same position in the 40th that he had held in the 57th, and he now noticed with satisfaction that his old friend and neighbor, Dr. Halliday, had been duly appointed to look after the health and repair the bodily injuries of the 57th—an appointment which he was sure could not be improved on. He was glad to have witnessed the parade and inspection of the Rangers that day. It would not be proper in the presence of the district staff officers to express an opinion but he felt sure that what Lt.-Col. Straubenzie had said on the subject had been very gratifying and complimentary. He was inclined to feel jealous that more attention was paid to one battalion than another, but he supposed it ought to be regarded as a compliment to the rural battalions, that while "city" battalions had to have a drill every year, the others only needed a drill once in three years. While he felt that his force was placed at a great disadvantage, he gave the 57th his best wished for success, and advised it to make the most of its opportunities, and hoped it would always be able to turn out as tidy and smart a regiment as he had had the pleasure of seeing that day.

Capt. Winslow, of the 40th, Millbrook, thought the 57th Rangers was one of the best city corps in the Province. He hoped they would continue to improve.

"The Baby of the Regiment," Surgeon Halliday, was heartily drunk. In response he said he felt it a high honor to be surgeon of a creditable battalion like the 57th.

"The 57th Staff" brought responses from several. Col. Rogers was proud of his battalion and hoped they would improve in the future as in the past. They had made a very creditable and large turn-out that day. He hoped the 57th would always be to the front.

Major BELL was also much pleased with the complimentary remarks passed upon the battalion. He hoped they would continue to remain the crack regiment of the district. He also agreed with the plan of campaign that would give the sitting member no peace till an armoury was secured. The battalion was modest in its demands, and he could not see why the town, in imitation of Brantford and Belleville, could not contribute $10 000 toward the construction of a suitable headquarters for the 57th Battalion.

Major (Paymaster) HOWARD, Hastings, spoke in high terms of the creditable and exceedingly soldierly appearance and set-up shown by the battalion on the day of inspection.

Capt. LEE and Lieutenant FORBES also returned thanks for the pleasant truths that had been spoken respecting the 57th.

The "Town Council" was replied to by Capt. LANGFORD, who referred to the efforts put forth by that much-abused body to benefit the community.

"The Ladies" received delicate attention from Lieut. STEVENSON, and "The Press" was replied to by Mr. STRATTON.

During the course of the evening songs suitable to the occasion were given by Capt. Dennistoun, Lt.-Col. Lewis, Lieut. Hayes, Lt.-Col. R Z Rogers, Capt. Hamilton, Lieut. Loch, Lieut. Schofield, and recitations were given by Major Edwards, and Capt. W. J. Millar, 40th Battalion.

The Hand-Bill Case Dismissed.

Judgment Delivered by Police Magistrate Dumble.

At the police court this morning Mr. Dumble gave judgment in the hand bill cases, dismissing the complaint for the following reasons:

The informations herein charge that certain boys and merchants violated By-law No. 129 of the town of Peterborough.

This by-law provides that "no person shall scatter about or throw or cause to be thrown on any street in said town any dodger, hand-bill, advertisement or other paper, and no person shall deposit on any sidewalk or street in said town any sweeping or other refuse or rubbish from any shop or building."

The evidence discloses that the merchants employed the boys to give to people arriving by the trains small hand-bills or dodgers, setting forth the merits and cheapness of their wares. The boys handed them to the passers, put them in their pockets or baskets. It was shown that some people threw their papers on the ground after, and sometimes before reading them, and that the boys tried to collect the fallen papers. Of course the merchants do not desire their dodgers to be wasted by being thrown on the road, and there is no evidence that the boys threw them on the road. Are they then liable because, as as a fact, many of them find their way to the street? I think not

The bylaw in question is a good one, and intended to keep the streets clear of rubbish, and especially of such papers as in a wind are apt to frighten horses; but as the bylaw imposes a penalty for its infringement, I must be satisfied that there was either a deliberate infringement or that an infringement inevitably resulted from the act of the parties complained of. I don't know what the parties to whom the papers are given are expected to do with them. I presume they are not compelled to preserve them and many of them reach the street, but as that is not the intention or inevitable result of following the instructions or of the acts proved, I cannot find the parties complained of guilty.

The complaints are discharged without costs.

They Praised Him in Song.

A Successful Thanksgiving Day Concert in the George Street Methodist Church.

One of the most pleasing and successful sacred concerts ever held in Peterborough was that given in the George street church Thursday night. That the audience was satisfied and delighted with the programme presented was testified by their liberal applause and frequent encores. Mr. Seward has much to congratulate himself upon having prepared such an excellent musical treat of entertaining variety and splendid execution as that which he had the pleasure of offering the public Thursday evening.

The opening number was an instrumental selection by the Y.M.C.A. band and the organ. Then the church choir of forty voices sang the full anthem, "The Lord is Great," after which a trio in which ten ladies took part was rendered. They sang "Come to the Woods." The singers were Mrs. Seward, Miss Glass, Miss Shortly and Miss Lumsden, soprano; Miss Coe, Miss Cochrane, Miss Sperry, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. McFarlane and Miss Smart, contralto. A brilliantly executed organ solo by Dr. Davies, the talented organist of St. John's church, followed, and the choir gave another anthem, "I Will be Glad," with solo and chorus, the solo being splendidly taken by Mrs. Seward, though she was suffering from fatigue and indisposition. The first encore of the evening was tendered Mrs. W. Daly, whose sweet singing of "Consolation" won the hearts of the auditors.

Part two was opened by another organ solo by Dr. Davies, which was heartily encored. The selection played was a classical overture. The motif of the overture was splendidly worked out and the gradations of light and shade, soft and forte, were admirable; the orchestration was also very striking and perfect in its imitative features. After this number came an anthem by the choir, "Oh, be Joyful in the Lord." A beautiful duet, "Rock of Ages," was sung by Mrs. Seward and Mr. W. H. Manning, which won deserved praise. The "Pilgrim Chorus" was enthusiastically encored, particularly for the male baritone chorus, in which Mr. Seward takes a special pride. The choir of the George street church has an unusually strong showing of male voices. In the closing number, "Good Night, Farewell," by the choir, solos were taken by Mrs. Seward and Mr. Manning.

Mr. Seward has by his skill and industry brought the choir of the George Street Church up to a high pitch of excellence. The voices are well trained, the parts nicely balanced, and the attack strong. The choir also boasts of some good soloists. Best of all, though, is the masterly handling of the organ and the first-class training ability which Mr. Seward brings to bear. It is almost entirely owing to his indefatigable efforts and pronounced musical talents that the choir of the George Street Church is winning a local reputation for itself. The concert Thursday evening amply demonstrated its capabilities.

After the concert the members of the choir were entertained at luncheon in the school room, a most pleasant conclusion to a Thanksgiving Day entertainment.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Mr. Seward and the choir wish to thank all those who kindly assisted in promoting the success of the concert:

To Dr. Davies, who rendered two admirably played organ solos.

To the Y.M.C.A. band, for their valued assistance in presenting a very acceptable selection. Their proficiency does great credit to Mr. Miller's instruction.

To those ladies and gentlemen who so kindly furnished refreshments after the concert.

A Doctor's Confession.

He Doesn't Take Much Medicine and Advises the Reporter Not To.

"Humbug? Of course it is. The so-called science of medicine is a humbug and has been from the time of Hippocrates to the present. Why the biggest crank in the Indian tribes is the medicine man."

"Very frank was the admission, especially so when it came from one of the biggest young physicians of the city, one whose practice is among the thousands, though he has been graduated but a few years," says the Buffalo Courier. "Very cozy was his office too, with its cheerful grate fire, its Queen Anns, and its many lounges and easy easy chairs. He stirred the fire lazily, seated a fresh cigar, and went on."

"Take the prescriptions laid down in the books, and what do you find? Poisons mainly, and nauseating stuff, that would make a healthy man an invalid. Why in the world science should go to poisons for its remedies I cannot tell, nor can I find anyone who can."

How does the doctor know the effect of his medicine? "he asked. "He calls, prescribes, and goes away. The only way to judge would be to stand over the bed and watch the patient. This cannot be done. So, really, I don't know how he is to tell what good or hurt he does. Sometime ago, you remember, the Boston Globe sent out a reporter with a stated set of symptoms. He went to eleven prominent physicians, and brought back eleven different prescriptions. This just shows how much science there is in medicine."

There are local diseases of various characters for which nature provides positive remedies. They may not be included in the regular physician's list, perhaps, because of their simplicity, but the evidence of their curative powers is beyond dispute. Kidney disease is cured by Warner's Safe Cure, a strictly herbal remedy. Thousands of persons every year, write as does H. J. Gardiner, of Pontiac, R. I., August 7, 1890:

"A few years ago I suffered more than probably ever will be known outside of myself, with kidney and liver complaint. It is the old story—I visited doctor after doctor, but to no avail. I was at Newport and Dr. Blackman recommended Warner's Safe Cure. I commenced the use of it and found relief immediately. Altogether I took three bottles, and I truthfully state that it cured me."

The Orangemen of Nassau and Peterborough Perpetuate the Memory of the Gunpowder Plot.

Wednesday, the 5th of November, was Guy Fawkes day among the Orangemen, and in both town and country these sturdy adherents to Protestantism celebrated the anniversary of the discovery of the famous Gunpowder Plot, an incident which is familiar to all who have read the history of England.

At Nassau the effigy of Guy Fawkes was burned at the close of a concert which was held in the Orange hall. The entertainment drew a crowded house, a large number of the audience being from Peterborough. Mr. Alex. Hamilton, County Master, occupied the chair. The following programme was rendered:

Song	Mr. W. R. Greatrex
Recitation	Mr. Jno. Nugent

I Deny the Charge

That the reason I am selling property of all kinds so much cheaper than other dealers, is because I am selling strictly for cash. How absurd. The facts are that I can arrange terms to suit any reasonable buyer, but here is where and how the joke comes in. I have been actively engaged in buying, selling, renting and exchanging properties in and about this town during the past six years, in this way I have acquired such a thorough knowledge of values that it is useless for owners to try ao get me to sell their properties for a third or for a dollar more than they are worth. I positively refuse to take properties for sale unless at or under value. Inexperienced dealers cannot know the values and therefore cannot discriminate, also having only a few properties for sale they are glad to get more at any price. Those who want to sell quickly and those who want to buy cheaply, should pay no attention to what jealous opponents and interested parties may say. I can and I will serve you to your advantage.

A GERMAN WRECK.

AN EXPRESS COLLIDES WITH A GUN POWDER TRAIN.

Many People Injured — The Explosion Heard for Miles—Balfour in Donegal —Return of the Exiles—General Foreign News.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—A passenger train and a train loaded with gunpowder collided near Beckum to-day. The explosion that followed was heard for miles around. The two engineers and several passengers were injured, but no one is reported killed.

Terrible Explosion.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 7.—A terrible accident has occurred at Tai-Ping-Fu, at which place are situated the government mills for the manufacture of powder. While the workmen were employed about the mills an explosion occurred which entirely demolished the building. The loss of life was enormous, 300 persons being killed. The cause of the explosion is not known.

RETURN OF THE EXILES.

They Reclaim their Holdings and Require Police Protection.

DUBLIN, Nov. 7.—No little excitement was occasioned in Tipperary yesterday by reports that a number of evicted tenants had secretly reclaimed their holdings, but were afraid to return to take possession of them.

Suspicion having fallen on Michael O'Connor, a foreman mechanic employed on some buildings in New Tipperary, a crowd gathered opposite his house and began assailing him with opprobrious epithets. A force of armed police however, arriving, the mob was dispersed and a guard placed around the house. This morning O'Connor went openly to the office of the estate and obtained the key of his old house.

The agent having supplied him with men and carts, O'Connor soon had his effects removed to old Tipperary, under the protection of a large escort of police. Constables are now stationed at the front and rear of the building.

Mr Balfour in Donegal.

DUNGLOE, Nov. 7.—Mr. Balfour completed the third stage of his Donegal tour yesterday amid a blinding and continuous downpour of rain. The most noteworthy incident of the day occurred at Dunglow, where, after being greeted at by torchlight, Mr. Balfour received a deputation. While Mr Balfour was addressing the deputation Mr McNeil, M.P., appeared and began to address the people on the terrible hardships of Balfour's rule and on evictions and other matters. Mr. Balfour, replying, expressed surprise at the intrusion of such matters on this occasion. He reminded the people of the success of his tour, and said he would repeat what he had already done if necessary. He appealed to all having the interest of their country at heart to say whether the Government projects were not calculated to benefit Ireland more than all the speeches ever made. At the conclusion of Balfour's remarks a man named Sweeney disclaimed Commoner McNeil's authority to speak for the district.

In a letter published to-day McNeil challenges Balfour to dilate in his utterance before Donegal audiences on the use of the battering ram in accomplishing evictions, as he boasted in Parliament he was willing to do.

Unionists and Nationalists to Combat.

Mr. Balfour left Gweedore at six this morning and arrived at Letterkenny at 10. He had a long interview with the Catholic bishop and received deputations of prominent citizens asking for railway extensions. Mr. Balfour in a speech declared that the present Government's period of office would be looked back upon as an era of efficient public works in the poor districts of Ireland. On arriving at Omagh he received an address from the inhabitants. Here a number of Nationalists cheered for Gladstone and O'Brien and were attacked by the Unionists present. A scrimmage ensued, the Unionists, who were in greater numbers, finally suppressing the Nationalists. When the row was over Mr Balfour thanked the people heartily for their reception. From Omagh Mr. Balfour went to Portadown, where he met with an ovation. In a speech to the people he promised at some time in the future to speak to them on politics. In the meantime he thanked them from the bottom of his heart, knowing that no matter what party had misjudged his work the people of Portadown had not.

At Dungannon Mr. Balfour was received in a very cordial way by many of the people. There was a great crowd to meet him.

STANLEY'S AWFUL CHARGE.

Did Jamieson Have a Native Killed to Secure a Sketch.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Mr. Barttelot says that Stanley's account of his brother's death is completely at variance with Jamieson's account and Sorgas' confession. Lieut. W. Boeut, one of the officers who tried Sorga, says Stanley's assertion that an English jury would have acquitted him seems an impeachment of the court martial's fairness. Sorga's only defence was that he was about to strike his wife, and the Manyemas penalty for murder is merely pecuniary. Sorga pleaded no further provocation. Bonny did not appear until after the scene, and if Stanley depends on the account of the Manyemas he must remember that they were relatives of the murderer. In justifying his brother's severity as necessary under the circumstances, and only the same as that to which Stanley was accustomed to resort, Mr. Barttelot declares that Stanley only raised the question in order to throw dust in the eyes of the public and that he is quite ready to meet him in a court of law and divulge everything. He also declares that it has been clearly proved that his brother met his death while carrying out Stanley's instructions to the letter. Mr. Barttelot says that although the rear column was composed of feeble and sick men and the worst characters and it was in a miserable condition through famine and inactivity the mortality was less than in Stanley's column. Barttelot says the offence punished with 800 lashes was desertion, not theft, and that Noudis' death occurred long after Major Barttelot's. He quotes from "Darkest Africa" Stanley's inquiries of natives who disproved charges of cruelty and distinctly stated that the mortality was only due to bad and insufficient food. Barttelot was absent from June 24 to July 17 and was killed July 19; therefore, he could not have been responsible for the demoralization of the camp. Nothing could have been worse than Stanley leaving Nelson and party 28 days without food, which action resulted in the death of 47 of them.

Stanley Speaks Yet Again.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Times prints a three-column signed statement which Stanley dictated to its New York correspondent. Stanley accuses Major Barttelot of persistent and vindictive cruelty to the people under his command which directly led to his death. Stanley says he himself would have acquitted the murderer. He adds that Barttelot expressed the wildest and most unfounded suspicions which extended to the belief that Stanley would not hesitate to poison Barttelot that had formed a design to abandon the expedition and carry out his own projects with the connivance of Jamieson and Tippo Tib. Stanley accuses Jamieson of having purchased a girl for the sole purpose of having her murdered by Sorga.

GEN. LAURIE'S SPEECH.

He Causes Some Excitement at an Imperial Federation Meeting.

(N Y Herald Cable.)

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Imperial Federation League, which aims at the closer alliance of the colonies to the Mother Country, held a meeting in this city to-day. The object of the gathering was to consider how Canada could be more closely federated to England. Recent utterances of prominent Canadians in the McKinley tariff afforded a good reason for calling the meeting.

Sir John Lubbock and Sir Robert Fowler opened the proceedings with speeches, in which "the wise and patriotic utterances of Canadian statesmen" on the subject were loudly praised.

General Laurie, a member of the Canadian Parliament, next addressed the leaguers. His speech caused much astonishment to the meeting. He began by hoping that his hearers would not think that the McKinley tariff was conceived in a hostile spirit either to England or Canada. The Americans had only done what it should be the object of the Imperial Federation League to do—to trade preferentially with their own people. If English statesmen were wise they too would see that the only way to build up a united empire was by united trade methods. They must not talk of Canada as a colony. That was a term long past. Cana in was a country—a dominion of itself—and could not be held in leading strings any longer. It was an allied state and not longer a dependency.

Here the murmurs of surprise grew so loud that the General turned to the chairman and said: "I didn't come here to say what I thought would be pleasant to you, but to give you an idea of what the opinions are in Canada on this matter.

"As to an Imperial Federation," he went on, "there are great difficulties in the way. Any proposal of a schome must come from Canada and not from the Mother Country; otherwise it would be said that England is trying to force matters. But they must remember that it would be utterly impossible to govern Canada from this side of the water. United trade methods and the power to deal with England preferentially was the real method of federation."

General Laurie sat down amid a murmur which was the mere courtesy of applause, and the meeting carried a resolution urging that communications be opened with the people in Canada with the view of finding out what could be done.

The chairman said that, if for federation's sake it should be needful to sacrifice free trade principles to a certain extent, the sacrifice was worth making.

LETTERS FROM THE DEAD.

LOSS OF A FOREIGN BARK OFF THE LONDON COAST.

A Swedish Vessel Sinks with All Hands—Large Quantity of Wreckage Washed Ashore—A Box of Treasure from the Deep

SOUTHERSIDE, P.E.I., Nov. 7.—A pilot picked up at Fish Island several envelopes bearing Swedish postmarks and addressed to parties on the bark Falka, Capt. F Pandin. Numerous letters similarly addressed, a gold-headed cane, a box containing a small amount of money and considerable other wreckage have also been picked up along the New London shore. It is rumored that during one of the late severe storms parties in the neighborhood of Tignish saw a large bark in distress off the shore at that place. While they were watching her a thick rainsquall hid her from view, and when it cleared away the vessel had disappeared and was not seen again. Everything points to the loss of a large foreign bark with all hands on board. Where she was from, where bound to and who were on board are yet matters for conjecture only.

A Viscount Drowned.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A heavy storm prevailed throughout Great Britain and Ireland to-day, and much damage has been done. The rain is falling incessantly and in many sections the country is flooded.

Viscount Cantelupe, a nephew of Baron Sackville, climbed into the rigging of a steamer and cheered the men who were going to their rescue for a while, but the cold was so bitter that he became benumbed and was swept overboard and drowned.

The British bark Elizabeth Roy has been wrecked on Tory Island. Six of the persons aboard of her were drowned.

Quarantining American Cattle

DUFFIELD, Nov. 7.—In a speech this evening Mr. Chaplin, President of the Board of Agriculture, said he regretted that it was necessary to restrict the importation of cattle from infected countries, but the general result would be that more cattle would be reared at home. The McKinley law, he said, would certainly not make England less obdurate against the importation of American cattle.

The Orders Came From Headquarters.

ROME, Nov. 7.—The recent pastoral letter of the Irish bishops, condemning boycotting and the Plan of Campaign, was issued in compliance with peremptory orders from the Pope himself, who desired proof of the absolute submission of the Irish episcopate to the decisions of the Curia. This is practically a contradiction of the report that the Irish bishops are determined to support the league

Avenged An Insult to His Mother.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The duel between Maurice Bernhardt, son of Sarah Bernhardt, and M Mourney, the dramatic critic, who was challenged by the former in consequence of his comments upon Madame Bernhardt's performance in "Cleopatra," was fought to-day, and resulted in Mourney being slightly wounded in the arm.

The Puke and the Dean.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—The Kreuz Zeitung announces the acceptance of Dr. Stoecker's resignation as court chaplain and dean of the cathedral. The Freisinnige Zeitung says Stoecker was dismissed in consequence of a complaint made against him by the Grand Duke of Baden.

BIRCHALL MUST HANG.

THE GOVERNMENT DECLINES TO INTERFERE.

Affecting Interview Between the Doomed Man and His Wife—Locked in Each Other's Arms—Birchall Quotes Poetry and Smokes Cigars.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Your correspondent learns that the Cabinet Council has decided, after due consideration, that Birchall will be executed on Nov. 14. This is official. The cabinet was unanimous in its opinion as to the guilt of Birchall, and consequently decided that the law should take its course. The Governor-General will sign the order-in-council to-day. The State Department will notify the sheriff of Oxford by mail.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 7.—This has been an eventful day here, and to-night every one is discussing the judicial tragedy to be enacted one week hence. Birchall did not break down on receipt of the news from Ottawa, yet he showed signs of great emotion as the last ray of hope vanished. The first to communicate the news to the prisoner was Mrs. Birchall. She called at the jail and kissing him through the bars handed him this message:

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.

To DONALD MACMURCHY, barrister:

Governor-General-in-council has been pleased to order that the law be allowed to take its course in re Birchall. (Signed) ROBERT SEDGEWICK.

How Birchall Received the News.

The doomed man was visibly affected, and with tears running down his cheeks he sighed: "Then I suppose I must go."

The faithful wife then bade him good-bye until evening, and brushing tears from her eyes left the jail. She went through this terrible ordeal with wonderful nerve, but when she reached the hotel what had appeared at first to be a dream vanished and the stern realities of the situation drove her into hysterics.

Several friends called to offer what consolation lay in their power to lessen the awful blow.

Birchall, however, soon brightened up, and as he stood gazing at the shadow of night gathering about the jail was heard to quote Dickens' well-known words:

Away with melancholy,
In doleful changes ring
On life and human folly,
But merrily, merrily sing tra-la.

Then he lighted a fresh cigar and chatted with his death-watch like a man who had been reprieved rather than one who had but six short days to live. An hour after one of the officials stated to your correspondent that Birchall appeared to be anxious for the fatal day.

An Affecting Interview.

At 8 o'clock to-night his wife called again and was allowed by the Attorney-General a long interview with her husband touching family matters. Birchall claims he will fall heir to considerable property in the prime and desires to will it to his faithful wife before he dies. The meeting of husband and wife in the cell was very affecting.

"There, Rex, I have done all"—and before she finished the sentence they were clasped in each other's arms crying aloud. The doors were closed and the two were permitted a private chat lasting until nearly midnight.

Mrs. West-Jones evinced no surprise at the receipt of the news from Ottawa.

"NOT MUCH."

Judge Galt Will Not Allow the Condemned Cell to be Entered by Lawyers.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Before Chief Justice Galt in Chambers at Osgoode Hall yesterday Mr. Hilton appealed against the Master in Chambers' ruling of Wednesday, refusing to allow Rex. Birchall to be examined. Mr. Hilton urged that all he wanted to ask Birchall was whether or not he told The Globe newspaper that it published about G. H. Graeme being an accomplice of his in the murder of Benwell. Judge Galt in the first place said he would not make the order. In the first place Birchall would be perfectly justified in saying: "I won't answer," secondly—

Mr. Hilton: But Birchall has expressed his willingness to testify.

Galt J.: "But the unfortunate wretch is going to be hanged a week from to-day, and I will not be a party to allowing the condemned cell to be entered by attorneys and a reporter. Not much."

Mr. Hilton: "I cannot see how it will injure the case."

Judge Galt: "Well, I do."

The order was refused, and Birchall will go to the gallows without giving his testimony in Graeme v. Globe.

A Peculiar Case.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—At the Police Court yesterday J. J. Wesley Simpson was charged with—(1) the larceny of a post letter addressed to "A. Wilfred Hall, Ph.D., LL.D., 60 Adelaide-street east;" (2) stealing a sum of money from a post letter; (3) unlawfully opening and detaining a post letter. The circumstances of the case are briefly these: Some time ago Mr. Simpson was appointed Canadian agent for a medical work published by Dr. Hall, called "Dr. Hall's Revolution."

The buyer has to sign a pledge of honor that he will not reveal the "Revolution" to any one outside his own family. The New York order affair thought orders were not coming in from Canada fast enough, and started to investigate the cause. They found that Mr. Simpson had issued a Canadian edition of the work and was selling it on his own account. Mr. Nesbitt of Osler, McCarthy & Co. was consulted, and the arrest of Mr. Simpson resulted from his instructions to send a decoy letter to Mr. Simpson's address. The Magistrate said he didn't care to take the responsibility of giving a decision in the case. He would, therefore, send it to a higher court. Defendant was released on his own bail, $400, to appear for trial.

The Postoffice Inspector Falls Dead in His House.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Mr. Thomas P. French, postoffice inspector, died suddenly at his house, 265 Theodore-street, this afternoon at 2½. Mr. French, who had been in his usual health, had just returned home to dinner and had divested himself of his outer coat and hat, when, without any warning, he dropped dead. The cause of his death was heart disease.

Mr. French was 65 years of age, and was appointed postoffice inspector about 17 years ago. Previous to this he was engaged for some years with the census for the Dominion.

The Winter of Their Discontent.

ALLISTON, Nov. 7.—A man giving his name as Winter hailing from Niagara went to the house of Mr. Sherwell of Oro, and represented himself as an Englishman wanting to buy a farm. He was entertained by Sherwell's family and given the spare room. He repaid the hospitality accorded to him by stealing $50 and decamping with the booty.

An Heir in Prison

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—"Dr. G. B. Biglow, [illegible] term in the penitentiary here for [illegible] and $40,000 left him by his first [illegible] same time.

Caprivi Cordially Welcomed.

ROME, Nov. 7.—General von Caprivi, the German Chancellor, arrived at Milan to-day. Signor Crispi, the Italian Prime Minister, met him at the station and the two exchanged hearty greetings. They then drove to a hotel and held a conference. The papers cordially welcome Gen. von Caprivi to Italy. The Lombardia says Italian opinion favors cementing the bonds of affection and common interests which unite Germany and Italy and also favors the promotion of peace.

Katie's Imaginary Wrongs.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Kate Riordan has been arrested charged with shooting Dr. Bright yesterday. It is supposed she was incensed at the prospect of Dr. Bright's daughter marrying a man named Maines, who, she alleges, was formerly engaged to herself. Mr. Maines asserts that he was never engaged to Kate Riordan, and that she is laboring under an insane delusion.

Personal Liberty vs. Physical Slavery.

We are all free American citizens, enjoying our personal liberty; but most of us are in physical slavery, suffering from scrofula, salt rheum or some other form of impure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the great blood purifier which dissolves the bonds of disease, gives health and perfect physical liberty.

HELD UP IN ROBBERS CUT

TRAIN ROBBERS WRECK A TRAIN NEAR SEDALIA, MISSOURI.

The Engineer Probably Fatally Injured —Four Postal Clerks Also Receive Severe Wounds—The Smoking Car Turned Upside Down and Smashed.

SEDALIA, Mo., Nov. 7.—Train No. 3 west bound on the Missouri Pacific Railway was wrecked by train robbers three miles east of Otterville, near the notorious Robbers' Cut, at 2¾ this morning. The train consisted of seven coaches, including mail express and baggage cars. The robbers had removed the spikes, bolts and fish plates for a distance of three rail lengths and placed crowbars under the rails so that they would spread. When the engine touched the loosened rails it jumped the track, broke loose from the tender and ran 50 feet on the ties and turned over. Fireman Lyons jumped and escaped injury. Engineer Boyd stuck to his post and received severe injuries. The tender turned across the track throwing part of the mail car 30 feet on the side of the track. There were four postal clerks in the car and all were slightly hurt. The baggage and express cars were wrecked. The smoker, which was filled with passengers, was turned upside down and the car was badly smashed, but none of the occupants were seriously hurt. The two chair cars jumped the track but did not turn over. The Pullman was the only coach to remain on the track. The engineer had stopped the train a short distance from the wreck to make repairs on his engine and the train was moving at the rate of only about 18 miles an hour when the engine struck the loosened rails, to which fact is no doubt due the marvelous escape of the passengers and train.

FOUL OF THE TRACK.

An Express Collides With a Freight Engine at Bronte—Two of the Trainmen Slightly Injured.

BRONTE, Nov. 7.—The 7 p.m. express from Hamilton for Toronto when passing Bronte to-night ran into the side of an east-bound freight train, which was standing partly foul of the main line, throwing the express engine into the ditch, damaging the baggage cars on passenger train and doing considerable damage to several cars on the freight train. No passengers were injured. The driver and fireman, both Hamilton men, were slightly injured.

A wrecking train was sent out from Toronto and also a relief train at 9.10, and the passengers were brought to the city at 12½. None of them were injured beyond a shaking up.

A Sleeper Over a Trestle.

DELUTH, Minn., Nov. 7.—The sleeper Sarmatia was thrown from a trestle here this morning, and falling 20 feet alighted on its side in about three feet of water. The car is a complete wreck. Twenty persons were more or less bruised, but only one seriously hurt.

THE McKINLEY TARIFF.

Leading Republican Journals Pronounce Against It.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—The Evening Journal for many years one of the staunchest of Republican papers, in the course of a double leaded editorial on the political situation, this afternoon says: "What now shall be the Republican party's course? Simply this, that it must live up to what are its real principles. The McKinley bill must not stand unchanged. It must be modified in almost every feature. A national caucus of the party has been held and it is leaders must obey the dictates of that caucus. There is no occasion for delay until a Democratic Congress has assembled and a Republican Senate given as sent to the changes required."

BURNED IN THEIR BEDS.

Fatal Hotel Fire in a Kentucky City—Many Guests Suffocated.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Nov. 7.—Owensboro was visited last night by the most disastrous fire in her history, which destroyed property to the amount of $250,000. At least five persons were burned to death, while others were seriously injured in jumping from the burning buildings. The fire originated in a pantry in the basement of the Bredd House, which was filled with sleeping guests, who were awakened and ran out into the street, while many crazed with fear jumped from the windows. Wm. H. Holden jumped from a third-story window, fell on his back and was fatally injured. Five guests of the hotel are missing and it is believed they have been burned to death where they are. A high wind was blowing at the time and when the hotel was swept away the flames reached the Bank of Commerce building next door and that was soon in ashes. The building on the corner occupied by The Owensboro Messenger, with its costly outfit, was also destroyed. The fire then spread around the corner and burned several buildings.

A BLOW AT THE PRIESTS.

A Bill Which May Drive Three-Fourths of the Clergy Away from Mexico.

MEXICO, Nov. 7.—Bruno Cabastida, the soldier implicated in the killing of Lieutenant Calleja at the Santiago Tlaltelolcco Custom House here two months ago, has been sentenced by the court martial to be shot. He has taken an appeal.

Deputy Juan A. Mateos will present in the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow a bill which, if made a law, will cause three-fourths of the clergy to leave Mexico. Nearly all the existing Catholic churches in Mexico belong to the government, and the bill proposes that only native priests be allowed to occupy the pulpits. Nearly three-fourths of the priests are Spaniards. A most exciting debate is predicted.

Owing to the disorders in the Colon Plaza Sunday, bull fighting has been suppressed in the federal district, and the Governor of the State of Mexico will also suppress them. It will then be impossible to see a fight in or near this city.

The Sudbury Mines.

SUDBURY, Nov. 7.—Paddy Logherin has sold one of his nickel locations to a syndicate of American capitalists for $75,000, and what is more important has received the hard cash. Before the money was paid over the property was examined and tested by a mining expert from New York. Paddy, as he is popularly known, is very popular among the settlers and prospectors and has been warmly congratulated on his success. He has gone to Ottawa to negotiate for the disposal of several other mining claims west of Sudbury. A number of men were here on their way to the Gordon Lake district, where mining speculations are being vigorously pressed forward. Every lot in which any trace of gold-bearing quartz can be found has been taken up, and locations having good showings are held at large figures. Representatives of American and English capitalists are endeavoring to secure options in the best properties.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1890.

The Church and Justice.

(From the Knox College Monthly.)

The principles of Christianity, like the unquestioned axioms of mathematical science, are complete and final. We never dream of questioning the fact that, at the basis of religion, there must be justice, in its structure there must be truth, and crowning all, there must be the supremacy of love.

It is one thing thus to state in a few brief sentences the essential principles of true religion. And it is equally easy to state and understand the few simple principles that lie at the base of mathematical science. But to work out the application of these mathematical principles so as to solve the complex and intricate problems that constitute the body of mathematical science, means skill, investigation and study. In the same way to understand the applications of the "golden rule" and the "new commandment," to the complex organization of society we must also put forth toil, investigation and study.

The labour problem, the never-ending struggle between labour and capital, have hitherto been treated as though they had but a remote, if any, relationship to Church work. Hence they have been noticed only incidentally. We have been assured that when men's hearts were made right in some millennial future all would develop harmoniously. In this assumption first, that the investigation of the problem is not Church work; second, that the sentiment of the heart includes the intelligence of the head. The conscience that is quick and sensitive, that has strong impulses for the right, is one thing; the spirit of inquiry that seeks the truth, that the conscience may be guided aright, is another thing. The first has been preached so with abundant emphasis. The second has been sadly and injuriously neglected. Hence we see professing Christians to-day, often members of the same Church, divided into hostile camps, employers on the one hand employees on the other. At times the feeling become bitter, they declare open hostility, the one looks out the other strikes. How do they settle eventually? By force, and force alone. It is war, and is settled according to the methods of war; the weakest goes under. And the churches sit by in utter imbecility and impotency. The method of settling the contest is anything but a manifestation of Christian spirit, and, in our ignorance of social laws, we know not how to bring about a reconciliation that shall be lasting because settled on principles of eternal justice.

For nearly twenty centuries we have enjoyed the instructions of the master Teacher, and yet to-day we have big lessons to learn in the application of His lessons. We have abundance of explanations of the methods of the soul, the ways of the Creator, of verbal and textual criticism, of historical allusion, of spiritual similes, of apostolic denunciation; but investigation of Christian principles to the proper regulation of society, is conspicuous only by its absence. We might say worse than this, but we have said enough. This charge against the Church that there is no place in its organizations for the investigation of this most important problem, is a terrible fact, and a serious reproach.

A correct knowledge of what constitutes righteousness, demands a knowledge of what constitutes a right of property. If we do not know this simple fact

WE KNOW NOT HOW TO BE HONEST.

The time was when the monarchs of the earth could say, like Louis XIV, "L'etat c'est moi"—"The State, that's me"—but on every citizen now falls the responsibility of framing government and decreeing laws. When demands have been made for improvement in our laws respecting the distribution of wealth, it has been very fashionable to call out "socialism" or some other epithet intended for reproach or prejudice. Socialism or no socialism, society by its legislative enactments must divide the wealth of the world; the very structure of society compels us that we must decree respecting the distribution of product; we cannot help ourselves. Here is a duty, a Christian duty. To perform it aright a knowledge of the structure of society is indispensible.

Let us look at the way we perform this duty to-day. Perhaps no physical factor has ever contributed so much to the advancement of mankind as the division of trades. Destroy trade, impose penalties so as to make exchanges impossible, and barbarism is the inevitable result. Compel a Newton, a Watt or an Edison to procure his own food, clothing, shelter, and science, and he would be steeped in ignorance as dense as that of a Blackfeet Indian. Civilization is dependent on the division of labour, and division of labour is dependent on freedom of exchange. And yet to-day, with all our boasted knowledge we are employing the whole power of the government to impede this freedom. When between nations we impose penalties, and treat it as a crime we refuse to trust the instincts and judgment that God has planted in the mind of every man; the instincts that lead him to choose the place best suit to procure the satisfaction for his wants. We deem abundance as a calamity, freedom as a fraud, and common sense as crime. We have yet to learn what is freedom to produce, freedom to exchange and freedom to enjoy.

Is it not a fundamental principle of justice that trade should be reciprocal, service for service, product for product? Let us deny this and maintain the converse. Let us assume that some have a right to product without rendering service or product in return; that one portion of society must do all the producing and the rest need produce nothing, but are still entitled to a share in the product of others' toil; that justice requires one part to produce and then surrender their produce to another part. From such an assumption does not

THE SOUL TURN AWAY WITH LOATHING?

To allow one set of men to live by the toil of another set, to place all the burden of maintaining society on one part of society, is spoliation, serfdom and slavery.

We conclude, therefore, that trade to be honest, must be reciprocal, service for service.

The claim of the child on the service of the parent, or of the unfortunate on our benevolence, do not belong to this discussion, and are, therefore, passed by with this brief notice.

The slaveholder claims service without rendering service, so does the footpad, the sneak-thief and the burglar. By our penalties against these, we try to enforce with powerful emphasis the truth of the doctrine of reciprocal service.

Now there are some things man cannot produce, and the most conspicuous of these things is this planet. Columbus discovered America; he did not create it. No man, no set of men, made this continent. That is beyond man's power. And yet one set of men to-day claim payment for this continent. They are endowed with the power to charge their fellow men occupying the land called America. This is one violation of reciprocal service. When a man claims ground rent as his, he does not pretend to render any service for such payment. He claims service or product, but offers no product or service in return. When he says, "I furnish land," he utters something close on blasphemy, for it is the Creator who does that.

We have but to examine this a little further to see the monstrosity whereby men claim the earth as an article of merchandise, and treat it just as they would treat a product of labour. The highest value of land in Toronto is at the rate of nearly one million dollars per acre, in Chicago at about five million dollars, and in New York as upwards of ten million dollars per acre. Whence comes this value, and on what conditions does it rest? Let population increase in any neighbourhood and land becomes more and more scarce; there is less available land for each. In one part of New York the amount of land for each person is about one hundred square feet, while in the residential part of Toronto, where population is sufficiently dense for comfort, the area available for each is upwards of four thousand feet.

AS LAND BECOMES MORE SCARCE

the value advances. Can this increasing value, by any stretch of the imagination be construed into a service or product? Evidently not. And yet by our laws we recognize these values as a basis and right of property. Because land has grown scarce, the so-called landowner must be enriched. Let us examine carefully this claim; for we have become so habituated to it that it is hard to tear away from the eyes the scales that long grown custom has incrusted there. The landowner's claim to fortune depends on the growth and density of population, and the consequent scarcity of land. Because population has come, and land has grown scarce, the producers must furnish the landowners with abundance; because people are growing poorer in land he must be made rich. His claim on product depends not on his having produced or rendered service, but simply on the presence of population and scarcity of land. We, therefore, at once establish an extraordinary relationship, dividing humanity into two parts, one part compelled to do all the production, and forced by law to surrender the bulk of their product; another part exempt from production, but empowered by law to appropriate product. Here reciprocity of service is ignored, honest protection is deposited, silence rises into magnificent fortune, while industry is crowded down into humiliating and degrading poverty.

In early settlement, when the natural resources of wealth were fairly open to all, there was but little distinction between employer and employee; but as population increased the values of these natural sources of wealth rapidly advanced. The railroad and factory system have tended to crowd population more and more into great commercial centres. In one part of New York, on a single square mile, there are upwards of a quarter million of people. As population has increased the land value has advanced, the toilers year after year have had to surrender more and more of their product. They have seen their obligation growing and growing; the more they pay the more they still have to pay, the greater becomes their debt. According to law, they must inevitably sink beneath an obligation, continuous, increasing and irredeemable. A professedly Christian nation is now maintaining without protest, a system of law that prevents honest toil reaping the reward of his industry, that and strips him of the product of his efforts as surely as ever did the lash of a Legree or the hooks of the galley slave. And some people wonder when we say it is part of a Church's duty to investigate this problem. Mr. Shortt in his criticism of Mr. Thomas Ritchie's excellent article, seems to be satisfied that he had fully demolished the argument of the latter, when he states that the value of an acre of land in Toronto, $100,000, and the value of a loaf of bread are both due to the presence of an active community. Here we have a sample of a fragment of a truth mistaken for the whole truth. It is true that without society land and bread would be both valueless; but does that express the whole truth? Not by a great deal. Labour tills the soil, sows the seed, garners the crop. This crop has a value; mark the conditions associated with this value: 1. Toil to produce. 2. The production of a commodity that did not exist in that form before—an increased abundance of food. 3 This commodity will soon disappear when consumed. 4 Toil must again reproduce a new supply. Mark the difference between this and a land value. In 1868 when the population was about 40 000 a lot on King street, Toronto, was valued at $4 00 per foot frontage per annum; twenty one years after, with population about 180,000, the value was estimated at $45 per foot frontage. Here is an increase of value of $41 per foot, about eleven and a quarter times, while population had increased about four and a half times. Did the owner of this lot toil to produce this $41 per foot? No, verily. Did they produce a commodity, make an addition to the abundance of goods? Not by any means. Will this value soon disappear by consumption and require toil to replace it? Not at all. Now here are four distinctions between land value and labour-produced values, which Mr. Shortt utterly ignores, and on these distinctions the whole question turns.

When trade is reciprocal, as between a farmer and clothier, we see this beautiful provision in human nature. Each of the parties develop special skill, acquires special tools, and accumulates special knowledge. The result is that when they exchange, each gives more, each gets more, they are both enriched. The characteristics of this trade are, toil for toil, service for service, enrichment for enrichment, "twice blessed," harmonious and mutually beneficient. Each puts forth his energies, exercises every ingenuity, and that crowns and rewards his efforts. Each looks for product only when he offers product in exchange.

Gaze, if you please, O reader, at the sight we witness in this Christian city of Toronto. Is this man that comes here a Christian? Let us listen, what is he reading? "Render to all men their dues. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. Love worketh no ill to neighbour; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Love worketh no ill, what means the sparkle in that man's eye? Can it be? Why, he is one of the ancients ones, one, who in the presence of God, men and angels, dedicated his powers as an evangel of the Word of love and light to his fellow men. Why that glee in his voice and gladness in his countenance? Do you ask why? Let me tell you. He has made a handsome fortune. He got a piece of land. Did he plant corn that food might be abundant; build houses that shelter might be plenty; erect a factory and organize an industry, that in its abundant product his fellows might rejoice; did he sow anything that might spring forth in rich harvest to gladden the hearts of his fellow men; No, no, none of these things. He turned that land into a desert. He forbade his fellow men to use it. While men walked the streets in enforced idleness, seeking often in vain to exercise their industry, he helped to intensify their calamity, for idle land means idle men. He added to the bitterness of their souls and the hardness of their hearts. He could bide his time, and he did. Land grew scarce, and he reaped a fortune, and he read and preached from the text, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbour."

From blighty barrenness he reaps a big fortune, and then wonders why men who have been crushed and cursed by this system of spoliation won't come and listen to his words of polished eloquence. His speculation added not one ounce of product to the world's store of wealth, but it added to the burdens of his fellow men; and we are told that this value—the value of increasing scarcity, is akin to "the economic value of a loaf of bread, a ton of coal, or a locomotive." What blight of the eye can it be that makes a man task of non-productive barrenness as equal to the production of a loaf of bread, the mining of coal and the building of a locomotive. Do men rise early in the morning, tramp to their work before light of wintry day, toil through the hours, come home in their weariness after set of sun, and tell how they have MANUFACTURED A SECTION OF TOWN LOTS?

Talk of land values in Toronto being the same as products, loaves of bread, tons of coal or locomotives! It takes ten hours per day to keep up the supplies of bread, coal and locomotives. Who ever heard or dreamt of ten hours daily to keep up ground rents in our cities? The blind man when restored, saw "men as trees walking." Society has been sadly blind as to some essential distinctions in economics, and they yet only see these distinctions "as trees walking" I take the liberty of pointing out some these.

The Creator furnished the earth with its raw materials. These are a gift to all mankind equally, and the equality of right to this gift our laws should observe most jealously. At present this equality right is utterly ignored.

Labour operates on these natural opportunities, and brings forth product. These products are the proper objects for exclusive private possession, to enjoy, consume or exchange, as the owners judge best.

Of values we must carefully distinguish two kinds; (1) the value of labour products; (2) the value that comes to land and other natural opportunities, through the growth of population or public improvements—the value that does not come from the application of labour. The first values, those of labour products, may properly be left to individual possession. The second value is truly a community value and should go to the public treasury. This value is the proper object for taxation.

THE YOUNG BIRDS COOED.

And the Old One Bilked—Married in Toronto.

ORILLIA, Nov. 5.—John Crossett, night operator at the station here two years ago, has been holding a clandestine correspondence since with Mary McLean, the 15-year-old niece of Mrs. Mackenzie, where he boarded. Mrs. Mackenzie came into possession of one of the letters and there was a row. Crossett and his ladylove, however, arranged an elopement, which was consummated this morning, when Crossett came up on the midnight train and Miss McLean joined him in time to proceed south on the 5:30 train this morning. They were to be married in Toronto and then proceed to his home at Chesterville, Nova Scotia, where he is agent of the C.P.R.

Marlboros Capture the Tournament.

ORANGEVILLE, Nov. 6.—The football tournament here to-day was a decided success. Five clubs were entered and the only Toronto club entered, the Marlboros, carried off the palm.

Their first victory was from the Orangeville Juniors and was a close game all through, but the locals could not score. In the final Owen Sound took the only goal in the first half, but Buckingham's rushes in the second and the Marlboros general dash got them two goals, the match and the championship of the tournament.

The winning team was: Goal, Meek; backs, Parks, Wright; halves, Shanklin, Waid, Hogan; forwards, Humphrey, Armstrong, Buckingham, Marr, Smith.

The results were:

Orangeville Juniors	3
Flora Juniors	0
Owen Sound Collegiate	1
Orangeville High School	0
Toronto Marlboros	3

Toronto Marlboros	2

Spots of Sport.

The members of the Prospect Park Bowling Club will give an oyster supper in the club rooms, Prospect-street, this evening.

The Stratford Rugby team defeated London yesterday by 31 to 1. The game was played at London.

Hamilton yesterday gave official notice of their determination to refuse to meet Queen's on Saturday and emphasizing their claim to the championship.

The Police Gazette championship belt, which John L. Sullivan has won a number of times and refused to accept, is on the way to England, where it will be presented to Slavin.

It is said that Luther Cary, the crack sprinter of Princeton, is a professional who was procured with the intention of defeating Sherrill and breaking his Yale College backers.

A. B. George, the famous mile runner of the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York, wants an international cross-country handicap race on Thanksgiving Day. George's idea is to have Willie Day, Hjertberg, Floyd and Fresth represent America; Tommy Conneff, McCarthy, Kennedy and De Foleata, Ireland; McIntosh, Gibbs and Moffatt, Canada, and the English team to be made up of Morton, Larry and Young. It is a good scheme and should be tried.

Fortune has smiled on Jack McAuliffe during the past week, and he has accumulated greenbacks enough to make a fair sized "bank roll." He will sail for Europe in two weeks with Phil Dwyer. Meanwhile he will make books at the Elizabeth race track during the meeting which commenced yesterday, with his old partner, James Davy, under the firm name of McAuliffe & Co.

Frank Slavin is coming to the United States shortly and has engaged with Webster and Brady to appear in the concert scene in "After Dark." He will come to America in about one month, and will upon his arrival post $1000 forfeit money to fight John L. Sullivan for $10,000 and the championship of the world. If Sullivan should refuse to meet him Slavin says he will claim the champion ship. Just about the time of Slavin's arrival in New York Peter Jackson will arrive in San Francisco from Australia, and the three greatest pugilists of the day in the heavy-weight class will be in America.

Gossip of the Turf.

Bartlett of Philadelphia, who was with one of the English teams during the past season, will probably go back there next year.

There is a report that Manager Frazier of the Syracuse club released McGuirey, Keefe and Ely on Oct. 25. These men have contracts up to Nov. 15 and in releasing them so much salary is saved. The Boston & La Clede is after Second Baseman Childs and has offered $1,000 for his release. Childs says he has been offered $2500 a year to go to Cleveland. It is also said that Casey is engaged before the club went to Baltimore. It is thought that Syracuse will be in the New York State League next season.

Joe Knight did not squander his earnings, for out of a salary of $2000 he carried away all but $900 the amount is claimed. Lotta Marr is eight thousand dollars the worse, and will have to borrow about advance money. With Latham it is quite different. It is a mystery as to just how the duke manages to get rid of his coin, as he has no bad habits, but his dollars never fail to glide through some channel. Artie pocketed over $300 on last Monday, but nearly half of it had de-camped away before he could make his escape to Boston. Holiday and Burrows are both counted as free spenders.—Commercial Gazette.

The Royal Commission on Horse-breeding, appointed in England, has obtained a lot of useful information from veterinary surgeons, trainers, etc. Dr. Fleming declares that short distance races are the cause of a great deal of the disease in training, because the strain on a horse's windpipe is much more severe in giving forlong races than in longer ones. He says that he horse should be raced until he is seven years old. Matthew Dawson, the famous trainers from the worthy doctor his opinion is that training and racing 2 year-olds tends to develop them as much as anything more than. The question of racing or breeding unsoundness was considered, and it was decided that the following should be made liable to disqualification for [illegible]: Roaring, whistling, sidebone, [illegible] disease, curb, bone-spavin, [illegible] ring-boned. The Feast of Thanksgiving.

BEFORE DINNER.

Happy, happy man!
Tripping gayly 'long the street,
Loaded down with tidbits sweet,
Loaded down with turkey fat,
Delicacies and all that—
Happy, happy man!

AFTER DINNER.

Aching, aching man!
Skulking sadly 'long the street,
Loaded down with tidbits sweet,
With stuffed turkey, rich and fat,
Pellicacies and all that—
Aching, aching man!

What Thanksgiving Is.

Thanksgiving is really the highest devotion, the truest mark of the true Christian. It consists, moreover, not of speech only, but of action, of thank offering as well as thanksgiving. So this present great annual national day of thanksgiving ought to bring forth abundant treasure from those on whom God has bestowed his blessing.

Thanks, All He'd Give.

"I'm going to give thanks to-morrow for all the blessings I have enjoyed for the past year," said the old man devoutly on Wednesday.

"Ugh," grunted his wife, "and it's all you ever will give, too."

A Happy Thought.

Wife—This turkey is altogether too old and tough to eat. What on earth shall we do with it?

Husband.—Why not send it around to the parsonage?

Wrecked by a Hurricane.

SKIBBEREEN, Nov. 6.—A hurricane passed [illegible] of Ireland [illegible] of houses here were wrecked.

The Glory of the Mince Pie.

Who can fully describe the glories of the mince pie of our grandmothers! We never have such snowstorms nowadays as we used to have when we were boys; the woods are never so brilliant as they were then; the fish never bite so quickly, and the chestnuts and shagbarks are never so fat and luscious as when we used to find them under the leaves. So, too, the mince pie of to-day is thin, flat and insipid and bears no resemblance to those which used to come out, smoking and fragrant, from the old brick oven. They needed no brandy "to make them keep." They were for the present use only. But it cannot be denied that the cider in the barrel in the shed was slightly lowered when a batch of pies was made ready for baking.

As for the pumpkin pies, what a rich golden color they had, so different from the sickly yellow of the modern marrowfat squash. How those pumpkins used to glow as they lay in the field ripening slowly in the late sunshine and growing sweeter with the early frost.—Boston Record.

No Doubt About It.

Head of Firm (the day before Thanksgiving)—Mr. Travers, I have ordered a turkey sent around to your home as a slight testimonial, etc.

Travers at the table the next day—Well, there's no question about its being slight.

Prizefighters, Especially Americans, Not Wanted in London.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The prize fight for £400 between Gus Lambert of New York and Teddy O'Neill of Liverpool, which was to have been decided to-day, has been declared off.

Both pugilists were arrested.

Telegraphic Taps.

O'Brien and Dillon left New York yesterday for Philadelphia.

Barbara Lamprecht, 31 years old, killed her daughter Mary, six years old, at Philadelphia yesterday by cutting her throat with a razor and then attempted to commit suicide. She was temporarily insane.

who ever gave a public Testimonial, and the following is

THE ONLY TESTIMONIAL HE EVER GAVE.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the proposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach,

a generous stimulant. It not only removes the dirt, but the layer which carries the dirt; and it promotes the displacement of the old cuticle to make way for the new, to increase the activity of change in the skin. Now turn we to Toilet Soaps and there we find Lumbering in the North.

The lumbering operations for the winter, says the Bobcaygeon Independent promise to be light, with the exception of those by the Hazlitt Company on the old Scott limits. It is said that twenty million feet will be taken out by this Company. Wages for the woods are ruling low, $16 a month being the highest. Wages in the Ottawa and the North Shore districts are from $6 to $8 a month lower than last year. The outlook for woodsmen, or rather woodsmen's families is not a happy one.

A Musician's Troubles.

One of the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestral Club had his baggage pretty well scattered this morning. The troupe left at five o'clock this morning for Detroit, where they have an opera house engagement to-night and to-morrow in a church. One of their trunks fell off the truck just as the train dashed into the station, and in a moment the track was strewn with its contents. The trunk was caught between the locomotive and the platform and crushed into splinters. Fortunately there was nothing but clothing in it, and the scattered garments were picked up before the train moved out.

The C. P. R. globe-circling trip when it comes to be thought out, fairly makes one's head swim. The idea of a trip from Peterborough to Peterborough—round trip tickets only $600. But the round trip means round the world. From Peterborough across the ocean to England, thence by C. P. R. steamer through the Mediterranean sea, Suez canal, Indian Ocean, China and Japan seas, and Pacific Ocean to Vancouver, thence across the continent to Peterborough. By this route are shipped direct from Japan and China hawley bros.'s incomparable teas, the best in Canada, pure and fragrant.

Mr. John Jackson, of Cavan, at present (Mount Pleasant post office) saw service in 1837-8, and enlisted under Capt. Mitchell, and was stationed at Best's Corners, Emily. Mr. Jackson is now 70 years of age.

Mr. John Hendren, of Dummer, was in the service of his country in the rising of 1837-38. He was under Col. Brown with Capt. Thompson, Sergt. Page, drill instructor. He made the well known march to Toronto, and remained there 6 months. He was regularly discharged but has not got his papers.

Fire in Dcuro.

On Wednesday afternoon last the residence of Mr. Wm. Garbutt, near Nassau, was completely destroyed by fire. About three o'clock the fire was first noticed, when it broke through the roof. The building was a frame one, and so rapid was the progress of the flames that within five minutes the house could not be entered. Almost the whole of the household effects were destroyed, comparatively little being saved; only a little was saved from the cellar, where the winter's provisions were stored. There was an insurance of $400 on house and contents, which leaves $1000 of loss to be accounted for. Mr. Garbutt is singularly unfortunate in having had a barn destroyed by lightning last summer, as well as his present severer loss.

St. John's Bible Classes.

The social work of these organizations will be inaugurated for the season by a private social in the school house next Tuesday. As on previous occasions, the evening will be spent by the young people of the two classes in pleasant games and conversation followed by refreshments provided by the young ladies. The young men are also doing their share towards the enjoyment of the evening, a committee having been appointed by St. Andrew's Brotherhood (itself the large working committee of the Y. M. Bible Class) to provide music and recitations. The Young Men's Club will also probably hold its first meeting for the occasion next week.

Good Sport but no Game.

Wednesday a hunting party composed of two bank officials, and the son of an M. P., resident in Peterborough, drove out to Buckhorn after game. Late the same evening another hunting party arrived from Peterborough, composed of an undertaker, a book keeper and a retired gentlemen. The next day they foraged for game, but not a partridge, duck or game of any kind could be got. The preceding party had bought up everything in the neighborhood. By dint of diligent search, however, the parties of the second part succeeded in bagging a few birds with silver shot, and returned home quite triumphant. Both parties of hunters report having had splendid sport, and exhibit the trophies of their prowess (?) in proof thereof.

A Profitable Play.

The Chicago Tribune of September 16th, 1890, says:—"The Dear Irish Boy" is one of the popular plays of the day. Season after season it makes its rounds of the profits of its owners and entertainment of large crowds. There is something about its homely teachings and its idioms and its weird scenic display of ivy and shamrock that appeals directly to the sympathy of a large class of play-goers. It is being given at the People's this week before enthusiastic audiences, and by a competent company headed by Gus Reynolds, whose portraiture of the unscrupulous McClutchey is well studied and finished. Interspersed are a number of Irish songs and melodies and a variety of jigs, reels and clogs." At Bradburn's opera house, Monday evening, Nov. 10th. 1d

The Jamaica Exhibit.

The Lock Works' exhibit for the Jamaica Exhibition was inspected by numbers of people to-day. The 34 trays included in the exhibit were displayed in the packing room. The exhibit comprised a complete list of the different articles manufactured by the Locks Works Company, including door knobs, locks, bells, handles, hinges, plates, letter boxes, bolts, etc., etc., in almost every design and variety known. The brass and gilt goods shone brilliantly, while the more common work was also perfect in its way. The exhibit amply demonstrated the capabilities of this great industry, and there is no doubt the Lock Works display will not be surpassed by any of its competitors. It was hoped to have the trays packed and shipped to-day. The exhibit will be taken charge of by the government.

Missionary Meeting at Norwood.

The Missionary Meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Methodist church will hold its annual session at Norwood, the Register says, next Monday and Tuesday. The committee consist of all chairmen of districts within the Conference, and one lay representative in each district. The number attending will be about 32. Religious services will be held in the church next Sunday, when sermons will be preached by the Rev Dr. Griffin, chairman of the Picton District, and a platform meeting will be held on Monday evening, when addresses will be delivered by Revs. Wm. Burns, President of the Conference, A. B. Chambers, LL.B., E. Roberts, and E. D. O'Flynn, Esq., of Madoc. The pastor and managers of the Presbyterian congregation have kindly placed their church at the disposal of the Methodists for the Monday evening service, and the business meetings of Tuesday.

Lindsay Libel Suits.

At the Victoria Assizes there were three libel suits entered for trial. The only one tried was that of J. D. MacMurchy vs. Dr. Clarke, claiming $5,000 damages for libel contained in a letter signed "Swipes" in the Warder. The defendant was proved to be the author of the letter and a verdict was returned for $500 damages and costs. In the libel suit of C. D. Barr (editor of the Post) v. Clarke, an apology and payment of all costs with discontinuance of the criminal action against Mr. Barr was proposed by the defendant, Clarke, and was accepted. An apology from Mr. Hughes, of the Warder, for publishing the articles was also accepted. An apology and $50 was tendered to and accepted by Mr. McKenzie in the case of McKenzie v. Clarke. It is estimated, says the Post, that these verdicts will cost the writer of "Swipes" in all from $2,500 to $3,000. The costs in the case of Cooper v. Hughes, which the defendant has to pay, amount in all, we understand, to about $800.

Boston Symphony Orchestral Club Concert.

A Delightful Musical Evening—A Genuine Artistic and Thoroughly Enjoyable Musical Luxury.

It was a great success, especially in the way of genuine enjoyment of first-rate music, presented in the best possible manner. But the attendance was absurdly out of proportion to the house, and there are scores of persons in town this morning who are exceedingly sorry that they failed to go to the opera house last night. It is very much to be regretted that our citizens, as a body, do not respond to the efforts put forth by self-sacrificing citizens to bring the best of entertainments within their reach. Here we had what was promised and doubtless will prove to be the most excellent and best class musical organization that was to visit Peterborough this season, playing divine music in a divine manner to far too many empty benches. Those who were present last night largely comprised those of our citizens who have the true musical interest, and feel that an opportunity to listen to such music is not to be ignored nor lightly valued. And last night they were richly rewarded. From start to finale the programme was a treat, every succeeding number adding to the enjoyment. It is not advisable to criticise the performance, because, judged by a fairly rigid standard, it is beyond criticism. The orchestral selections, of which there were four, were played with the finest regard to the requirements of the exacting music. The time, the harmony, the light, the shade, the expression, and and all that goes to the highest possible interpretation and presentation of classical music were present in just the right degree to meet the needs of the occasion. Particular mention should be made of the second part of the fourth number, 'Slumber Song," composed by Mr. De Seve, the premier violinist of the orchestra. No less nor more enjoyable were the solos by the several artists. Racquoy's flute solo, "Les Echos d'Alsace," proved him to be a superb flautist, and the warm recall he received was a just tribute to the fine virtuosity of his performance. Ernest Oehlhey gave a magnificent 'cello solo, a fantasia on Le Desir. It was an exceedingly brilliant performance, and he richly earned the cordial recall, to which he responded. Of Miss Mantell, the prima donna of the company, very pleasant things must be said. Her aria from Linda was beautifully sung. She has a pleasant mezzo-soprano voice under excellent control and well trained. Her tendency to overuse of the tremolo did not prevent a recognition of the purity and sweetness of her voice, especially in the upper part of the register. She was vigorously recalled in both her first number and in her second. Mr. Shuetzer gave a very finely performed solo on the viola d'amour, a fantasia of his own composition. But the great attraction, the chief feature, was the violin solo the "Zigeuner Dance," played by De Seve. He is a violinist of wonderful executive ability, and the brilliant effects he produced on his responsive instrument took the people by storm. His puzzlato proficiency and his digital dexterity are marvellous. He is full of fire and energy still he is equal to very soft and delicate effect. He seemed to take the people captive, as the repeated recalls he received amply testified. In response his rendering of the "Carnival de Venise" increased the applause to enthusiasm, and he was literally compelled—bowing acknowledgments wouldn't do—to respond, which he did, and he touched his hearers' hearts with a delightfully expressive playing of "Home Sweet Home." Altogether the concert was one of the best in every way with which Peterborough has been favored for a long time, and if the same performers come this way again they may count upon a crowded house. The public are indebted to Mr. T. Dann and Mr. A. V. R. Young, the local impresarios, for the bringing of such a superb musical organization to Peterborough, an enterprise which should have received, as the result showed it deserved, a much more liberal recognition.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Last evening Mr. J. A. Fife, B.A., delighted the members of our junior branch by a helpful and practical talk on chemistry, illustrated with experiments. The attendance was very large, and the lads gave Mr. Fife a hearty invitation to come again soon.

Praise, promise and consecration service to-night from 8 to 9. All young men welcome. Hearty singing.

Consecration meeting Sabbath morning at 9 a.m., led by General Secretary.

Sabbath will be Y. M. C. A. day in town. Special sermons will be preached and offerings taken in all churches. Rev. Wm. Patterson, Cooke's Church, Toronto, has kindly consented to come and preach at 11 a. m. in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; 4 p. m. will give a special address to men only in the opera house; at 7 p.m. preach in George Street Methodist Church; afterwards in same church will, with the pastors, speak at the Gospel and song service. To all these helpful services all are invited. Rev. Mr. Patterson is one of Toronto's popular and successful pastors. He is a special favorite of young men. It is a treat to hear him, so don't miss this opportunity. Rev. Messrs. Shorey and Parker will also exchange pulpits in the evening.

On and after Monday afternoon special praise and prayer services will be held at 3 p.m., addressed by several of the pastors and others. Each evening at 8 p.m. evangelistic services will be held for men only. We ask an interest in the prayers of all Christians that this week of prayer may be a season of great blessing and refreshing from the presence of the Lord our God.

News Nuggets.

—A rosary was found on the market this morning and left at the police station for an owner.

—Gospel temperance meeting in the Royal Templars' Hall, Hunter street, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Good singing.

—Swellings in the neck and all other forms of scrofula, salt rheum, etc., are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—Edward Roche, a young farmer of Ops, was crushed beneath the wheels of his own heavily laden grain wagon, while driving to Lindsay last Saturday. He died Tuesday.

—The other night Mr. Alex. Hutchinson's shoe shop was broken into and five pairs of boots and a silver watch stolen. An entrance was effected through a window in the rear part of the building. No clue, as yet, to the perpetrator.

—The single fare market day tickets on the Grand Junction to Peterborough have been discontinued. This will probably have the effect of decreasing the number of people from Campbellford and other places which attend Peterborough market every week.

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

The Usual Check Upon Business Owing to the Elections.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show about the customary check to the jobbing trade throughout the country owing to the elections and attendant excitement, though a number of trade centres report no appreciable interference, with an active trade movement. The weather has proven generally favorable for farm and plantation work, and the movement of staple crops has been increasingly free. This is noticeable in wheat, sugar, cotton and rice shipments to primary markets. Indian corn and oats are on the contrary in decreased movement. Cotton has continued to decline on liberal receipts, weaker cables and short selling at all points. Price for Granger Trunk Line and other shares on Friday were the lowest for the year and stock speculation at New York is badly demoralised. The sugar trust receivership, unfavorable rumors about railroad properties and heavy bear manipulation share in producing the result with apprehensions regarding the financial and speculative situation at London. Our money market is close, with call loans at between 6 and 25 per cent., the condition being aggravated by a sudden advance of the Bank of England rate to 6 per cent. At the interior the situation apparently begins to favor a return of funds to New York. Foreign exchange was quite weak but is stronger on the advance in money in London. Hides are somewhat depressed and even leather is in less active demand. The effort to advance prices for anthracite coal at Philadelphia last week did not succeed and the demand has fallen off. There have been sales of steel rails reported at less than $28 per ton at eastern mills, which marks a decline. Pig iron is barely firm for lowest grades, but makers continue to report that no stocks are accumulating. October bank clearings at 37 cities exceeded all previous months except May last. The October gain over last year for the country is only 3.9 per cent. owing to a decrease at New York of 1.4 per cent. caused by reduced stock exchange speculation.

Dry goods are less active east. Business in spring cotton and wool dress goods shares the quieter tone of the general market. Wheat has been lower in price on freer movement of the crop in the Northwest. Our own advices indicate that total domestic available stocks increased only 11,000,000 bushels in October against a gain of 20,000,000 bushels in October, 1889. Stocks in the United States (both coasts), afloat for Europe and at principal points of accumulation in the United Kingdom and on the continent on Nov. 1, were 18,000,000 bushels smaller than on Nov. 1, 1890. Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 151 in the United States this week against 194 last week, and 235 this week last year. Canada had 37 this week against 30 last week. The total number of failures in the United States, Jan. 1, to date, is 8502, against 9831 in a like portion of 1889.

The Foreign Bourses.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The stock exchange here closed to-day very depressed, with consols at 94, the lowest figure since the conversion. Rupee paper declined 1/8 and Argentine securities 1/4, under increasing doubts as to the character of the Government's financial arrangements. The final street dealings in American railroad securities showed a slight recovery after the official close, due to cables quoting the New York market steady. Still there were left declines ranging from 1/8 to 2 1/4. Foreigners shared in the general demoralization, falling 3/8 to 1 1/8. English railways show an average drop of 3/8 per cent.

The Paris bourse closed with prices at their weakest three per cent. rentes losing 50 centimes, 3 per cents 18 francs and foreigners generally 3/8 per cent.

The Berlin bourse to-day was depressed. Banks dropped 1 1/2 per cent. and foreigners 3/4 per cent. Mines alone were steady.

Buying up the Packing Houses.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—It is stated that the purchase of several leading beef and pork packing houses here by an English syndicate has been practically consummated.

$10,000 Subscribed

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—The meeting held to-night by the Irish Nationalist leaders was as successful as the one held last night. It was announced that over $10,000 had thus far been raised here for the cause of the parliamentary party.

A Town Wiped Out.

HARTMAN, Ark., Nov. 7.—Yesterday the entire business portion of this place was burned, loss $47,000. Two hundred bales of cotton at the depot and the depot building was also destroyed.

Drowned in a Cistern.

STREETSVILLE, Nov. 7.—The 19-months-old son of Mr. Will Hill got the cover off an old fashioned "open" cistern in some way and fell into it. When discovered it was too late to save the child's life.

Succi Slowly Succumbs.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Succi, the faster, is losing weight rapidly. He is beginning to look pale and haggard, although he has fasted for only 48 hours. He has already dropped 10 pounds in weight. His pulse is normal.

Telegraphic Taps.

Thomas and William Harper, treasurer and manager of the Harper Bros. Co., manufacturers of decorated lamps, New York, are missing.

By the explosion of a six-pound shell one man was killed and four others injured at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, yesterday.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building it the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

I Deny the Charge

That the reason I am selling property of all kinds so much cheaper than other dealers, is because I am selling strictly for cash. How absurd. The facts are that I can arrange terms to suit any reasonable buyer, but here is where and how the joke comes in. I have been actively engaged in buying, selling, renting and exchanging properties in and about this town during the past six years, in this way I have acquired such a thorough knowledge of values that it is useless for owners to try so get me to sell their properties for a third or for a dollar more than they are worth. I positively refuse to take properties for sale unless at or under value. Inexperienced dealers cannot know the values and therefore cannot discriminate, also having only a few properties for sale they are glad to get more at any price. Those who want to sell quickly and those who want to buy cheaply, should pay no attention to what jealous opponents and interested parties may say. I can and I will serve you to your advantage.

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM EVERY LAND.

Canon Dillon Does Not Take Kindly to Parnell—A Lynching Narrowly Averted in France—Spurgeon and Balfour Ill—A Popular Premier.

DUBLIN, Nov. 9.—Canon Doyle has published a fiery letter, exhorting Irishmen to reject Mr. Parnell's suggested alternative or any other land purchase scheme leaving out one-half of the tenantry as Mr. Parnell's scheme does. He protests against Mr. Parnell proposing such a scheme without consulting the Nationalist party, and declares that the very stones of Mitchelstown and Tipperary are red with the blood of their murdered brothers, would rise in mutiny at the thought of such a recreant's bathing of hated landlordism. The letter has caused a sensation Acquitted by the Court, Assaulted by a Mob.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—A man and his wife named Poisy, with the assistance of their son, recently beat to death the lover of their daughter, who was found in her room at night. All three were yesterday acquitted at the Haute Vienne assizes. As they were leaving the court house they were attacked by an angry crowd, which attempted to lynch them. They were, however, rescued by the police after receiving considerable injury.

Expelled from the Stock Exchange

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A rare incident in the history of the Stock Exchange occurred during the past week. It was the action of the committee in expelling from the institution Percival Preedon, A broker, for breach of faith with a client. It seems that the client had ordered Preedon to sell a large lot of Mexican securities, but that the broker disregarding the interest of his client first sold for himself, thus spoiling his client's market.

A Popular Premier.

BARCELONA, Nov. 9.—Ex-Premier Sagasta, who is making a political tour of the country, received an ovation here today. On his arrival he was carried from the railway station to his carriage on the shoulders of the crowd. Then the horses were unharnessed and the carriage was dragged in triumph through the streets

Cable Flashes.

The French Chamber of Deputies has approved the war budget.

Col. Smith, British Consul, has been made a Knight Commander of the Bath.

The German Geographical Society has bestowed the Humboldt medal upon the Norwegian explorer Nansen.

An explosion in the famous Dixon brewery yesterday caused the death of four workmen and the serious injury of several others.

Frank Lockwood, Q.C., has been retained by Mrs. O'Shea to defend her in the suit for divorce brought against her by her husband, Capt. O'Shea.

Lord Londonderry, in a speech at West Hartlepool, said that the Tipperary riot had been deliberately organized by Dillon and O'Brien, and that Mr. Morley had been inveigled into the trap.

The shoe manufacturers at Erfurt have declared a lockout in consequence of a dispute arising from the dismissal of a workman. Three thousand men are thrown out of employment.

The Duke of Connaught reviewed the Ziethen Hussars, of which regiment he is honorary colonel, at Rathenow yesterday. After the review the Duke inspected the barracks, and in the evening he dined with the officers of the regiment.

Another wholesale eviction of non-rent-paying tenants from the Gilbert estates at Falcarragh, County Donegal, will take place next Tuesday, including 350 families comprising 1,500 persons. A force of police and military has been ordered to the spot in order to prevent any successful resistance on the part of the tenants or their friends.

A gang of counterfeiters of coin who have been operating in frontier towns on the line between Saxony and Austria have been arrested. An investigation of their case has resulted in convicting a number of hitherto respected citizens of the various towns in the criminal proceedings. The profits of the gang are said to have been enormous.

The reports that Professor Koch of Berlin, has really discovered a cure for consumption are almost daily becoming more circumstantial and credible. Professor Koch himself, however, is cautious. He continues his experiments and seems to care neither for reputation nor fortune. He expects to be able to announce his conclusions a few weeks hence, and till then the world may wait, or all the world but the German Emperor, whose genius for going off at half-cock has not been equalled in modern times. He has already started a scheme for a Consumption College for the army, with Professor Koch as president

Mrs. Kirkholder is Indignant.

BUFFALO, Nov. 9.—The Kirkholder divorce case threatens to reach the courts again. According to the latest popular version of it, Mrs. Kirkholder obtained an absolute divorce from her husband, who four or five weeks afterward went over to Toronto and married Florine Coombs. Mrs. Kirkholder now seeks to have her former husband punished, alleging that by the decree of the court he had no right to remarry.

The Emin Relief Committee Reply.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Emin Relief Committee publish a denial of the statements that they desired to acquire Emin's ivory rather than to rescue Emin's life. The committee say that they only stipulated that if ivory was found it should be used to defray their expenses. Stanley gave his services gratuitously besides throwing up engagements of the value of over £10,000, and further generously placing at the disposal of the committee all sums which the press might pay for his letters on the expedition, which sums have amounted to £2000. Stanley was personally responsible for the selection of the members of his staff and the agreements made with them.

Troup Also Talks.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—Lieut. Troup replying to Stanley's charges to-day said: "I assert that while in Yambuya camp there never was any log-book, neither was there any document containing a record of cruelties or other acts signed by me. I never heard of any such thing. Mr. Stanley's insinuation that I was influenced by Major Bartelot's family not to disclose the affairs of Yambuya is utterly false." Troup accused Stanley of saying many untrue things about him and retracting most of them and remarked, "The controversy should cease now, as Mr. Stanley has failed to bring forward any proof that I acted contrary to his instructions."

An Earthquake Shock.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 9.—A heavy shock of earthquake was felt at 1¼ a.m. to-day in Guatemala, causing great fright but doing much damage.

AND MANY MEN WERE SLAIN.

A Desperate Encounter in Kentucky on Election Day

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 8.—The election day feud in Estell county turns out to have been one of the most desperate encounters ever witnessed in Kentucky. A man from Irvine, the county seat, yesterday told the following story of the duel: The principals were Dr. Lilly on the one side and John Wilson, a school commissioner, on the other. Lilly was a Republican and Wilson a Democrat. Lilly brought a negro to the polls to vote for him, but Wilson challenged the vote, which was sustained by the judges. This angered Lilly and hot words ensued, which resulted in both men drawing revolvers. Lilly was the quicker, and had shot Wilson twice near the heart before the latter could get his weapon. Wilson then got his pistol out and fired two shots, one of which struck Lilly in the region of the heart. About this time Wilson's brother interfered and succeeded in wresting Lilly's weapon from his hand. Nothing daunted, however, and almost in the throes of death, Lilly drew his knife and made several stabs at his enemy. Both fell to the ground, but the terrible duel was not over. With the last of his fast-ebbing strength Wilson raised up and fired the last load in his pistol at Grant Lilly, a brother of Dr. Lilly, who had appeared on the scene, inflicting a wound which finally caused his death.

Wilson then crawled over to where his antagonist lay and buried the hammer of his pistol in Dr. Lilly's head. Lilly died in a few minutes, while Wilson lingered until the next day. Three outsiders were also wounded, but were not seriously hurt. The Lilly boys are sons of Judge E. Clay Lilly, who has gained a national reputation for trying the mountain desperadoes of Kentucky.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

Professor Koch—Housing the London Poor—Labor Troubles—Mr. Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Mr. Gladstone's speeches at Peebles and Carlisle have added nothing to his Midlothian program. If program it can be called. After some dozen speeches the country is not one whit wiser and knows absolutely nothing more about the Home Rule of the future than it knew before. The phrase survives, the policy is an impenetrable mystery. Whether the ministry be much damaged by all the invective poured out upon it is a matter of opinion.

The London county council have resolved by a decisive majority to enter upon the most important scheme yet undertaken by any municipal authority for the better housing of the poor. After debating and rejecting two rival proposals they voted to spend a million and a half in buying up some acres in Bethnal Green and pulling down and rebuilding the house. The Socialists hail it as if it were the beginning of a new Socialistic era. It is, in fact, nothing of the kind. A new era will be full, if anywhere, in the taxpayers pockets. But the doctrine of decent houses for the decent poor is an old one in England. The Tories were the first to accept it. Lord Beaconsfield was one of the earliest of his party to recognise the coming necessities. Socialists of the Henry George type oppose one condition of the present scheme, because it involves paying the landlords for property of which they think the landlords ought to be robbed for the benefit of that part of the community which does not own land. Nor is the present measure purely philanthropic. Houses are to be built and rented on terms which will pay—or are expected to pay—a moderate interest on the capital. London is to be, so far as this area is concerned, its own landlord. That is one more spike in Mr. Henry George's wheel. It is almost the contrary of what he calls nationalization.

Mr. Fitzgerald's mission to England has neither affected English public opinion nor prevented the collapse of the Australian strike, long seen to be impending. An attempt was made to show that the collapse was only partial, but it is now seen to be general throughout all the Australian colonies, New South Wales and Victoria witness the almost simultaneous defeat of this huge combination, which might perhaps be called conspiracy, against society. It cannot be truly alleged that the men had real grievances. Pay is high and hours of work is short in Australia. The men struck against neither. They, or rather their unions, struck against free labor. They demanded, as other unions elsewhere have demanded, control over their employers business. They denied to any man the right to work unless he joined the union, submitted to union laws, and refused to labor side by side with a non-unionist. This claim the unions sought to enforce by a strike on a greater scale than has been known anywhere in the world. They succeeded so far as to inflict heavy loss on the employers and to cause great inconvenience to society in general. But the heaviest loss of all was to the men themselves. The men and unions now surrender unconditionally. They have obtained no concession, and improved their own position in no single respect. The employers met combination with combination, and steadily gaining ground in every dispute, which employers in England and America may study with profit.

RODE AGAINST OTHES LINE.

Peculiar Death of a Cowboy on a British Columbia Ranch

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Nov. 8.—A sad accident, which resulted in the death of John Kinoff, occurred at the upper ranch of Mr. J. T. Edwards near Kamloops on Sunday evening last. Young Kinoff was employed as a cowboy on Mr. Edwards' ranch, and on Sunday evening, noticing a couple of calves that had strayed away, started after them to drive them in with the rest of the band. They were in a field adjoining the house, and to head them off Kinoff rode his horse around the house at full speed, when he was carried with terrific force against a wire clothes line, catching him across the mouth. The horse gave several jumps after passing the wire, when its rider fell to the ground, striking his face, where he lay, blood pouring from his mouth profusely. He never spoke or moved after he fell and he must have died almost instantaneously.

The Stage Manager Missing.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9.—The Jolse Mills Dramatic Company, which has been playing in Belleville this week, has been forced to close its doors on account of the poor houses. To cap the climax one of the leading actors in the person of J. J. Owens, of Boston suddenly left town Thursday night and forgot to settle up a little bill of $36 with the manager.

$10,500,000 to the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The proposition to increase the backing of the World's Fair to $10,500,000 was carried by the electors to-day.

The average weight of fleeces sheared in Canada has doubled within the past thirty years. This is progressive agriculture.

Economy in production is the key to financial success in all agriculture. In raising live-stock the guesswork should be reduced to a minimum. Know what each animal has cost before you sell it. A merchant who should sell his goods without knowing their cost would soon be upon the high road to bankruptcy.

Profit would be found in breeding good milch cows, especially for family use, for the village and suburban resident. They should have all the qualifications of the best dairy cows, and in addition should be handsome in form and color and thoroughly domesticated, accustomed to being handled, and to the presence of children. A good family cow is as hard to find as a good family horse.

STANLEY AND BARTTELOT.

THE FRIGHTFUL CHARGES MADE AGAINST JAMIESON.

Saying a Girl to Feast the Cannibals—Stanley Called Upon to Furnish Better Proof of His Charges—Mrs. Jamieson's Reply to the Explorer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—G. W. Smalley's cable letter to The Sunday Tribune, dated Saturday night, says:

This morning's Times prints a cabled and signed statement three columns long from Mr. Stanley on Major Barttelot and the whole rear column business. This statement, circumstantial, horrible and powerful as it is, has failed to convince The Times, which says: "We see no reason for abandoning an attitude of neutrality in view of these very shocking statements." Acknowledging that Mr. Stanley has broken silence with reluctance, and that he clearly believes his own account, this journal still calls for more evidence, saying: 'When the evidence he advances is examined it amounts in a majority of cases to little more than a repetition of the words, 'I was told.' This, of course, is sound prima facie evidence, but it is not conclusive." The final sentence is this: "It would be altogether premature as yet to attempt to pronounce judgment in a controversy where the issues are so confused and confusing, and the evidence so conflicting and so inconclusive that a satisfactory settlement could only be attained by a strict and exhaustive judicial investigation."

Stanley Asked for More Proof.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Pall Mall Gazette, referring to the Stanley-Barttelot controversy, says: "Stanley's charges against Barttelot and Jamieson cannot be allowed to rest, especially as Stanley himself has denied his own statements in advance. In the letter dated Aug. 31, and published Dec. 21, he declared that the horrible statements in connection with Barttelot and Jamieson were simply inconceivable nonsense and sensational canards. In the face of his own emphatic denial he is bound to produce every scrap of proof that he can to sustain the charges he now makes."

Mrs. Jamieson says that Mr. Stanley's charges against her dead husband are based on the statement of a dismissed Syrian interpreter, who came to England and was examined by the Emin Relief Committee. During his examination, Mrs. Jamieson says, the interpreter contradicted his previous statement. Mrs. Jamieson further says that her husband wrote a letter to the Emin Relief Committee in which he gave important information respecting the interpreter's charges and their sources. This letter, she says, will be published in due time.

Stanley's Charge Against Jamieson.

Mr. Stanley alleges that Jamieson of the rear-guard procured a practical demonstration of cannibalism. Tippoo Tib is represented as saying to him: "It is easy enough to prove, if you like. Pay for a slave and give it to those men there. They will show you." Then Jamieson assented, and furnished twelve pocket handkerchiefs for the purchase of a girl 10 years old, and then he stood by while the natives plunged a knife into her heart, sketching the revolting scene and the still more horrible orgies of brutality which followed. Six of these sketches are stated to have been made. Mr. Stanley avers that these allegations are supported by the sworn affidavit of an eye-witness, and that a European professed to have seen Jamieson's sketches.

Stanley on Barttelot's Death.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Mr. Stanley spent yesterday quietly with his wife and the members of his party. He does not wish to prolong the strong controversy over Major Barttelot; therefore he refused to talk of the matter to reporters. But the subject was discussed by him in his own circle. Hamilton Aidé, the author of "Dr. Bill," is a lawyer, and he and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley and Lieutenant Jephson had a little debate about the legal aspects of the killing of Barttelot. Mr. Stanley, who is, according to my information, a better lawyer than anybody with him on his present trip, gave it as his opinion that an English jury would find the man who shot Barttelot "not guilty."

What Ward Says.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Sunday Times prints an interview with Herbert Ward on the subject of his experience as a member of Stanley's expedition. Ward, according to The Times, declared that he never saw Major Barttelot commit any acts reflecting on his honor or that Stanley himself and not committed. Besides, it was the duty of the other officers to obey Barttelot and a mutiny would have led to an immediate disaster. He could not understand why Stanley should wish him to think badly of a dead man, from whom he had parted on friendly terms. He was shocked and grieved that such personalities had been published and was sorry to think that Stanley in defending himself should seek to embroil him in a quarrel lacking every sentiment of chivalry for the dead and consideration for the living. He admits that Barttelot, for some unknown reason, latterly had a dislike for him and wrote suspiciously, telling him to keep a strict account of all expenditures, but he denies the charge of the theft of brass rods. He says the delay in advancing by the absence of the necessary carriers. He admits that the camp was so demoralized by Stanley's absence and lying rumors regarding his fate that he himself was glad to be quit of it. He says that Stanley in his opinion fails to attribute the blame for the disaster to the rear guard where it should directly be laid. Namely upon Jameson, the administration of the Congo state who neglected to send a steamer up to the camp. He believes the Belgians feared Tippo Tib and kept their steamers running at Stanley pool, if they had sent one steamer everything would have been saved, even the lives of Barttelot and Jamieson. When they learned from himself that they had nothing to fear they sent a steamer, but it was too late.

Halton Election Petition—Sad Death of a Doctor's Wife.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Justice Armour handed out his judgment in the Halton Dominion election petition, dismissing the petition with costs and confirming the election of John Waldie as member for that county.

Dr. Alexander Wilson, of Oakville, whose wife four years ago were the talk of Toronto, has met with a sad affliction in the loss of his wife, who had stuck by him so nobly in the hours of his punishment. Since the recent return of the doctor he and his wife had been residing at No. 115 Gladstone-avenue. On Thursday night they retired to rest, but on waking towards the morning the husband found his wife lying dead by his side. The funeral took place on Saturday to St. James' Cemetery.

Divine is Missing, Naturally.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 9.—Yesterday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, an honest appearing man about 35 years of age walked into John White & Co.'s drygoods establishment and requested them to cash a check signed by George Rice of East Oxford for $12, explaining to them that he had been working for Rice and had got into town a little too late for the bank. After ascertaining by telephone that Mr. Rice had ample funds to his credit the check was paid, but now turns out to be a forgery. The man's name is Thomas Devine, and he is nowhere to be found.

Tis The Same Old Wretched Story.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 9.—Miss France Cornyea, a handsome young brunet, arrived in the city yesterday morning from New York. She claims to have come from Tweed, where she has a respectable mother living. In January last she says that a young man of that village, named Walter S. Lynch, seduced her under promise of marriage. He sent her to New York shortly after to live with her sister. She was there until a few days ago and represented to her sister that she was Lynch's wife. Failing to keep his repeated promise to marry her the unfortunate girl a few days ago decided to return to Canada and secure a warrant for her betrayer's arrest. Magistrate Flint issued the warrant yesterday morning, but Lynch had fled.

Both Arms Blown Off.

RIGAUD, Que., Nov. 9.—John Bouchers was engaged in handling a quantity of dynamite, when it exploded. One arm was blown off and his face much disfigured, his eyes being burnt out. His body was also shockingly bruised and his recovery is doubtful. The doctors amputated the other arm. He will die.

It is a Mistake

To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood reaches every part of the system expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

THE END DRAWS NIGH.

THE SCAFFOLD FOR BIRCHALL IN COURSE OF ERECTION.

The Official Letter of Doom—Birchall Appreciates a Black Shroud Presented to Him by a Toronto Undertaker.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 9.—The appeal to Ottawa for a commutation of Birchall's sentence having failed, active preparations are now going forward for the execution on Friday next. The scaffold is in course of construction and will be put up in the western yard of the jail this week.

An enterprising Toronto maker has made the doomed man a present of a fine black shroud for the occasion, which Birchall seemed much pleased with. All night he was making preparations for the final scene and giving directions as to the disposal of his worldly effects. The iron weight that will be attached to the other end of the rope to be used for the hanging of Birchall arrived yesterday. It weighs 350 pounds.

Birchall received a card yesterday from the "Colonel," dated as before, from Jackson, Mich. He protests that he did the shooting and not Birchall. The card was submitted to an expert, a competent gentleman and one familiar with Birchall's writing. He at once proclaimed it to have been written by the prisoner. He had no doubt about it and no hesitation in saying so. It was an unexpected break in what appeared to be a very neat little chain.

Birchall saw yesterday the first indications of the preparations for his execution. This was the arrival of the material for the scaffold from which he will be launched into eternity on Friday next, but he made no sign that he realized their purport. He was perhaps a trifle more thoughtful to-day, but it may have been that thoughts of the young wife he was so soon to leave a widow sobered him from his very usual careless demeanor.

The Official Letter of Doom.

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—The following official notice was mailed to Sheriff Cameron of Woodstock jail last evening:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
OTTAWA, ONT., Nov. 7, 1890.

To the Sheriff of Oxford County, Woodstock Ont.

SIR: I have the honor to state that His Excellency the Governor-General has had under his consideration in council the report and notes of evidence in the case of John Reginald Birchall, who was tried before the Hon. Mr. Justice MacMahon at the recent Oxford fall assizes for the crime of murder, and having been convicted thereof was sentenced to death, such sentence to be carried into execution on Friday, the 14th day of November, 1890, and I am now to inform you that His Excellency has thought fit to order that the law be allowed to take its course. You will please acknowledge the receipt of this communication by telegraph immediately and by mail in due time. I am, etc.

(Signed) L. A. CATELLIER,
Under Secretary of State.

Mrs. Birchall Summoned to England.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—It is reported that Oswald Birchall, half brother of Birchall, is so stricken with grief that fears are entertained for his recovery. He addressed a vain request to Col. Benwell, father of the murdered man, to join in an application for mercy, on the ground that Birchall might not be the actual murderer.

Mr. Stevenson, the father of Mrs. Birchall, has sent word to his daughter to return to England without delay.

IT PROVED A SONG OF DEATH.

A Leeds County Man Suddenly Expires at an Entertainment.

NEWBORO, Nov. 9.—At the residence of Mr. C. E. English, engineer on the B. & W. Railway, where a social was being held for the Baptist Church, Mr. McKivitt, one of the singers at the entertainment, suddenly expired. Deceased had been a resident of Westport but four weeks and was in the employ of Messrs. McNally Bros., tailors, as cutter. Death was apparently caused by heart trouble. He leaves a wife and three children in Providence, R.I.

Met Death in the Dark.

ELORA, Nov. 8.—William Gabe was found drowned in the Grand River here this afternoon. He was seen going towards his house about 11 o'clock last night, but did not reach it, and on searching to-day his body was found in the river above the carpet factory dam not far from his house. The night was fearfully dark and he evidently mistook the way and walked over the bank into the river.

Died From the Effects.

LINDSAY, Nov. 9.—Edward Roche died yesterday from the effects of an accident. He was coming into town with a load of grain, when a short distance on the way some of the logs on the top of the load on which he was sitting slipped, carrying Mr. Roche with them, who fell in front of the wagon, both wheels of which passed over him, one over the breast and the other over the body.

Burned with Carbolic Acid.

STRATFORD, Nov. 9.—Miss Maria Douglas, of Mitchell, an employe of the Windsor Hotel here, had her face badly burned with carbolic acid. A young lad named Clark was playing on the roof of a building in connection with the hotel and picked up a bottle which had evidently fallen from Prof. Deans's window, throwing it toward the kitchen. The bottle shied through a window, breaking, and scattering the contents on Miss Douglas' face. One side of the face, an ear and eye lid were burned.

SHOT AT A PARTRIDGE.

But Brought Down His Companion—Serious Shooting Accident.

BRAMPTON, Nov. 9.—Charles Kane, accompanied by Mr. George Harris and J. W. Wilson were out partridge shooting on the farm of Mr. McKillop, first line west. Although unknown to Wilson the three were within a short distance of each other, in a triangular position, when a partridge suddenly rose. Wilson fired, and a part of the charge entered Kane's cheek and nose. The others at once came to his assistance and secured a conveyance and returned home. Kane's wounds were speedily dressed by a doctor.

Lodged in His Leg

LONDON, Nov. 9.—While examining a revolver which had snapped fire a young lad named Bassy of East London was shot in the leg above the knee near Dorchester station Friday. The bullet has not been extracted as yet.

A WIDOW WOOED AND WED.

Introduced by Proxy to a Montana Ranchman He Comes to Canada for Her.

BISHOP'S MILLS, Ont., Nov. 9.—A romantic marriage took place here on Wednesday when Mr. Beeber of Southern Montana led to the altar Mrs. Buker widow of the late Taylor Buker. It seems Mr. Beeber is a ranchman in Montana and had a young man working for him from Bishop's Mills who mentioned Mrs. Buker's name as a likely person to make him a good wife. Mr. Beeber wrote to Mrs. Buker desiring to open a correspondence, to which she replied favorably. This correspondence had been going on for about a year and Mr. Beeber arrived in Bishop's Mills about 10 days ago. They left for Montana.

Against the Medical Act.

GRAND VALLEY, Nov. 9.—George Glendenning of the township of East Luther, was fined $100 and costs by William Osbourne, J. P., for violating the Ontario Medical Act.

A Foot of Snow at Port Arthur.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—There was a heavy snowfall east of Rat Portage yesterday. The snow at Fort Arthur last night was nearly a foot deep.

Snowstorm in the West.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 9.—A snowstorm set in yesterday morning in the south part of this state and has kept up since. A Yankton, S.D., despatch says that a heavy snowstorm began there yesterday morning. A high wind accompanied the snow. At Rochester, Minn., and Lakefield, Albert Lea, St. James and Willman all report heavy snow with prospects of its lasting some time. Some light flurries of snow have been reported before this season, but this is really the first snow of the season throughout Southern Minnesota and South Dakota.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 9.—Reports from Brown county in Northwest Nebraska tell of a heavy storm. It has been snowing continuously for 14 hours and the wind is all that is lacking to make a mild form of a blizzard.

Bitten by a Cat.

STRATFORD, Nov. 9.—W. H. Corrie, miller in Hodd & Cullen's flour mill, went to release a cat whose paw had been caught in a rat trap for some days, when the animal bit the first finger of his right hand, chewing it in such a way as to leave thirteen teeth marks. Blood poisoning may result.

THE "OLD MAN'S" MIND ON THE SUBJECT.

There are those of the Government organs which claim that the McKinley tariff, as it affects barley, is not an injury to the Canadian farmer, but a blessing. But the father of the "N.P." is (or rather was, as he has undergone many mental freaks of fancy lately) of a different opinion. Here is what he said on the barley subject in the House of Commons in 1875:—"I find the farmers of West Canada and East Canada could not understand that there was anything in their barley, for instance, being obliged to pay a duty of 15 per cent. upon going into the United States. It is said the consumers pay the duty and that the farmer does not suffer anything. That is the statement, but when I put a simple case, which I have done frequently, I can get no answer. Suppose a man has 100 acres on the Canadian side of the line and 100 acres on the American side of the line. Suppose he grows 1,000 bushels of barley on each of his farms. He takes his 1 000 American bushels to the American market and gets one dollar a bushel for it. He takes his 1,000 bushels of Canadian barley to the American market and gets but eighty-five cents per bushel, because he has to pay 15 per cent. for taking it across that imaginary line. How can it, in this case, be said that the consumer pays the duty? It comes out of the pockets of the Canadian farmer." Is the old man's reasoning sound, and will his journalistic apologists have the effrontery to controvert his opinion?

THE Montreal Star thus reasons: "An instance of how the new import tax on agricultural products is going to strike both city people and farmers in the United States is given in the case of potatoes. The rot has ruined more than half the crop and the supply is already showing signs of scarcity, as is is found the potatoes will not keep over winter. Thus the city people will have to pay the Canadian price for what they get from us, plus the duty of 25 cents, and next spring the farmers will be compelled to give fancy figures for seed potatoes. McKinley may be a great man, but he cannot build a tariff high enough to overcome natural processes." Does our restrictionist journal fail to take this lesson to heart? Wherein is the McKinley restrictive policy any worse than the Foster restrictive policy? The Star reasons well when it shows that tariff walls cannot overcome natural processes, and it should take to heart the lesson that Foster tariffs, and all that sort of brake on the wheels of trade, cannot for any great length of time overcome common sense and close up our natural markets.

Canada's Mineral Resources.

Canada's agricultural and mineral resources have of late been receiving an unwonted and very encouraging amount of attention. We referred in a former number to the visit of the farmers' delegation from Great Brition, and the favourable opinions they have carried home of the Dominion as a farming country. Its forest wealth is, as is well known, practically unlimited. As if to show us how completely all our sources of prosperity are rooted in or buried beneath the soil, recent discoveries with regard to the economic use and value of a particular metal, have called the attention not only of British and American capitalists, but of the governments of the two nations as well, to the vast quantities of this and other valuable ores of which our hills are the natural storehouses. The important part which nickel, the metal referred to, seems destined to take in the coming fruition of the great arm ur-olad navies of the future excites large, yet seemingly well-founded, expectations of the development of the nickel mines of the Sudbury region. These mines there seems good reason to believe, are incomparably richer in that metal than any other yet known to exist. As Mr. Sneeus, Vice President of the British Iron and Steel Institute, who, together with other representatives of the iron and steel industry in Great Britain and Germany, has been on a tour of observation through the mineral producing districts of the United States and Canada, observed at the banquet at which he and his fellow-travellers were entertained in Ottawa, it seems as if Dame Nature must have loosed her apron-strings and dropped the greater part of her lap-ful of heavy and rich ores, her gold and silver and other valuable metals, as she was passing over our country. The two remaining desiderata, necessary to the development of a great industry, are capital and accessible markets. There seems good reason to hope that the Mother Country and the United States may shortly be vieing with each other in furnishing both on an ample scale, so far, at least, as the nickel producing industry is concerned. The fact that the Dominion, in all its parts, is so rich in mines and minerals, as well as in the capacities of field and forest, affords at the same time an additional ground for confidence in the future of our country, and an additional reason for carefully shaping our course, with a view to the fuller and more rapid development of these sources of wealth and power. Canada just now needs wise statesmanship, more perhaps than at any previous period of her history.—The Week.

The Same Can be Done in Every Home.

A gentlemen well known in Montreal, and who travels considerably through Canada, quite recently visited the manufactories of the celebrated Diamond Dyes and Diamond Paints, and requested to be shown over the large building.

During the hour spent in viewing the offices, workrooms, printing room, store-rooms, as well as watching the preparation of the dye-stuffs, he said:—"In the city of Hamilton I had occasion to visit a medical friend, who during the evening drew my attention to various pieces of decorative and fancy work which had been made and very artistically finished by my hostess and her two daughters. They astounded me with the information that the cost of each article was very trifling; indeed like doubting Thomas, I felt inclined to doubt, but was assured that every statement was quite true."

"Fancy articles in common woods were stained in Cherry, Mahogany and Walnut and to look as well as the real woods, and some pieces looked like real ebony. Articles of metal and glass were covered with a lovely colored lacquer or varnish quite a transparent; and old frames had been beautifully gilded and bronzed. Grasses, Mosses and Everlasting Flowers were going busily about. Photographs and sketches were exquisitely shaded and tinted."

"Then I was shown some rich floor mats made from wool and cotton rags, and richly dyed with the most effective and suitable colors; these, before their manufacture was explained to me, I took to be real Oriental mats."

"All this vast variety of rich and useful household decoration and useful work, was all done through the agency of Diamond Dyes and Diamond Paints, which I now see you are preparing to send to all parts of the Dominion. I am not astonished that your trade is so large, and your goods so popular."

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for two days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

KILLED BY A COOK.

The Victim's Head Hung by Windpipe Alone—The Assassin Secretes the Body in a Box.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 9.—About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a brutal murder was committed in the kitchen of Mr. T. C. Milligan's residence. A friend came to visit the Chinese cook Ling, and the two were soon heard to be quarrelling by Mrs. Milligan. She tried to enter the kitchen, but the door was locked and, becoming alarmed, telephoned for the police, and in 10 minutes an officer arrived and finding Ling coming around the side of the house from the rear arrested him. Entrance was then obtained to the kitchen, and several blood stains being noticed on the bed search revealed the body of a Chinaman beneath the bed, still warm, but presenting a horrible sight, the head nearly severed, being only held by the windpipe. Several ghastly stabs discovered on the back of the skull showed that the murdered man was first struck from behind with a heavy knife, then the neck gashed, the body being saturated with blood. Close by was found a carving knife, with which the wound had been effected. Every effort had been made to conceal traces of the crime. The kitchen floor had been washed and in the box were found the clothes usually worn by Ling, also blood-stained. The clothes he had when arrested were spotless, showing he had changed his attire before attempting to leave the house. The name of the murdered man is not yet ascertained. The prisoner is now in custody. An inquest will be held on Monday.

A Maniac's Bloody Deed.

LA COLLE, Que., Nov. 9.—At Clarenceville yesterday a man named Fournival, who has for some time been known to be insane, but was not supposed to be dangerously so, rushed into the house where his wife was at work, seized a razor and drew it across her throat, inflicting a wound from which the woman died. After committing the crime Fournival fled and has not been captured. It is thought he has committed suicide in the woods.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

A Human Body Derails Two Freight Cars at Georgetown.

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—A horrible accident occurred on the G.T.R., west of Georgetown yesterday morning. A freight train was going east past this point when John Wright, one of the brakemen, slipped in unloosing the brake of one of the cars, and pitching forward fell between it and the one following. The unfortunate man must have been killed instantly, as the body wound round one of the wheels and was ground to pieces between it and the brake plate. Some idea may be gathered of the sickening effect of the tragedy when it is stated that two of the heavily-laden cars were derailed while bumping over portions of the body. The train was stopped almost immediately and the remains gathered up and brought to Toronto, where they were coffined and conveyed to the residence of the dead man's sister, 45 Mercer-street. Wright was a young man of 20, and up to last week had been employed at the Union Station keeping up the furnaces, only going braking last week.

The Smash-up at Bronte.

BRONTE, Nov. 9.—Engineer John Ross of Toronto and Fireman Harry Lovell of Hamilton were in the cab of the express engine at the smash-up at Bronte Friday evening. Neither had time to jump, but went with the engine into the ditch. The fireman was scalded about the arms and the engineer's hands were badly scalded, but both are out this morning comparatively unhurt. How they managed to escape is a miracle, for the engine is about as complete a wreck as one could imagine. The baggage and express cars were damaged considerably and three freight cars had their sides stove in.

Wreck on the Air Line.

DELHI, Nov. 9.—Several cars of an eastbound freight left the rails near here to-day and were slightly damaged. The cars were loaded with live stock, sheep and hogs, of which a few were killed.

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is handed and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

THE SPANISH GYPSIES.

STRAY NOTES OF A STRANGE PEOPLE WHO WILL SOON PASS AWAY.

How the King of Them All, Mariano Fernandez, Looks and What He Wears and How He Plays the Guide—The Dazzling Costumes of the Women.

The gypsies are the most mysterious race on this earth. No one knows exactly when they came from and no one knows what is to become of them. It is absolutely impossible to tell whether they are dying out or increasing in numbers. Some persons learned on the subject, say that there are no organized bands of gypsies in the United States; and others, equally learned, say that the disappearance of great numbers of them from the United Kingdom can only be accounted for by their emigration to this country.

They appeared in France for the first time in the year 1427. They told the Parisians an artless story to the effect that they came from Bohemia, where they had been cruelly treated, and that they expected to find France a very superior place. They soon showed themselves to be experts in the arts of thieving, fortune telling and swopping horses. From this time on bands of them sprang up in the various countries of Europe, coming no one knew whence.

They were decidedly undesirable citizens, roving, and consequently untaxable, and stealing the goods of those who could be taxed. Moreover, they had Princes of their own, and only recognized the sovereignty of other Princes as far as they were obliged. Some governments tried a policy of repression and apparently succeeded in reducing the numbers of the gypsies. A few tried kindness, and still fewer the scheme of colonizing thinly populated districts with them.

There is at least one place where they have settled down permanently, and that is under the shadow of the Alhambra, at Granada, in Spain. But their settling down in this country was not the result of any scheme of Government, nor were they required to give up the ways of life and the exercise of the arts and professions, which alone made life worth living to them. In fact, they settled down without being asked to, and upon no conditions. There are in Spain about 40,000 gypsies—more, probably, than in any other European country. Many of them keep posadas or wine shops, and many carry on the horse dealing business, observing to some extent the methods of Christians.

High above all gypsies in the colony at Granada, in years, renown and everything else, stands Mariano Fernandez, the last Prince of the Gypsies. He is known to all tourists British and American. An American traveller has defined him as prince, interpreter, guide and bunco steerer. He stands about in stained-glass attitudes most of his time, which is princely, but he also picks pockets, which is not. For two pesetas (40 cents) he sells a portrait of himself, bearing the princely autograph: "Mariano Fernandez, principe de los gitanos y model del inmortal Fortuny." Fortuny was a famous Spanish painter. If any other proof of Mariano's sovereignty were needed, it is furnished by the acquiescence of his subjects—they can hardly be said to render much obedience.

He is a man of uncertain age, of very dark complexion, with white side whiskers and a large sensual mouth. He wears a green velvet jacket with circular brass buttons down the front, which is part of the ancient costume of Andalusia. This is very short, reaching a little way below the shoulder blades. Under this he wears a figured yellow vest, and under that a white shirt. Round his waist is a red silk scarf, eighteen inches wide and over that a narrow belt of leather filled with cartridges. Weapons of different kinds are attached to various parts of his dress. His trousers are of a slate blue color, with buttons up the side, and the buttons are hidden by figured leggings, also with buttons. His hat, which is the most expressive feature of his personal adornment, is of the bolero pattern. It has a solid circular rim, a high conical crown and two balls in front. A silk handkerchief covers the back of his head. He carries a huge Andalusian mule-driving whip, which he rests on the ground in a carefully studied position, while leaning his shoulder against a Moorish portico with every regard to effect.

Mariano takes possession of the tourist as soon as he comes within the confines of the palace, and points out to him the different objects of interest, reeling off a quantity of familiar facts and lies with great oiliness of expression. The American editor who confused the ancient palace of the Moors at Granada with an institution of the same name in London should know Mariano. He remembers well, he says, when the Moors occupied the palace of the Alhambra, although they were driven out some time in the fourteenth century. He can give no details on this subject, probably because he was so young at the time. When questioned as to the time they left, he usually calls attention to the beautiful goldfish swimming in the green water of the fountain.

After he has shown the Alhambra to the tourist he invites him to his house, or, strictly speaking, to his palace, under the Alhambra, on the same hill. He and his people live in cave houses, which they have cut in the side of the hill.

They spend most of their time basking in the sunshine. The more they become objects of attraction for tourists the more they expect to be paid for putting themselves in motion.

For five pesetas, or about $1, the Prince will command his subjects to dance an abanera or a jota. Until the coin is forthcoming only so many lifeless subjects, male and fe-

SAVED BY HIS WIFE.

The Ex President of Peru was Disguised in Women's Clothing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Dr. Nicholas Pierola, ex president of Peru, has just reached this city. He had been put in jail on charges of disloyalty, and also on charge of being responsible for the loss of the last few battles of the war between Bolivia and Peru against Chili. While awaiting sentence the privilege was given his family of dining with him on Sunday. One Sunday his wife, accompanied by her children, came as usual, to the prison. The jailer did not notice that she seemed a little more robust than usual and that she carried a small basket. She remained for supper under the plea of illness. At 7½ the children were led out by a person whom the jail officials thought was the wife of the prisoner. At 9 o'clock the jailer came to Pierola's cell. The prisoner was in bed.

At daybreak the next morning all the prisoners turned up except Pierola. His cell was visited and his wife was found snugly wrapped in the bedclothing. The prison officials were wonderstruck. Telegrams were at once sent to all the ports to watch for the escaped man, but no trace of him was found.

Pierola said that after escaping he went to Callao. From there he went to a little village further down the coast, where he remained secluded for some time. He then caught the Pacific Mail steamer and came to New York. Since he was seen here nothing has been heard of him. It is believed that he has gone to San Francisco.

Pierola became Dictator of Peru in 1880, and his assuming the role of chief executive officer cost nearly 1000 lives.

President Prado in the autumn of that year fled from Lima.

That night Pierola announced himself Director of Peru. The navy at once declared for him and so did the troops in Callao. But in Lima Prado's Minister of War announced himself in the field and ready for a fight. Thousands of troops were massed on both sides. Bullets flew thick and fast by midnight and when day broke the bodies of over seven hundred soldiers lay on the ground. But Pierola's opponents were defeated and driven into the palace, where they capitulated after a three days' siege.

And this is how Pierola became Dictater of Peru.

NO RUFFIANS AS HANGMEN

So Said Principal Caven at the Toronto Presbytery Yesterday.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—At the meeting of the Toronto Presbytery yesterday, Dr. Caven, principal of Knox College, moved a resolution condemning the employment of coarse-grained ruffians as hangmen, inasmuch as this detracted from the salutary effect on the public mind of the infliction of the death penalty. Several speakers supported the resolution. Dr. McLaren could not exactly see how highly-respectable men could be got for the job. After much discussion it was finally decided to instruct the clerk of the presbytery to transmit the resolution to the Minister of Justice.

Flyers Under the Hammer.

ELIZABETH, Nov. 4.—The most important sale of thoroughbreds held in late years was conducted by Col. Bruce in the paddocks here to-day. The horses comprising the racing stables of the Dwyer Bros. were sold. The attendance was very large, including the leading racing and breeding men of the country.

Hanover was knocked down to F. C. O'Reilly for $15,500.

Kingston was started at $7000 and was gradually run up to $10,000. Phil Dwyer then bid $25,000. For a moment there was silence. Then came $26,000 from Jimmie McCormick, which was met by $30,000 from Phil Dwyer. All saw that Mr. Dwyer was bound to have the horse, so they gracefully retired.

The other sales included Sir John to J. E. McDonald for $5000, Aurania to C. Corneison for $5700, Houston to J. E. McDonald for $2400, Extra Dry to F. C. O'Reilly for $2900, Blue Dress to Belle Mead stud for $1025, Knasbridge to F. C. O'Reilly for $3900, Longford to J. E. McDonald for $2200, Bush Bolt to J. McCormick for $1750, brown filly by Enquero-Colossa to E. H. Garrison for $2250, Inspector B. to Belle Mead stud for $10,000, Meriden to J. H. McCormick for $2400.

But the round trip means round the world. From Peterborough across the ocean to England, thence by C. P. R. steamer through the Mediterranean sea, Suez canal, Indian Ocean, China and Japan seas, and Pacific Ocean to Vancouver, thence across the continent to Peterborough. Eddie's Adventures.

The Port Hope Abduction Case Again to the Fore—The Norseman's Last Trip.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 7.—The abduction case in which figured prominently Eddie Keeler, a 11-year-old boy, who was adopted eight years ago by John Keeler, of Hope township, and abducted by his mother three weeks ago, has taken another turn, and interest has again been excited. At the time of the abduction Keeler issued a warrant against Mrs. Bradley, mother of the boy, charging her with kidnapping her own son, the magistrate dismissed the case, and ordered the constable to deliver up the boy to the possession of his mother as found by the police when the arrest was made. Mrs. Bradley took the boy with her to her home in Rochester and kept a close watch on him while he was there. On Tuesday last he was playing in the porch of his mother's house when a cab drove up to the door, the boy was taken in and driven away in a hurry. The Rochester police were informed of the case and searched the steamer Norseman, which plies between the town and Charlotte, but the boy could not be found. It is understood that he was brought around by way of the bridge, and is now in hiding with some of Keeler's relatives, pending a legal decision as to the proper ownership of the boy.

To Rescue and to Save

The Mission of the Young Men's Christian Association—The Star of the World And Their Awful Effects.

Sunday saw the beginning of the Y.M.C.A. week of prayer, which is universal throughout this continent. The seven days of special pleading with the Giver of all good was ushered in here by a general appeal from the Protestant pulpits of Peterborough in behalf of the Association and the objects it seeks to accomplish. The presence of Rev. Wm. Patterson, of Toronto, added extra importance and impressiveness to Sunday's proceedings. The reverend visitor preached in St. Paul's church in the morning, addressed an afternoon men's meeting in the opera house, and again preached in the George street church in the evening. Rev. Messrs. Storey and Parker, of the Charlotte street Methodist and Baptist churches, also exchanged pulpits Sunday evening. The morning services in the different churches were taken by their respective pastors, with the exception of St Paul's, where Rev. Mr. Torrance preached in the evening. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Bell, pastor of St. Andrews, no arrangements were made with that church, but the evening service there was with drawn to give the congregation an opportunity of hearing Rev. Mr. Patterson. Special young men's services were held at St. John's church a week ago.

The sermons were, of course, addressed particularly to young men, and if earnest exhortations and plain indications of the truth have any effect upon the average male mind, a great moral wave ought to sweep over our young men as a result of these special efforts in their behalf. Rev. Mr. Patterson is a young man, large, robust and full of enthusiasm. His speech is marked by a slight North of Ireland accent, which betrays his nativity, but he throws such fire and energy into his address that the plain language and homely similes he makes use of have an effect which oratory without wholesouled earnestness could never possess. Sunday's services will be followed up this week by meetings every afternoon and night (except Wednesday) in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, to which all are cordially invited. The evening meetings are for young men only.

The mass meeting of men Sunday afternoon in the opera house was of universal and deep personal interest to the large number who attended. The hall was nearly filled. Mr. G. J. Early, President of the Y.M.C.A., occupied the chair. After an opening hymn, led by the band, Rev. P. C. Parker offered up prayer, in which he referred to the great moral lesson which might be learned from the experience of the unfortunate man in Woodstock gaol.

Mr. Colville, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., then read some scripture passages, the seventh chapter of Proverbs and the latter part of the ninth chapter, which at once paved the subject of the coming address before the audience, and were a whole sermon in themselves.

Rev. Mr. Patterson's address was a stirring, fiery, forcible denunciation of prevailing venereal sins, and if those who listened to the address, depicting in the strongest language the terrible results of these nameless abominations, were not deeply impressed with a sense of the danger, destruction and death which lurk in the paths of vice, then they are impossible of conviction by anything short of the actual experience. The speaker regretted that ministers of the Gospel did not more often raise their voices against these secret sins, which were sapping the physical and spiritual life of young people and blighting the human race. Mr. Isaac Richardson offered up the closing prayer.

A special feature of the day was the gospel and song service in the George street church Sunday evening, in which many congregations joined. Short addresses, interspersed with hymns, were given by Rev. Messrs. Locke, Torrance, Parker, Storey and Patterson, and Mr. R. J. Colville.

During the day the collections were devoted to the Y.M.C.A., to assist that noble institution in its grand work of the redemption of young men.

A Big Lumber Deal.

Rumors of Transfers in the Lumbering Business.

The report has been in circulation that Messrs. Gilmour and Rathbun were negotiating with a big syndicate in England for the purchase of the business of the two firms at six millions. This was obviously incorrect, but there are grounds for believing that a deal is in progress between the two firms. As far as can be ascertained, Mr. Gilmour, of Trenton, has offered to the Rathbun Company his Trenton Mills, and the Timber Limits tributary thereto in the Counties of Addington, Hastings and Peterborough, for $600 000. Outside of this Messrs. Rathbun are to take 100 000 logs, last winter's work in Galway, now lying at Healey's Falls, the jobs about the mills, and whatever lumber remains unsold, together with Mr. Gilmour's residence at a valuation. It is understood that something to this effect has been agreed upon, and Mr. Rathbun accompanied by Mr. Bell, of Belleville, the Grand Trunk solicitor, are now in England endeavoring to raise the necessary funds. Should they be successful, which is altogether likely, the bargain will be closed and the transfer made. So far as Mr. Gilmour is concerned, the bargain is already closed, provided the money is paid before January 1st, Messrs. Rathbun having that time to inspect the limits and raise the wind. The Rathbuns have at once had one streak of luck, the recent reduction in duty making the property at least worth a hundred thousand dollars more. If the deal is accomplished the probable result will be that the Rathbuns will stop the cutting of pine, reserving that for increased prices and at present cut the hemlock, cedar, etc. A point of some importance to the Midland District will be that this deal will practically give the Rathbuns a monopoly of the local trade, as they will have no competitors never the Ottawa, for the Peterborough mills do not any more than supply their immediate neighborhood, if indeed they do that. The result will be that an advance of one or two dollars a thousand will be made in the local prices. The deal is being watched with some interest throughout the district.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Yesterday's Services and Incidents—The Coming Mission in St. John's—The Missioner's Message—Yesterday's Services for Young Men — To-Night's Christian Endeavour Society Meeting.

THE MISSIONER'S MESSAGE.

A series of mission services will be held in St. John's, beginning on Saturday, Nov. 22nd, and lasting eight days. The following printed copy of a letter from Rev. F. H. DeVernet, of Wycliffe College church, Toronto, was distributed in the church and mission school room yesterday:—

To the Congregation of St. John's Church, Peterborough:

DEAR FRIENDS.—At the request of your Rector, I hope to come among you shortly to conduct a series of special services—Nov 22nd to Dec. 1st.

The three-fold object of these services is:

1. The AROUSING of the thoughtless and indifferent in order that they may TURN to Him who is the Saviour of sinners, and in Whom alone is LIFE.

2. The RESTORING of those who through the temptations of the world or the discouragement of the way, have WANDERED from Christ and ceased to follow Him closely.

3 The QUICKENING of believers, that they may be led to wholehearted CONSECRATION to Christ, and with souls AT REST IN HIM may serve Him without fear, in HOLINESS of Life.

Only God the Holy Spirit can bring about such results as this; but He works through means; the sure word of God is, "ASK and ye shall receive," and "THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST is the power of God unto Salvation to every one that believeth." If, then, earnest, united and continued prayer be offered up for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and the Gospel be simply and faithfully preached night after night, we can expect, without a doubt, that many souls will receive great and abiding blessing.

I would, therefore, earnestly appeal to you who wish this series of services to be a success, to fill the following conditions, viz.:

1. Pray daily—for yourselves, that you may receive definite blessing—for relatives and friends in whom you are especially interested, that they also may be blessed—for the people of the parish, that their hearts may be prepared by the Spirit for the seed of the Word—for the preacher, that he may come to you in the power of the Holy Ghost, with nothing to hinder God from speaking through him.

2 Come to the different services, as regularly as possible. Come in faith, EXPECTING a blessing for yourself and others, and YOU WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED

As we do not rely upon excitement of any kind, but upon the truth of the Gospel and the Spirit of God, one of the main features of the work is a progressive series of addresses, leading on step by step from a knowledge of sin and self to a knowledge of Christ and His power to save and keep. Hence the importance of attending regularly from the first.

Again, entreating you to pray and work for the success of these services,

I remain, your faithfully,
F. H. DEVERNET.

Toronto, Nov. 6th, 1890.

A union meeting of the Christian Endeavour Societies of the town in the George Street Church to-night was announced yesterday. Rev. Mr. Patterson has consented to stay over to-day and be present this evening. The public cordially invited.

In the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches yesterday the services were conducted with special reference to the needs and claims of young men upon the Christian sympathy and material encouragement of the churches. The sermons delivered were specially directed to the same object. The collections taken at the several services, and which were very liberal, were devoted to the funds of the Y.M.C.A.

"Good Sport But no Game."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR.—Would you kindly inform me what became of the two George street merchants who started with the undertaker, bookkeeper and retired gentlemen on Wednesday evening for Buckhorn? Did they change their minds after leaving town and walk home, or did they reach their destination with the rest of the party, and enjoy that sleep which is only to be experienced at Buckhorn? Surely, Mr. Editor, if they went, you will not begrudge them their full share of the glory in making such a grand bag (?) even though with silver shot. The reason I feel interested is that I understand one of the merchants is quite partial to debating societies and window panes.

Yours truly,
INQUIRER.

A Point of Law.

A Question of Assessment Discussed by the Town Clerk and the Police Magistrate.

There were three cases for non-payment of statute labor tax before the Police Magistrate this morning. One of them, that against Jas. Whitehair, caused quite a legal argument. The issue is an important one, as several hundred dollars of tax money are involved.

Mr. Whitehair produced receipts for taxes paid on property owned by him in the south ward, in 1888 and 1889, and he thought it scarcely fair that when he was paying taxes on houses occupied by tenants he should be obliged to pay Statute Labor tax also.

Mr. DUMBLE co-incided with his views, and said that if Mr. Whitehair paid taxes his name should appear on the assessment as such.

The roll was produced, and Town Clerk Macdonald pointed out that the property was assessed to the tenant, Mr. Whitehair's name simply appearing as "owner" in another column. The Statutes were read, which enact that "every man between the ages of 21 and 60 years, who is not OTHERWISE assessed, should pay statute labor tax."

Mr. DUMBLE—Mr. Whitehair's name appears on the assessment roll.

TOWN CLERK—His name is there simply for guidance in preparing the voters' list. He does not appear as being assessed. His property is assessed to the tenant.

Mr. DUMBLE held that as Mr. Whitehair's name was on the roll he was "otherwise assessed," and exempt from statute labour tax.

The TOWN CLERK pointed out that the name was not on the collector's roll, therefore the property could not be said to be assessed to him.

Mr. DUMBLE argued that even if the property was assessed to the tenant, the owner really paid the taxes; and if the tenant evaded them, the roll was looked up and the owner held responsible.

The CLERK said there were a hundred cases similar to this on the roll, and if Mr. Whitehair was exempted from his statute labour tax all the others would also.

Mr. DUMBLE said that, according to this, a man who owned a hundred thousand dollars worth of property and did not himself occupy a house, would be liable to this tax.

The CLERK replied that that was the law.

Mr. DUMBLE thought the laws were not intended for this purpose, but solely to catch men who own no property and pay no other taxes. In Mr. Whitehair's case he owned property and paid the taxes thereon, and though his tenant was assessed for the property, his name appeared on the roll also, and Mr. Dumble believed that he was thus "otherwise assessed."

Judgment was reserved for a week in order to gain the town solicitor's opinion.

KINDLED HIS FUNERAL PYRE.

An Inmate of Pictou Lock-Up Roasted in His Cell.

PICTOU, N.S., Nov. 8.—Fire originated in the warehouse on South Market wharf, part of which was fitted for the lock-up. A single prisoner was in the cell, a Dutch sailor belonging to the Norwegian bark Prima Donna, in port, put in several days ago to prevent his running away from his ship. The fire probably originated in his cell, as people in the vicinity heard his cries, but before anyone could reach him that portion of the building was enveloped in flames and no help could reach him. Nothing was found but his hip bones. The fire quickly spread to the adjoining warehouses. Those of Peter Brown, wholesale merchant, Thomas Meagher, and C. Dwyer were destroyed, together with the lumber yard and steam mill of J. & A. Carson and then followed The Standard newspaper office, a double tenement belonging to A. D. McDonald, a paint shop occupied by John Brown, warehouse belonging to A. J. Patterson, the building belonging to Messrs. Carson and occupied by John Pringle & Son, tailors. Total loss $45,000.

INJURED IN A MILL.—On Wednesday night of last week, Mr. W. H. Castiday, of Campbellford, was seriously injured in a saw mill he has been operating for some time past in the township of Dummer. He was working by the light of a lantern, and while turning off a belt from a large wooden pulley it broke and one end struck him. He was thrown or forced under the pulley, between it and the floor, and so firmly wedged in that the pulley ceased running. Mr. Ed. Kierney, who was employed in the mill, hastened to his assistance, and removed him in an unconscious condition. He was taken to a house near by, and in about half an hour he recovered sufficiently as to be able to speak. His face and head were terribly discolored and swollen, his head was cut, and he received a cut over his left eye and on his cheek, and other cuts on his lips and in his mouth. He was also injured on one side from the shoulder down. It is strange to account how he escaped being instantly crushed to death, the space between the pulley and the floor being only a few inches. On receiving a slight intimation of the accident, Mrs Castiday went out on Saturday and is attending. Mr. Castiday is recovering, and hopes to be able to move about the mill again in a few days.—Herald.

What Cures?

Editorial Difference of Opinion on an Important Subject.

What is the force that cures disease; and which is the most convenient apparatus for applying it? How far is the regular physician useful to us because we believe in him, and how far are his pills and powders and tonics only the material representative of his personal influence on our health?

The regular doctors cure; the homœpathic doctors cure; the Hahnemannites cure; and so do the faith cures and the mind cures, and the so-called Christian scientist, and the four-dollar and-a-half adventuring itinerants, and the patent medicine men. They all hit and they all miss, and the great difference—one great difference—in the result is that when the regular doctors lose a patient no one grumbles, and when the irregular doctors lose one the community stands on end and howls.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

Nature cures, but Nature can be aided, hindered or defeated in the curative process. And the Commercial's contention is that it is the part of rational beings to seek and trust the advice of men of good character, who have studied the human system and learned, as far as modern science lights the way, how far they can aid Nature and how they can best avoid obstructing her.—Buffalo Commercial.

It is not our purpose to consider the evils that result from employing the unscrupulous, the ignorant, charlatans and quacks to prescribe for the maladies that afflict the human family. We simply declare that the physician who knows something is better than the physician who knows nothing, or very little indeed about the structure and the conditions of the human system. Of course "he does not know it all."—Rochester Morning Herald.

I have used Warner's Safe Cure and but for its timely use would have been, I verily believe, in my grave from what the doctors termed Bright's Disease.—D. F. Shriner, senior Editor Scioto Gazette, Chillicothe, Ohio, in a letter dated June 30, 1890.

SHOT HIS BABY BROTHER

FATAL FOOLING WITH A RIFLE AT CAMPBELLVILLE.

A Five-Year-Old Lad Killed While Assisting His Brother to Load a Rifle—A Boy Shot at Stratford—Other Uncommon Happenings Yesterday.

MILTON, Nov. 10.—Two orphan children named Allen and Oscar Anderson, aged 7 and 5 years, sons of the late William Anderson living with their grandmother, Mrs. McColl, near Campbellville, while left alone in the house for a few minutes about noon to-day undertook to load a rifle. Oscar was sitting on a chair holding the muzzle of the rifle against his breast and Allen put in a cartridge, and while in this position the shot was fired. The ball entered the breast, went through the body and the back of the chair and out of the open door. Allen ran out of the house and gave the alarm, and when some neighbors arrived they found Oscar still sitting on the chair quite dead. Coroner Freeman did not consider an inquest necessary.

Shot By a Companion.

STRATFORD, Nov. 10.—George Herd, aged 10, while playing with a companion this morning, was shot in the side of the head by Walter Quinn, a boy of similar age, with a 22 calibre revolver. Fortunately the bullet struck a thick part of the skull. The boy was chloroformed and the ball extracted. The boy, whose father is in California, his mother being dead, is living with Mrs. Robse. He is doing well and no danger is feared if blood-poisoning does not ensue.

Tragic Fate of a Desperado in Prison at Jackson, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 10.—The trial of Joe Jackson, one of the Rube Burrows gang, confined in the penitentiary here for train-robbery, was to have begun this morning. Jackson had provided himself with a large knife, and when officers unlocked his cell door he rushed out and ascended to the third floor of the corridor, where for some time he defied them. Finally the officers closed in upon Jackson, when suddenly he jumped down to the brick floor of the court below and was instantly killed.

A London Baker Dies from the Effects of Blood Poisoning.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Mr. S. G. Bartlett, baker, of this city, died at his residence at noon yesterday from the effects of blood poisoning and lockjaw, brought about by stepping on a rusty nail a week past. The nail penetrated one of the arteries in his foot, and Mr. Bartlett took, as he imagined, the necessary precautions in cleansing the wound, which healed up. Nothing further was thought of the matter until Friday last, when he felt a stiffening of the joints in his legs, and consulted his medical adviser, who at once ordered him to bed, and warned Mrs. Bartlett of the dangerous condition of her husband. Everything possible was done, but he succumbed at the time stated, leaving a widow and seven of a family to mourn his loss.

BIRCHALL DESPONDENT.

Fears Concerned About His Lifeless Clay than His Existence.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 10.—Birchall is growing despondent and appears to be anxious for the fatal day. Of late his sleep has not been sound and his face shows signs of the awful mental strain which he has to bear. He frequently talks of his death and says he regrets the possibility that the doctors will cut him open in their post-mortem examination. He is anxious that his remains be securely entombed in a bricked vault lest they be stolen by some graceless members of the medical profession, whom he describes as rubbing their hands in anxious ecstasy to lay hold of him after he is dead and carve him up. He laughs at those who think that he would attempt to cheat the gallows of its victim and says that he is not of the stuff that suicides are made of.

Mrs. Birchall has received a telegram from Dudley, one of Birchall's most intimate companions during his visit to Woodstock in 1888 and '89 in the role of Lord Somerset. The telegram is dated from Point Edward and contains a request for $3 to enable him to visit the prisoner before he dies.

A motion for security for costs in the action of Greene v. The Globe was to have been argued yesterday at Osgoode Hall but was enlarged. Mr. Hilton, who appears for the plaintiff, has secured an affidavit from Birchall which will be read in answer to the application. It is understood that Birchall denies having made the alleged confession or having mentioned Greene's name to any person in connection with Boswell's murder.

Wife-Murderer Day Has Hopes.

WELLAND, Nov. 10.—Day, the Rochester, N.Y., wife-murderer, heard of the refusal of the Governor-General to interfere in the Birchall matter without apparent emotion. He does not base hope of escaping the gallows on the pardoning power of the crown, yet is confident that he will not be hanged.

The Court of Queen's Bench, which meets at Toronto on the 17th, will take up the "reserved" points made by Mr. German in the condemned man's case, and if the judge considers the evidence which Mr. German objected to should not have been admitted Day will be liberated. All the other evidence in the case goes for naught in the event of such decision.

Morin Wants a New Trial.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—M. N. A. Belcourt, barrister, received instructions this morning from Mr. P. A. Choquette, M.P. for Montmagny, to make application to the Supreme Court on Wednesday next for another trial for Morin, under sentence of death for murder.

WASHED FROM THE RIGGING.

The Newly Wedded Heir to an Earldom Perishes—His Yacht Frania Founders in Belfast Lough.

BELFAST, Nov. 10.—Particulars of the wreck of the yacht Frania, belonging to Viscount Cantelupe, eldest son and heir of Earl Delaware, show that it foundered in Belfast Lough. The yacht which attempted to ride out the storm at anchor dragged ashore and struck on the shore rocks. Viscount Cantilupe was on board the yacht and was drowned, but the crew were saved. The Viscount climbed the rigging and cheered the men for awhile, but the cold was so bitter that he became benumbed and was swept overboard.

The Viscount Cantelupe is the eldest son of the Earl of Delawarr and nephew of Lord Sackville, formerly British Minister at Washington. He was born in 1868, and his prospects were very brilliant. Had he lived he would have been eighth Earl of Delawarr and inherited the entailed estates. Viscountess Cantelupe was Miss Dorothy Hamiltne, eldest daughter of Mr. John Postle Hamiltne of Walhampton, Park, Lymington. Among the bridesmaids at her marriage were Lady Ethelina Sackville and Lady Leonora Mary Sackville, sisters of the bridegroom. The wedding, which was one of the most fashionable of the season, was attended by the Marchioness of Lorne, the Countess of Derby, the Marchioness of Abergavenny, Countess Grosvenor, the Duchess of Bedford, the Countess of Galloway, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, Countess Dundonald, Sir Stafford and Lady Northcote. In case the Viscount should have no posthumous heir, the title which would have been his will go to his brother, Hon. Gilbert Charles Reginald Sackville, who was born March [illegible]

HAMILTON ELECTION TRIAL.

Col. Collier's Alleged Little Deal With Mr. T. Stinson.

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—Promptly at 10 o'clock this morning the examination of Mr. Stinson on the election suit was proceeded with.

Mr. Stinson on being sworn said: "I was a candidate in June last for the constituency of Hamilton in the Local Legislature. I ran for the Legislature in the interest of the Liberal-Conservative party. Our headquarters were at the corner of King and James-streets, and there was a committee-room in each ward. I don't know who was treasurer of the central committee. I subscribed $500 and didn't inquire what it was for. No account was ever given of the money, nor did I ask for it. That was on June 2. I know Col. Collier, but I don't know whether he worked for me during the election, and never got him to do anything for me. I don't know anything about him and don't want to. I became acquainted with Col. Collier about two weeks before the election, which was the first time I saw him. I had a talk with him about the election in my office. I think he came in shortly after the election and again in August. I saw him three times. Our first interview lasted five minutes and we were alone; on the second occasion about three minutes, and my clerk was present; in August he saw me alone at the Queen's Hotel, Niagara. I have talked with McNair about that interview since. The interviews were on the subject of the election and ran into financial matters somewhat. The talk was of betting on the election."

"He came to you desiring to aid you? He professed to?"

"Yes, but I gave him the cold shoulder. I didn't want him."

"You didn't do anything to offend him at the first interview?"

"No, we parted friendly. At the second interview he told me he had bet on the election and referred to the former interview. I don't think I told him a protest was pending, nor at the second interview. I had not been spoken to in regard to Collier before the first interview, nor had I heard of him in any way. He was a perfect stranger. He did not tell me he had a grievance against Mr. Gibson over a railway charter. The two subsequent interviews had reference to what passed at the first interview. I did not hear after the first interview that Collier was working for me. I heard he was turned out of headquarters one night for being drunk. That is all I know about him. I did not hear he was betting on the election until afterwards, when I heard he had made money in that way. At the first interview he said he was hard up and was giving notes payable after the election, and he wanted me to promise that I would pay those notes. I told him I couldn't do it—that lending money was not my business. That is all there was about it. I was sure during the whole election I'd win. I don't know that any aliens voted for me. I don't know of any naturalization papers being made out in my office. When I ran against an alien I sent him to the headquarters. I read the Election Act to see what I could do—I was anxious to do what was right. I referred to the law books from time to time to see what was a corrupt act in the meaning of the statute."

On cross-examination by Mr. Nesbitt, Mr. Stinson repeated the Collier story: "On the first occasion Collier came to my office he had a notebook, which he desired me to look over. It purported to contain a record of certain debts he owed to creditors in the city, amounting in all, I think, to $310. He said he was betting and giving notes payable one day after the election and requested me in the event of his losing to promise to pay those notes. I said: 'Colonel, you know I can't do that; it is against the election act,' and I pointed out very strongly that I was not doing that business at all. He said good morning and left. On the second occasion he came to me I heard he had won money. He asked me if I was going to pay those debts. I told him, 'No, you know there was no promise or understanding between us at all, and it is utterly impossible for me to do anything of the kind.' He left then. I went down to Niagara about June 19, and he came to see me at the Queen's Hotel. I was lying under the trees when he came to me and said: 'I want one thousand dollars.' I asked for what? He said for the services he had rendered during the election. I said: 'You never were authorized to spend any money. You were not an agent of mine—utterly unknown to me, and I cannot do anything for you.' This angered him greatly, and he said: 'You will never be elected again in Hamilton—I will bet you 2 to 1, 4 to 1, $500 to $100 you can't be elected again.' He was a little riled. His buggy was standing outside the gate and, pointing to a tree on which was a placard reading, 'Excursionists are not allowed on these grounds,' I said: 'Now, Collier, go! and he went."

Mr. Nesbitt: You pointed to a tree marked to get out and he got?

Mr. Stinson: If my wife had been within fifteen yards of the place I would have knocked him down. He was never promised a cent, never got a cent and never will get a cent.

Hamilton Jots.

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—The body of William Harris, who was drowned on Thanksgiving Day, was found this afternoon a short distance from Carroll's Point.

Alexander Macdonald was arrested and taken to to-day Berlin on a charge of rape.

Many Workmen Killed

PRAGUE, Nov. 10.—A portion of the roof of a house in course of erection in this city collapsed to-day, demolishing a scaffold upon which a number of men were working. Five dead workmen and five injured ones have been extricated from the ruins. Others are still buried in the debris.

There Will be No Compromise.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 10.—The city was full of baseball people to-day in anticipation of the Players' League meeting here to-morrow. A Players' official declared that the league would continue next year, and that the National League refused to entertain their overtures and prevented a compromise. He said that Brooklyns and New Yorks have not compromised.

Mirrors of Wood.

In Germany wood with a mirror polish is coming into use for ornamental purposes in place of metal. The wood is first submitted to a bath of caustic alkali for two or three days at the temperature of about 175 degrees Fahrenheit, then dipped in hydrosulphate of calcium for 24 to 30 hours, after which a concentrated solution of sulphur is added. After another dip in an acetate of lead solution at about 100 degrees, a shining metallic surface is given by polishing when dry with lead, tin or zinc.

A Black Philosopher.

Saidi is Stanley's black boy, says London Truth. He is exceedingly sharp. The other day he incidentally referred to "damned niggers." "Hush," said some one, "you should not say such words before ladies." "Then I will not say them at all; for what ought not to be said before ladies should not be said before gentlemen," replied this philosopher.

H. C. Wheeler, of Odebolt, Sac County, has under cultivation the largest farm in Iowa. It comprises 6,800 acres

STANLEY'S STORY TRUE.

BONNY'S ADDED HORRORS TO THE DISCLOSURES.

Major Barttelot Courted His Fate—Substantiation of the Charge That Jamieson Had a Girl Killed in Order That He Might Witness the Cannibalistic Orgies.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Times publishes a three-column statement from Mr. Bonny. The writer opens by regretting that Barttelot's brother has forced the disclosure of a painful story. Bonny says Stanley only heard of the poisoning suspicions from him on the 20th of last October in the course of a conversation on Barttelot's book. Bonny testifies that when Barttelot and Jamieson, after questioning Arabs belonging to Stanley's previous expedition as to the fate of Pocock and others, expressed the opinion that Stanley would poison anybody. He admitted that rumors to that effect were current in Europe, but nothing was ever proved against Stanley. Barttelot and Jamieson agreed not to partake of his hospitality. Bonny confirms the report that Barttelot asked him for a tasteless poison with which to remove Tippoo Tib's nephew, Salim, with whom he had had a quarrel. Bonny pretended to search for such a poison, but hid all the poisons. He then told Barttelot, who was angry, that he procured cyanide of potassium, but rejected it as useless for the purpose on account of its salinity. Barttelot did not make further attempts to poison Salim.

Barttelot's Brutality.

Bonny confirms the statement that Barttelot deliberately bit a woman. The major, he says, fastened his teeth in the woman's cheek, not in her shoulder, as stated. For this Barttelot would have been lynched if Bonny had not rescued him. Bonny still bears on his forehead and other parts of his person the marks of the wounds received by him in the fight with the natives that followed the incident. Bonny says it is quite true that the major grinned ferociously at the natives and that he prodded them with a steel-pointed staff. He has not the slightest doubt that the boy Soudi died from the effects of a kick given him by Barttelot. The major often called the boy names and distorted his face before him. On one occasion he hit the boy with a stick on the forehead, raising a lump as big as a door knob. Barttelot kicked the boy the day before he was killed. Gangrene from his injuries caused the boy's death. Bonny confirms the statement that the mission boy John Henry, who spoke the English, Arabic and Zanzibar languages and who acted as interpreter, died from effects of 300 lashes. His child not deserting as stated, but was left on the road. After Barttelot flogged him he feared to return because he had sold Barttelot's revolver to secure food. The major recaptured the boy and threatened to shoot him or cut off his ears. Bonny protested when the major had the boy publicly sentenced to be shot, not intending to carry out the sentence. The whole camp threatened to desert if the sentence was carried out. Barttelot then exclaimed, "Then, by God, I will give him 300 lashes!" Four Soudanese, each one over six feet in height, were selected to give 75 lashes each. Henry became insensible after receiving 30 lashes. The scene was the most horrible he (Bonny) ever saw. Mortification set in, and the flesh of the victim fell in pieces to the ground. His body was swelled to twice its ordinary size, and he died in 34 hours. Bonny tells of the unprovoked stabbing of the Chief Ugunga by Barttelot with a pen-knife, an incident which Stanley has not mentioned, but which the narrator says Troup can confirm.

The Quarrel With the Chief.

He declares, in speaking of the murder of Barttelot, that the best feeling prevailed in the village till the major arrived. Immediately upon his arrival the major demanded that the chief produce 60 slaves within four days as well as supplies of food, etc. Upon the chief stating that that was impossible in such a short time, the major began to abuse him and threatened to devastate the village. This began the ill-feeling. On the 18th the boy Soudi was kicked by Barttelot and I saved the major after he had bitten the woman. On the same night he prodded a Maniyuma, a friend of Sanga's, 30 times, and finished by beating out the man's brains before the eyes of the whole village. Again I was obliged to fight to save his life. I was only able to keep the natives back by knocking down Barttelot myself, pretending to punish him. I believed that the man he killed had fired at our house the previous night, but there was no proof of it. He occupied my house because nobody would give him one. The firing continued throughout the night as an expression of hatred. The only wonder is we were not both killed. Bonny confirms Stanley's account of the murder of Barttelot, except that Barttelot had not a cypress staff, but had a revolver in his hand and punched and kicked the woman. Bonny justifies the sentence of death on the Soudanese soldier, Burgon Mishommed, but says Stanley is entirely correct in stating that Barttelot projected an expenditure of his own by which it was planned to reach Casati and not go to Uregiri. Bonny threatened that he would enlist the assistance of the Arabs to frustrate this plan and therefore it was dropped. He never thought Stanley was dead.

Bonny Defends Himself.

With regard to Stanley's charge against him of a lack of initiative, Bonny says he is glad Barttelot's blood is not on his head, as it would have been had he violently resented and tried to stop Barttelot's doings. Had he done so the whole camp so exonerated the major that in a moment, on the raising of Bonny's hand, Barttelot would have been torn limb from limb. Bonny admits that combined action might have succeeded, but the relations of the officers were too strained and a single written protest would have made the protestor a marked man, and it was no slight matter to incur Barttelot's dislike. Bonny declares that he has no doubt of the correctness of Jamieson's story.

The Cannibal Scene.

Jamieson showed him the sketches of the cannibalistic scene and described it in detail. Six sketches are now in possession of Jamieson's widow. They represent the frying up, killing and carving of the girl, the distribution of the flesh to the natives, the scrambling for the pieces and the cooking and feasting. Bonny declares that he told Barttelot's brother of the whole proceedings, and that had he published the complete diaries they would have thrown much light on the affair. He says in conclusion that he has only believe that Barttelot was insane. He wrote to this effect in 1888 to Sir Walter Barttelot, in relating his reasons for this belief, and he thought it a pity that the dead man's relatives failed to take this charitable view.

A communication from Stanley appears in this morning's Times, in which he gives the names of the persons who informed him of the Jamieson incident. He says Jamieson said that if such a charge were brought against him he would deny it, also that clergyman in London had seen a negro's head and neck which Jamieson had sent home to be stuffed. Stanley adds that he could not have believed the story himself had not Jamieson appeared to glory in the fact that he was the only white man who had seen cannibalism.

The Times calls upon the Barttelots and Mrs. Jamieson to publish everything in their possession in order that the whole dreadful business may be cleared up.

TOWED BY A WHALE.

A Harpooned Jonah Swallower Smashes a Boat and Drowns Its Occupants—Not a Single Survivor.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 10.—The loss of six men from the whaler Charles W. Morgan, which arrived Saturday from Okhotsk Sea, is just made public. The men left the vessel in a small boat in pursuit of a whale. The whale was harpooned and started off rapidly, towing after him the boat, which contained Second Mate A. Martin and five seamen. A fog set in and nothing was ever found of the boat. It is believed the whale smashed the boat killing the occupants.

The whaler Narwhale from Fox Island reports six men washed from the decks during a gale, but two of the men were thrown back alive by a return wave.

The Ocean Wave Believed to be Lost with All Her Crew.

OSWEGO, Nov. 10.—The schooner Ocean Wave was found capsized this afternoon 12 miles out in the lake, due north of this port. The yawl was fast to the schooner. The crew is supposed to have perished. She was loaded with lumber consigned to an Oswego firm. The Ocean Wave is owned by the captain, John Brockenshire of Cobourg, and the mate, William Martin of Port Hope.

If Your House is on Fire.

You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WHITE WINGED PEACE.

SPEECHES AT THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

While Sir Stafford Northcote Announces that All the British Troops Are to Be Armed With the New Magazine Rifle, Salisbury Sees Peaceful Omens.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Lord Mayor gave the customary banquet to the Ministry to-night. Edward Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, replying to a toast to "the Army," said that all the regular troops would be armed early in 1891 with the new magazine rifles. The experiments made with this weapon had been in every way satisfactory.

Lord Salisbury replied to the toast "The Government." He said he regarded as a good omen of peace throughout the world and of a general entente among nations the fact that the Czarewitch was about to visit India as the guest of the Queen. He felt that this visit represented the growth of friendly ideas in Russia with reference to India—ideas that were pregnant with benefit to both countries and that afforded additional security for the peace of Europe.

Touching the African agreements made with France and Germany he said they tended to cement the relations of England with those countries, while the negotiations with Italy were making progress towards a successful issue. Although the dispute with Portugal had not been so happily arranged still the position did not justify any sinister apprehensions.

Referring to the trade with America Lord Salisbury said that the McKinley tariff law would certainly affect some portion of British commerce. Free Traders could rejoice over the recent electoral victories as a protest against extravagant and utterly selfish protection., but they must not draw conclusions too rashly. They must still face the prospect of prohibitive tariffs. England had no retaliatory schemes, as she had reduced her own tariff to the lowest point.

Referring to relations between labor and capital the Premier said that if they had an 8-hours bill forbidding men to exercise their strength and skill an hour or two more, thus imposing hindrances on production, they must be prepared to meet, as a natural result, the victorious competition of other countries where labor is not so embarrassed. The government, he declared, would not interfere at all in the dispute between capital and labor. State interference would do more harm than good and the differences would in course of time adjust themselves. Unwise interested and interested politicians might mislead some workmen, but the heart and mind of the country would remain patriotic and true to economic and commercial traditions. [Cheers.]

All Due to the Hog.

The Premier said he believed the McKinley tariff bill was due to the idea that American pigs had failed to receive proper treatment at the hands of Europe. He defended England's desire to augment and consolidate her territory on the ground that all other countries were protective and compelled her to depend on trade within the Queen's empire for the vital force of British commerce. He regarded his tariff question as the world's conflict of the future. "It will be an interesting consideration for us," he said, "whether our attitude can be sustained or whether the madness of our neighbors will force us to deflect in any degree from the sound and sensible position we now occupy."

He declined to enter into political prophecies the futility of which, he said, recent events had fully shown. For example Boulanger had won bye elections in all the great towns of France, but he had somehow failed to win in the end. Skilled wire-pullers in America had been surprised at the sudden uprising of free trade and European political men had been equally astonished at the defeat of Tricoupis in Greece.

The London Stock Exchange Panics.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—On the Stock Exchange to-day the feeling of alarm and apprehension as to the results of the coming settlement became intense. Every kind of security was freely sold. American railroads were panicky and the depression was especially marked on dealings in the street. On cable advices reporting declines in New York heavy sales were made here. The leading provincial exchanges show a rapid increase of distrust. The day's fall in American railroads ranges from 1½ to 5. The future of the gold movement is obscure. Several financial houses in Paris are trying to induce the Bank of France to assist English firms to complete an engagement to deliver £500,000 gold in Madrid during the week. If the Bank of France accedes action will be taken to avert an increase of the Bank of England's rate of discount and to ease the settlement.

Prices on the Bourse at Paris to-day were fairly steady, though foreign securities fluctuated somewhat. Rio Tinto lost 6½ francs and Credit Foncier 5½ francs.

At Berlin there was a favorable feeling on the opening of the boerse to-day, but prices relapsed on advices from London and closed weak with a fractional fall in foreigners, mines and local speculative stocks.

The Bank of the Netherlands at The Hague has advanced its rate of discount from 3 per cent. to 3½ per cent.

New York, Nov. 10.—Jay Gould, when questioned to-day concerning the great fall of prices in Wall street, said:

"There is a very great depression, but there is no doubt the market would have righteditself if the trouble in London had not come up. How much further it will go I do not know. I only know that anyone who has the courage to buy now and the patience to wait will make money, so far as I know anything about the different properties they are all right and there is no reason for the present low prices. The railroads are all doing very well."

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Bank of France has consented to supply Madrid with £300,000 in gold.

ERZEROUM, Nov. 10.—Five hundred Armenians concentrated at Modor, in Russian territory, yesterday and made a raid on several Kurds' villages, killing five persons. A Scotch Railway strike.

GREENOCK, Nov. 10.—At a mass meeting of railway men here to-day it was decided to go out on a strike. This action was taken in consequence of the companies having refused either to lessen the hours of labor or to submit the men's demand to arbitration. The men will all quit work on the same day. The date has not yet been fixed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—Mr. T. P. They will visit Canada after American tour without reference to whether they will be arrested there or not. They are entirely indifferent on the question."

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus now computed during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is due to its not large guaranteed additional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home in finance, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

The Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1890.

NEXT week the trials of petitions filed against the return of members of the Ontario legislature will begin. The first case to be heard will be that of North Renfrew, the trial of which will commence at Pembroke to-day.

THE combining of the offices of Deputy Minister and Chief Engineer of Canals in the person of Mr. Trudeau is favourably commented on on all hands at Ottawa. The Free Press, which cannot be charged with frequent indulgence in eulogiums, says of the matter:—"The appointment of Mr. Trudeau, Deputy Minister of Railways, to the position of Chief Engineer of Canals will be generally approved. Mr. Trudeau is an experienced engineer, and all who have had to transact business with the Railway Department since his appointment as Deputy Minister can bear testimony to the uniform courtesy, fairness, and capacity which he has displayed."

THE BRITISH FARMER DELEGATES.

The British Farmer Delegates who have been visiting Canada for the purpose of noting our agricultural methods and satisfying themselves as to the richness and extent of our agricultural resources, after a brief visit with open eyes, have returned home. They were representative men of their class, and the favorable report of this country which they will doubtless carry back with them, will be listened to with respect by the farmers of Great Britain, who look to this country for a freehold home, and will doubtless tend to increase our farming population and lay many now idle acres of our territory under tribute to tillage. The Ontario Government, perceiving the influence which these delegates could wield, and always on the alert to benefit the farming community and to develop the agricultural resources of the Province, took the delegates in hand, and arranged a systematic tour for them. That the delegates had a pleasant visit, goes without saying, that they had a visit that was full of instruction to them, and that favourably impressed them with the almost limitless agricultural resources of Canada and Ontario especially, also admits of little doubt; and that the tour will be of great benefit to this province is pretty certain. Each of these delegates will return home practically an emigration agent to Ontario, for each one will, doubtless, on his return home, answer the eager inquiries of the discontented British agriculturalists with an emphasis that will leave, no doubt, of the desirability of Ontario as a home for the farmer. A sketch of the tour of these delegates as given by Mr. A. Blue, the wide-awake Secretary of the Bureau of Industries, will form pleasant reading, not only to our farmers, but to all classes, for the filling up of our country with sturdy farmers, will affect and effect, to a large degree, the prosperity of all classes of society:

Mr. Blue gives the following account of the trip with the delegates:—I left Toronto Tuesday afternoon, he says, with Mr. Hobson and Mr. Murphy, and at Hamilton we met the other three gentlemen, who were returning from a visit to the Falls. We went out to Brantford in the evening and drove out to the Bow Park farm Wednesday morning. The Britishers seemed to be greatly pleased with the farm and the famous herd of shorthorns upon it. But they looked upon everything with a critical eye, and the smallest defect did not escape their notice. The herd of 34 two-year-old heifers, grazing on one of the rich pasture fields, was much admired, especially a roan Duchess. Some were "goodish," some were "finish," some were "cowish" and some were a little "bullish," but taking them all round they were pronounced a splendid lot for breeding purposes. One of the aged cows was said to be unsurpassed in any herd in England, and the same favorable judgment was passed upon one of the bulls. It was an education to hear those men criticise in their free way the various animals of what is indisputably the best large herd of shorthorns in America.

I took Mr. Wood and Mr. Scotson up over my old tramping ground in the counties of Elgin, Kent and Essex. We reached St. Thomas Wednesday afternoon, and in the company of Ald. Martin and Mr. Disher we took a drive through South Yarmouth, Sparta way. That is a beautiful country, as any one who has gone through it must allow. "Men have been talking farming ever since we came to Canada," Mr. Wood remarked, "but here they are doing it." We halted for a few minutes on the high land overlooking Quaker Valley, and the delegates feasted their eyes upon the scene which lay spread like a beautiful panorama below them and for several miles south and east and west before them. "There is Jordan Minor's," Mr. Disher said, "and on the other side is Isaac Haight's—and Isaac has dug $200,000 out of that farm—and over on the south side of the Union and Sparta road is David Harvey's—no better land lies out of doors." Sparta was seen two or three miles off towards the south-east, and each one of the intervening farms was declared to be as good as the ones named. But we had to hurry on, and behind a team of splendid bays we were not long in reaching Union and up the old gravel road to the city again. The Canada Southern express took us the same evening to Ridgetown, making 44 miles in 64 minutes—quite as good speed, the delegates allowed, as most trains make in England. But of horse travel they say the English horse is no kind of match for the Canadian one. "Why your horse can beat ours twice over, and then they are fresh."

Thursday morning it was our good fortune to have the company of my old friend John P. McKinlay, himself for many years one of the most successful farmers in Howard. He was able in the course of the forenoon's drive to give the delegates much valuable information about the country, the manner of cropping the land, and a good deal else besides. We turned east as far as the Oxford townline, and the visitors almost went into raptures over the country between the road and the lake. There is not a finer bit of landscape anywhere, it has always seemed to me, and I have seen a good deal of Canada and the United States. Going westward we went by Troy to Blenheim, along the Ridge Road, a very pleasant drive most of the way. At Blenheim we met Dr. Samson and three or four well-to-do farmers of the vicinity, among them Mr. Wilkie, Mr. Fole, Mr. Cameron and Squire McMichael. The doctor gave us a spin four miles down the road towards Rond Eau harbor, by exceedingly fertile and well cultivated farms. In the afternoon we drove 12 miles on the lake shore road into Raleigh through an almost continuous orchard of apple and peach, and here and there a vineyard. The wheat fields looked wondrously luxuriant, and we were told that in every case the land had grown a crop of barley this year. "You see that field," Dr. Samson said, as we were passing Mr. Cameron's farm. "Mr. Cameron took $900 worth of beans off it this year, and he had the money in his pocket 90 days from the day the beans were planted." "I never saw such a rich growth of wheat in the fall of the year," Mr. Wood said as we were driving back to the village; "such clean wheat and of so good a color; we would say it was a bit too good in England. This must be the pick of the farm land in Canada." And Mr. Scotson was not less emphatic in praise of it. "You may say what you like, but there is nothing better than this in England. As beautiful a country as the sun ever shone on." We drove over 50 miles that day—about 55.

In the evening we went by train to Chatham and thence by the Grand Trunk to Windsor. Friday forenoon was spent in visiting the vineyards in the vicinity of Sandwich, and the wine-press of Mr. Ernest Girardot, Mayor of the town. The first vineyard was planted by Mr. Tournier in 1873, but most of them are less than ten years old, and there are now about 600 acres in vines. The industry has proven to be a very successful one, and wine of excellent quality is produced. Mayor Girardot, his father, the respected school inspector, and Mr. Tournier gave a great deal of instructive information to the delegates, and treated them very hospitably besides, I need not add. We left Windsor in the afternoon and made a fast run to London.

I am sure the Englishmen are delighted with their trip and that they will be the bearers of good tidings to their own people of what they have seen and heard in Elgin, Kent and Essex during the last three days. We had intended going into the south of Essex, but could not make the train connections, and the delegates were crowded for time, having to sail from Quebec next Thursday morning.

MAJOR M'KINLEY.

He Claims Protection is Stronger Than Ever—Harrison for President.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 10.—In an interview here yesterday Major McKinley said: Protection is stronger to-day than it ever was and it will continue to grow in favor. The tariff was made the issue during the campaign, but it was but three and one-half weeks old when the election occurred and many of its provisions have not yet gone into effect. The bill was misunderstood and shamefully misrepresented. All great measures have met with temporary defeat. The same issue will come to the front in 1892, and it will then be better understood. We have little to fear in the future if we have a free ballot and a fair count.

When asked if there would be any important legislation enacted during the coming session he said he did not know of any.

"We did not leave much undone during the past session," he remarked with a smile.

Major McKinley feels confident that the Senate will pass the Lodge Federal Election bill before the close of the session.

When asked who was foremost for President in 1892 among the Republicans, he replied that he knew of no candidate except Harrison. He emphatically denied that he was in the field either for President in 1892, or Governor of Ohio in 1891. "I am not a candidate, for one thing," said he.

ELOPED WITH THE JAPS.

Two American Girls Who Are Believed to Be in Toronto.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 10.—Two Japanese students of Michigan University have created quite a sensation by eloping with two American girls from here. The Japs are Kulsutaro Fukushima and Reitaro Tokano, both of noble families and graduates of the law department here last year. One of the girls is Miss Fuller of Ypsilanti, who is of good family and very handsome. The other woman was considerably older and well known among certain circles. The elopers were traced to Detroit, then to Windsor, where they bought tickets for Toronto.

While the Watchdog Slept.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—Twelve thousand dollars was stolen on the Georgia railroad between Comer's and Oconee bridge last night. Messenger Ficklin was asleep on a cot and the robber must have entered the door next the engine. The robber opened the safe with a key which he took from Ficklin's vest which hung on the wall.

The Farmers' Alliance Jubilant.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—L. S. Polk, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, is jubilant over the result of the elections. He said yesterday: "We are here to stay. This great reform movement will not cease until it has impressed itself indelibly in the nation's history. Financial reform is the necessity of the hour and it must come. The press and the voice of the stump speaker were our only assistants. The alliance had no campaign funds, no boodle. If we had money we would not have used it. The fight was no small affair. The extremists of both parties attacked us bitterly and gave no inch of ground. In the South it was the Democrats who opposed us; in the North our most vigorous antagonists were Republicans."

Purify Your Blood

The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

THE THUNDERBOLT.

A Motor to Run From New York to Philadelphia in 36 Minutes.

To New York in thirty-six minutes on a train going at the rate of 150 miles an hour, all within the next ten years!

Such was the alluring possibility of future travel held out by Professor William D. Marks, the supervising engineer of the Edison Electric Light Company of Philadelphia, and an authority on all matters electrical, in speaking of the future development of the wondrous power of electric current.

"I am willing," said the professor, "to stake my reputation as an electrical engineer on my ability to construct an electric motor that would take a train to New York in that time. Understand, that I am not romancing, but am simply speaking from the knowledge of the possibilities of electricity that I have gained in my work as an engineer. Such tremendous speed could not be made of course, on the railroads now built between here and New York, but it would be entirely possible on a road such as I have in my mind's eye, and which I believe will be constructed before many years.

"This road should be perfectly straight between here and New York, or with curves of so slight a radius that they would not be a source of danger. The construction should be of the most substantial kind, with absolutely no grade crossings; bridges of stone wherever possible, and rails much heavier than any now used. These would be insulated from the ties by some non-conducting material. Between here and New York there should be four electric stations, with enormous dynamos driven by two compound condensing engines of 5,000 horse power each. From these stations a tremendous amount of electricity should be poured into the rail.

"The trains that would run over this railroad would be drawn by 100,000 pound motors. This great weight would be chiefly necessary to hold the motors to the track. One man could run a motor instead of the two now required to run a locomotive. The cars would probably be round and entirely inclosed, and would receive their supply of air from ventilators much like those in use on steamships.

"A train running at the rate of 150 miles an hour would, of course, be like a tornado that would sweep up everything near its course. This would make it necessary to protect passengers at way stations by having tall sheets of solid iron between the track and the platform to prevent them from being sucked in by passing trains. All buildings near the tracks would have to be removed to some distance for the same reason. Under these conditions, which could be readily accomplished by money, there is no reason why trains should not run from here to New York in thirty-six minutes and carry heavier loads than now.

"This would be an ideal road, but all these details would not be necessary for slower rates of speed. Any track could be adapted to electric motors. The Pennsylvania railroad between here and New York could be operated more cheaply by electricity than by steam. An electric motor can be controlled more readily than a locomotive and is much more economical in its workings. More trains could be run than at present and their carrying capacity would be greater. There would not be the slightest difficulty in running the Pennsylvania railroad much better and more cheaply than now.

"It is a curious fact, however, that the engineering officials of railroads, wrapped up in the routine of their work, can see nothing more in electricity than something by which telegraph instruments are worked. They seem indifferent to the wonderful development of its powers in the last few years, and go in their old ruts unmoved by progress. Before long, however, I believe they will be compelled to take up electricity as a motive power on the roads. When the public sees how well these electric motors work they will demand that better time shall be made, and shrewd capitalists, foreseeing how popular an air-line road such as I have described would be, will build one. Great as the speed of 150 miles an hour on this would be, it would only be about one-tenth the initial velocity of a cannon ball at the moment of its discharge.

"Some people might think that a track whose rails should be charged with electricity would be dangerous, but it would not. To send a train along at the rate of 150 miles an hour would require only a low pressure current of 500 volts, which would not be dangerous to human life.

"This wonderful speed is no idle dream when you consider that at the centennial the only development of electricity was a few arc lights, which were displayed as a sort of experimental plaything, and that now there is $300,000,000 invested in electric plants in this country alone, you can see what progress has been made. And yet, I believe electricity is only in its infancy of development so far. It is, beyond all doubt, to be the motive power of the future."

WELLINGTON'S KIND HEART.

Two Little Incidents Proving Conclusively that He Had Such an Organ.

A peculiarly delightful letter of the duke of Wellington has been unearthed by Short Cuts, which runs as follows:

"STRATHFIELDSAYE, July 27, 1837.—Field Marshall the duke of Wellington is happy to inform William Harries that his toad is alive and well."

During one of his country walks the duke found a little boy lying on the ground bending his head over a tame toad and crying as if his heart would break. On being asked what was the matter the child explained that he was crying "for his poor toad." He brought it something to eat every morning, but he was now to be sent away to school, a long distance off, and he was afraid that nobody else would give it anything to eat, and that it would die. The duke, however, consoled him by saying that he would himself see the toad well fed, and by further promising to let the boy hear as to its welfare.

During the time the boy was away at school he received no less than five autograph letters similar to that given above, and when he returned for the Christmas holidays the toad was still alive to gladden his heart. The story is even more delightful than that of the duke's indignation when he found that a party of children at Strathfieldsaye—among whom, we believe, was the present prime minister—were having their tea without jam. The incident aroused him to immediate action, and he at once rang the bell and issued a general order that "children's tea" was never to be served in his house with such unfeigned rights."

The New Bonnets.

The new bonnets are of medium size or else very low, small shapes, to be worn with the hair coiled on the nape of the neck. These are very much like a toque, with plaid brims or with corsage fronts.

ONE OF THE THINGS
we are apt to grumble at
IN FRANCE,

THE providing of one's own soap at hotels! Permit me to remark that this is one of those things

They do manage better in France

than we do here. I am strongly of opinion that every one when travelling should carry his or her own soap as one takes one's own hair-brush or sponge. It is much more cleanly, and there can be no better providing in this respect for the hot sun and warm winds and dust of travel than a cake of which, under such circumstances, I have found very efficient in the prevention of sunburn and allied annoyances.

The Drama.

"Dear Irish Boy" held the boards at the opera house last night, and the performance was fairly well attended. Theatre-goers who delight in plays of the "blood and thunder" type could not but be satisfied last night. Gus Reynolds, the heavy villain, gave the spectator cold chills, while the other characters were also well taken.

Otonabee Lodge "At Home."

At a meeting of the Anniversary Celebration Committee of Otonabee Lodge of Odd fellows held last night it was decided to commemorate the anniversary of the resuscitation of the Lodge by an "At Home" on the night of Tuesday, Dec. 9th. The Oddfellows will entertain their friends in the happy social way for which they are noted. The "At Home" will be a pleasant, and it is hoped, successful departure from the concert celebration which has marked other anniversaries.

Another Idol Shattered.

Who has not read the "Pilgrims Progress" and been charmed with the rough but fervid allegory of John Bunyan, who was cast into Bedford jail, as it is said for conscience? But it has been discovered that he richly deserved prison, for he who has posed for two centuries as a saint is a fraud. Instead of being a saint he is an illicit whisky seller. A hotel keeper named John Bunyan was arrested the other day in a western Ontario town charged with keeping open his dive after hours. It is a sad fact that there is no place where you can get the real article in the shape of tea but hawley bros'. The best of teas and rare good coffees. dw

Didn't Like the Situation.

A chubby little ten-year-old lad who is early learning to paddle his own canoe, walked into the police station last night and asked to be let stay there all night. He said his name was George Hill, he had come out from England a couple of years ago to the Marchmont Home at Belleville, and had been apprenticed for some time to a farmer near Lindsay. He was not satisfied with his life there, either his work or his master were too hard for his liking, and he had left him and was on his way back to the Home in Belleville. The precocious youngster was accommodated with a cell, and this morning started off cheerfully for the station to take the train for Belleville.

"Two Old Chums."

The Daily Free Press of London, Ont. Oct. 14th, 1890, says: "Two Old Chums" drew a very fair audience to the Grand last night, and were well rewarded by the performance of this entertaining musical comedy. Messrs. Field and Winchell are amusing comedians, and supported by a talented company, while the musical specialities, by Mr. Harry Austin and others, were highly pleasing. Laughter and music are the features of the "Two Old Chums" performance, in which there is hardly a dull moment for the boys after the curtain rises till it falls. The company appear again to-night. Bradburn's Opera House, Friday, Nov. 14th. 1d

Two Fine Portraits.

Mr. Thomas Workman, our well-known portrait painter, has on his easels two finely executed life size portraits in oil. One of the late Hon. Robert Hamilton, is a very excellent likeness, giving features and expression with great fidelity. Mr. Workman deserves in this case all the more credit as he had to work from a photograph alone. It is an excellent portrait and will make a much valued family picture. The other is a portrait of Mrs. James F. Dennistoun. Mr. Workman has also succeeded very happily in this picture in catching the features and expression of his subject. His treatment of the attire, drapery and accessories of the picture is very clever. Mr. Workman is a successful and deservedly popular portrait painter. He makes life-like pictures with an artistic finish and effect.

The Siding Begun.

Councillors Moore and E. H. D. Hall returned from Toronto last night, with the contract between the town and the C.P.R. company signed and sealed; and this morning work was begun on the new siding. By the contract the town agrees to provide a right of way for the siding, which has been done by purchasing property at a cost of $3 000; the C.P.R. company agree to build the siding, (which will cost about $2 000) maintain it and do all the necessary work in transferring the cars from the main lines to the Edison Co.'s Works; there is also a satisfactory provision for the transfer of Grand Trunk cars over the siding. These preliminaries being satisfactory the C.P.R. officials at once gave orders for the beginning of the siding this morning. Roadmaster Mahoney is at work to-day with a large staff of men, and expects to have the siding finished in two or three days.

Married at Belleville.

The Belleville Ontario says:—Mr. T. Coughlin, foreman stone cutter at the Foxboro, G.T.R. quarries, was married this morning at St. Michael's church to Miss Mary Conlin. Miss Minnie Cary acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. M. Coughlin, of Peterborough, assisted the groom. The bride wore an elegant dress of Russian blue silk. After the nuptial Mass the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's father, on Dunbar street, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was partaken of. Among the many beautiful presents was one from Messrs. Bridgall & Thompson, and one from the clerks of the establishment, where Miss Conlin has been for some time engaged as saleslady. The employees at the quarries took advantage of the happy occasion to present Mr. Coughlin with a valuable gold watch and an elegant easy chair. The presentation was made at the depot before the happy couple left on their bridal tour to Chicago.

Adventurous Youths.

Three Rochester Youths Indulge in a Runaway Excursion.

Three small boys sat with a listless air on the bench in front of the police magistrate this morning. They were very tired, their shoes were muddy, and they looked as if they had been on a long tramp—as indeed they had been. A fair-haired, pale-faced but rather bright-looking thirteen year old boy named Johnnie Barker was the youngest, but the leader of the party. The other boys were James Hayes, aged 15, and Arthur Sandford, aged 14. They belonged to Rochester, and they had run away from their homes.

Saturday night Chief Roezel was wired by the Rochester Superintendent of Police to arrest Master Barker. Last night the young runaway was caught at the Queen's Hotel, where he and his chums had "put up" for the night. The Rochester authorities were notified, and Chief Roezel this morning received a telegram saying that the lad's parents were on their way to Peterborough, and would arrive this evening at nine o'clock.

Master Barker was questioned by the police regarding his escapade. He and the other two boys left their homes last Saturday morning. They had $14 or $15 among them, Barker getting the most of the money from his grandfather, an engineer. They gave no reason for their runaway—they just "started out." Jimmy Hayes had relatives in Peterborough—he was born here and his parents afterwards removed to Rochester. So the trio headed for Peterborough and reached here by train the same night. They boarded at Mrs. Lang's on Charlotte street, until their money gave out. Yesterday they walked to Lakefield, spent the day and returned at night. Mrs. Dineen, of the Queen's hotel, is a relative of young Hayes, and the boys applied there for a night's lodging, which the good lady did not refuse them. Here they were found by the chief, who was looking for Barker. Mrs. Dineen told him he might as well take all the boys, as Hayes had run away from home once before and needed severe treatment. So the three sleepy urchins were trundled off to the police station, and brought before the magistrate this morning. They will be held until their parents arrive this evening.

Barker and Sandford are Rochester newsboys.

A Week of Self Denial.

The Salvation Army Recites Special Self-Denial Services—Major Spooner Has Received His Marching Orders.

All over the world, wherever the red, yellow and blue of the Salvation Army standard has been implanted, these earnest, devoted soldiers of the Cross have set apart the week from Nov. 8th to the 15th as one of self-denial and restraint. The soldiers deny themselves some articles of luxury or even comfort in order to swell the fund which goes to the advancement of the cause; and by this extra means thousands of pounds are raised annually.

The Peterborough corps is just as self-sacrificing as the rest, and already a number of handsome donations have been received. The week was begun last Saturday morning by a prayer meeting at six o'clock. These early prayer meeting will be held every morning this week.

At the Sunday services three penitents were led to the beach.

Last night a "farewell" to Major Spooner was held. There was a large gathering of officers from the outposts, among them being Capt. Forman, of Lakefield; Capts. Rowan and Lieut. Prest, Lindsay; Capts. Murray, Coboconk; Lieut. Scott, Millbrook; Capts. Cook and Neely, Toronto; Capt. Rawlings, on furlough. The street parade was large, those in the procession wearing colored sashes.

Major Spooner led the meeting, in which he was assisted by Ensign Logan and Scribe Mackenzie. Capt. and Mrs. Dennon were in command.

Major Spooner leaves this division bearing the love and best wishes of every officer and soldier. He was highly regarded by all who knew him for his skilful executive ability, as well as his earnest Christian character. His appointment to another division has not yet been gazetted, nor is his successor, who will probably arrive next week, yet known. In his farewell address the Major gave some figures which went to show that during his charge the division has prospered. During his term of office there had been 312 penitents made happy in the Lord, 478 of these being enrolled as soldiers. The division now comprises 23 outposts, all flourishing. Financially the results were also satisfactory, a debt of $400 having been paid off.

The meeting was followed by a light lunch, and then the all-night of prayer was begun, which, in the terms of a soldier, was "a grand time." The four converts who had been made during the evening meeting remained and "received the light." The prayer meeting broke up at four o'clock this morning.

A Long Canoe Voyage.

From Norway House to Selkirk—Searching for the Bodies of Murphy and De Banjean.

A few months ago the Ontario Canoe Company manufactured a large canoe of special design and finish, adapted for a long voyage. The EXAMINER mentioned the fact at the time as a bit of news, and it will be interesting to our readers to learn how the craft sustained the world-wide reputation which Peterborough canoes have won during its lengthy trip, and the adventures it encountered. The Winnipeg Free Press says:—A brief interview with Capt. Begin, inspector, N. W. M. P., who arrived in the city on Tuesday, discloses that he left Norway House for the entrance of Nelson river on the 1st of October with a large Peterborough canoe, together with a sergeant and two men. He had intended coming in by the Norway, Mr. Belanger's yacht, but news being brought by Indians of the loss of the Keewatin, with two men under his charge, and not knowing of any arrangements being made for the recovery of the bodies, material and boat, he decided to at once come on with his canoe for that purpose. On arriving at Berens river, however, he found that the Lieutenant-Governor had been making every exertion for the recovery of the bodies through Mr. McKay, Indian agent, and the Indians of the east coast, so that having ascertained all the points where the wreckage has been found, he thoroughly searched the shore from Pigeon Point to Dog's Head, the men walking on the beach and he himself searching every reef and island with the canoe. By arrangement Mr. McKay was to wait one week after the search made by Captain Begin, and was then to go over the same ground. The weather was stormy, with head wind, some rain and snow. Consider able time was spent in the search referred to, but the voyage was made in entire safety, the canoe (a Peterborough), 18½ feet long, acting very well in stormy weather. Some difficulty was found in the fact that most of the maps giving the short outlines and the positions of the islands are incorrect, and having no guide, this caused considerable delay. The canoe referred to has tasted salt water at York Factory, Capt. Begin having taken her from Norway House to there and from there to Selkirk, thirteen hundred miles.

Christian Endeavor.

Union Meeting of the Peterborough Societies—Rev. Mr. Patterson's Fine Address.

The school-room of the George st. Methodist church was crowded to overflowing last night. There were representatives of the different Christian Endeavor Societies of the town present. Dr. Scott, President of the union society, occupied the chair.

The ministers present were Rev. Messrs. Parker, Torrance, Wilson, Shorey and Locke.

After reading and prayer, Rev. Mr. Patterson delivered a telling address in his peculiarly effective style. He captivated his auditors at once, and held their undivided attention and interest throughout. He pointed out the aims and objects of Christian Endeavor Societies to be the helping of young people to stand up publicly for Christ, and to gain their practical interest in church work. Some people claimed that there was too much machinery about the church, but the speaker argued that as long as they had the Great Power behind them the church work would move along smoothly. The work of the Christian Endeavor Society was likened to a machine shop. There were different departments, in which each laborer had his or her particular work to do, all working for the general good. The question of the member should be, not "am I fit," but "can the Lord make use of me?" In conclusion he urged the young people to endeavor to bring in others to help in the work. His address was most impressive. Every point was forcibly illustrated and backed up by Scripture quotations. Rev. Mr. Patterson is an original thinker and speaker. He has succeeded in greatly pleasing his Peterborough audiences.

Mr. Colville, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., then gave a short address relative to the work. He mentioned the fact that next year the Provincial Convention will be held here and the local union should make preparations to receive them by extending their strength and field of work.

The meeting was closed in the usual way.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The first afternoon meeting in connection with the week of prayer was held yesterday. The attendance was fair, but interest in the impressive addresses of Rev. Messrs. Parker and Patterson was good, and augur well for the showers of blessings which will flow this week. Our evening meeting was withdrawn to enable our young men to hear Rev. Mr. Patterson at the union Y.P. and C.E. meeting in George street Methodist church.

This evening Mr. H. S. Griffin will address the meeting at 8 p.m. All young men welcome.

Rev. Mr. Shorey will address the afternoon meeting to-morrow.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

CENTERVILLE.—The bricklayers have finished their work here on the new store and returned to their homes in Keene.

ECCLESIASTIC.—Divine service is held here twice on Sunday.

HALLOWE'EN.—Hallowe'en was celebrated through here pretty fairly in some places. Rails fell across the the road, gates moved from their places, threshing mill belts and other attachments quietly fitted away. Some severe pranks were played in the well known village of Frazerville. Boys, quit this kind of fun. It is not so bad to engage in things that do nobody any harm, but carrying articles of cost and hiding them away where they will likely never be found, is a shame to the young men of the township.

Arbitrate or Fight.

Some time ago we were assured that this was the position of the "Behring Sea Question. The press of the United States and that of England as well, clamored for "fight," while the sensible men of both nations justly claimed that "arbitration" was the honorable mode, and the only consistent course for two Christian nations to pursue. Calmness and forbearance are, we believe, characteristics of the great Anglo-Saxon family, who should as all times go hand in hand as leaders of the world's destinies.

There are, however, times and occasions when not only Americans and Englishmen, but Canadians as well, should thrown arbitration to the winds, and fight for self, family and country.

These occasions arise, unfortunately, too often, when we are unprepared and unguarded, and as a consequence we are left to the mercy of dangerous and subtile foes, who are at all times cruel and relentless.

Our special object in this article is to show Canadians, who value their own lives, the happiness of their families, and the welfare of our nation, the great necessity of immediate action in the direction of fighting foes which are to be found in almost every household. These foes are are worse and more dangerous than would be an invading army of foot and horse soldiers.

"What are these dangerous and relentless foes?" many will ask. They are nervousness, and over-worked brain, insomnia or sleeplessness, dizziness, a run-down constitution, imperfect circulation, dyspepsia and indigestion.

They are horrible to contemplate; they are more to be dreaded than sword and cannon.

From these terrible troubles that fearful disease Insanity is often brought on, and the stricken one doomed to end his life in an institution repulsive to all.

Reader, you are brought face to face with solemn facts, and unless you are prepared to fight these diseases at once, and with the proper weapon, the fault is your own, and you must bear the awful consequences.

Paine's Celery Compound is the great weapon, the great rock of defence which you must use in your battle against sickness and disease. It has proved a tower of strength and a strong arm to thousands in Canada when attacked and laid low by disease; it has restored them to health, strength and renewed vigor, and showered blessings in all communities.

Paine's Celery Compound in the cure of diseases is like unto the military gun, known as the Mitrailleuse which fires several shots at once towards the enemy.

Paine's Celery Compound when taken and used honestly will at once eradicate all ailments from which the victim suffers.

Canadians, this great boon is within your reach from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and no household should be without it.

Lost Her Life for a Mole.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Miss Marion Jones, aged 14 years, was very pretty, but grieved because her beauty was marred by a mole on the right cheek. Yesterday her parents accompanied her to the Presbyterian Hospital, where she was put under the influence of chloroform and the mole removed by Dr. Charles T. Parker. The girl never recovered from the anæsthetic, and was carried home unconscious. Physicians worked with her all night, but she died early this morning.

Death Due to Dishonor.

MANY DISASTERS ABROAD.

FIFTY DROWNED BY THE COLLAPSE OF A FERRY BOAT.

Ten Killed and Many Injured by a Railway Collision in England—The Signal Man Arrested—Furious Gale on the Irish Coast.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A collision occurred to-day on the Great Western Railway at Norton-Fitzwarren station, near Founten, between a goods train and a special train from Plymouth, which was conveying the passengers from the steamer Norham Castle, which had just arrived at Plymouth from the Cape of Good Hope. Ten persons were killed and eight injured. The condition of several of the injured is serious.

The wreckage was piled up to a height of 30 feet. Some of the passengers were imprisoned in the carriages four hours before they could be released from their unpleasant positions. The negro who was killed was the son of a missionary who is stationed in South Africa and was on his way to America. The signalman has been arrested.

The signalman has been charged with manslaughter and remanded. He is an old man and has been long in the company's service. Several months ago he was knocked down by a pilot engine and had his head injured. Many painful scenes were witnessed while the work of rescue was going on. One of the imprisoned passengers, a bachelor, ordered the rescuers to ignore him and to attend to a wounded comrade who was missed. Both were rescued but they soon died. One man was pinioned in the debris for hours under a stream of blood that dripped from the gory heads of two passengers fastened in the wreck above him.

Furious Gale on the Irish Coast.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A furious gale prevails along the Irish and Welsh coasts and quantities of wreckage have been washed ashore. There is an incessant downpour of rain and the mountain streams have become torrents, and in the Ffestiniog district have swept away a number of workingmen's cottages.

53 Peasants Drowned.

VIENNA, Nov. 11.—A ferry boat capsized in the River Waag, near Biazitnitz, to-day and 53 peasants were drowned. It was overloaded with men, wagons and horses.

A Falling Scaffold Causes Many Deaths.

HAMBURG, Nov. 11.—By the fall of scaffolding in front of a new house in the Schinistrasse to-day five workmen were killed.

A Scotch Railroad Wreck.

EDINBURG, Nov. 11.—A collision took place near the Gorgie station on the Edinburg Suburban Railway. Twelve persons were badly injured.

DEFENDED BY A WOMAN.

A Missouri County Elects a Female County Clerk.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—One of the peculiar features of the contest in Missouri was the election in Jasper County of Mrs. Annie Baxter to be county clerk. W. H. Phelps of that county, member of the state Democratic committee, thus tells how it happened: "In Jasper County we elected Mrs. Baxter county clerk, though the county is strongly Republican. She ran away ahead of the ticket, and has over 600 majority in the county. When the Democrats put her on the ticket, the claim was made that she was ineligible, and the Republican lawyers up there took the same view of the matter. It was not thought at the time that she had any chance of election. Her candidacy was even regarded as a joke in many places.

"The Republicans put up Julius Fischer, a popular resident of Joplin, and he was so sure of his election that he made scarcely any canvass. Mrs. Baxter rode in horseback. She ran ahead of her ticket in every precinct, and while the rest of the ticket went down she came up smiling serenely with a majority of nearly 600. She has been a deputy in the County Clerk's office for years and is a talented and handsome woman, still in the twenties. The miners in the lead districts turned out in force and worked for her all day. They went from one polling place to another singing 'Annie Rooney,' and asked everybody they met to vote for her. They referred to her as 'Annie Rooney.'

"Nearly everybody in the district celebrated her victory yesterday. It is claimed that she is not eligible for the reason that the law requires the incumbent of the office to be a citizen. The 'male citizen' requirement was stricken out some time ago, and Mrs. Baxter will have no end of backing if a contest is made. Mr. Fischer will make a very quiet affair move if he makes a contest, because the people up there insist that Mrs. Baxter must have the office, now that she has been elected."

Janssen Has His Say.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—The Journal de Bruxelles publishes an interview with Governor Janssen of the Congo State in which the latter protests against Ward's trying to saddle upon the Congo State authorities the disasters to the rear guard. The Governor declares that Ward often used the state's steamer, but never said that he sent one to Bartlelot's camp. Janssen said he had heard only vague reports about Jamieson.

A Boy, a Horn and a Calf.

VICTORIA, Nov. 11.—Edward Hicks met with a very painful accident recently. He went to blow the horn to call his brother to dinner, and in passing the barn turned and blew it at a calf standing near. The animal springing at him pushed the horn in his mouth, tearing part of his tongue off.

The Petition Withdrawn.

PEMBROKE, Nov. 11.—No evidence was offered to-day in support of the petition to unseat A. Dunlop, M.L.A. for North Renfrew, for corrupt practices, or the cross-petition against his opponent on similar grounds, and both petitions were dismissed with costs.

Arrived at the Cape.

CAPETOWN, Nov. 11.—Major Johnson and Dr. Jameson, the discoverers of a short route between Mashonaland and the sea by way of the Pungive River, have arrived here from Pungive. They report that the Manica country is being rapidly occupied by mining prospectors and farmers who are ready to set at defiance the Portuguese claims to the territory.

Masked Burglars.

KINGSTON, Nov. 11.—The houses of Patrick and Thomas Kilduff, Ballantyne Station, were broken into by seven or eight masked burglars about 1 o'clock this morning. From one person they took a suit of clothes and the and in Patrick's pockets they got $60.

She Wanted to Die.

KINGSTON, Nov. 11.—A lady living near Cataraqui, who has lately had domestic trouble, went to Cataraqui Cemetery this morning despondent and lay down to die on the sward. The superintendent took charge of her at his residence until friends arrived to take her home.

Many Hurt in a Collision.

HYANNIS, Mass., Nov. 11.—A collision between a passenger train and a construction train occurred near Yarmouth this morning. No one was killed, but several persons were injured or scalded.

THE FATEFUL FRIDAY.

BIRCHALL TO BE HANGED AT 9 O'CLOCK A.M.

His Wife Makes Application for His Dead Body and the County Attorney Recommends the Government to Grant Her Request. Another Alleged Confession.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 11.—It has been decided that Birchall shall be executed at 9 o'clock Friday morning. There is a feeling in the public mind that Birchall will either escape or commit suicide before Friday. This is probably due to the exaggerated reports about the loose manner in which the jail is conducted. So far as these reports are concerned there is little truth in any of them. The jail officials are now carrying out the instructions of the inspector, and there will be no lax of vigilance on their part until the execution is over.

It is said Birchall has made a will bequeathing everything to his wife. What he has to leave to his prospective widow besides an unsavory reputation it is hard to conceive. Everyone knows all the interest he had in his father's estate has been squandered in riotous living. When arrested he had less than $100, but he has made some pretence to his wife that there is a legacy coming to him in May or June next, and this he desires made over to her.

County-Attorney Ball has written the Attorney General, urgently asking him not to allow the body to be buried in the jail yard. Should the request be granted the body will be embalmed here and taken home at once to England by Mrs. Birchall and her sister.

Birchall is engaged in the melancholy duty of preparing for death—writing farewell letters to his mother and to his relatives and to his friends. He is preparing to make his will and to give his final instructions. He continues to protest his innocence of the murder and says that he told a straight story at first he would not now be in the shadow of the gallows. But he didn't; he lied to screen another, and now that the end is almost at hand he would rather die than give that other away.

Mayor Karn has received a communication from the Mayor of Hamilton requesting an order for the admission of two friends to the execution. The order, it is needless to say, has not yet been granted.

Birchall is feeling in excellent spirits. Well dressed and cleanly shaven he looks almost as well as ever he looked. He had an early breakfast of ham and eggs and toast and ate heartily. He listened attentively to the band of the minstrel company which is billed for to-night and expressed his admiration for their playing.

The Sheriff has received a communication from the Attorney-General, authorizing a private interview between Birchall and his wife, if such interview would be possible without danger of anticipating the action of the law. Whether or not the interview will be arranged remains to be seen.

Rev. Oswald Birchall, Buscot Rectory, of Lechlade, S.O., Gloucestershire, England, brother of Reginald Birchall, has cabled friends here asking them to intercede in his behalf to get permission to take the body home to England. Mr. Dugald MacMurchy made application to the Attorney-General for the body, but it is understood the request was not granted, pending probably further advice from Woodstock.

Mr. MacMurchy, unbidden, then appealed to the town council last night and influenced the councillors on sanitary grounds to pass the following resolution.

Moved by Mr. Totten, seconded by Mr. Bird and resolved: Whereas we understand that it is the intention of the authorities to bury the body of Reginald Birchall within the walls of the jail in the town of Woodstock; and whereas the said jail is situated in the most populous part of the said town and in the centre of it, this council are of the opinion that it would be most unwise for sanitary reasons that such burial should take place. This council therefore humbly requests the Attorney-General to direct that such burial do not take place, and that the town clerk be instructed to forward a copy of this resolution to the Attorney-General.

Birchall would sleep all day if Guard Perry would let him. But as soon as he turns over the vigilant guard awakens him and brings him his breakfast and very often his dinner while yet in bed.

Dugald MacMurchy had a long interview with Birchall yesterday afternoon and it is said drew his will. The doomed man wished everything he had left to go to his prospective widow.

Mrs. Birchall visits the jail frequently now. She is never seen in the street except on her way to and from the doomed cell.

Jailer Cameron hailed the guards over the coals this morning for giving to the newspapers scraps of news about Birchall.

Another Crank.

BUFFALO, Nov. 11.—The latest Benwell murder confession is published to-day in an evening paper and purports to come from one Miller, who says he is a member of a gang of conspirators who brought out Englishmen and had an office in London. The first victim, the letter claims, was Augustus Alderson, eldest son of F. C. Alderson, rector of Holdenby, Northampton, England, but he wasted his patrimony before the conspirators could lay their hands on him. The writer says Birchall, himself and two others were in the swamp the day of the murder and proposed to Benwell to join the gang, but he refused. Birchall then left, instructing the others not to hurt Benwell, but as soon as Birchall left they shot him. Subsequently they met Birchall and told him they had chloroformed Benwell.

He Has Expectations

In the action of Graeme v. The Globe, Mr. T. Langton, for the defendants, moved at Osgoode Hall yesterday for security for costs on the ground that the plaintiff is a man of no financial means, and that the action is a frivolous one. Mr. Hilton appeared on behalf of the plaintiff and alleged that his client was in receipt of an income of about $900 per annum, and that on the death of an aunt, now a feeble old lady, he would receive £1000 per annum. At present the plaintiff drives a plumber's wagon, for which he receives $1 per day, but this it was said was in the plaintiff's favor and not against him.

Mr. Hilton had not received Birchall's affidavit, but it is understood he has made one and that it is on the way.

Judgment was reserved.

HIGH TARIFF OR FREE TRADE.

Assemblies of the Knights of Labor to Discuss the Question.

DENVER, Nov. 11.—At the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor to-day General Master Workman Powderly read his annual address, after which the assembly adjourned till to-morrow. After reminding the delegates of the fact that on Dec. 28 the order would enter upon its majority and dwelling upon the growth of the organization during the 21 years and the good accomplished, Mr. Powderly recommended that after Jan. 1 next local assemblies be permitted to discuss the tariff question, by putting the question in this shape: "Which will bring the greatest good to the greatest number—high tariff or free trade?"

Died in His Cell.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Charles Daly was taken into police custody this morning at 12½ while drunk. He laid down on the floor of the cells and went to sleep in company with two other inmates, but was found dead early this morning by P. C. Wallace, who at first thought he had not awakened. Coroner Smith was notified and the body was removed to Ferguson's undertaking establishment.

EVICTIONS IN IRELAND.

THE KOCH CONSUMPTION CURE A SUCCESS.

Many Cures Recorded—Koch Summoned Before the Emperor—The Panic in the London Stock Exchange Has Well Nigh Subsided.

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—The evictions in the Olphert estate were begun at Ardsberg this morning. A fierce storm had raged all night and gloomy weather added to the wretchedness of the scene. It was thought some tenants might resist the evictors and a force of heavily-armed policemen was on the ground. Sixteen families, comprising 100 persons, were ejected. During a squabble Mr. O'Neal, M.P., put a chalk-mark on a policeman's arm as a means of identification. He warned the others that he would similarly mark all who should be guilty of misbehavior, this being the only way to identify the men as long as the authorities decline to make them wear badges.

A number of English visitors, including several ladies, witnessed the evictions and afterwards held an indignation meeting, at which the action of the owner of the estate was denounced. The Bishop of Raphoe arrived at Ardsberg in the afternoon for the purpose of assisting the evicted families.

Koch's Consumption Cure.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The Frankfort Zeitung affirms that the lymph used by Prof. Koch for inoculating patients will be within the reach of all and that it will cost only 25 marks for a small phial. The success of the treatment is certain in tubercular affections of the skin, joints and bones, and also in the early stages of pulmonary complaints. The lymph destroys the tubercular bacilli. Several authorities confirm the report of the cure by Dr. Koch's method of a case of lupus on the face and arms within five days. The lymph throws off the bacilli by the necrotic process. Inoculation with the lymph is ineffectual in syphilitic cases.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Emperor William has summoned Prof. Koch to an interview in order to personally learn the results that have been obtained from the new consumption cure.

A Frankfort telegram says the Emperor has made a personal gift of $250,000 to Prof. Koch and another of the same amount to endow a national institute for the production of the lymph used in the Koch process. The lymph is described as a transparent yellowish fluid having a slight smell of carbolic acid. The patient who was cured of lupus was a girl of 16 years. The doctors who knew of the case were deeply interested in the wonderful and speedy results of the treatment.

Murderer Delaney Released.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Patrick Delaney, who was implicated in the Phœnix Park murders and was serving a sentence of life imprisonment for his connection with that crime and who appeared as a witness for The Times before the Parnell Commission, has been released from prison.

Balfour to Take a Holiday

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Mr. Balfour has started for the west of England to take a short holiday, his doctors having advised him that a respite from business and a change of air would best aid him him to recover from the fatigue resulting from his Irish tour.

Many Wounded, One Killed.

ROME, Nov. 11.—A Socialist meeting near Ravenna to-day culminated in a fight. Revolvers and knives were freely used. One man was killed and a number of others were injured.

Tobacco Factory Burned.

MADRID, Nov. 11.—A large tobacco factory in this city was burned to-day. Loss $30,000. A thousand persons are rendered idle by the conflagration.

THE PANIC SUBSIDING.

Large Arrivals of Gold from France and Russia Avert an Acute Crisis—New York Failures.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At the opening of the stock exchange to-day it appeared likely that the worst fears of money and a difficult settlement would be realized. The deepest gloom and absolute stagnation prevailed during the first hour. It was rumored the contangoes on railroads would be 9 per cent. and that the loan rate to next account would on no securities be under seven. Toward noon an abrupt change was caused by a semi-official announcement through a Bank of England broker that large amounts of gold, aggregating £1,500,000, were coming from Paris and the further supplies were promised from Russia. This dispelled the depression. Preparations for the settlement became more energetic. Money became easily borrowed from banks at 6 per cent. Railroad contangoes averaged 6 per cent., the highest rate being 8 per cent. Loans in many unexpected instances were rapid. The progress of liquidation of accounts in every department promised at the close to be quiet and favorable. The character of dealings generally showed a substantial impetus upwards, especially after the close, when cable advices reported better prices in New York. Recovery in American railroads ranged from 1¼ to 4¾. Business closed with a general feeling of relief at the escape from an acute crisis.

The National Bank of Brazil has shipped £600,000 in gold to its London branch.

The Panic in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Never before in the history of Wall-street has there been such a collapse in values as was recorded in many securities to-day. The panic which resulted is ascribed universally to the scarcity of money. Rumors of trouble among banking institutions were current all day, but no one paid much heed to them. After the close, however, it was learned that three banks which were members of the New York Clearing House Association were unable to settle the claims of the other banks against them. There was a balance against the Bank of North America of $1,400,000, which it was unable to settle. The other banks were the North River and the Mechanics' and Traders'. During the day the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank made its settlements with the clearing houses, and the other two banks received assistance from the other banks in the association and pulled through. At the Bank of North America it was stated that the trouble was directly due to the account of Decker, Howell & Co., and now that the account of that firm was closed the bank was in a stronger position than ever. The Clearing House Association this afternoon authorized a committee of presidents to issue clearing house loan certificates to enable banks to settle balances between themselves. These certificates will be based on bills receivable, collateral securities, cash assets and the united credit of the banks. This action is intended to distribute the reserves of banks more evenly between the institutions and is expected to restore confidence.

Decker, Howell & Co., whose failure is announced, were identified not only with the Villard stock but also with Standard Oil interests, and carried the accounts of the biggest stock-operating firm in Chicago. A member of the firm says: "Our failure is due to the fact that we could not get the money to carry on our business. We had ample assets, but could not realize on them." John T. Walker & Son also have failed, owing to the inability of Nightingale Bros. & Knight of Paterson, N.J., silk manufacturers, to liquidate their liability to the firm. On account of the tight money market they were unable to secure the usual accommodations, and therefore had to suspend. The liabilities are about $1,100,000 and the nominal assets about $1,300,000.

Whitney & Co., the third firm which failed, has been holding a great deal of Toledo & North Michigan stocks and bonds, Hocking Valley Coal & Iron, Texas Pacific and a large number of St. Paul shares, which were sold under the rule this morning. The firm could only dispose of the St. Paul stuff, as there was no market for the others. The failure to cover the shortage caused the suspension.

Assignee Cromwell late this afternoon said the liabilities of Decker, Howell & Co. are about $10,000,000 and the assets at the present market price largely exceed that sum.

STRATFORD, Nov. 9.—W. H. Corrie, miller in Hodd & Cullen's flour mill, went to release a cat whose paw had been caught in a rat trap for some days, when the animal bit the first finger of his right hand, chewing it in such a way as to leave thirteen teeth marks. Blood poisoning may result.

REVOLUTION IN HONDURAS.

The Long Threatened War Cloud Bursts at Last.

LA LIBERTAD, Nov. 11.—The revolution which has been expected for months and which has been gaining headway since the conclusion of the war between San Salvador and Guatemala has broken out in Honduras. Tegucigalpa is in a state of siege, telegraphic communication with the capital has been interrupted, and it is believed the wires have been cut. Several despatches have been received by the Salvadoran Government in regard to the affair. One is to the effect that on Friday last a part of the garrison of Tegucigalpa revolted, and under the leadership of Gen. Longias Sanches took possession after hard fighting of the capital building and arsenal. Since then street skirmishing has been of daily occurrence and Sanchez and his force now have President Luis Bogran surrounded in one of the wards of the city. The garrisons of inspection on the Salvadoran and Nicaraguan frontiers are being pushed toward the capital by forced marches, only enough soldiers being left behind to prevent possible uprisings. Several other army men have issued pronunciamentos, and are hurrying with their forces to aid Sanchez.

Presidents Sacaza and Ezeta have increased their frontier garrisons in consequence of the revolt, and instructed their commanders not to allow any armed force to gather for the purpose of invading Honduras. They will maintain strict neutrality in the present internal strife.

Private advices from the city of Guatemala put a grave aspect upon the revolution. It is believed Barillas will attempt to extend aid to his old ally Bogran, and in doing so will precipitate a general war in Central America, as it is understood that if he takes a hand in the present trouble Ezeta will call him to time, with the full consent of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, with whom Salvador will be leagued in case of general international strife. The greatest uneasiness prevails in Guatemala, and the movements of Barillas are watched with suspicion.

THREW UP THE CONTRACT.

Temporary Suspension of the Double-Tracking Between Toronto and Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Nov. 11.—Campbell & McBeth of Strathroy had the contract for grading the Grand Trunk double track from Parkdale to Clarkson, a distance of 14 miles, at $3,000. They put 145 men to work, but subsequently found that the material they had to work through was too difficult and that they were bound to lose money on the contract. On Saturday they abandoned the contract, and the Grand Trunk authorities decided to take hold of the work and put an increased gang of men at work at once. Mr. Gibson of Beamsville has the contract for the stonework on the line and the Hamilton Bridge Company has the contract for the bridges, but they of course will not be affected. The Grand Trunk took over the contract on Monday morning and will put on 250 or 300 men at once and rush the work on that section through in ten days or so.

The double track will extend from Toronto to Burlington. Twenty-four miles of grading will have been finished by the middle of December, but it will take some time to construct the large iron bridges at Bronte and Oakville. The grading between these two points is already well in hand. After Nov. 16 the spur line will be open, and most through trains will run over that line without coming into the city. A switch is being put in on the south side of the Burlington station, connecting the beach line with the Toronto branch towards Hamilton.

LIEUT. TROUP TALKS AGAIN.

He Says Bonny's Horrible Story of Cannibalism is True.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 11.—Lieut. Troup, who was an officer of Stanley's rear guard, will sail for England to-morrow. When his attention was yesterday called to the horrible charges made against Jamieson and Bartlelot by Mr. Bonny, Lieut. Troup said he had no doubt of what Bonny said about the major's cruel conduct.

Lieut. Troup continued; "I am not afraid to have my record laid bare by the most searching investigation. Mr. Stanley must understand that he is an accuser. I said nothing about the disasters that befell the rear column until he drove me to the wall and forced me to defend my reputation. Stanley cannot intimidate me. I did not say a word against Mr. Stanley or Major Bartlelot until someone else made the charges I have said, and repeat it, that Mr. Stanley was responsible for the fate of the poor fellows in Camp Yambuya—first, by his poor judgment in the selection of a poor commanding officer, and second, by neglecting to provide sufficient food and supplies to be used in case of emergency, which emergency was his delay in returning to the camp. He promised to return in five months and made only provision for that time. I consider that almost criminal negligence, because it seems to me he ought to have known that the chances of his returning in that period were against him. It is for errors of judgment that I censure Stanley. His experience ought to have suggested a different course."

Stanley's Reception in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Henry M. Stanley was tendered a reception to-night in the Metropolitan Opera House which well might have flattered a king. New York society was represented by its best elements. There were at least 3500 persons present and they came both to welcome the explorer and to assist financially the convalescent home at Summit, N.J., the managers of which organized the reception. Mr. Stanley was given $5000 for the evening and the balance of the receipts, which amounted in all to about $14,000, was given to the home. Mrs. Stanley and her mother, Mrs. Tennant, occupied a box on the first tier and were nearly hidden from sight by bouquets. More than 300 distinguished men sat on the platform, and when at 8 o'clock Mr. Stanley, accompanied by Chauncey M. Depew, the chairman, marched down the centre of the large stage the audience rose in a body and cheered for fully three minutes.

Mr. Stanley, in his lecture, gave a graphic description of the great and gloomy forest through which his expedition marched for 160 days. He then told some interesting facts about the dwarfs and other natives found in that region. Among other things he said the pigmies, who reach to about a full grown man's waist, have abundant food as well as the largest natives. Mr. Stanley considered these people the lowest of the human race morally. Their gratitude is a short lived as a bull dog's. The lecturer spoke on the discovery of the Mountains of the Moon and the Snow Mountains. He traced the watershed from the Snow Mountains to Lake Albert Edward and from there to White Nile. He passed rapidly over the journey to the coast of Zanzibar but dwelt upon the subsequent difficulty. Mr. Stanley did not refer to the controversy of the rear column at all. He was loudly cheered at the close of his lecture and afterwards shook hands with 200 or 300 people.

Bartlelot Again.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Major Bartlelot's brother writes to The Times that Stanley, instead of meeting the charge that he was responsible for the disasters which befell the rear guard, shifts the ground to make horrible charges against the officers. Nobody who knew the Major would believe the charges against him. The facility of producing difficulty in the way of those disproving such charges against the dead must be remembered. Major Bartlelot's father addressed the electors of West Sussex yesterday, declaring that had his son and Jamieson been living still the charges against them would never have been made. He was confident every Englishman would agree with him that the charges must be sifted to the bottom.

Mysterious Tragedy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The dead body of Mr. Norris Watts, one of the sons of Mr. Edmund Hannay Watts, has been found at Cumberland Gap, Tennessee. Death had been caused by bullet wounds and it is obvious that these must have been fired by another person. There are no circumstances to indicate who committed the murder.

Mr. Norris Watts was one of the sons of Mr. Edmund Hannay Watts of the firm of Watts, Ward & Co., steamship owners, Cardiff, Newcastle, London, New York and elsewhere. It is understood that the deceased gentleman went to the United States in the interests of the Watts Steel & Iron Syndicate (limited), which was formed last spring with a capital of £200,000, for the purpose of establishing steel and iron works at Middlesbrough, Bell County, Kentucky, a place which in May last year had a population of 25 and last February of 3500. He was only 21 years of age.

Shot Himself in the Breast.

WINDSOR, Nov. 11.—Herbert Morrow, a son of John Morrow, this town, was probably fatally shot yesterday. He was out shooting and engaged in loading a gun when his foot slipped and he fell. The gun discharged and he received a great part of the discharge in his left breast. He is in a critical condition.

BEET ROOT SUGAR INDUSTRY.

There's money in sugar refining. Our Canadian refineries make immense dividends—out of all proportion to the capital invested. The United States Sugar Combine has had to exhibit its books in a court of law. It is shown that the profits for three years have been nine million dollars on a bona fide capital of twenty millions, a dividend of over fifty per cent. per annum. Now 50 per cent. a year is fairly good interest. It is not probable that the beet root sugar industry would be nearly so profitable, but yet there is profit for those that engage in it, and the farmer has some of the profit as well as the manufacturer. If there is anything in sugar beet raising for the farmer, in the present depressed state of his calling he is anxious to know it. A series of analyses has been conducted at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to ascertain the sugar value of the beets grown in several sections of Ontario.

It was shown that the results of the analysis had been very favorable, and that from the appearance of the roots yet to be examined still better results were yet to be expected. During the present week considerably further progress has been made with the analysis, and the anticipations as to more favorable results have been realized. Up to time of the latest report several hundred roots from over 60 different lots had been tested, and the average percentage of sucrose in juice was 13.65, with an average coefficient purity of 78.40. In a valuable bulletin on the sugar-beet industry, edited by Mr. H. W. Wiley, chemist to the United States Department of Agriculture, and published by authority of the Secretary of Agriculture, it is stated on page 202:—"Thirteen per cent. of sucrose indicates a kind of beet that can be successfully manufactured."

A large beet sugar factory went into operation a few weeks ago, at Grand Island, Nebraska. Active measures are being taken for the establishment of other factories in that State, in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. The contracts for a large establishment of the same character at Salt Lake City, Utah, have been closed, and this will go into operation for the campaign of 1891. In the bulletin above referred to, on pages 210 and 211, a report is given of the analyses of several samples of beets which were sent from various localities to the Department at Washington for analysis, during the autumn of 1889. The tables there given show the names of the growers the variety of seed sown, the sucrose in the juice, and purity, etc. The number of samples analysed was 44, of which 31 came from Nebraska, 5 from Illinois, 5 from South Dakota, 1 from North Dakota and 3 from Michigan. A comparison of the average results obtained from this analysis, and from that now being made at Guelph, fully establishes the superiority of the sugar beets of the Provinces of Ontario over those of the above Western States:—

Average percentage of sucrose in the juice per Guelph analysis.....13.65
Average percentage of sucrose in the juice, per Washington analysis.....10.99
Average purity per Guelph analysis.....73.40
Average purity per Washington analysis.....70.60

If beet-sugar factories are considered promising investments in the Western States, they ought to prove profitable in this Province, where, as the above clearly shows, the quality of the roots both as to saccharine richness and purity of juice is so greatly superior.

A very large proportion of the sugar beets which were raised in this Province during the past season, was grown in one long row in each field, along with mangolds, carrots, etc.; in many cases the plants were kept at much too great a distance apart; and very few of the roots were kept covered with earth as they ought to have been. Farmers generally appear to have been anxious to obtain large roots, and to obtain in this way a large yield from the small plot cultivated. All this is wrong. Even as to yield per acre, the information obtained this fall shows that by keeping both the rows and the plants close together a greater number of pounds in weight is obtained from the same number of square feet than is obtained by the wider cultivation. It has been seen also that the quality of the roots in the inside rows, where there were several rows, was much higher than in the outside rows, or in the single row. It has now been conclusively established that, even under the defective cultivation of the past two seasons, the Province of Ontario has produced, in the majority of experiments, beets which could be profitably manufactured into sugar.

The experiments made during last year and this show that in many sections of the Province an average yield of 20 tons an acre may be confidently expected. The price likely to be paid would average fully $4 25 per ton delivered at a factory, or about $85 per acre for the crop. Canada consumes about 100,000 tons of refined sugar, a considerable part of which is manufactured from raw beet sugar imported from Europe. If this Province should succeed in manufacturing one-half of Canada's requirements from beets raised in Ontario, this would lead to the erection of about 20 sugar factories, and the cultivation of about 30,000 acres of sugar beets.

Objection has been taken to the cultivation of beets because of the consequent exhaustion of the soil. Those objecting in this way appear to overlook the fact that the weight of the leaves left on the ground is about 40 per cent. of the whole plant (see bulletin above referred to, page 48), and that 40 per cent. of the weight of the roots is sold from the factories as pulp for feeding to cattle. On page 219 of the same work, Mr. Wiley, in referring to the beet-sugar industry in Denmark, says:—"But though a handsome profit is realized by the manufacturers, it is nothing compared with the indirect profit which is the result of the improvement of the land where beets have grown. The influence on the land of the deep and thorough cultivation and the use of fertilizers, which go hand in hand with the growth of the sugar beet, of the beet itself by the opening and manuring the soil and of the stable manure which is produced by this system, is simply wonderful. All other crops are increased and their quality improved. On such land as would produce only common barley a highly praised malting barley is now raised, which brings far better price than the old product. Those farmers who at first looked suspiciously on the new industry are now quite enthusiastically in favour of it, and several factories are about to be built this year."

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Rev. Mr. Locke gave a very impressive address on "Prayer" yesterday afternoon, which impressed all with the need of waiting more in God if we are to gain victories for him against the world, flesh and the devil.

Last evening Mr. H. S. Griffin gave a very earnest and instructive address on the topic "A man who knew his own heart," which made a marked impression on the large number of young men present. We are pleased to see the growing interest and numbers attending these helpful services.

There will be no evening meeting to night owing to church services, but ask all Christians to remember the work in their prayers.

Rev. Mr. Torrance will give the address on Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Mr. J. C. Turnbull will speak at the evening meeting Thursday at 8 p.m.

Pretty school teacher blushes and makes James "perfect" in grammar. "Diamond Dyes are both active and passive. They are active and decisive in their results, giving satisfaction and pleasure to all who use them. Then they are passive in the sense, and harmless while the operator is using them. BARON HARDEN-HICKEY.

A Buddhist Prophet and a Cultured Man of the World.

New York has as a visitor just now Baron, Harden-Hickey, a prophet of esoteric Buddhism. His family is a very old French one with titles running back to the middle of the sixteenth century, and he is a novelist, journalist, politician—a man of the world. Moreover, he has been a Royalist and, what is another name for respectability in France, a Catholic.

Baron Harden-Hickey was educated in the College of Jesuits, at Mamur, in Belgium. Afterwards he went to Leipsic, spending two years there and serving as principal or second in many student duels. At the age of nineteen years he entered the French military school of St. Cyr, but gave up military life on the death of his father, in 1873. For two years he wrote and studied sculpture. His first novel, "Un Amour dans le Monde," was published in 1876. The Baron had previously translated both prose and verse into English for British magazines and was beginning to be known as an author.

As a journalist Baron Hickey's career has been a very lively one. In 1878 he began the publication in Paris of Le Triboulet, an illustrated weekly satirical paper, which soon became widely known as a Royalist supporter and made itself so obnoxious to the Government during the ten years that Baron Hickey remained in control that he was summoned to appear in court 114 times. Finally, under M. de Freycinet's Ministry, he was banished. His editorial path was not blocked by Government obstacles alone. He fought a dozen duels in defense of the opinions he expressed in his paper. Among his opponents in these affairs of honor were the editors of the Gaulois, the Etoile Francaise, the Evenement, Le Petit Centre and L'Intransigeant.

Finally the alliance of the Count of Paris with Gen. Boulanger disgusted the Baron with the Royalist cause and he threw up politics to travel as a lecturer on Buddhism. He is enamored of the Buddhist belief of reincarnation, and believes America is ripe for the doctrines of Gautama. He is now on the way to Ceylon and India for a second time with the purpose of studying Buddhist literature.

A Broken Heart.

The young Earl of Dalhousie, who lately celebrated his 12th birthday, is the owner of an estate of 136,000 acres in Forfarshire, worth about £40,000 per annum. His father, who was Secretary for Scotland under Mr. Gladstone, is one of the few examples of death from a broken heart. He and his countess were returning from a trip to America in November, 1887, and had reached Havre. The countess, who was suffering from fever, died there on the 24th November, and the earl, utterly prostrated with grief, took to his bed and was dead the next morning.

Water Gravies.

A good deal of fat, such as sausage and ham fat, are wasted in gravies. Both sausage and ham are much better served with what are called water gravies, which are made as follows:—After the meat is taken from the pan, all the fat is poured off except a minute quantity. Boiling water is then poured into the pan, sufficient in quantity to a little more than cover the bottom of the meat-dish. The water should be made to flow back and forward over the pan to wash off the juices drawn from the meat, which dry on the pan during the cooking process. If it will not dissolve it should be scraped with a spoon or knife till it mixes well, then give it one boil up, and pour it over the meat, already placed in the dish for the table.

Purity of the blood. The importance of keeping the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat or the water we drink. Your Blood nothing is more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and builds up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

THE PRINCE OF SEDAN.

ALL GERMANY CELEBRATES VON MOLTKE'S 90TH BIRTHDAY.

The Career of the Conqueror of Denmark, Austria and France—The Greatest Tactician of the Century—A Hero of Heroes.

Count Hellmuth Karl Bernhard von Moltke, unquestionably the first of living soldiers, was born October 26, 1800, in the town of Parchim, while his parents were visiting his uncle, Helmuth von Moltke, who in 1812 marched with the Mecklenburg troops to Russia and perished there. Soon afterwards his parents moved to Lubeck and there, in 1806, the von Moltke residence was burned by the French. The family then went to Augustenhof, in Holstein, and there young Helmuth spent his boyhood and youth. A fair headed, blue-eyed lad, he was notable for his taciturnity and love of study. His father evidently saw that there was the making of a sterling man in him, for he sent him to the Land Cadets' Academy at Copenhagen, the result being that the young student became an officer at the age of 18. Hellmuth, indeed, was compelled to accept state aid, and in return was obliged to serve a year as a page at court, waiting on the table on grand occasions. At the end of a year he was permitted to join his regiment.

As the ally of Napoleon, Denmark had suffered severely, having been compelled to cede Norway to Sweden. It was bankrupt, and the prospects of the young officers in its service were far from brilliant. Many of them sought service in other countries, and among the number was Moltke. He had scarcely money enough to leave Denmark, and there is an humble letter of his to the King in existence in which he prayed for three month's pay in addition to permission to enter the Prussian Army. The reply came to him "that his wish had been granted, because the Danish Army would suffer no great loss by the severance of Lieut. Moltke." It was a brutal reply, but the time came when he could avenge the insult, as the time also came when he could retaliate on the French for the plundering of his father's house in Lubeck.

Moltke's advancement in the Prussian Army was slow. He did not obtain a first lieutenancy until he was past thirty-two years of age. But he was then placed on the general staff. Two years later he obtained a royal furlough for the purpose of visiting European Turkey and the Grecian Archipelago. He re-organized the Turkish army, and during nearly five years he was the chief adviser of the Sultan, and on his return Prussian William conferred upon him the most prized distinction a Prussian soldier could obtain. Honors from that day were showered thick upon him, until he finally became Field-Marshall of the entire German army.

The first clash came with Denmark in 1864. Then was Moltke's hour to avenge the insult of so many years before, when he was told that his severance from the Danish Army would not be a very great loss. Austria and Prussia were then allies against Denmark, but the plan of campaign that was adopted with so much success came from the brain of Moltke. At the end of the struggle Prussia gave him the great cross of the Order of the Crown, and Austria the cross of the Order of Leopold.

When the gigantic conflict with Austria came in 1866 Von Moltke was again ready. The operations of the entire campaign were directed by him, and the strategy shown in that memorable struggle proved that Moltke was without a peer in Europe as a tactician. He arranged the bold advance of the Prussian columns against Olmutz and Vienna. He held the chief command at the decisive battle of Sadowa. Also at Koeniggratz.

After his wife's death in 1868, Von Moltke secluded himself from society as much as possible and sought mitigation of his grief in deep and laborious study. He had long foreseen that war must come sooner or later with France and he resolved to be ready to meet it. In these early years of his great sorrow he completed the offensive and defensive plans of a war with France. To these, later on, he added three other plans, to meet every emergency that might arise. No matter which way France moved or how the Southern German States might act in the quarrel when it should arise, Von Moltke had the counter line of attack or defence all mapped out. And when, in 1870, Napoleon gave the orders for the invasion of Germany and the march to Berlin, Von Moltke, calm, cold, resolute, touched the spring which set in motion the vast engines of war that arrested the attention and challenged the admiration of the entire world. His plans were perfect, his organization complete, his information exact. He knew every train in France as thoroughly as he did Berlin. When, after the catastrophe at Sedan, Von Moltke sat down before Paris he decided the operations that were going on simultaneously in the south, east and north. Every move was reported to him by telegraph and the right order went back quick as the lightning could carry it. The aged Emperor testified his appreciation of his superb services when he entered his capital with Bismarck on one hand, Von Moltke on the other. A money present equal to half a million dollars was given to him out of the French indemnity fund. He was made a count, later on Chief Marshal of the German Empire, and in addition was loaded down with orders and decorations from every monarch in Europe. The recipient of all these distinctions, however, withdrew himself from the glare of publicity, appeared in great assemblages only on exceedingly rare occasions, and resumed his old life of study and intense application to his profession.

All these honorable events in the life of this hero of heroes have been again lived over recently, in the celebration of his 90th birthday, by day laborer and statesman, conservative and social democrat, artist and artisan, Protestant and Roman Catholic, without regard of creed, party, or class, all united in giving him honor, for his spotless life, his glorious loyalty, his abounding sympathy, and the unselfish courage which have won for him the hearts of three generations of Germans. In every city from the Rhine to the Russian border, the people gathered to hear the familiar story of his great deeds, and from the pulpits the servants of his God of battles told how he fought and won in the name of the Lord for the fatherland.

The present Emperor of Germany proposes to confer a somewhat similar honor to that proposed by his grandfather on Von Moltke, and it is not likely that the Count's remonstrances and distaste for ostentation will avail aught with him. The young Kaiser thinks that he can confer no greater gift on the great Marshal than by creating him Prince of Sedan, and Prince of Sedan "Father Moltke" will be till he dies.

THE COUNTESS KESSLER.

Portrait of the Lady from Cabanel's Death Bed Painting.

Countess Kessler, an English woman by birth, is the second daughter of the late Captain Lynch, C. B., of the Indian Navy, who was a well-known member of the Royal Geographical Society. For some years she has occupied a very prominent position in Paris society, and has collected around her in her hospitable salon not only the fashion, but the wit and talent of fair Lutetia.

The portrait of the Countess here given is from the painting to which Alexander Cabanel was putting the finishing touches when he died. Cabanel was a frequent guest at her house and was delighted when she consented to sit for him. He selected the toilette, a combination of pink brocade and pale green satin. When the first sitting took place in February, 1888, Cabanel was suffering from asthmatic and bronchial troubles, from which he died a year later. He was rarely able to leave his charming house on the Parc Monceau. Continually interrupted by the illness of the painter, the portrait made but slow progress. The following New Year Countess Kessler was advised by the doctors to take her little daughter to the South. Cabanel knew that his days were numbered, and he begged the fair sitter to give him time to finish the picture. Three days more work, he told her on January 10, would finish it. The next morning he wrote to the Countess to say he was too ill to receive anybody, and five days later he breathed his last in the arm chair in his studio, upon which, for the past three years, he had passed his nights. The only part of the portrait of Countess Kessler left unfinished was the left side of the face.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is to do not largely due to its liberal conditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own city, rather than those of foreign states.

The boarders and guests of the Balmoral Hotel went without pie at their meals to-day and the cook is in despair. The Edison Company have a staff of about 25 men busy constructing a system of sewerage on the premises.

Other Veterans.

Mr. John Quinlan, of Otonabee, who is now 85 years of age and very feeble, joined a detachment of recruits from his neighborhood in the year 1837, and was stationed at Cobourg until the uprising terminated, and the volunteers were discharged. He does not remember the number of his regiment, but recollects that John Cavanagh was one of the sergeants.

Wm. McCarroll, of Emily, Victoria county, Frank Hill P. O., served in the suppression of the rising of 1837-38. He puts in his time in Bowmanville, and was regularly discharged. He is now about 76 years of age.

Hymeneal.

A pleasant matrimonial event took place at three o'clock this afternoon, when Mr. Harry Niblock, of Meeker, Col., was married to Miss M. J. Chrow, eldest daughter of the late Edward Chrow. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother, corner of Smith and Water streets, by the Rev. J. C. Davidson, in the presence of a small company of relatives. The bride was the recipient of a handsome lot of presents, among which were beautiful silver gifts from Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co., and their employees, Miss Chrow having been connected with the establishment for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Niblock leave at six o'clock this evening for their Western home. Their many friends in town will wish them every happiness in their future life.

Saturday Market Tickets.

Residents along the line of the Grand Junction were considerably put out by the recent announcement that the Saturday market tickets to Peterborough and Bellerville had been discontinued and that in future regular rates would be charged. But it appears the change was made by the station agents who misunderstood the orders. They were notified that after a certain date Saturday excursion tickets would be discontinued, and they at once jumped at the conclusion that market tickets were meant. Conductor Stanton told them the orders referred only to special summer excursion rates which had been made for the benefit of parties spending Sunday out of town during the hot weather, and not the market rates. Subsequent events proved that he was right. The station agents along the line charged regular rates for one Saturday, but soon found out that the old market tickets were to be continued.

The Expedition Closed.

Mrs. Barker, mother of one of the Chester boys who ran away from home last Saturday, arrived in town last night and at once went to the police station where her son, her only child, was awaiting her. The scene between them was quite affecting. The boy burst into tears and appeared to be very penitent. He said Jim Hayes was to blame for it all. Hayes had put him up to stealing the money from his grandfather and had taken charge of it and led the expedition throughout. Mrs. Barker returned this morning with the boy and young Sandford, but she would have nothing to do with young Hayes, whom she regarded as a very bad boy. Master Hayes is being looked after by some of his relatives.

Bible Class Reunion.

The members of the three Bible classes of St. John's—the St. Andrew's Brotherhood Bible Class and the two young ladies' Bible classes—to the number of about 100, had a very pleasant reunion last evening. The gathering was largely of a social character. During the evening excellent refreshments were served, and the time was delightfully filled in with songs, choruses, etc., the musical chairs and other recreations. Mr. G. A. Smith revealed the shocking tendency of his dissociation, which was of literally thrilling interest to those in the circle by an electrical exhibition. A very well performed violin solo by Prof. Hayter added very greatly to the interest of the evening. Altogether a very pleasant and profitable evening was passed. The entertainment was formally concluded by the doxology. However, it was sometime before the assembly dispersed, and before doing so the young men showed their appreciation of the pleasant associations the evening had afforded, by giving three cheers for the girls.

The Young Men's Club will meet in St. John's School Room on Thursday evening.

The Trent Valley Canal.

LOCKPORT, N.Y., Nov. 9.—A Canadian Government party, composed of Judge Weller, of Peterborough, Frank Turner, civil engineer, of Toronto, and John Kennedy, civil engineer, of Montreal, with John Canniff, of Peterborough, and Secretary H. J. Wickham, of the Trent Valley Canal Commissioners, visited this city yesterday and made careful examination of the locks and Erie Canal at this point. Secretary Wickham said that this commission is to investigate the practicability of connecting by locks and short canals the system of inland lakes in Canada back of Lake Ontario. This would make a waterway of about 150 miles, which is considerably over two-thirds of the distance between Lake Ontario and the Georgian Bay, a region rich in iron ore. The Government, he says, propose to make a navigable waterway from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario at the mouth of the River Trent, which will prove the shortest route to the sea-coast from Duluth. Of course there is general opposition from the Welland Canal. Some say that it is not needed, as products of the Georgian Bay region can be shipped more cheaply by Lake Huron, Lake Erie and the Welland. The commission go to Tonawanda to-morrow. They are all anxious to examine the canal barges, and particularly the steamers.

The Death Docket.

Friday the Favourite Day.

There are entered upon the death docket of Canada five sentences to the extreme penalty of the law, and the peculiarity is that all are to be executed on Friday but one, that of Day, the Welland murderer. The following is the gloomy list:—

JOHN REGINALD BIRCHALL,

Woodstock jail, to be hanged on Friday, November 14, 1890

S. B. H MORIN,

Montmagny jail, Quebec, to be hanged on Friday, November 21 1890.

WILLIAM W. BLANCHARD,

Sherbrooke jail, Quebec, to be hanged on Friday, December 12 1890.

ARTHUR HYATT DAY,

Welland jail, to be hanged on Thursday, December 18 1890.

REMI LAMONTAGNE,

Sherbrooke jail, Quebec, to be hanged on Friday, December 19 1890

This seems to be a dark record, and, while some might regard it as a blot upon our criminal calendar, rightly regarded, it is a credit to Canadian justice—to its promptitude and impartiality. It is a terribly sad thing that there should be murders, but it is a grand thing that justice treads so closely and unerringly upon the heels of crime. It would appear that the selection of Friday is an example of unconscious deference to the popular superstition that that day is an unlucky one. The legal profession does not know why this day should be elected for the infliction of the death penalty. If the lawyers can't give a decided opinion, then all may despair of getting definite information on the subject.

Apsley.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

THANKSGIVING.—A report was current here sometime ago that Thursday, 6th Nov., was appointed by the Governor-General for Thanksgiving, but when the day arrived no one seemed to be aware of it. Not a shop was shut, not a game was played, no noise was heard, save of a few who made the English church. That service was continued on Sunday. Parson Harding was rather hard on people; did they know their thankfulness by observing the day as a holy day, a holiday, or a worldly day? He attributed all to the exclusion of religious teaching from schools. Yet there is good cause for thanksgiving; Apsley is a remarkably healthy place, and the harvest has been very satisfactory. Farmers who are chronic grumblers, don't you know, say, "O, the grain has been very fair." There is one trouble looming up, no prospect of a good demand. The Hazlitt Co. appear to be the only lumber firm which has sent men into the woods.

JUDICIAL.—A Magistrate's Court sat on Wednesday. C. R. D. Boots, J.P., presided. The principal case was a charge against James Cleary, for being drunk and disorderly, and for using blasphemous language. He was let off easy—$1 and costs or ten days; but was warned very plainly that such conduct if repeated would be severely dealt with.

A RAILWAY.—There is much need of a railway along this line of country. It is rich in minerals; there is reason to believe that nickel has been found in paying quantities; iron phosphates and mica appear to be abundant. The country is rich in many kinds of decorative timber, black ash, red birch, curly birch, bird's-eye and curly maple; and the land is capable of producing good crops of grain and dairy produce, and will do so when farmers begin to farm and do not aim only at supplying lumbermen. Last winter the neighborhood imported some hundreds of tons of flour. This should be altered. We ought to export flour and wheat; but it costs too much to get them to the front.

Mount Pleasant.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A Foresters' Concert and Basket Social.

A concert and basket social, under the auspices of Court Primrose, Canadian Order of Foresters, will be held in the Temperance Hall, Mount Pleasant on Friday evening, Nov. 21st. An interesting literary and musical programme will be presented, to be taken part in by the following:—Mr. and Mrs. Bowman, Mr. Thomas Dunn, Mr. John Nugent, the Turner family, Mr. H. Nesbitt, D.D.H.C.R., of Peterborough; Mr. G. W. H. Anderson, Millbrook; Mr. J. Parsons, Ormsmee; and Mr. R. G. Dean, Mount Pleasant. Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., will occupy the chair. At the close of the entertainment the basket will be disposed of and refreshments served. Tickets, 25c.; ladies with baskets, free. Doors open at 7; chair to be taken at 7.30. A cordial invitation is extended to the public so as to end this the first Foresters' entertainment in Mount Pleasant. NEW ENGLANDERS ANXIOUS

As to the Recall of Mr. Foster's Mission to the West Indies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The visit of the Dominion Minister of Finance, Mr. Foster, to the West Indies for the purpose of cultivating trade relations is watched with some interest, especially by those New England merchants who have hitherto practically controlled the trade of the West Indies with the United States. At present the United States is far ahead of Canada in all the West Indian markets. The British possessions in the West Indies annually purchase from the United States goods to the value of $16,000,000, or ten times as much as they take from the Dominion. The principal exports of the States to those islands are: Animals, $307,000; bread and biscuits, $297,000; corn and cornmeal, $499,000; oats, $40,000; wheat and flour, $2,094,000; carriages, $79,000, chemicals and drugs, $92,000; fish, $96,000; hay, $29,000; iron and steel, $196,000; leather, including boots and shoes, $118,000; musical instruments, $15,000; oil cake, $176,000; beef, $200,000; pickled pork, $605,000, lard, $251,000; dairy products, $322,000; vegetables, $118,000, and lumber and furniture, $850,000. Some of these articles Canada could not supply, but agricultural products, fish and lumber, which make up the bulk of the exports, she can sell as cheaply as the States can. New England merchants having business relations with Jamaica and other British West Indian possessions will be curious to see how Mr. Foster's negotiations result.

RECIPROCITY FAVORED.

Official Letter From the New York Produce Exchange to Mr. Blaine.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—President Evan Thomas of the Produce exchange, has just sent an official letter to Secretary Blaine favoring reciprocity with Newfoundland. Among other things Mr. Thomas writes: The proposal made by the British Government in behalf of Mr. Thomas refers to the fact that a special committee has investigated the matter, and as a result, offers the following facts for the consideration of the state department:

The privilege of American fishermen touching their right to buy bait should be restored. Large quantities of goods come forward to this port for transshipment to Europe, Brazil, West Indies, Central America and other points; and if, by the removal of duties upon importations from Newfoundland of the products of its fisheries and manufactures and minerals, the burdens necessarily incident to our bonding laws could also be removed so that this through freight could be handled with greater facility, the port of New York would become the great distributing centre for the products of the island of Newfoundland.

SOUGHT RELIEF IN DEATH.

A Member of an Old French Family Kills Himself.

CLARENCEVILLE, Que., Nov. 11.—Adolph Furnival, after murdering his wife Saturday afternoon, as suspected, committed suicide, his body having been found in a creek near his house with a terrible gash on his arm, through which the unfortunate man had bled to death. Furnival belonged to an old French family and was one of the oldest residents of Clarenceville. He had spent several fortunes which he had drawn from the family in France. A few years ago he and his wife were in very straitened circumstances and while suffering from mental depression he attempted his life by horribly cutting himself with a razor about the neck and shoulder. His life was saved and shortly after he fell heir to another large sum of money in France, on which he lived for some time.

Jealousy the Cause.

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 11.—Arthur H. Pettis, a married man who had been employed in a hotel at Alexandria Bay, attempted suicide by shooting himself with a revolver. Jealousy of his wife is given as the cause for the rash act. Mrs. Pettis is a very good-looking woman about 25 years of age. Her maiden name was Butts, and her parents live at Alexandria Bay. Pettis was not fatally injured.

WAS HE A MURDERER?

Horrible Charge Preferred Against an ex-Clergyman in Canada.

RICHMOND, Que., Nov. 11.—Rev. George Brown, at one time pastor of the Melbourne Congregational Church there, and formerly of the Ratchun office, Belleville, may yet figure in a court of justice on a charge of murder. The paper states that sufficient evidence has been found to bring home to Brown, alias Waters, the foul murder of Miss Powell at Danville, Que., some fifteen miles from Richmond, three years ago. The girl, it will be remembered, was outraged, after which she was strangled to death by her being held under water. The guilty party was never discovered. At the post mortem examination a strange fact was brought out. It was discovered that the victim's throat vividly bore the imprint of two fingers, the point of the middle finger being missing. The fact was remarked at the time and caused no little comment among the medical witnesses. Strange enough Brown had one finger which was perfectly rigid, caused by a wound received in battle during the civil war in the United States. Be this as it may Brown has skipped the country and when last heard from he had sailed from New York for Australia.

ITEMS WHICH SHOW PROFIT OR LOSS IN RURAL AFFAIRS.

An Interesting Article on "Farmers as Manufacturers"—Pointers in the Way of Making Farming a Financial Success.

Winter no stock that is not productive. To feed a dry cow through the winter is to foolishly waste good money.

Less beef and more mutton means better profit for the farmer and cheaper food for the workingman, both ends worth keeping in view.

If "blood will tell" in one branch, it will in another. It pays as well, in proportion, to keep well-bred poultry as to keep well-bred cows.

The grading-up process will be very slow if grade animals are used for sires. A full-blooded are should always be used for breeding purposes.

It is not wholly sentiment to say that "the foot of the sheep is golden." This is the only one among our domestic animals that is increasing in value.

Warm quarters in winter will save feed. It is not economy of fuel to keep the house

Notes Nicotinianæ.

Thoughts suggested while looking at a large life like figure of a real darky smoking his cigarette, and raising his eye glass in the store window of Mr. G. W. Rubidge, tobacconist, George street, Peterborough.

You may talk of curiosities and the inventive power of man,
If you wish to see the latest I will tell you where you can;
G. W. Rubidge is the owner, he attends to the Signora,
And he gives free exhibitions in the window of his store.

This excels the "Scotish Barrister" at his ardent pleading toil,
He is a true type of the darkey from Virginia's fruitful soil
Though he never picked de cotton, nor cut down de sugar cane,
He upholds the negro's dignity — smocked, stylish, vain.

If not life, there seems a life-power, where that darkey's should be,
Hands, eyes and mouth have motion and perform their functions free,
Feet and legs are well-proportioned, though he don't exercise to walk,
And G. Rubidge has the most he can make that darkey talk.

Tall, majestic in his stature, sad full-blooded negro that,
And his woolly head is covered with a pure white, brush-brimed hat;
Buckled shoes, loose fancy stockings, breeches buttoned at the knee,
A more perfect life-like figure made by man you cannot see.

Face and features true to nature, but as black as Lehigh coal,
But I would not say on oath, sir, that same darkey has a soul,
If he has, about its welfare he displays no great presence,
He spends his whole time in smoking—at another man's expense!

His right hand holds his cigarette, gent-like and natural too,
In his left a smoking eye-glass he conspicuous holds to view,
His white eyes natural movements so impressed a farmer's wife
That she screamed out in amazement: "See! that black man is in life?"

He appears a man of consequence, most dignified and proud;
From his nip-round as a sausage, smoke comes curling like a cloud;
And when he deigns to see the crowd that views him as they pass
With prince-like pride that darkey gently raises his eye-glass.

He stands drawing—he keeps puffing when his cigarette is lit.
As I watched him, still I wondered why that darkey did not spit;
Perhaps he has tobacco and lungs are closed—no liquid substance lose,
Or it may be darkey's cleanliness to swallow all the juice.

No, he will not smoke tobacco, that would be too mean, you bet;
He uses but the choicest brands of Rubidge's cigarettes.
And if one should feel unpleasant, quick as thought that darkey shows
How his eyes will roll with anger and he turns up his nose.

He is dressed in real court fashion—round breasted coat and swallow tails—
A fit pattern for Lord Stanley or the stylish Prince of Wales;
Silken neck-tie, stand-up tucker, and a vest as white as snow.
With a gold chain hanging at each side—proud darkey loves to show.

You may think I have been spouting and say that is stuff—oh, poot!
Walk up to Rubidge's window, you can have clear optic proof.
If you don't say he is natural, and the grandest sight in town,
Then call me an ignoramus and a pure, green country clown.

True Happiness.

The most eminent writers in all ages have declared that the first and greatest essential to happiness is contentment; and it is undoubtedly true that contented persons are generally happy. But how are the great masses of people to gain this boon of contentment? Is it really attainable? We say yes; by the great majority of persons, if they will keep their blood pure and their livers from growing torpid by using Beecham's Pills. w46-d

BIRCHALL'S HANGMAN

An Interesting Interview With the Executioner.

HIS NAME IS THOMAS RATLEY, P.E.

And He Is Steward of the Sunnyside Yacht Club—Portrait of the Parkdale Match—An Affable and Good-Natured Englishman Who Is Not Ashamed of His Profession—The Strangling Cord to Be Sold—Madame Tussaud to Secure the Clothes of Birchall for Her Waxwork Exhibition.

TORONTO, Nov. 12.— The man who at the decree of justice takes a life for a life has no friends. An outcast of society, no heart beats for him, no hand welcomes him. He is popularly supposed to be a monster of such frightful mien that to be hated has but to be seen. He is, however, nothing of the kind. He is a middle-aged, fairly good-looking Englishman named Thomas Ratley, and he is steward of the Sunnyside Yacht Club of Toronto. Fair complexioned, of medium height, with large, piercing eyes, he is a man whose countenance bears the stamp of determination. Here is his picture furnished by himself, and it is a good likeness of the man as he appeared to-day:

He is an applicant for the position of public executioner and has the promise of Premier Mowat that he will use his influence towards the appointment of such an official

And the experience of the past few months would seem to indicate the necessity for such an officer. The hungry maw of the judicial Minotaur bids fair to be nourished with full rations during this year of grace 1890.

No Novice at the Work.

Friday morning will be the fourth time that Ratley has officiated as a hangman in Canada—on a trio of previous occasions have his services been called into requisition when the gory and ill-omened Juggernaut of justice has been dragged forth to crush out a guilty life beneath its cruel wheels. Kane, the murderer of his putative wife in Toronto; Davis, the assasin of the husband of his paramour near Belleville, and Smith, the London murderer, each were ushered into eternity by the hand of this Parkdale Kerch.

I asked Ratley if he intended wearing a mask

"Certainly not," was the reply, "I am not ashamed of my office. Why should I be any more than the jury or judge who pronounced the sentence of death? I am but an instrument in the hands of the law. Why should I be condemned any more than the gallows itself? I wore a mask at the Kane execution, but I had reasons for that. I never will cover my face again."

Sizing Up the Condemned.

"Have you seen Birchall yet?" I asked.

"No. He'll see me soon enough. I will proceed straight to the jail when I arrive in Woodstock and will probably remain there until all is over. Of course I always see a man before the day of execution. I wish to gauge his weight as accurately as possible, his build and other points in advance, as everything must be taken into account when arranging the rope. Even the condition of the man's mind has a great deal to do with it. The murderer who dies bravely is a harder man to kill than the fellow who is half dead with fright in anticipation of the end. For that reason a greater jerk is required to break his neck, and the drop of the weight must be longer. I can tell from observing him walk up and down the corridor just what sort of a subject I have to deal with. I don't think I will have the least trouble with him, unless I may have to support him. From my experience of condemned men, and I have officiated at 18 executions in my time, I believe that Birchall is craven-hearted. There is an excellent reason why he did not commit suicide. It takes a brave man to kill himself, a different kind of nerve from that required to cowardly shoot a man in the back. Sheriff Perry described Birchall the last time I was down to make arrangements, and I do not see but that everything will pass off without a hitch so far as I am concerned.

"What kind of rope will you use?

"Well, I can't say. It was the astonishment of the [illegible] on returning in a cab with [illegible]

The Grim, Black, Ugly, Strangling Cord.

"It is [illegible] long and weighs about 7½ lbs. [illegible] especially for [illegible], about 1 inch in diameter, and was redolent of grease. A huge slip knot stood out prominently.

"That ought to be effective, don't you think?" said Ratley as he explained its mode of operation.

"I don't believe in the old system of dropping a man," continued the executioner. "It is neither so secure nor so effective. The last man who was hanged in Oxford jail, I am told, had his head torn from his body. That was a result of the old system. My noose is known as the 'criss-cross.' The scaffold has been erected from plans prepared by me. It consists of two upright beams, with a cross-bar from which the noose hangs down through a hole. The other end of the rope passes over the bar and partially down the side of one of the supports, where it holds the 'drop,' which is fastened by an independent rope. All I have to do is to cut this rope with a chisel and the man shoots upward with a tremendous force and the sudden stoppage of the descent of the drop breaks his neck. The weight to be used, of about 350 lbs. avoirdupois, is now at Woodstock."

Ratley then proceeded to describe the previous executions at which he had officiated and the bearing of the "subjects." He explained that he had had Birchall's rope stretched to a greater length than the others for two reasons: Primarily, because he purposed allowing the weight a drop of perhaps 10 feet, which would require more rope than in the case of either Kane or Smith; and, incidentally, because he had other uses for the rope.

"You intend to use it for other malefactors then?"

Madame Tussaud to Have Birchall's Clothes.

"Oh, no. Every inch of that rope is worth $1 to me. You have no idea of the number of relic hunters who desire to procure pieces of a rope with which a man has been ushered into eternity. At previous executions I gave the ropes away in sections, but this is too valuable for that. Why, Madame Tussaud has ordered a foot for her exhibition in London, England, and I have orders from numerous others. The clothing of Birchall, which is a perquisite of mine under my agreement with the Sheriff, will also go to Madame Tussaud. What do I receive? Well, I have a fixed tariff and I decline to act unless I receive my price. It is not necessary to mention the sum, but it is satisfactory."

"Do the directors of the Sunnyside Yacht Club know that their steward is an executioner?"

"Certainly they do. I have shown several of them the rope, and the majority do not object to my retaining the position as steward. Like sensible men they realize that, as long as the Sentence of Death is kept in the arsenal of justice as a terror to evil-doers, it is the law which is responsible, not the 'P. E.,' the instrument who carries it into effect. There are two of them against me and I have resigned my position, but I believe good sense will prevail and I will be retained.

His Employers Know Him

"Where was I born? Oh! I will tell you that again, and my whole history for that matter, for I am not ashamed of it. My mother is coming out next fall. I wonder what she will think of it when she learns the facts. Women have a peculiar idea about affairs of this kind, you know. Have I a wife and family? Certainly, they live with me at the Club house, and have no objection to the way I earn my living, so long as it is honest. I have gone under half a dozen names, but Ratley is the correct one."

Ratley was very severe on an Associated Press correspondent at Kingston for certain statements he telegraphed broadcast concerning the Davis execution at Belleville. He prefers to be known as Thomas Ratley, "P.E.," the patronymic under which he is known in the neighborhood of High Park. There is no secret as to his calling among residents of the vicinity, and many of those who take a glass of beer with him occasionally at Johnny Scholes' are aware of his identity.

Ratley is the man who erected the scaffold for Morin, the Quebec murderer who secured a stay of proceedings a few days prior to the execution, but has again been sentenced to death. He has also the "contract" for expediting the departure of Remi Lamontague at Sherbrooke, and expects to attend Arthur Day at Welland should he go to the gallows. Ratley will leave for Woodstock this morning.

BIRCHALL BREAKING DOWN.

Such is the Report That Comes From Woodstock

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 12.—Workmen are engaged to-day in erecting the scaffold in the western jail yard. The condemned man's window overlooks this yard, but he cannot see the scaffold from it, although he can hear the noise made by the workmen in erection.

It is understood that the Attorney-General has granted permission to Birchall's friends to take the body, in which case it will be buried in the Church of England Cemetery here.

The hangman will arrive from Toronto to-morrow morning and give the gallows a preliminary test. Everything is being put in shape about the jail for the execution on Friday. The prisoners are clearing the yard and a general housecleaning is now going on preparatory to the fatal day.

Birchall, it is said, has completely broken down and no longer wears his careless, indifferent smile. Rev. Mr. Wade is with him much of the time now and is doing everything in his power to effect a change of heart, but so far without much encouragement.

Dr. Rice, the jail surgeon, visited the prisoner to-day and found him in excellent health. The doctor states that the mental strain is making no impression on the constitution of the prisoner.

Bluett Sues The Mail for $15,000.

A writ was yesterday issued against The Toronto Mail by Mr. J. A. Macdonald, acting on behalf of Detective Bluett, claiming $15,000 for libel. The trouble arises out of the publication by The Mail, in its Birchall autobiography on Oct. 30 and Nov. 1, of reflections on the character of Bluett as a private detective.

The Queen Appointed Regent.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 12.—Queen Emma has been appointed regent to govern the kingdom during the illness of King William.

Fire at Brampton.

BRAMPTON, Nov. 12.—At 3 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of J. E. Woods' barber shop, Main-street, and spread to McCormick's & Fleming's harness shop, completely destroying the buildings. The fire extended to E. H. Crandall's grocery, both adjoining stores, destroying the second and third stories, which were occupied by Dr. C. M. French. Considerable damage was done to Crandall's stock.

SCOTS GUARDS HOMELESS.

THE WELLINGTON BARRACKS IN LONDON BURNED.

Several of the Children of Soldiers Belonging to the 1st Battalion of the Duke of Connaught's Regiment Perish—Koch's Wonderful Consumption Cure.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Wellington barracks of the Guards were destroyed by fire to-day. The fire originated on a staircase in the quarters of the married soldiers. The inmates were rescued by means of ladders. There were in the barracks a number of children suffering from measles, who were wrapped in blankets, carried out and put to bed in another building. Two children, however, are missing and it is feared they perished. On the breaking out of the fire the troops responded promptly to the bugle call for fire parade and worked the hand apparatus with a will, the officers cheering them on.

The Children Rescued.

The fire was attended by many exciting incidents. Several heroic rescues were made and some painful scenes were witnessed. The women and children in the burning building implored wildly for help. When it was found that two children were missing a soldier bravely re-entered the burning pile to search for them. Hearing screams issuing from the rafters on the top floor he disjointed an iron bedstead and with a piece of the iron broke away the ceiling until he found the children, when he rescued them unhurt. In trying to escape by a trap door and roof they had lost themselves between the rafters and the tiles. Many persons were more or less injured by jumping from windows and six persons received serious injuries and were sent to the hospital.

The Wellington barracks are the barracks of the 1st Battalion of the Scots Guards, of which H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught is colonel.

The Prussian Diet Opened.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The Emperor opened the Diet of Prussia to-day. In the speech from the throne his Majesty said that in view of the friendly relations of Prussia with all foreign states, which relations have been further strengthened this year, the country could look forward with confidence to the further preservation of peace. The speech announced that bills would be introduced for a reform in taxation, for the organization of provincial councils and for the establishment of elementary schools. It also affirmed that the finances of the kingdom are in a satisfactory condition.

Another Jewel Robbery.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—Robberies on the Belgian railways appear to be on the increase. In addition to that of the Baroness Rothschild last week the thieves have just obtained possession of a case of jewelry belonging to the Countess Wilhelm von Bismarck, while she was passing through Belgium on her way to England. When the Baroness Alphonse de Rothschild's jewels were stolen, somewhere between Aix-la-Chapelle and Verviers, about three weeks ago, the Belgian authorities evidently regarded it in the light of a national disaster. They stopped the train for some time while the frightened passengers were subjected to a personal search by the police.

Lady Connemara Divorce.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—It is officially announced that the resignation of Lord Connemara as Governor of Madras has been accepted. Lord Connemara was only appointed in December, 1886, and it is understood that his resignation has been occasioned by the suit for divorce that has been brought by Lady Connemara, his Lordship not caring to stand the exposure that, it is averred, will inevitably follow the approaching trial, the case standing on the calendar next to that of Capt. O'Shea. Lord Connemara was known as the Hon. Robert Bourke before he receive his title in 1887. He is the third son of the Earl of Mayo. Lady Connemara is the eldest daughter of the First Marquis of Dalhousie and was married in 1863. The scandal occurred in December, 1888.

Wissmann's Projects.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 12.—Baron Wissmann, the German commander to East Africa, starts from here for Zanzibar to-night. He declares that he does not intend to renew hostilities with natives, but to organize the country and establish a civilized form of government. He proposes to create a provincial police force to maintain order. Among the chief features of his administration will be the improvement of harbors and construction of substantial roads throughout the German possessions.

Conflict Between Military and Police.

GALWAY, Nov. 12.—Several fights took place here to-day between the police and military. A police sergeant was severely injured. The military finally routed the police and chased them to their barracks. The Connaught Rangers, who took a prominent part in the disturbance, have been ordered away from Galway.

The Olphert Estate Evictions.

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.—The work of evicting tenants was resumed to-day on the Olphert estate. The weather was inclement. The Bishop of Raphoe, acting on behalf of the tenants, had a half-hour's consultation with the agent of the estate, but failed to effect an arrangement. To-night the bishop will have another conference with the agent, which it is expected will lead to a settlement.

Gen. Booth's Scheme.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Mr. Gladstone, the Bishop of Manchester and the Bishop of Durham have sent letters of sympathy to Gen. Booth. Several persons have written letters in response to Mgr. Bancroft's offer to donate £1000 to promote the philanthropic scheme, provided 99 others donate £1000 each for the same purpose.

Confiscated Pictures to be Destroyed.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The court has ordered that 21 of the pictures illustrating the works of Rabelais, which were recently seized by the police at an art gallery in Pall Mall on the ground that they were improper, be destroyed. The proprietors of the gallery were committed for trial.

The Jewish Persecutions.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The memorial asking the Lord Mayor to call a meeting to discuss the persecution of Jews is signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Cardinal Manning, four Dukes, many members of the House of Lords and House of Commons and a large number of college professors.

The Venue Changed to Clonmel.

TIPPERARY, Nov. 12.—The magistrates' court here to-day changed the venue of the conspiracy case from Tipperary to Clonmel. Counsel for the defendants made vigorous protests against this, but were overruled.

They Pested the Police.

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.—The police prevented the meeting of Messrs. Lalor Shea and M. Devoy to-day, as promised in my last, and determined to do so by anything and all up to the night and will take place in Lowenbrug to-morrow.

Flour Mills Closed.

[illegible] being closed in consequence of the decree prohibiting the importation of foreign meal.

MURDER DUE TO JEALOUSY

Cowardly Shooting of a School Teacher Near Tavistock.

TAVISTOCK, Nov. 12.—A daring attempt was made last evening upon the life of Mr. H. A. Dunn, school teacher, who resides with Mr. S. Bonner, 2½ miles from this village. About 7 o'clock Mr. Dunn and other members of the family were sitting in the dining room, some making out personal checks for the ball to be held with éclat through the winter, part of the charge striking Mr. Dunn on the side of the head, and the balance passed through the wall on the other side of the room. Dr. Sloan has succeeded in removing most of the slugs and the patient is doing well. The person who fired the shot is still at large.

The motive for the crime is attributed to jealousy. Dunn having won the affections of a young lady who, it appears, had other suitors. Dunn is in a very low condition and it is not expected he will live through the night.

It is a Mistake
To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood reaches every part of the system expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

BRITISH CRUISER SINKS.

272 LIVES LOST BY THE FOUNDERING OF THE SERPENT.

Her Crew Washed From the Decks in Groups by Tremendous Waves—Only Three Sailors Reach Shore Out of All the Crew.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The British torpedo cruiser Serpent has foundered off the coast of Spain. The Serpent was lost at a point 20 miles north of Cape Finisterre. Out of a total of 280 souls on board three were saved. The Serpent went on the rocks during a storm Monday night.

A Heavy Mist Prevailed at the Time.

Owing to the violence of the storm it was impossible to send assistance from the shore. Tremendous waves swept the decks of the doomed vessel, carrying away group after group of the unfortunate men aboard. The news of the wreck was conveyed to Corunna, a distance of 60 miles, over mountain roads. The Serpent's complement was 170 officers and men. The others on board were going out to relieve men now on ships on the African coast.

The Serpent was a twin screw vessel of 1170 tons and 4500 horse-power. She carried six guns. She was a swift, light cruiser, one of eight commenced during the administration of Lord Northbrook. She was launched in 1887.

The Duke of Edinburgh was attending a Patti concert at Plymouth when the news of the disaster reached him. He at once left the hall and hastened to the various newspaper offices in search of further details. He then went directly home. He expressed the utmost sorrow at the fate that had overtaken so many brave men. The newspaper officials at Plymouth were besieged by crowds anxious to hear further news of the disaster. Among these were sobbing wives and daughters of many of the lost seamen.

It is stated that many of the crew of the Serpent before the vessel started on her last voyage expressed the fear that some misfortune would befall the ship.

The Admiralty has telegraphed to the British consul at Corunna asking for details of the disaster. The Queen has sent a similar message to the Duke of Edinburgh.

Lord George's Callousness.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, made a speech to-night at a Conservative banquet at Acton. He began as follows: "I am sorry to say that just before I came here I received a telegram saying that the torpedo cruiser Serpent had been lost on the Spanish coast. I fear there has been a great loss of life. The Serpent was one of our best cruisers and was a valuable vessel. She had excellent officers and a fine crew. I cannot tell the cause of the disaster." This announcement caused a momentary sensation among the guests, but apparently the startling news was quickly forgotten. Lord Hamilton made a rollicking speech provoking frequent outbursts of laughter. The incident was a topic of conversation in the clubs late to-night and was generally denounced as scandalous. An old charge made against Mr. Gladstone is that he attended the theatre on the evening of the day on which the news was received here of the death of Gen. Gordon at Khartoum. It is believed to-night's incident will be used as a set-off to this accusation against the ex-premier.

Official Confirmation.

MADRID, Nov. 12.—An official telegram from Corunna says that the Serpent was wrecked off Cape Bucy, near the village of Camorinas. There were 276 persons aboard of her, of whom only 3 sailors were saved. The bodies of three ladies have been washed ashore. The Government has ordered the authorities at Camorinas to render every assistance in their power.

The three sailors saved swam ashore at Camorinas. They express the belief that all the others on board were drowned. There is no telegraph station at Camorinas.

Sunk Off Copenhagen.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11.—The steamer Courier of Gothenburg collided this morning with the Norwegian bark Rex in the Sound. The steamer sank immediately. The captain, four men and two women were drowned, while three men were saved.

30 Bodies Recovered.

VIENNA, Nov. 12.—The bodies of 30 of the persons who lost their lives by the capsizing of a ferry boat in the River Waag, near Bizzitcutz yesterday, have been recovered.

HEAVY GALES AT SEA.

The Captain and Quartermaster of the Dominion ss. Vancouver Perish in a Fierce Hurricane.

FATHER POINT, Que., Nov. 12.—The Dominion Line steamship Vancouver left Liverpool with a heavy sea running and a head wind, the latter increasing as the vessel proceeded westward until it developed into a hurricane, and the ship's speed only averaged about 7 knots an hour instead of 15, her usual speed. Capt. Lindall never left the bridge until Friday morning, when nature could stand it no longer. He went down to the chart room to throw himself on a couch and ordered a cup of coffee, leaving the first officer on the bridge with orders to call him the moment his services were deemed necessary.

Almost immediately afterwards the sea struck the ship and washed relentlessly across her bows, crushing in the ship's bulwarks, tearing with it the vessel's bridge and her chart-room and washing the captain and quartermaster, who was at the wheel, into the sea and flooding the saloons and berths. The upper deck was almost completely carried away.

Nothing was seen of the captain or quartermaster after they were swept overboard. The first officer took charge of the ship and the steering gear was hurriedly repaired as quickly as possible in such an emergency. The ship was rounded to the storm once again, and after three days more through the storm arrived here five days behind her usual time.

The Vancouver is very much battered, but she weathered the storm nobly. Much regret is felt at the loss of Captain Lindall. He was 52 years old, a Swede by birth, and had been in the service 15 years. He leaves a wife and family.

Koch's Remarkable Cures.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The following particulars are published of a case of lupus of the face in Frankfort where Dr. Libbertz has been treated by Dr. Koch's method. Six hours after the injection of the lymph the temperature of the patient rose to over 104 and the pulse to 130. At midnight the fever abated, the sores swelled the head of the lupus, ulcers became light yellow and from them exudes a serous liquid. After 13 hours scabs began to form. To-day the patient was free from fever, and the ulcers were covered with scabs similar to those on a person recovering from an eruptive fever or from eczema. The doctor intends to inject more lymph when the scabs fall.

A medical correspondent of The Tageblatt reports that in a case of lung disease the patient complained of pains in the knee, which were regarded as proof of the tuberculous nature of the disease and that an injection of lymph was made in the back, which was followed by considerable swelling of the knee joints.

Minister Von Gossler has given 200,000 marks for the erection of a special hospital for the treatment of consumptives by the Koch method. A patient who has been treated by Prof Koch will be shown to the Surgical Society Monday.

THE PRESIDENT ESCAPES.

He Fights Through the Lines of the Revolutionists and is Being Pursued.

LA LIBERTAD, Nov. 12.—Gen. Bogran, President of Honduras, and his forces, who were surrounded in one of the wards of Tegucigalpa, withdrew from the capital on Monday night, fighting through the lines. They are being pursued by soldiers sent after them by Gen. Sanchez, who is now in complete possession of the capital and appears to be master of the situation. It is understood that Sanchez will at once declare a de facto government and send representatives to Salvador, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and possibly to Mexico and the United States. A cipher dispatch over the federal lines from Guatemala brings information that Barillas has sent 1000 soldiers from the frontier to aid Bogran in recapturing Tegucigalpa and restoring order in Honduras. The greatest excitement prevails in the Guatemalan capital and another large war is predicted. Conservative people censure the act of sending troops to Honduras and predict a general war in Central America.

SAN SALVADOR, Nov. 12.—Several cabinet meetings have been held, over which President Ezeta presided. The facts in regard to the report that Barillas had sent troops to interfere in the affairs of Honduras were considered.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The Trent Valley Canal Commissioners are still in commission. A despatch published in yesterday's EXAMINER gave the information that the members of the Trent Valley Canal Commission had been visiting the system of canal locks on the Erie Canal at Lockport, N.Y. This visit is, of course, with reference to the gathering of information that will permit the Commissioners to make a report regarding the feasibility of constructing the Trent Valley Canal. The Commissioners seem to be getting all the available information, and it is to be hoped that their report will be favorable to the construction of this much needed work. The Commission was altogether unnecessary. The government, before the appointment of the Commission, was solemnly pledged on the word of a Crown Minister to the building of the Trent Valley Canal, and they perhaps wished for an excuse for the abandonment of the work, when they appointed a commission, which, they hoped, would report adversely. But the commission may take it into their heads to give an honest bona-fide report, which will recommend the resumption of the work of completing the canal. One thing is certain, the Government will work the scheme for all it is worth at the approaching election.

UNDER unrestricted reciprocity, an exchange points out, coal oil would be purchased in Canada for twelve cents per gallon. In Ogdensburg and other towns along the American border the price is from ten to twelve cents per gallon, while in Brockville the same kind of oil retails at thirty cents. Of course those wealthy people who can afford to pay for gas or electric lights are not interested in coal oil, but to the ordinary workingman cheap light is a necessity.

Why They Are Afraid.

The Government's Reasons for not Meeting Parliament—Serious Disclosures Feared—The McGreevy Case Said to be Worse than the Pacific Scandal.

A special despath to the Ottawa Free Press, dated Quebec, Nov. 11th, says:—The Liberals here claim that they have now secured all the documentary proof necessary to establish charges of wholesale corruption and fraud in connection with the granting of contracts for Dominion public works. Mr. Laurier is credited with the statement that he is prepared, when parliament meets, to make and prove charges that will completely eclipse the Pacific scandal. It is doubtless the knowledge that the opposition have secured these proofs that has caused the Dominion government to put off the meeting of parliament until the latest possible date. It is not alone McGreevy that is involved. Every influence and quibble that could be put forward to prevent the facts from coming to light in the courts was used, and now an effort is to be made to STIFLE PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY.

The friends of the Federal Government here admit that the session has been postponed on account of the McGreevy case, and hint that both Sir Hector and Mr. McGreevy will be out of the House before the session opens. Some are even urging the Dominion ministers to dissolve parliament before the exposure comes, or at least before the charges which Mr. Laurier proposes to make can be established. McGreevy's friends argue that the facts would never have been made public but for Sir Adolphe Caron, and they are determined that the war minister shall never be elected in Quebec county. Some of the Langevin papers are preparing to formally charge Sir Adolphe with being at the bottom of what they call the Tarte conspiracy.

THE GOVERNMENT AND MR. MCGREEVY.

Sir Hector Langevin came to town on Sunday, and yesterday Le Canadien, for his benefit, publishes another batch of McGreevy's compromising letters for the purpose as Mr. Tarte says, of calling the attention of the Government to the fact that Mr. McGreevy is still maintained by them as a harbour commissioner, though the correspondence, the authenticity of which cannot be questioned, shows beyond the shadow of a doubt that he made use of his position, both as a member of parliament and a harbour commissioner, to prostitute his double public trust to the service of a firm of contractors with whose interests he was identified. And, Mr. Tarte adds:—"If Sir John's cabinet takes the responsibility of Mr. McGreevy's culpable acts it will have a heavy load to carry, and it is its duty to get from under it as quickly as possible. This country is not a conquered one, to be delivered over to pillage. An English Major-General, Sir Frederick Middleton, has just been thrown into public disgrace for a few packages of furs, by which he never profited. He had been imprudent and thoughtless, but it is not imprudence or thoughtlessness to get surreptitious communications in advance of tenders and to offer to make the contents known to contractors. The question is not one of a few marten or musk rat skins, but of interests involving hundreds of thousands of dollars.

OTHER REASONS FOR DELAY

Another reason for postponing the meeting of Parliament is the intense dissatisfaction which exists among the lumbermen of the eastern townships over the abolition of the export duty upon spruce logs. The extravagant Conservatives openly charge the government with sacrificing their interests through cowardice.

Mr. Mercier's bold and manly policy in the matter of elementary schools and lunatic asylums is winning him hosts of friends. The Conservative Nationalists do not endorse Mr. L. P. Pelletier's opposition to state control over asylums, and the opposition will not venture to oppose the government's policy upon that question. Mr. Mercier is receiving congratulations from all quarters, for the courage he has shown in undertaking to sweep away the abuses which have grown up under Tory misrule.

Canadian Horse Breeding.

The Horseman, of Chicago, Ill., a conservative journal on equine topics, pays the following compliments to Canada in its last issue: "It is not an exaggeration to say that in none of our States is the breeding interest becoming more firmly established and making greater comparative progress at present than in Canada. The movement is general all along the line, from the sandstone headlands that are washed by the Gulf of St. Lawrence to the boundless plains of the Great Lone Land. Many parts of the eastprovinces are admirably adapted to the breeding business as the rich Province of Ontario, the better sections of which in agricultural wealth will compare favorably with any of the States. A tide of good blood has steadily poured across the borders, and now almost every county in the Dominion has its well-bred stallion, and on many farms are gilt-edged matrons. But good tracks and good trainers are scarce in Canada, and progress must be made in this regard before extreme speed will be seen in the Northland. That progress will be made is sure. Never was there as much racing in Canada as during the season just closing, and good tracks and good trainers are but the natural developments of racing. Nelson and Alvin have shown that great speed can be produced in lands that are snow-bound in winter, and no doubt that in time other Alvins will come across the line to show that our neighbours are not idle with the blood we have sent them."

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

The Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Wheat has been active and firmer than for several days, showing a gain at close of ¾c. over the opening. This advance for a while was helped by reports of better feeling in money market in New York, but towards the close advices from the east were less favorable; but our market held its own and closes steady at 1c. above lowest point touched yesterday. We believe it will sell higher, but it will make several false starts in that direction before we get a steady advance. Holders of stock and grain have suffered a severe loss, and are in a weaker position than of late and less able to force an advance and on a firm basis. Liverpool quiet, demand poor, 4d lower. London unchanged. Berlin higher. Clearances 3,000 bu. wheat and 29,000 pkgs. 2s flour. Receipts, 784,000 bu; shipments, 355,000 bu. Two loads taken in N. Y. for export. Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth 768 cars.

Barley Market.

BUFFALO, Nov. 11.—The barley market remains very dull, though the feeling was firmer to-day, owing to less stringent financial reports from the east. There is considerable Canadian barley, however, as well as western on offer, but buyers do not appear to be at all hungry, and haul off on the least advance asked, which keeps trade almost at a standstill. Values to-day closed firm at No. 1 Canada, 93 to 94c.; No. 2 do, 90 to 91c.; No. 3 do, extra, 86 to 88c.; No. 3 do, 82 to 85c.; state six-rowed, 90 to 91c; two-rowed, 82 to 85c; No. 2 western, 75 to 76c; No. 3 extra, 71 to 73c.; No. 3, 65 to 69. A sale of 5,000 bushels choice Michigan was reported at 85c.; fair to good, held at 72 to 75c.

Live Stock Market.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—There were 65 loads brought in at the Western Cattle Market this morning, and business all round was pretty brisk. In the lot there were about 400 hogs and 400 sheep and lambs. The supply of calves is limited. Prices remain unchanged, good stuff bringing good figures and inferior going for whatever is offered. In butchers' cattle the supply was greater than the demand in a way, as the quality was not quite up to the mark. The best class of butchers' cattle brings 4c. per lb., and always meets a quick sale.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 10.—There were 900 head of Canadian cattle at Stanley market to-day. Demand was very weak, best Canadian steers being quoted at 11½c. Only 500 head were sold. No Canadian sheep offered. Quotations are:—Finest steers, 11½c.; good to choice, 11c.; poor to medium, 10c.; inferior and bulls 7½ to 9c.

THE HOUSE AND HOME.

SUNDRY AIDS TO CONVERT THE FORMER INTO THE LATTER.

A Veteran in Floral Study Tells All About Making the Best of These Glorious Autumn Days — Other Notes — Fresh Air.

Do you wish to be healthy?—
Then keep the house sweet;
As soon as you're up
Shake each blanket and sheet.

Leave the beds to get fresh
On the close crowded floor;
Let the wind sweep right through—
Open window and door.

The bad air will rush out
As the good air comes in,
Just as goodness is stronger
And better than sin.

Do this, it's soon done,
In the fresh morning air;
It will lighten your labor,
And lessen your care.

You are weary—no wonder,
There's weight and there's gloom
Hanging heavily round
In each over-full room.

Be sure all the trouble
Is profit and gain,
For there's head-ache and heart-ache,
And fever and pain.

Hovering round, settling down
In the closeness and heat:
Let the wind sweep right through
Till the air's fresh and sweet,

And more cheerful you'll feel
Thro' the toil of the day;
More refresh'd you'll awake
When the night's passed away.

Autumn Floral Study.

The most glorious days of autumn are with us. The sky sheds a mellow light over the yellowing hills and the gorgeous, red crimson, bronze and yellow tinted draperied forests.

The red alder berries are now asking us to gather their branches for storage in a cool place, that they may be preserved to brighten our evergreen decorations at Christmas. Clematis should be gathered soon as it is in full bloom and draped about our rooms there to ripen out in its fleecy beauty, that which ripens out of doors does not "hold itself" as long nor as well as that plucked earlier.

Golden rod and other immortelles, with rich hued leaves from the now radiant forest, will brighten rooms for months.

INDOOR PLANTS.

The garden flowers must now be saved from an early death by frost, by removal to sheltered corners on the piazza, or into the greenhouses, or the windows of the room they are to adorn the coming winter.

To pot the smaller coleuses in rich earth cut back each branch, and give them the sunniest windows and a moderate amount of water daily. Shade and too much moisture will ruin the beauty of the choicest foliage plant.

If one has a handsome tub full of thrifty healthful plants and vines, it can be taken in to the house as it is, without re-potting, and with proper care can be kept as thrifty all winter as it has been in summer; to do this, first cut off the end of each ivy vine, as far as it looks delicate and the leaves somewhat infrequent.

Then remove every bud from the geraniums and other flowering plants in the tub; this checking of the blooms for a few weeks gives the needed rest to the roots, and they can thus give all their time and strength to the strain placed upon them, while they are, as it were, becoming acclimated, adjusting their habits to the change from an outdoor to an indoor atmosphere.

After taking off each bud, go carefully over the tips of every branch and stem; if the branch is short, say four inches, cut it back one inch; if long, two, or even three inches may be nipped off. If then, the plant is not symmetrical, cut off, if need be to make it so; whole branches.

If a plant does not grow shapely naturally, make it so by daily pruning. No plants, except callas and other water lilies, will do well in mud puddles. When the florist says certain plants "need to be kept moist," he does not mean that the earth in the pot should be kept in a state of mud.

Except "water-babies," plants need to really dry off occasionally; not enough so that the leaves shall wilt, but to become moderately dry.

A careful observation of Nature's treatment is better worth observing than the reading of the ways and method. If thought and common sense are brought to the matter, then one can learn from, rather than blindly copy, their neighbor's method.

As the coleus must have sunny windows, so must the lovely ferns and mosses have the cool, shady ones.

If there are no sunny windows, do not attempt impossibilities by trying to have beautiful foliage plants. If there is not a cool, north window, do not try ferns and mosses. Figs will not grow on thistles, nor coleus hold its rich crimson or bronze tints in a northern exposure; nor ferns keep green and fresh in a southern.

Flowers, like children, will display an unkempt stamp if neglected; or what is as bad nearly, well cared for only "by fits and starts."

The woman who does either of these will be seen looking in idiotic despair at either plants or children on occasion, and will be heard saying over the first and to the latter "I never have any luck with my plants."

And to the children will say, weakly, "You surprise me!" when the intermittently trained little ones forget that to-day "company manners" was expected of them. Eternal vigilance is the price of any well-found success. Hit-or-miss care gives hit-or-miss results

Katy Did and Katy Didn't.

There is one crop of early autumn that grows on trees, which doesn't vary much, and that is the katy-dids. Climatic influences are favorable to the growth of this fruit. It is a singular thing that on the same trees, where, 40 years ago, as little elms, these chanting insects lived, they now stay. They are never known to change from one tree to another. There may be several elms of equal size on one street, but two trees will most likely hold all of the katy-dids, and from the first chosen greenery they never budge. The same way one yard will have its number, or one tree in a yard, the next person's grounds, although just as cool and shaded, will have none.

Those in the same trees or yards have good manners, never interrupting each other, but listening intently for their turn to express their belief as to whether Katy did or didn't.

The outside world, after having listened for years to the debate, is divided as to opinion. Just the same as on more important subjects, it judges in accordance with the sentiments of its own consciousness. These little green chanters never change their opinion. For years after year they belong to the dids or didn'ts, and by no mistake alter their saying.

One may tramp around the trees where

What is Good.

"What is the real good,"
I ask in musing mood.
"Order," said the law court;
"Knowledge," said the school;
"Truth," said the wise man;
"Pleasure," said the fool;
"Love," said the maiden;
"Beauty," said the page;
"Freedom," said the dreamer;
"Home," said the sage;
"Fame," said the soldier;
"Equity," the seer.
Spake my heart full sadly:
"The answer is not here."

Then within my bosom
Softly this I heard:
"Each heart holds the secret;
'Kindness' is the word."

How the Great Geologist Once Earned a Shilling.

Among other stories the recent biography of the eminent geologist, Adam Sedgwick, who died in 1873, tells how the professor once earned a shilling. Did I ever earn a shilling? Yes, I did, one day in Wales. I had had a long tramp on the hills and was walking home, dog tired and very weary, when I caught sight of fossils in some stones laid by the wayside. So I sat down and began hammering away. Presently a lady came up and asked me several questions about the country, and how she was to get to a place the name of which I have now forgotten. She thanked me for my information and added:

"Poor man, you must find this very hard work." "Yes, indeed I do," I replied, whereupon she took out her purse and gave me a shilling. Next evening, to my great amusement, she came to dine at the house where I was staying. I recognized her at once, but she did not know me in my altered dress. She was visiting Wales for the first time and was full of enthusiasm for the scenery and the people. "They are so obliging and so communicative," she said. "Only yesterday I had a long conversation with an old man who was breaking stone on the road. He told me all I wanted to know, and was so civil that I gave him a shilling." I could not resist the pleasure of saying, "Yes, ma'am, you did, and here it is."—Melbourne Leader

ON SOAP,

IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the 'Combe Trust;' Editor of "Health"

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing guaranteed non-forfeiture policies and policies which claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting the masses by producing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

Ladies will be saved thereby as much as possible the inconvenience of going up stairs. Fairweather & Co. have a spacious store, filled with the best furs in the market.

Two Hours Late.

The noon G.T.R. train left Peterborough nearly two hours late to-day owing to an accident to the engine. While running towards Omemee the springs of the tender broke, and the settling of the tender on the trucks broke a couple of brake beams. At Omemee a delay occurred while another engine was being sent from Lindsay. The engine when it arrived was found to have no steam brake, but the train was hauled to Peterborough and an express locomotive despatched from Port Hope. By the time it arrived and the train was got under way it was nearly two o'clock.

Betting on Birchall.

Speculation is rife as to whether Birchall will actually pay the penalty of his life upon the scaffold to-morrow. A great many people believe that Birchall will yet cheat the gallows, and last night, and even to-day, bets were freely offered among the "sports" that Birchall would find means to destroy himself. On the streets to-day Birchall's impending doom was the principal topic of conversation. A rumor of his suicide was started but quickly died out. If the course of justice is not interfered with the EXAMINER to-morrow will contain a graphic account of his hanging.

SPLENDID PROGRAMME.

South Manvers Methodists.

The Methodists of the old "South Manvers" circuit have changed the name and location of that field of labour, taking in each case the thriving village of Port Hope on the line of the C. P. R., about thirty miles east of Toronto, at which place they have erected (through the energy of the pastor, the Rev. H. McQuaig), a beautiful parsonage just north of the station. The building is of brick, and beautiful in design, with all outbuildings complete, at a cost of $2,000. The trustees at a recent meeting passed a very complimentary resolution to the builder, Mr. Andrew Lee, late of Smithfield, as well as to the pastor.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

Another Idol Shattered.

Who has not read the "Pilgrim's Progree" and been charmed with the rough but fervid allegory of John Bunyan, who was cast into Bedford jail, as it is said for conscience? But it has been discovered that he richly deserved prison, for he who has posed for two centuries as a saint is a fraud instead of being a saint he is an illicit whisky seller. A hotel keeper named John Bunyan was arrested the other day in a western Ontario town charged with keeping open his dive after hours. It is a sad fact that there is no place where you can get the real article in the shape of tea but hawley bros'. The best of teas and rare good coffees. dw

A New Firm.

Messrs Bates Bros. have purchased the bakery, dining hall and fruit and confectionery business lately managed by Mrs. Harvey, on George street, and are now soliciting public patronage. Both are young men of business ability and experience. One of the brothers has recently been connected with a Toronto bakery, and will bring his experience gained in the city to bear upon the business. A new oven is being built for them, and they will do all their own baking in first-class style. Their dining hall will also be maintained, and in the line of fruit, confectionery, oysters, etc., they guarantee satisfaction. Bates Bros., by their enterprise and push, will, no doubt, make a success of their newly-acquired business.

The Trent Valley Canal Scheme.

The Globe's Ottawa correspondent says:—Surprise has been created by the absence of any report from Judge Weller's Trent Valley Commission, appointed a couple of years ago by the Government. Your correspondent learns that the reason for delay is that the engineers appointed on the Commission have reported against the carrying out of the project, but it would never do to give this out to the counties in Central Ontario interested until after the general election. The Government may after that give the scheme its quietus, but they can never forget the eminent services to the party of the Trent Valley Canal. They are not ungrateful. The Commission is also serving the purpose of keeping Mr. Carnegie, ex-M.P.P., the secretary, within reason.

Not a Dull Moment.

On last evening our people had the extreme pleasure of seeing Field and Winchell and an excellent company in the great musical comedy success, "Two Old Chums." There is more real fun in "Two Old Chums" as presented by this company than one would expect could possibly be crowded into one evening's programme, and, it is needless to say, the audience was pleased beyond measure. There is not a dull moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain, and the audience is alternately charmed with music and convulsed with laughter. A prominent feature of the entertainment was found in the wonderful performance of Mr. Harry Anslun, the musical marvel. He plays a great many different instruments, and his ability to make music out of all manner of things is truly remarkable. No description of his performance can do him justice. He must be seen and heard to be appreciated.—Duluth (Minn.) Daily News. At Bradburn's Opera house, Friday, Nov. 14th. 1d

Don't Have Cold Feet, it is Dangerous!

Writers, book keepers, and men of sedentary habits, as well as delicate women, often feel chilly in summer, and in autumn and winter are troubled with cold feet in the office, study and home. It should be known to all that mental exercise exhausts the bodily heat, and therefore brings on a cold feeling in the feet which is not conducive to health. People of sedentary habits should never sit for any length of time without foot warmers or warm lined slippers or shoes. It is, however, best to get rid of this dangerous trouble.

The trouble is frequently the result of impoverished blood, and a sluggish circulation. Persons suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion are sure subjects for cold feet. The rheumatic, and those suffering from general debility, and all troubled with kidney and liver complaints, soon begin to experience the discomforts of having cold feet.

We have known many persons troubled with the above named ailments, and with cold feet, who have expended large sums of money for physicians services without any good results. There is however, one well known remedy which can be strongly recommended, and which in the past has proved eminently successful; it is Paine's Celery Compound; it is not simply a tonic or ordinary medicine, but a well-known scientific preparation which thoroughly regulates the action of the bowels and all internal organs, gives a vigorous and heal by circulation, and promotes a perfect digestion. It allays and calms the nervous feelings and fits man and woman to enjoy healthful repose and sleep.

Once this desired state is secured, you may safely rest assured that cold feet will be a thing of the past, as far as you are concerned. Foot warmers and expensive lined shoes will not necessarily be required; because nature's building up will give the body sufficient caloric to keep you comfortable and healthy. We would urge upon all the advisability and great necessity of trying the wonderful effects which one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound will have during the cold season.

Fight on an Engine.

The Engineer and Fireman Grapple in a Death Struggle.

A fight, to the death, between the engineer and fireman of an express train, speeding through the country at night, is a bold conception of a modern novelist.

The fireman is jealous of the engineer; one night, crazed with drink, he keeps on fuel until the boiler is likely to explode. The engineer pleads with him, then expostulates, and at last attempts to prevent further addition. Then the fireman grapples the engineer and tries to throw him from the engine; a terrible struggle ensues. The fight is for life! They speak no word but with teeth clenched, strive one to precipitate the other to the ground.

Meanwhile the train rushes on. The engineer, finally growing weak, endeavors to reach the regulator to stop the train and summon help. Too late! The crazed fireman guesses his plan, stiffens himself to a superhuman effort, lifts the exhausted engineer from his feet, exclaiming:—

"Ah, you want to stop the train! Now, out you go."

With this he flings the engineer out—but the latter clings to him, he cannot shake him off, so both go out together! Draws under the wheels, they are found headless, two bloody trunks clinging in a death embrace! And the train, ungoverned, rushes on in the darkness!

Here the story ends; the fate of the train is left to the imagination. It is easy to see that the chances are a hundred to one it rushes on to destruction. So with the person having chronic kidney complaint—it is almost certain to result in Bright's disease, then death, for the doctors admit they have no cure for it. But a certain cure may be had. Note what Sumpter Heard, of Frederick, Md., says, in a letter of May 19th, 1890:—"For five years I had been the victim of Bright's disease, at times suffering the severest pains. I tried many kidney remedies, and consulted as many physicians, but was not benefitted and at length became tired of what seemed to be and was a useless expenditure. I began taking Warner's Safe Cure and was relieved at once. The old symptoms recur occasionally, but I find relief only with the above remedy, which I regard as the best of proprietary medicines."

Missionary Matters.

Meeting at Norwood of the Bay of Quinte Conference Committee.

NORWOOD, Nov. 12—The missionary committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference met here yesterday. A large number of prominent ministers and laymen were present. The sum of $10,000 appropriated by the central board of missions was divided among the various domestic and Indian missions within the bounds of the conference. The representatives of the Bowmanville and Uxbridge districts, transferred from the Toronto conference at the recent meeting of the general conference in Montreal, were present and the utmost harmony prevailed. The conference special committee, composed of the president and secretary, the chairman of districts and five other leading ministers, met at the same time. A very successful missionary meeting was held on Monday evening, at which eloquent addresses were delivered by Rev. A. B. Chambers, L.L.B., of Napanee; Rev. E. Roberts, of Uxbridge; Mr. E. D. O'Flynn, of Madoc. Mr. G. D. Platt, of Picton, was elected the lay representative to the central board. The various meetings were presided over by the president, Rev. William Burns, of Millbrook, and Rev. C. W. Watch, of Cannington, acted as secretary. By the courtesy of the Board of Management, the meetings were all held in the Presbyterian church, the new Methodist church not being yet fit for occupation.

Omemee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Good weather for ploughing yet. Farmers are exceedingly well favoured.

Thomas Moorief, of Emily, had a very successful sale. Owing to ill health he was obliged to give up farming, and removed to Beaufort, South Monaghan, his former home. Mr and Mrs. Moorief made many friends during their stay here, and our loss is Beaufort and vicinity's gain.

The Peterborough markets are attracting large crowds from south, west, east and north of here.

Mr. Jackson, manufacturer of pianos and repairer of musical instruments, is working up a good trade in this vicinity, notwithstanding keen competition.

Mr. Londesbrough, Reform candidate for South Victoria, will shortly hold meetings in the vicinity of Frankhill and other points along eastern Emily. The Tories are quite numerous in saying he is going to be victorious.

PANIC AND DEATH.

Broker Struthers Falls Dead Among His Associates on the Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—From a scene of the wildest activity, rendered feverish by a panicky tendency in prices, the arena of the New York Stock Exchange was at noon yesterday at a moment's notice hushed to an almost deathly stillness. The morning had been one of intense excitement, consequent on a drop all around in home railways. Prices were going down on all sides at rates which rattled the nerves of even the most hardened operator. Toward noon the excitement became more intense. Just at 11¾ strangers in the gallery for the first time, awed and almost transfixed by the unusual vehemence of the shouting, the vicious jostling of the brokers and the noise of the telegraph instruments, noticed a trim, gray-haired old gentleman enter by the main door, and make his way with a slightly unsteady gait towards the stands of the New York Central and Chicago and Illinois. Messengers, wild in haste, made him totter as they galloped past, and brokers intent on their work and shouting took no notice as he rubbed heavily against them in piloting his way along. Continuing his way the old man fell unnarily against Broker C. B. Gunther. Gunther moved to make way and the old man fell on his knees, and from that position fell on his face. It was only then that he attracted attention, and a few brokers in the nearest circle, including Messrs. Gunther, Francis and Read, turned him on his back and relieved his throat as he gasped for breath. One ran for water and another for a doctor. By the time Dr. Hewitt arrived the old man had been recognized as Broker James Struthers, a well-known member of 'Change. Quite a crowd had gathered round, but the business of the Exchange still went on, and men only a few yards away were shouting and gesticulating wildly. Struthers was pronounced beyond the doctor's reach, and he expired a few minutes before noon. President Dickerson then mounted the rostrum and announced the death of Mr. Struthers and the suspension of the business of the Exchange for half an hour. There was at once an impressive stillness, the body was carried away in a stretcher, and for the second instance in its history the roar of the New York Stock Exchange was stopped for half an hour on a week day noon. The only precedent was four years ago, when Vice-President A. B. Hill fell dead while announcing the death of a friend. Promptly at 12½, with a rush and a tumult, business was resumed, and brokers talked of Mr. Struthers's death only when the active business of the day was over.

WEDDED TO HIS SISTER.

A Strange Romance Concerning Two Waifs From Over the Sea.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 12.—A romance of unusually pathetic details was discovered to-day when two detectives from Toronto discovered in Mr. and Mrs. Asa Barr of Kansas City, Kan., the relationship of brother and sister and the heirs of fortunes left by Mrs. Barr's deceased mother. Twenty-five years ago two waifs, mere babes, brother and sister, were abandoned by German immigrants at Castle Garden. They were legally adopted, one by a man named Asa Barr, the other by a Mrs. Evans. Mrs. Evans moved soon afterward to Philadelphia, where she brought up her adopted daughter, giving her all the comforts of a home and a good education. Twenty years later the boy, grown to manhood and having taken his adopted father's name, moved also to Philadelphia, where he followed the trade of a painter. Chance drew the brother and sister together. Barr was captivated with the girl and wooed, won and married her. Soon after they moved to Kansas City, Kan., where Barr continued in his trade as a painter. Not long ago Mrs. Evans died. Quickly following her death occurred that of a relative in London, Canada, who died rich and intestate. His fortune would have passed to Mrs. Evans as the nearest relative, but her death having occurred her adopted daughter became the heiress. The attorneys sent detectives to trace the heiress and in their investigation of the case discovered the true relationship of Mr. and Mrs. Barr to be brother and sister. They arrived here to-day and revealed to the unfortunate couple the facts. The terrible knowledge prostrated Mrs. Barr and her husband is grief-stricken. No issue has resulted from their marriage. Legal proceedings will at once be instituted to sever the marriage bond and Mrs. Barr will go to London, Canada, to claim her fortune.

A FIREBUG ARRESTED.

An Incendiary Gives the Town a Close Call and is Arrested.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 12.—A bold attempt at incendiarism was made about 2 o'clock this morning. Flames were noticed coming from the rear of M. H. Buckley & Co.'s furniture store and also the Niagara Falls gymnasium rooms. A young man named Albert Connolly, who claims he noticed the flames when returning home, ran to the fire tower and rang the alarm. The flames were quickly extinguished before doing much damage. A few hours later scraps of burned paper were found on the stairway leading to the first floor in Cole's block, a few doors east of the rink in the same block, proving conclusively that a second attempt was made and had burnt itself out. The Ontario police, after looking into the affair, found scraps of partly burnt paper, one in particular being a notice of a protested note with Connelly's name on it and with other evidence. The police arrested Connolly this morning. Connolly, who is suspected of being the incendiary, is employed as guide at the Whirlpool Rapids Park.

BEETHOVEN AND MOZART.

How Emperor Joseph Caused the Youthful Genius to Play Before the Veteran.

Here is an interesting story, which does not occur in Louis Engel's most charming book of anecdotes and reminiscence of musicians, but which in points of interest and of prettiness is of a piece with the narratives contained therein. When Ludwig Beethoven first visited the Austrian court, he was 16 years of age. Well provided with letters of introduction to Emperor Joseph, he proceeded alone to the palace, determined to play his way into the affections of the monarch.

Admitted to the palace, he was met in an ante-chamber by a very civil gentleman, who told him that the Emperor could not well receive him then, but would be glad to have him present himself that evening for an audience in the Augarten. Attracted by the quiet and friendly demeanor of this person, young Beethoven engaged in conversation with him and presently discovered that he was the Emperor's barber, a discovery arising from the stranger's casual admission that he "shaved the Emperor every morning."

"Tell me," demanded the youth, "is he indulgent or severe?"

"That depends," answered the barber; "when he comes to music matters he is strict enough."

"Yes, I know what that means," said Beethoven, sneeringly, "he plays the piano a little, and struns away on the violoncello, and composes sonatas, out, between you and me, these big people don't carry their music studies very far after all."

This honest expression of opinion seemed to amuse the barber mightily; he simply roared with laughter.

That evening at the appointed hour Beethoven came to the Augarten and was shown into the music-room, where the Emperor and a friend were seated in conversation. Intense was the young musician's horror to learn that the supposed barber and the Emperor were one. But the Emperor took the joke with such amazing good humor that Beethoven, for his part, was willing to forgive and forget. He seated himself at the piano, and at the Emperor's request improvised on a theme from Mozart's "Zarastro." This he did so remarkably well that his auditors were delighted. The Emperor's companion could not restrain his joy; running across the room, he threw his arms about the youth, crying,

"Such taste. Such skill. The youth who can so interpret the thought of another composer will one day be a great master in the art himself."

"Ah, but the air itself is so beautiful," said Beethoven, and then he added: "Mozart's music is divine."

"My lad," cried the Emperor, beaming with delight, "do you know whom you are talking to? It is Mozart himself to whom you have been playing and whose lips have just predicted the great future that lies before you."—Chicago News.

Wolseley's Tobacco Debauch.

Like General Gordon, Lord Wolseley was at one time an immense smoker. He told me that from a boy he had smoked constantly, and that for many years he always smoked from six in the morning till he went to bed at night, smoking nothing but big black cigars. When he was worried and troubled there was nothing in the world that soothed him as much as a cigar. He had always kept himself well in hand, and kept the habit under control by every now and then ceasing to smoke entirely for a week or a fortnight at a time. He has now given up smoking altogether and seemed to feel no inconvenience. For a fortnight before Tel-el-Kebir he had never smoked at all, but when the battle was won, as he stood on the bridge of the canal at the camp, he lit his first cigar, and smoked six, one after another, as hard as he could —a kind of tobacco debauch, as he said.—Review of Reviews.

The Murderer's Last Day on Earth.

HOW HE WHILED AWAY THE TIME

His Introduction to Jack Ketch—What Birchall Thinks of the P.E.—The Murderer Protests His Innocence—Talks Lightly and Eats Heartily—His Wife's Last and Final Farewell—The Man About to Die Discusses Capital Punishment—Special Reports From Woodstock Jail—At 8 O'Clock This Day His Tragic Career Ends.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 13.—Though to-day is the month of November it has had all the charms of early spring. The sun has shone clear and bright in the blue, cloudless sky; his brilliant rays flashing here and there upon the old gray stones of Oxford county's jail has made them glitter. But everything was changed when I visited the jail this evening. The gloom of a November afternoon was deepening into night and the gray shadows of twilight rendered still more dim and dreary the dismal jail.

The gaunt old building of cold-tinted stone, to which no friendly ivy had imparted a warmer hue, looked drear and dismal. A very hard fact indeed it looked in the cheerless landscape, where the almost leafless poplars waved their bare arms. Barred with iron as to its windows, dilapidated as to its steep roof, the old jail frowned sullenly upon the world.

It was the hour when the inhabitants of this bustling town had suspended work and were hurrying home to wife and family to partake of the evening meal. How happy, and busy and free everyone seemed! Along Van Sittart-avenue I observed a man and woman arm-in-arm with children dancing and shouting around them, walking slowly toward a little house where the open door, the smoking chimney, the fresh white curtains, denoted that a welcome was prepared for the bread-winner returning from his day's toil. It was easy to understand that the little maid who came back from the shop, that when and children had hastened to meet him, and that the happy little party was returning home with all the joyousness of a happy re-union.

Who can describe the bitter anguish that the sight of such peaceful domestic happiness brought to the soul of another miserable woman who had just emerged from the jail door, and who gazed on the merry group with bursting heart and longing eyes until blinding tears had dimmed her sight! For was not my husband, whose young life ought to be beginning rather than about to end thus fearfully, to die a violent and a shameful death, within the gloomy portals she had just left, on the morrow!

Another Picture.

Across the way a fireplace in the parlor brings out the sight of a mother with her baby on her knee, his honest eyes looking up into hers. Am I to be pitied because it recalls to me another mother—a poor old woman a thousand miles away, who used to sit on the dear old porch with its clematis vine, and when her boy came trooping home from school bury his head on her knee and fondle him as only a mother can? Am I to be blamed because my eyes grow dim and my lips quiver when I contrast those old days with the present under the shadow cast by the gallows upon which that young babe is to die to-morrow? Am I not to think of this because also there is another desolate house in far-off Cheltenham, where an old father and his sons gather around a table with the bright lamp on it that used to shine down the road like a loving message as the favored son came up the lane—the son whose poor murdered clay now rests beneath a mound in Princeton cemetery and for whose untimely end the son of that weeping mother is responsible!

The Prisoner's Pedigree

And this son, what of him? He upon whom the vengeance long dreaded, is about to fall. He upon the sure step of Nemesis has overtaken. Does he face his impending fate with dauntless mien and a heart that never quails? Let us see. Here is the man as described by himself in his autobiography:

> I am the son of the Rev. Joseph Birchall, M.A., late rector of Church Kirk, near Accrington, Lancashire, England; rural dean of Whalley and proctor in convocation for the archdeaconry of Manchester. My father was a very well-known man in the North of England and was an intimate friend of the late Bishop Fraser of Manchester and was considered an authority on matters pertaining to ecclesiastical law. He was a graduate of Brasenose College, Oxford, and a Hulmeian scholar of the same institution. I was born on May 5, 1860. Hence at the time when I am writing I am 30 years of age.

The Doomed Man.

Born and reared far enough beyond the contaminating influences of evil he never, it so appears to have taken so naturally to [illegible] as it seems to ask a question as to whether [illegible] the outcome of some [illegible] of mental disease. Commencing a promising career, with every advantage conferred by birth, training and education, to say nothing of the possession of a fair amount of means, he quickly qualified himself for a prominent position amongst those cavaliers of fortune who hover on the debatable land between acknowledged vice and apparent respectability. He had once been a pigeon before his callow plumage had been stripped, and it became necessary to lay out his dearly-bought experience in the character of a hawk. A few years of college life, followed by racing and gambling, with their concomitant vices, at the end of which he awoke to find himself with an empty purse and a large and varied assortment of worldly knowledge. To what use he devoted that knowledge it is needless to refer. His career is known to the public during the past eight years until the very hour when opportunity gripped hands with fate, and he cowardly slew the man he had attempted to rob. Slew him as ruthlessly and with as little compunction as a cruel tyrant would crush a snake.

Does He Fear Death?

There have been vulgar criminals who have caroused without a sign of fear until they were in the clutch of the officers of justice, and who then sank below the common standard of men; but it has not been so with him. Long ago he saw the gathering blackness of the storm, long ago he heard the faltering step of the Fate that dogs the guilty, and he knew the tread of Nemesis and waited, despairing but unconquered, for the coming doom. Extinction does not seem to have possessed for his heart that terror which is always ascribed to the human heart by pulpit orators. "Who is there without religion that does not contemplate death without a shudder?" is an expression very common in sermons. Death had no terrors for Birchall, however. The certain approach of an ignominious end has had no effect upon him. Indeed the last separation with his wife perhaps on his part more of the character of a parting for a week's journey than taking his last farewell. It may be, now that Birchall has been face to face with death so long that he has had opportunities to contemplate at leisure his sure approach, his features lost much of the grisly terror that they possess when he makes his sudden appearance, when totally unlooked for, and shows himself the King. Could it be said that he recoiled from the gloomy portrait when only last night he gaily sang:

> "You must place in my coffin a bottle of red,
> And say a poor fellow is gone."

Even to-night when the scythe and hour-glass are close to his elbow he is cool to calmness.

His Spiritual Adviser.

I had an interview this afternoon with Rev. W. Wade, rector of Old St. Paul's, who has been in constant attendance with the prisoner since his arrest. Last night he remained with him until 12 o'clock, speaking to him those divine words of pardon and love, without which how ruinously may the black spot that is in every human being's heart grow, and grow until perverted nature becomes capable of the blackest crime.

Until last evening Mr. Wade's task seemed well-nigh hopeless, still he labored on, trusting that, ere it should be too late, his tender accents, his sympathizing words, might reach the heart that appeared so hardened in its misery. That the representations have had a good effect was evidenced by the fact that when I saw him this morning he stated that recovering was in good spiritually as could be desired. Birchall appears to realize his awful position at last and was anxious to make his peace with God. Mr. Wade stated that no confession had yet been made; he was doubtful whether Birchall would confess that it was his hand had fired the fatal shot.

Mr. Wade will return to the jail about 8 o'clock this evening and will remain with the doomed man until the end, offering up prayers to the Fountain of Grace for the pardon of the condemned.

The Hangman Arrives.

Thomas Ratley, the executioner, boarded the C.P.R. train leaving Toronto at 8 a.m. today at Parkdale. He had the strangling cord along with him, done up neatly in a black package. The excellent photo of Ratley published in this morning's World, which, by the way, was in the hands of two-thirds of the passengers, male and female, on the train, had served to give people an idea of the appearance of the man, but as he was not expected on that train he was "spotted" by no person on board except the conductor. He wore an Irish frieze overcoat and an ordinary suit of tweed. On the arrival of the train at Woodstock Ratley stepped off with his parcel, lighted his pipe and strolled leisurely to the cab stand, where he handed his valise to the Jehu, climbed up on the seat with him and was driven to the jail, calmly smoking betimes. By some means the fact got out that he purposed coming up on that train and there was a curious crowd of gaping citizens to see him, such remarks as: "Wait until we see the hangman; he is coming on this train," and "There he is," being heard. It is doubtful if more than three or four persons recognized him, however. Ratley read the interview with him published in The World on the road up and complimented me upon its correctness, but was a little put out over the fact of his name and occupation being published, but apparently did not feel very much aggrieved.

The Body to be Buried in the Graveyard.

As announced yesterday, Mrs. Birchall, the County Crown Attorney and the Town Council united in petitioning the Attorney-General that the body of Birchall be not buried in the jail yard as required by law, but that it be handed over to his wife, who desires to embalm it, but this request has been declined. A telegram was received from Mr. Mowat this morning intimating that The Attorney-General says: "Unless there is some valid reason for a departure from the law the body must be interred in the jail yard, usual custom the law in this respect must be carried out. The country has already heard too much of this gentleman murderer. At a full meeting of the Cabinet it has been decided that he must be buried in the jail yard."

Birchall's Cell Changed.

Yesterday afternoon Birchall was removed from his cell overlooking the jail yard to one further west in the corridor. This was done, not because it was thought he might have secreted anything with which he might do away with himself, but in order that there might be no chance that he could observe the testing of the gallows during this afternoon.

He Still Protests His Innocence.

Although repeatedly urged to make a clean breast of the affair, the condemned man still sticks to the story that it was not he who fired the fatal shot, and he will probably go to the gallows with a lie upon his lips. Notwithstanding that he is within a few hours of eternity he still maintains the cheerful demeanor that has been characteristic of him since his incarceration. He will undoubtedly "die game," and there is not the remotest chance of a confession. Another characteristic which he will carry with him to the grave is his love of neat attire. His wife has at his suggestion purchased at a local haberdashery a blue flannel shirt, open in front, with turn down collar. This he will wear to the scaffold, with his best suit, a fashionable stand-up collar, linen plate cuffs, a black corded tie, and silk socks. After "the last scene of all" the flannel shirt will be removed, and a fine white linen one substituted.

Mrs. Birchall had an hour's interview with the prisoner Wednesday night through the bars of the cell.

LATEST FROM THE JAIL.

Birchall Protests His Innocence—His Wife's Affecting Farewell.

WOODSTOCK, Midnight.—I had another interview with the executioner this evening. He paid a visit to the jail this afternoon and looked at Birchall through the bars and says he will have no difficulty with him whatever.

Birchall evidently had an idea who his visitor was, and after he left asked the guard if that was his executioner. He was told that he was, and said he thought he looked like "a good sort." The guard informed him that his executioner was a professional, and he need have no fear of the result.

Ratley was asked as to Birchall's nerve, and stated that he could not say, by the way the next man he had ever "topped," that he had not men with equal composure, but a good deal of the talk of Birchall's nerve arose from the fact that he had more chance to display it owing to the latitude given him.

The executioner again visited the jail at 10:30 to-night. He will have a talk with the prisoner and explain his modus operandi to him. The P.E., prefers to do this with his subjects, as it has the effect of steadying their nerves. "I don't like them to break down at the last moment when sudden they confront with the executioner," said Jack Ketch, "and if Birchall is willing to see me now it will smooth matters wonderfully."

Light o' Clock the Fatal Hour.

The hanging will take place promptly at 8 o'clock. At that hour the executioner will be summoned and will enter the cell and pinion the condemned man's arms. They will be strapped at the elbows, leaving the hands free so that the doctors can feel the pulse. The legs will also be strapped above the knees.

A test of the gallows was made to-day and proved "eminently successful." The scaffold is a new one and, like the rope, was specially made for this execution. The executioner has abandoned the idea of using a chisel to cut the rope by which the weight is held in place. He has the apparatus so contrived that by simply pulling a string the weight will be released and the doomed man will shoot across the space between the two poles and upward. "It is a simple seesaw," said the executioner, "and Birchall will not feel the least pain. His neck will be dislocated instantly."

Ratley will not shake hands with the prisoner when he enters his cell. He will merely tell him that his hour has arrived and commence pinioning him.

Birchall still Lighthearted.

All day yesterday Birchall still retained his nerve and was as gay and lighthearted as "Lord" Somerset of a few years ago. He chatted pleasantly with his guards and related many a good anecdote that helped to while away the time.

He arose about 2 o'clock and ate a dinner of ham and eggs, toast and coffee. During the afternoon he heard the carpenter erecting the scaffold, yet this did not seem to dampen his spirits in the least.

Farewell Messages.

Birchall received messages from friends and cranks galore, to all of which he paid little heed. A cablegram from England read: "Confidence unabated; could not write. (Sgd.) EDWARD JOHNNY."

A New York crank telegraphed: "You are to be hanged on my birthday. Be a brave actor." Many similar despatches were received by the doomed man, but they only occupied his mind while reading them. He seemed to be thinking of the execution, for he spoke of it and expressed a hope that Jack Ketch would not make a bungle of the job.

Birchall's Only Fear.

This seemed to be his only fear. Once during the afternoon he caught a glimpse of the hangman, and taking him all in at a glance he remarked, "He's a smart-looking fellow." "Yes," replied Deputy-Sheriff Perry, "and they say that he is quite an enthusiast at the business." "So I'm told," was Birchall's cool response. After a moment's pause the man who had but a few hours to live went on, "But does he, this fellow of mine, ever fake?" "I'm told not," said the officer, "At Belleville they say he did not do a very good job, but he himself denies this." "Well, I hope he will be successful with me and I guess he will from what I've heard of him. Does he pull a lever?" "No, he pulls a rope."

He Discusses Capital Punishment.

Then the discussion turned on the question of capital punishment as compared with life imprisonment. At first Birchall seemed to favor the former as between the two evils and attentively listened to the views of his attendants. "It's like this, Birchall," said the good-natured deputy, "as long as there is life there is hope." "Not always," said the doomed man quickly caught the idea and his face lighted up with a bright smile. "Yes, and after you are in prison for a time the true facts of the case will become known and you will get reprieved." "Or by good behavior you would get out in ten or fifteen years, remarked the deputy.

Birchall Reiterates His Innocence.

"I would not care to take chances of that. If I were guilty I would rather hang, but I'm not, and that is why perhaps I had hoped so strongly for a commutation of my sentence. The facts will come out some day about this murder, and then we will know that they hanged an innocent man."

As the officers was about to leave Birchall grasped him warmly by the hand. "Good-bye, old man. I will see you in the morning. But before you go let me present you with this memento," and the murderer drew from his pocket a photo of himself, on which was written in a corner: "To John Perry, Esq., deputy Sheriff, Oxford County. On the opposite corner were the words: "From Reginald Birchall, Nov. 13, 1890."

His Wife's Last Farewell.

The farewell interview between Birchall and his wife lasted until long after midnight. It was very affecting on the part of the wife, but as stated above the murderer showed little emotion.

Rev. Mr. Wade was also present and several hours were spent in prayer.

Mrs. Birchall was driven from the jail in a cab to the Commercial Hotel, where she was sobbing hysterically, and was immediately placed under opiates. When she recovers consciousness she will be a widow to-morrow.

Notes.

Bishop Baldwin of London visited the prisoner to-day.

The execution will probably be witnessed by [illegible]

The coat, vest and trousers worn by Birchall on Feb. 17 were purchased by H. S. Morrison & Co. of Buffalo this afternoon for the Wonderland, to be opened in Toronto next week. The sale was negotiated through Birchall direct. The executioner claims that property belongs to him and will see that nothing further is disposed of.

The executioner spent several hours strolling along the streets this evening and was readily picked out from the photo and description which appeared in The World to-day.

Birchall received a number of bouquets to-day from sentimental lady friends.

County Attorney Ball expresses his intention of entering a libel suit against The Mail for strictures contained in the Birchall autobiography.

The purchase money for the Birchall autobiography was paid to Turnkey Forbes in trust for Mrs. Birchall by the purchasers last evening.

Birchall occupied most of yesterday in writing to friends and in completing his will, which he handed to his counsel.

Mrs. West-Jones paid her last visit to the condemned man yesterday.

The Canadian Pacific and Great Northwestern Telegraph companies to-night strung special wires and placed instruments in the jail yard. Operators will be stationed at the instruments, and the moment the drop falls the fact will be cabled to England.

A score of newspaper men stationed themselves at the jail all night, but the utmost reticence will be observed and no intelligence of what was passing within its gloomy walls found its way outside.

Where the Money Came From.

(From The New York Herald, Nov. 13.)

This statement of Birchall's is of great interest in reference to the trial:

"A good deal has been said about the funds used for the trial, and I give them, as it may interest the public to know what funds I used and whence I derived them. From my brother I received £100, from my sister £210, from my uncle £50, from an old Oxford friend, Mr. Lynch, £45; from Mr. Stevenson £45, from my aunt £10, from an old Lancashire friend £30, besides other small sums, all of which was entrusted to Messrs. Hellmuth & Ivey for the defence, making up a total of about £900. Mr. Blackstock very kindly accepted the modest fee of £100, and the remainder was paid to Messrs. Hellmuth & Ivey. So the public may judge of the costs of my part of the business. A further sum of £30 was sent by my brother to defray the cost of the petition here. I should like before I go any further to make my readers understand a little more clearly than many of them who have not experienced it themselves understand it now the way in which money goes in law, and with that end in view I will just give them an example of a lawyer's bill. At the time of writing Messrs. Finkle, McKay and McMullen have not been settled with, as their bill is over and above the balance of £400 which Messrs. Hellmuth & Ivey had out of which they paid Bluett some £250 and a few witness fees. By the time this is printed I expect Messrs. Finkle & Co.'s account will have been paid. They never bothered me for money at all. They made that quite a secondary consideration, and all honor and credit be to them for so doing.

A Queer Statement of Legal Expenses.

"But all lawyers are not built that way. What do my readers think of the following as a fair example of what some lawyers charge?

To railroad fares coming to see you	$10
Cab to jail	5
Getting into and out of cab	5
Entering jail	5
Going up stairs	10
Speaking to you	50
Hearing you speak to me	50
Telling you what I heard some one say in town	5
Knowing how to tell you	10
Shaking hands with you	5
Shaking hands with jailer	5
Shaking hands with turnkey	5
Whistling to cabman	5
Whisky for cabman (not wishing to appear unsociable)	5
Cigar for self	5
Thinking of your case while smoking	10
Total (for one visit)	$190

"This is just by way of warning those who have not yet had any experience in such matters. Beware of the law. It is very unsavory.

Differences in Witness Fees.

"In the matter of witness fees Pelly got $255, Bennett $255, for their testimony and attendance. In addition to which Pelly was allowed $30 a month pocket money by the Government during his stay in Canada before the trial. Another witness, S. B. Fuller, got $28 for the few words he had to say, whereas many of the witnesses who were subpœnaed by the crown, on going to be paid their due found nothing for them, and in some cases only a miserable pittance. Why should the value of testimony be priced like that? It certainly calls for explanation from those in charge of the matter; that is, of course, unless the witnesses are willing that fish be made of some, fowl of others, as the saying is.

Compliments to Counsel.

"I thought Mr. Blackstock's speech in my behalf a wonderful effort, and I truly appreciated his touching allusions to my dear wife, which were more than fully deserved. Indeed, his whole conduct of the case, considering how he only came into it at the last minute, reflected the greatest credit upon him. I thought Mr. Osler handled the crown case in a wonderful manner and his address to the jury was a very fine effort indeed."

Birchall's Last Night.

To-morrow night these hands
Will not restless be;
To-morrow night no blood
Will flow in me.
But yet to-morrow night
These eyes will see:

See what—and whom?—Oh, God!
Be merciful and dim
Mine eyes in that first hour,
When o'er the golden rim
Of the lush world I see
The watching face of him.

I wonder will he speak:
What agony in store?
To see him search my face
And look me o'er and o'er,
To hear him slowly ask,
"What did you do it for?"

Oh! spare me that great shame,
Then quickly sound my knell.
Oh! everything but that.
I'll meekly say "Its well."
Yet, rather than meet that man
I'd hide in furthest hell.

And yet I fear and think
Before my feet have trod
An ancient that strange land,
From out the living sod
His form will spring to meet me,
Astute and forbid—ded.

ALECK WAS NOT THE MAN.

Remarkable Case of Mistaken Identity—Imprisoned for Four Days.

HAMILTON, Nov. 13.—A strange case of mistaken identity occurred here a few days ago. Alexander R. McDonald, a commercial traveler well and favorably known here and throughout Western Ontario, was arrested Saturday night on information received from Berlin charging him with rape. No one believed that there was any truth in the charge, but Mr. McDonald was nevertheless locked up in the cells, where he remained until Tuesday morning, when Constable Klippert of Berlin came down here and took him to Berlin.

Apparently the only reason for arresting him was that he happened to be in Berlin on the night of Oct. 31, when the offence is said to have taken place. When the girl, Miss Rachael Snowdon, was confronted by Mr. McDonald in the court-room she at once declared that he was not the man, and the judge promptly discharged him. The assailant was described as a man with bushy side whiskers and light mustache, wearing a light overcoat. Mr. McDonald wore a dark blue overcoat and in no way tallied with the description. He says he is going to see what redress he can have for being confined four days in jail and having his name connected with such a charge for no good reason.

Musical "Mirages."

Attention has recently been called to the visual images which are seen in the air by an English lady when certain musical instruments are played. The sound of the oboe causes her to see a white obelisk, which is more acute the higher the pitch of the note. Sometimes, if the notes are of an intense and yearning character, the figures move rapidly toward her, points first, as if it would strike her. The sound of the violoncello, the high notes of the bassoon, trumpet and trombone, and the low notes of the clarinet and viola make her see a flat undulating ribbon of strong white fibres; and when the violins of an orchestra strike up after the wind instruments have been prominent, she sometimes sees a shower of glistening white dust. These phantoms are usually seen floating in the air half way between her and the players. The lady is herself an accomplished musician.

If Your House is on Fire.

You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season, our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

St. Andrew's Society.

The Annual Meeting—Very Favorable Financial Statement—Election of Officers—The Society to be Incorporated—The Annual Celebration of St. Andrew's Day—The Annual Sermon.

There was a good attendance at the 32nd annual meeting of St. Andrew's Society on Thursday evening. The meeting was held in the Society's rooms on Simcoe street—the second occasion on which the annual meeting was held there.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and, on motion of Mr. G. H. Noble, seconded by Mr. Armour, confirmed

The Secretary also read the minutes of the quarterly meetings of the Executive Committee during the year, which showed the actual work done by that body.

The treasurer, Mr. R. Max. Dennistoun, presented the financial statement for the year. This showed a cash credit balance of $32.50, and the statement of assets and liabilities gave a surplus of assets amounting to $191 02. Mr. Dennistoun on the progress of the year. Last year's statement showed a debit balance of some $40, and this year he was able to report a surplus of over one hundred dollar (applause) showing a gain of about $150 for the year. The receipts were altogether $577 87 and the disbursements $345 37, leaving as stated above a cash balance in hand of $32 50. Among the disbursements was an item of $31 60 for charity, which the treasurer thought was a very good showing for the thrift and prosperity of the Scotsmen of this district.

CONGRATULATED THE SOCIETY

Mr. Dennistoun moved, seconded by Mr. Cunningham, the adoption of the report.

The CHAIRMAN, in putting the motion, paid a warm tribute to the excellent financial management of Mr. Dennistoun, who had not merely taken in and paid out money, but had wisely administered the monetary affairs of the society.

MR. CAMERON'S THANKS.

At the close of his second consecutive term, Mr. CAMERON returned his hearty thanks for the forbearance and support he had received from the members, and especially from those of the executive committee. On first taking office he did so with considerable reluctance, in view of his fear of inability to discharge the duties, but the warm assistance he had received had made his tenure of office a most agreeable one. He referred to three prominent vacancies in the present meeting—three faithful members of the society who had passed away by death—and spoke of the deep interest they took in its welfare. Mr. William Cumming was a member of the Executive Committee at the time of the organization of the Society in 1858; Mr. John Paterson joined a year or two after and Mr. Donald Macdonald was for many years the veteran piper of the Scots.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The election of officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:—

PRESIDENT—Hon. H. Nobie.
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—R. Roy.
2ND VICE PRESIDENT—Dr. Carmichael.
3RD VICE-PRESIDENT Wm. B Battisby.
CHAPLAIN—Rev. E. F. Torrance.
TREASURER—R. M. Dennistoun.
SECRETARY—Wm. Menzies.
PHYSICIANS—Dr. Caldwell, Dr. Halliday and Dr. Bell.
BARD—William Telford.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—For the Town—Messrs. Jas. Munro, R. Hamilton, jr., Wm. Hamilton, jr., Thos. Cramill, Alex. Gibson, Wm. Frazer, John Lyons, Walter Paterson, Peter Hamilton, Thos. Telford, Thos Gillespie, G. M. Roger and Charles Cameron.

For the County.—James Cummings and Donald Macarlane, Otonabee; Wm. Campbell, Keene; H. Bowie, W. Graham, Alex. Morrison and George Harvey, Smith; Robt. Graham and John Isbister, Lakefield; Robt. Telford, Ennismore; Joseph Tasty and John Fowler, North Monaghan; David Rose, A. K. Kidd and Alex Smith, Dummer; John Breckenridge, J.P. and W. Mackison, Asphodel and Belmont; W. E. Roxburg and Joseph Rowbotham, Douro; Geo. Smith, Harvey.

During the election of the officers, the president, treasurer and several members bore strong testimony of the faithful services of the secretary Mr. Wm. Menzies, who had filled the position for ten years, and he was re elected for his eleventh term by a standing vote, as was also the treasurer, Mr. Dennistoun.

Mr. Dennistoun moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the Executive Committee have the power to amend, cancel or add to the by-laws of the Society; such additions or amendments to bylaws to remain in force until the annual meeting of the Society, when they may be confirmed or otherwise dealt with.—Carried.

INCORPORATION.

On motion of Mr. Dennistoun, it was resolved to take steps to incorporate the Society under the provincial act respecting benevolent associations.

CONDOLENCE.

Moved by Mr. Alex. Gibson, seconded by Mr. W. Battisby,—That Messrs. Cameron, Menzies and Dennistoun be a committee to draft suitable resolutions expressive of the personal loss every member of this Society has suffered by the death of ex-President Wm. Cumming, Vice-President Jno. Paterson and Donald Macdonald, and that after such resolutions shall have been properly drafted they shall be recorded on the minute books and copies thereof forwarded to the members of the families of the deceased.

CELEBRATING ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

A motion was passed in favour of celebrating the day by a dinner, and the date was fixed for Monday, December 1st.

It was decided that the dinner should be held in the Society's hall, and the following gentlemen were appointed a celebration committee:—Messrs. Battisby, Munro, Frazer, Gibson, Roy and Munro, to act in conjunction with the others of the Society.

The Secretary was deputed to request the Chaplain of the Society to preach the annual sermon on St. Andrew's Day.

A Plea for Aged Ministers.

The Montreal Star, in thus dealing with the subject of the contributions to the support of aged ministers, evidently voices its conviction that the laborer is not only worthy of his hire, but that the worn-out preacher is worthy of his reward: "One of the wealthiest corporations in Canada has 61 pensioners, who have given from ten to forty of the best years of their lives to its service; and the largest annuity enjoyed by any of the pensioners is $220. The annuitants are the aged and infirm ministers of the Presbyterian Church who after enjoying incomes of $323 per annum upwards until incapacitated for further labor in the pulpit, or anywhere else, are turned out to live or to starve—whichever they find easier—on pensions of about four dollars a week. Yet the Presbyterian laity is not nearly so poor as might be expected from this state of affairs. Many of them misers are conspicuously rich, so rich that, as one of the pastors remarked on Sunday, they were harassed daily by their wealth. Men who have so much money that every additional dollar is only an additional embarrassment, are regular church attendants, and profess and call themselves Christians; and when the plate comes around once a year to collect money for the maintenance of men who have worn themselves out in the service of the church, these kindly souls bestow from five cents to five dollars, with about as much cheerfulness as though they were paying the assessments upon their real estate. Why do these rich men go to church? It seemed a hard saying when the Master said: "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God!" But the truth of it was never more apparent than to-day, when there are so many rich men in the churches and so many ministers of the Gospel in grinding poverty. The neglect of the aged and infirm ministers is but one manifestation out of many of the insincerity of the wealthy church-goers as a class, and what is true of the Presbyterian church is no less true of other churches. How are we to reconcile the presence of so large a proportion of the wealthier classes in Christian congregations with the fact, that usury, covetousness and oppression of the poor are characteristic even of this age? The only rational explanation is that most of the rich men, who are the pillars of the churches, do not believe in the eternal verities to which they formally assent. Their church membership is more or less of an imposture. They go to church because it is considered respectable to go to church, and as an example to the masses. They expect their preachers to be orthodox in their teaching, eloquent in their exhortations and correct in their deportment, because all these things are highly proper in a minister and they are what ministers are paid for. But if the secrets of their hearts were known, they must look upon earnestness in religion as an amiable weakness, and they no doubt look upon religion as a very good thing for the clergy; but they must regard the precepts of Christianity as utterly impracticable for a successful business man in the nineteenth century. The collection plate is by no means an infallible test of the depth and sincerity of a man's religion. Heaven only knows the motives of all the individuals who swamp the plate with five cent pieces. Five cents in the morning for the heathen, and five cents in the evening for home missions, five cents next Sunday morning for the organ fund, and five cents in the evening for aged and infirm ministers! Doubtless many of these humble contributions represent a real sacrifice, and are given in a better spirit than more ostentatious gifts. But how is it possible to avoid the inference that so many people contribute just five cents to every collection, because, unfortunately for them, there is nothing smaller than a five cent piece in our silver coinage? There is a story told of one fairly well-to-do man in Montreal who invariably puts a twenty cent piece on the plate, and whenever he is absent from church, the wardens charitably assume that it is because he has failed to provide himself with a coin that looks like a quarter but costs five cents less. However, it does not need the evidence of the collection plates to show that much of the religion of the day is but two-penny half penny religion, when the pioneers of Presbyterianism in this country, the men who have borne the heat and burden of the day, who suffered hardship and self-denial in laying the foundations of the prosperous and wealthy church of the present are allowed to be dependent in their old age upon a paltry pittance of $220 per annum. Such a state of affairs is a scandal to the church, a reproach to Christianity and a disgace to every rich member of the church who has not contributed bountifully to the Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund."

Another Idol Shattered.

Who has not read the "Pilgrims Progress" and been charmed with the rough but fervid allegory of John Bunyan, who was cast into Bedford jail, as it is said for conscience? But it has been discovered that he richly deserved prison, for he who has posed for two centuries as a saint is a fraud. Instead of being a saint he is an illicit whisky seller. A hotel keeper named John Bunyan was arrested the other day in a western Ontario town charged with keeping open his dive after hours. It is a sad fact that there is no place where you can get the real article in the shape of tea but hawley bros'. The best of teas and rare good coffees. dw

Purify the entire current of the blood in your system is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more positively and conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

CAPTURING A WHALE.

A CETACEAN MONSTER OFF THE ISLAND OF ALEXANDER SELKIRK.

Three Boats Smashed Before He is Harpooned to Death—300 Barrels of Oil Poured Upon the Water to Save a Ship in a Calm.

"Yes," said Sam J. Denight of East Fifth street, Cincinnati, a naval veteran of the Mexican war and also of the late rebellion, "I have passed through many a trying scene and bloody fight, and although I have faced death in a thousand forms in a war, it was on a whaling voyage that I came nearest being killed."

"Well, we rounded the cape, without any interesting incidents, and up near the island of Juan Fernandez we lay one bright morning and all on board were clearing up when 'There she blows' came the ringing cry from the man at the mast-head, and away off to the northwest we saw a stream of water spouting out of the ocean and knew it must be a huge whale. At once all was confusion on board, and the captain gave the order, 'Stand by to lower boats,' and quick as cats we sprang to our places. When within about a mile of the monster 'Down boats,' 'Lower away,' and 'Go for your whale' came the order in quick succession, and away we shot toward our prey. The boats on such occasions have nothing in them but a cask of water and one of biscuits, and two harpoons and lances, with the necessary rope, about 150 fathoms, coiled in a tub so that it could be paid out easily. The three boats, carrying eighteen men altogether, rowed swiftly, with muffled oars, for the whale. A whale is very easily frightened and the greatest care must be exercised in getting close upon him without detection for when scared he will dive and come up perhaps three miles away. A queer fact in this connection is that he will always dive in the wind's eye, as though he understood that, having a pull against wind and swell, he could be best followed. However, we got pretty close to our whale, when we shipped our oars and paddled the remainder of the distance. We came up quietly without his having any suspicion of our presence, and just as the bow of our boat scraped his side the officer pumped the harpoon into his side, and 'Stern all' came the order, and every man lay to his oar and backed out. These whaling-boats are sharp at both ends, so that they can be backed almost as fast as they can be rowed forward. It was well for us in this case, for our whale dove straight down, making a whirlpool and taking out line with frightful rapidity. Seeing that our line would be insufficient a second boat came up and made fast its line to ours, and, that, too, was soon paid out, and still the whale went on. The third line was attached and that, too, was soon gone, and as we had no more rope a block of wood two inches thick and two feet square was attached to the end, and as this couldn't be kept under the surface long at a time we kept trace of it, and by that means of the whale.

"In about forty minutes the fellow came to the surface, spouting furiously, and we picked up the block and rowed for him, taking in line as we advanced. A second time we drew near, but just as another harpoon was to be thrown he gave one splash with his tail and knocked us up about twenty feet in the air. The boat was smashed to pieces and I came down so close to the monster that I put my foot against his side to push myself off so that I might swim. The captain lighted on the whale's head, but rolled off into the water, and, seeing my action, he tried the same. Unfortunately, he stuck his foot into the mouth of the whale, and down went the monster's jaw, hold it tight, and down went the whale, taking the captain along. But a whale has teeth only on its lower jaw, and these fit into depressions in the upper gums, so that the captain was not severely crushed, but he is bruised, and soon the whale let him go and he came to the surface about used up and was taken in by one of the boats.

"Again we made for the whale. This time the second mate took the harpoon, and as we neared the quieted monster, only a broad expanse of white back projected above the water, the mate, who thought himself funny, said: 'Which end are we at?' As if in answer to the question the whale showed plainly that we were at the rear end by giving one sweep with his great tail fin, which landed us in a dozen directions, while our prey again disappeared.

"The second mate had had enough, and the third mate now took charge of one boat, and again we rowed for the big fish. But this time he saw us coming, and like a mad bull with fury, he started for us with open mouth. Now, of all the dwellers of the deep the whale is the swiftest swimmer, and the speed with which the infuriated monster came at us was frightful. Just as he was almost upon us, 'Jump for your lives' came the order, and into the water we went like so many frightened frogs. None too soon either, for, true to his aim, the whale seized the empty boat, and one bite turned it into a lot of splinters. We shivered as we saw this, for although a whale cannot eat a man he can smash one up pretty badly.

"The two harpoons gave the monster no end of pain, and now he began to roll about in agony. We got another boat and put after him, and now he was in too great torments to notice us, and we slipped up, and as he rolled his belly up a lance was driven into him just under the left forward fin. Blood! Barrels of it poured out. The whole ocean seemed made of blood, and finally he commenced running in a circle and one tremendous convulsion proclaimed the end.

"The ship was hauled alongside the carcass, which it equaled in length, and we began to take off the blubber. First the head was cut, the chain was swung around to the stern, and the blubber was stripped off the body. This is done by fastening a fully in a proper place and then pulling and cutting, at the same time rolling the carcass over as the blubber is stripped off. When this was done the head was turned up, and with small buckets we dipped out the liquid amber oil. This was a greasy job, what with frying the blubber out and heating the sperm oil. The men were clean, though, and salt water will wash it off, except what has been cooked. After this we wash the decks with lime juice. When a whale is killed the blood attracts thousands of sharks, and after the carcass is stripped thousands of birds pick at the flesh.

"Finally, we had scarcely finished boiling the oil, the whale, and the deck sat full of grease when there came up a gale of wind that threatened to have capsized us. The vessel rolled and pitched terribly, and our end seemed near, but as a last resort we bored holes in the oil casks and let the oil run down and out of the scuppers. As soon as it reached the water the breakers subsided into high swells, and gradually it spread as far as the eye could reach, and, although the wind blew furiously, we were safe, but at the expense of 300 barrels of oil. We continued for four years, and, although we captured fifty-three whales in all, none ever gave us the trouble that the first one I ever captured did."

WHERE MOLTKE LIVES.

The Home of the Silent Strategist and Some of Its Interesting Contents.

The residence of Count Moltke lies in a quiet valley about three miles southeast of the Silesian station of Schweidnitz. It is a plain, square building of two stories, with high gables. The principal entrance is up a broad flight of steps, flanked on both sides by big guns from Mont Valerien, which were presented to Count Moltke by the late Emperor William. The estate and house at Kreisau were bought by the Field Marshal with the funds granted to him by Parliament in 1866, and have been entailed.

The entrance hall contains three valuable bronze monuments on large pedestals, one of them representing the late Emperor William in cloak and helmet. The latter was presented to the Count by that sovereign on the sixtieth anniversary of Moltke's entrance into the army. To the right of this is a copy of Rauch's celebrated monument of Frederick the Great in Unter den Linden, and to the left an equestrian statue of Count Moltke himself, presented to him by the members of the Grand General Staff on the anniversary just mentioned. The side walls of the hall are adorned by large bronze busts of the Prussian Kings and of the "Red Prince," the late Prince Frederick Charles, father of the Duchess of Connaught.

The house contains a large dining room, a study, and bed and sitting rooms, all furnished with extreme simplicity. The Field Marshal sleeps there on a low field bed. Most of the walls are adorned with large maps, and one with the many-branched pedigree of the Moltke family. The upper story has several sitting rooms, with portraits of the Count's parents, and an interesting one of himself as a full-bearded Colonel. The adjacent fine oaken presses contain addresses and letters of honorary citizenship presented by all the chief German cities. There is also a large collection of weapons belonging to various ages and nations, many of them presents from European sovereigns. Among other gifts is a marble bust of Napoleon III., presented by him in the zenith of his power. The rooms containing all these presents form a regular Moltke Museum.—London Standard.

Boys, Read This.

A gentleman advertised for a boy to assist him in his office, and nearly fifty applicants presented themselves before him.

Out of the whole number he took one and dismissed the rest. "I should like to know," said a friend, "on what ground you selected that boy without a single recommendation." "You are mistaken," said the gentleman, "he has a great many. He wiped his feet when he came in, and closed the door after him, showing that he was careful; gave up his seat to that lame old man, showing that he was kind and thoughtful; he took off his cap when he came in, answered my questions promptly and respectfully, showing that he was polite and gentlemanly; he picked up a book, which I had purposely laid upon the floor, and replaced it on the table, while all the rest stepped over it or shoved it aside; and he would quietly for his turn, instead of pushing or crowding, showing that he was honest and orderly. When I talked to him I noticed that his clothes were carefully brushed, his hair in nice order and his teeth as white as milk; and when he wrote his name, I noticed that his finger nails were clean, instead of being tipped with jet like that hand-some little fellow in the blue jacket. Don't you call these things letters of recommendation? I do, and I would give more for what I can tell about a boy by using my eyes ten minutes than for all the letters of recommendations that he can give me."

ON SOAP,
IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.
FROM AN ARTICLE BY
Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,
Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps: hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

BIRCHALL HANGS WITHOUT A CONFESSION.

HE IS CAME TO THE LAST!

Graphic Account of the Hanging of Benwell's Murderer—A Confession will never be made—Birchall's Last Hours of Life—The Execution free from Bungling.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Benwell is avenged. The man whom a court of justice found guilty of his murder, this morning expiated his crime upon the scaffold. Birchall made no confession, and, further, took pains to prevent any alleged confession being made public. He sustained his indifferent bearing to the last, as the following private telegram to the EXAMINER will show:—

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 14.—He died game. Never lost his nerve. Shook hands with friends as though parting for a day.

Below will be found a full report of the execution, which is moving public interest in Canada to day.

His Last Hours.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Friday November 14th.—Birchall ate a good supper last night to fortify him il for the last vigil. He did not rise till midday yesterday, and the afternoon was spent in receiving visits of the Bishop of Huron, Rev. Rural Dean Wade and Dr. Rice, the gaol surgeon. Birchall had just finished supper when a carriage drove up containing Mrs. Birchall, Mrs. West-Jones, and Mr. Leetham. All three went into the gaol, but only Mrs Birchall climbed the iron stairs to her husband's corridor. Mrs. West-Jones and Mr. Leetham went into the Governor's office, where, lying under the desk but in plain view of them was a pile of rope and tackle suspiciously like the hangman's apparatus. This Mrs. West-Jones espied, and almost fainted, and they both left the gaol, returning at nine o'clock for Mrs Birchall. During the whole of the long last interview and final parting between husband and wife, Turnkey Forbes was in the corridor with them, but they cared nothing for that. They were wrapped in the deep communion of their anguished souls. At one o'clock came and the weeping woman was led out through the barred door and down the narrow stairs, down which her husband seven hou s later walked to his death. Birchall was then left alone with Turnkey Forbes and Rural Dean Wade.

While Mrs. West-Jones was in the gaol, and just after she had been startled by the sight of the rope in the office, the hangman, followed by a dozen reporters, knocked at the door, and after considerable trouble he gained admittance. He was at one time very angry at not being readily admitted and threatened to return to Toronto and leave the job to some one else. The hangman slept during the night on the sofa in the office.

The time during the hours after Mrs Birchall left the gaol was spent by Birchall and the divine in praying and talking. Turnkey Forbes, who is one of his ex-custors, spent some time with Birchall talking of his temporal affairs. Birchall had little to leave except a legacy which he expects to fall to him next spring. The extent of his property was the $1,500 he received from his autobiography and $150 he received by his agent from the proprietors of a Toronto museum for the clothes he wore on the 17th of February, and also authority solely to exhibit a cast of his head, bust and figure.

At 4 o'clock Guard-Sgt. Midgely, who entertained a liking for him, came in. Birchall gave Midgely a gold pencil for his son, and said he had left instructions to have a sword sent out from England for the old soldier himself.

Birchall preserved his usual demeanor during the night, but ate nothing, though he had given orders for a supper to be served at midnight. A death-like stillness and gloom filled the gaol, and the guards were glad when Birchall stretched himself on the sofa at 2 o'clock and fell asleep with his unfinished cigar in his hand,

Will Make No Confession.

Birchall has begun to fear that by some means a faked confession may be worked off on the public after his death, and to guard against this he made out this document:—

WOODSTOCK GAOL, Nov. 10, 1890.—All Rights Reserved.—"If after my death there shall appear in the press or in any other manner whatsoever, any confession that I had any hand in the murder of Mr. F. C. Benwell, or any personal knowledge of said murder, with intent or malice aforethought, or any personal connection with murder on the 17th of February or other day, or any knowledge that any such murder was likely to be committed, or any statement further than any that I may have made public previous to this date, I hand this statement to the care of Mr. Geo. Perry, of Woodstock, Ont., that he may know that any confession or partial confession are entirely fictitious and in no way were ever written by me, neither emanated from me in any way whats ever to any person, and the whole are fictitious and without a word of truth.

"This likewise applies to my story in the Mail, to which I have made no such confession or partial confession. This holds good throughout.

"(S'g'd.) REG. BIRCHALL."

Preparing for Execution.

At five o'clock the cook began to prepare Birchall's last breakfast, which was served at six o'clock. It consisted of poached eggs, toast, canned peaches and raspberries, and coffee. Birchall looked at it and said he did not feel like eating, but the cook left it, and, on second thoughts, Birchall turned to and disposed of a couple of eggs and pushed the rest away from him. Then he began to prepare himself for the terrible ordeal. He put on a white flannel shirt, with coat and vest over it, but had previously asked Turnkey Forbes to see that this was replaced after the execution by an ordinary white shirt and starched collar and tie. He would not wear a starched collar at the execution, because, he said, it might interfere with the effective playing of the rope Meantime, about half past six o'clock, and from then on, a crowd began to collect in front of the gaol, chiefly newspaper men from all over Canada and the United States, but including a good many residents, many of whom were subsequently admitted to constitute a jury to be empanelled after the death of Birchall. At about half-past seven Deputy-Sheriff Perry showed up, and the doors of the gaol were opened and the crowd of waiting men admitted. They passed straight through the yard in which the scaffold was erected. About a hundred were admitted, but that number was subsequently increased by about fifty. The executioner appeared on the scene at twenty-five minutes before eight, rope in hand, and began immediately

To Put Things in Order.

The scaffold is made of three pieces of timber, six inches square. Two uprights are sunk in the ground, and the third timber crosses over the top of them and extends out over one side. The weight of 350 pounds is in the shape of a hexagonal block of iron. At the proper time the executioner pulls a rope, and the weight released from the chain, drops until the slack in the noose rope is taken up. Then the jerk wrenches the victim from the ground, and draws him four feet into the air. It was the arrangement of the apparatus that the executioner set about. He was dressed in his drab corduroy coat and soft black hat, and he was smoking a pipe. The tr es outside the west wall were black with boys, and also a platform and parapets wall of the new county building. Sheriff and deputy-sheriff Perry were actively engaged with their duties; D. Chamberlain, Inspector of Prisons, and Dr. McLay, Coroner, were present, and Dr. Price, gaol surgeon, with Mr. Leetham, of Montreal.

Birchall's College Chum

went up to his cell at 7.45, where he was left alone with him and his spiritual adviser. At 8.15 the hangman went inside the jail, dressed himself in a black Prince Albert coat.

At 8.22 o'clock Dr. Chamberlain, Deputy Sheriff Perry, Gaoler Cameron, day-guard Perry, having gone into the corridor the executioner was ordered to go up. He had been waiting around the rotunda, in his hands the straps with which to tie Birchall's arms, waiting for the signal to go up, he put behind his back and partly under the shirt of his coat the russet colored straps and went up the stairs. A minute or two he took to strap the prisoners arms behind his back and then began at 8.23 o'clock. First came the Rural Dean Wade in his surplice and reading the Church of England service for the dead, behind him Dr. Chamberlain followed by A. D. Stewart and Deputy Sheriff Perry. The prisoner came next, deathly pale but resolute, his jaws locked with the firmness of death. He came down the stairs with one hand on the railing, for from his elbows down his arms were free. His step was steady. His jet-black hair and moustache made the color of his face like marble. He was dressed in dark-colored tweed cloth, and a white flannel suit with a black bow at the collar, and light patent leather shoes. He looked so young, and there was such an expression of immovable resolution and undaunted courage that the men who saw him, and knew him to be worthy of death in the eyes of the law, forgot that he had shot a fellow man in a lonely swamp. At the foot of the spiral stairs came the procession reformed, and his friend Leetham walked on one side of him with his day guard, George Perry, on the other. Gaoler Cameron followed them, and after the hangman, the aged sheriff. The march was slowly along the corridor and out into the yard.

About 15 feet from the scaffold the procession halted. Birchall's eyes had not a trace of the frivolity that had lighted his impeachment. As he stood listening to the the low-toned pra s, they were fixed on the blue sky over to the north. The s was not a hunted look, nor was there any fear in his eyes, but a fixed purpose that seemed to consume his reason. It was not possible to imagine the expression of his fac s. He was living a life, to me, in that hour, and no one there but would have showed the strain of his terrible ordeal. It was not despair, but he had strung his whole being up

To Die Game.

When at the words, "Dust to dust," in the church service, Birchall stepped firmly forward and took his place under the scaffold, with his face to the south and turned up slightly. He took Leetham's hand in his and the friends kissed each other under the gallows. The executioner put a strap around the prisoner's legs just above his knees. When the clergyman took Birchall's hand and kissed him, the witnesses were sure the end was near and the suspense was terrible —terrible on the witnesses—no human knowledge can say how terrible to the man standing alone there on the green sward. As the clergyman entered upon the Lord's prayer the executioner put the black cap over the head of the doomed man and about his neck. Birchall had declared that he would say nothing on the scaffold, and the witnesses did not expect that he would break his silence, a silence that seemed by the intensity of his purpose to be a silence concentrated a hundred times. He did not say a word after leaving his cell, except it might have been to mutter a word to Leetham or Mr. Wade, when he bid them good bye with a kiss. At 8.23, 6 minutes after the procession started from the corridor, the words "Deliver us from evil," gave the signal, and a quick pull on the small rope by the executioner, who stood behind the victim, released the immense weight. It dropped with the rapidity of thought. It fell to the ground, and sank 6 or 8 inches in the ground by the force of its weight. Birchall had been stood close to one of the uprights, and the jerk of the noose drew his body first obliquely and then up.

His Body was Jerked Into the Air

about five feet, and fell until its feet were within two feet of the ground. The drop was made at 8.29 o'clock. The convulsions commenced but a minute later, but they were not at all violent, more resembling heavy breathing with slight twitching of the hands and legs. At 8.30½ the convulsions had ceased, and at 8.35 Dr. Chamberlain, who stood with his hand on the body, declared that life was extinct. There were just six minutes from the drop until the doctor declared Birchall dead. Dr. Chamberlain said the neck was broken.

THE SCENE OF BIRCHALL'S LAST MOMENTS

Ye Olde Folke's Concert.

Flattering Success of a Novel Entertainment—The Opera House Filled to the Door—A Unique Idea Elaborately Carried Out.

If a crowded house and liberal applause are any standard by which to judge a public entertainment, then there can be no doubt of the unqualified success of Ye Olde Folke's Concert in the Opera House Thursday evening. As was aptly and truthfully remarked from the stage, the ladies of the Charlotte Street Church know nothing but success in all their undertakings, and Thursday night's was the crowning one of all their efforts in the line of concerts. It was some years since anything of the kind had been given in Peterborough and it caught the public fancy so well that the performance is to be repeated next Tuesday evening.

The stage presented a unique and interesting spectacle. Ranged on a rising platform were the singers, some forty in number, attired in the costumes of over a century ago, while on either sides were representations of homely scenes familiar, or at least not entirely unknown, to most people—the old fire place, the spinning wheel, the candles, the cradle, and the grandmas knitting and gossiping, as grandmas always do when they get together. Those on the stage, between their spectacles, wigs, curls, snuff-boxes, needle-work and, to the present generation, outlandish though historically correct costumes, presented what was doubtless a very fair imitation of our ancestors of the seventeenth century. It was, to say the least, a beautiful and lively picture on which the eyes of the audience rested when the curtain rolled up. The gentlemen's outfits were supplied by Frank McKenna, the theatrical costumer of Toronto, but the ladies were obliged to shift for themselves and improvise dresses for the occasion. In this they succeeded admirably. Among the costumes were a number of old silk wedding-dresses which had done service scores of years ago.

In this brief account of the concert people and things shall be called by their proper names, and not as given on the "Guide Board," which unique document was the cause of considerable amusement by its quaintness and novelty.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., was chairman, and announced the different numbers with a few appropriate remarks for each. The opening number of a programme which supported throughout the name and nature of the concert, was a chorus, "O, Dear, What can the Matter Be?" Mr. J. H. Ketchum, who has had charge of the programme and trained the singers, deserves unstinted praise for the good work of the chorus in the several selections rendered There were nearly fifty voices engaged in it, and the manner in which they equisted themselves reflects the highest credit upon their capable and indefatigable instructor. Mr. Sounsider, organist of the Charlotte street church, played the accompaniments for all the singers. Next came a quartette, "Twilight on the Sea," by Mr and Mrs. Jones, Miss Lizzie Kenaum and Mr. Jones, jr., very nicely sung indeed. Mr. A. L. Davis then gave a Church Song in his usual good voice, after which came an amusing number, the "Golden Wedding," by Mr. Thos. Brooks' two children. The little folks sustained their characters well. Miss Rose Clark followed with an intelligently rendered piano solo. Mrs. F. G. Cox, of Toronto, made her debut before a Peterborough audience and well deserved praise. Her first number, "The Last Rose of Summer," was encored and she responded with Bucalo's "Marguerite." Mrs. Cox possesses a fine soprano voice, especially clear and full in the upper register. Her singing pleased the audience greatly. A recitation by Miss Ostrom, in which she deplored the introduction of a modern "kiss o' whistles" into the old church, was faithfully and intelligently given and won hearty applause. A duet, that old familiar piece which suggests the transportation of all the men "far beyonds the northern seas," was nicely sung by Miss Baudrette and Mr. Ketchum (who were obliged to bow acknowledgments to a vigorous encore), after which the closing number of the first part, a chorus entitled "Sound the Timbrel," was given by the full company.

Part two was opened with an amusing musical medley, in which solo parts were taken by Miss Ostrom, Mr. Davis, Herb. King, Mr. Jones, sr., Miss Maggie Stevens, Mrs. Logan, Miss Lizzie Ketchum and Miss Martha Stevens. After a duet, "We're Growing Old Together," feelingly rendered by Mrs. S. J. Chorey and Mr. A. L. Davis, there followed one of the prettiest and most pleasing things of the evening, a quartette, "Star of Descending Night," by Mrs. Jones, Miss Stevens, Mr. Dopp and Mr. Rose. Mrs. Shorey then gave "A Very Olde Songe," her counterfeit character being admirably sustained in both dress and voice. "Ye Twistie Piece" followed. This was Vogel's Waltz, by Mess, in which Mrs. Cox, Miss Ketcham, Mr. Davis and Mr. Rose took part. A well-executed piano duet was next given by Miss Fairweather and Mr. Brooks, after which came the closing number, a chorus entitled "Daughter of Error," in which Mrs. Cox took the solo part.

The audience joined in singing the National Anthem and then dispersed highly pleased with the entertainment. The programme, though a lengthy one, did not drag in the least. Everything passed off smoothly, and the audience got away in good time. All who took part in the concert are to be congratulated upon its success, and the Ladies Aid Society in particular have every reason to feel gratified. The ladies worked hard and were deserving of the splendid results achieved.

Before the audience broke up the chairman announced that the concert would be repeated by request next Tuesday evening. The programme will be renewed in some parts and make interesting even for a second rendition. Tickets will be 20c and 15c.

Lansdowne Lodge, No. 25, S.O.E., held a most successful degree meeting last evening, at which several members were initiated into the mysteries of the highest degree in the Order. At the close of the Lodge, and after ample justice had been done to refreshments, a most happy and enjoyable time was spent. Stories songs, speeches and toasts were given, Bros. Couch, Gunn, Mitchell, Varnes, Coventry, Stocker, Benton and several others contributing some excellent and pleasing songs. But of all who sang Bro. Benton took first place with his celebrated song, 'Old King Cole.' Bro. Benton was in excellent voice and spirits and completely captured the entire audience, who, at the close of the song, rose en mass and cheered and encored for fully five minutes. Another meeting of degree will be held on Thursday night, Dec. 18th, 1890.—[Com.

St. Andrew's New President.

Last night St. Andrew's Society did a graceful and wise thing in promoting Mr. G. H. Noble, last year's vice-president of the Society, to the position of president. Graceful, because it was in one sense the recognition of past faithful services given for the promotion of the interests of the Society in the past, and especially during and since the opening of the new hall. In the matter he did a great deal of gratuitous service, especially in connection with the fittings and furnishings of the hall and providing the nucleus of a library, presenting the Society with twelve volumes of standard works. The Society's action was wise, because it has assured to it a continuance of services under circumstances that permit Mr. Noble to do still more effective work for the St. Andrew's Society of the town and county of Peterborough. A full report of the proceedings at the annual meeting will be found on the second page.

The Two Bells.

A wag writes to us as follows:—"Having seen quite recently a church bell with the very odd stanza."—

I toll the funeral knell;
I bait the fox at day;
The fleeting hour I tell;
I summon all to pray.

"I came to the conclusion, that every parish in Canada would be benefitted if a bell were put up with this inscription referring to Diamond Dyes, in which the people around us take a great interest:"

I toll, but toll to dye,
I dye, but dye to live;
When tolling this my cry,
"Use ones and pleasure give."

We are pleased to hear from our correspondent, and note with pleasure the interest he takes in Diamond Dyes, but can assure him, that Diamond Dyes, do not require the aid so kindly suggested as the Canadian people from North to South, and from East to West, know sufficiently about them already.

SIR LYON PLAYFAIR.

HE DELIVERS A LENGTHY ADDRESS ON THE U. S. TARIFF.

Canada Can Supply Great Britain With All the Food She Now Gets from the United States—In Less Than 20 Years the United States Will Have No Surplus Food.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—In his speech to his constituents at Leeds last night upon the new United States tariff legislation, Right Hon. Sir Lyon Playfair, after giving the tariff history of the United States, said that the promoters of the tariff bill sought to prove that the measure was needed in order to equalize the difference between the higher wages of the United States and the lower wages of Europe, but their argument would prove false. There is no intimate connection, he said, between the tariff and wages, if whole wages in America had already been reduced under a high tariff and there seems to be no tendency to raise their wages are highest in the unprotected industries and lowest in the protected ones. Sir Lyon cited a host of statistics to show that the consumer always paid the extra tariff. He declared that Canada would be able to supply Great Britain with all the food she now gets from the United States. In less than 20 years the United States will have no surplus food to sell so it is to England's interest to aid in developing Canadian husbandry. The national effect of the tariff act he maintained would be to draw England and Canada closer together. If we buy from Canada she will be compelled to buy from us; if Canada would reconstruct her tariff on the principles of revenue, Europe and Asia would contribute to her future commercial prosperity She could become one of the greatest and most prosperous conditions in the world by maintaining her political independence if she only had a profounder conviction of the vast benefits of commercial freedom. He argued that the protection of commerce naturally led to restriction of immigration and would have an adverse effect upon an already unsatisfactory population. Then, how, he asked, are increasing manufactories to be absorbed by decreasing consumers.

Referring to the American Meat Inspection bill Sir Lyon declared that the empowering of the President by Congress to boycott nations was a brutum fulmen unworthy of a great nation. The boycott had never yet been stored been recognized by the national law. He considered that the reciprocity clause in the American tariff act had the same direction but a deeper meaning. It was a safety valve to prevent the high pressure from blowing up protection. He believed Mr. Blaine intended it rather as a reciprocity clause than as a retaliation clause. If the United States is to continue as a nation of protection its evils may be lessened by the Bismarckian policy of do ut des.

Commenting on the recent elections in the United States Sir Lyon said that the protectionists were not destroyed but that they would fight in the future with their flags furled. He declared that already there were signs in Germany, Italy and elsewhere in Europe of flames of distress in the protection camp. In conclusion Sir Lyon said he hoped that though England ought to be enjoined for a year or two by the United States from legislation, she would not dream of reprisals.

The Times this morning, in a long editorial, says that Sir Lyon Playfair's speech is the most complete expose yet published on either side of the Atlantic of the futility and absurdity of the American tariff. The opponents of high protective duties, it says, could hardly do better than to circulate his dispassionate arguments among the American electorate before the next contest for the control of the executive powers, which is almost certain to be fought on this issue.

SOLD HIS WIFE FOR $40.

A Sensational Case at Halifax, N.S.

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 14.—Some months ago a man named William Gifford of this city entered into an agreement with one George Thomson for the sale of his (Gifford's) wife and family for the sum of $40, the conditions of the sale being that Thomson should take care of the children until they reached the age of 16 years. The transfer of wife and family was made and since then Thomson has been living with Mrs. Gifford and her children. Everything went along serenely for a time. Some time ago, however, the waters hitherto smooth became lumpy, which was soon followed by a regular storm in the household. Thomson is charged with cruelly beating two of the children and with turning another out of doors under distressing circumstances. He has also made it very hot for his purchased wife, whom he looks upon now as a poor investment. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children has decided to issue warrants for the apprehension of the children, when they will be placed in an institution.

Sudbury Mining News.

SUDBURY, Nov. 13.—The snow has disappeared and prospectors have taken advantage of the fine weather to get in their work. Prof. Huntington of King's College, London, one of the Iron & Steel Men, has returned to this district to make further investigations into its mineral resources. Prof. Huntington has announced his intention of returning in the spring in the interests of British capitalists desiring to invest in Canadian mines. At present the interest centres in Fairbank and Creighton. The Canada Copper Co., who are known to be identical with the members of the Standard Oil Co., have acquired a location in Creighton. The test pits in Fairbank show very encouraging results, and several strong syndicates have been formed for the purpose of developing the district.

Dock Laborers' Strike.

DUBLIN, Nov. 13.—The laborers employed on the docks at Limerick have struck for higher wages. Placards have been posted about the city requesting workmen to boycott the Limerick Steamship Company. The railroad employees are supporting the strike and they refuse to handle goods from or for the steamship company.

MRS. JAMESON'S REPLY.

SHE DENIES THE STORIES TOLD ABOUT HER HUSBAND.

A Letter from the Dead Artist Published to Disprove the Accusations Preferred Against Him—The Cannibal Horror Was Not of His Seeking.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Jameson writes to the papers as follows: "As the Emin Relief Committee appear to consider that the duty of refutation devolves upon me, I ask the papers to insert the following letter from my husband, who died a fortnight after writing it, and who therefore was unable to take the further steps which he intended to clear his character."

Jameson's letter is addressed to Sir William MacKinnon and is dated Stanley Falls, Aug. 3, 1888. After describing Assad Farran's statements as false and cruel, Jameson writes: "Upon arrival at Ribaruba the chief invited me to his residence, where I witnessed a curious native dance, following other ceremonies, which Tippoo said was usually followed by a cannibal feast. I laughed sceptically, whereupon another Arab related a horrible story. I flatly declared that it was impossible that this could happen. The Arab retorted, "Give me a bit of cloth and see." I thought this a mere ruse to obtain a gift, but the Arab had formerly been kind, so I gave him At Snakim where he also made money by dividing with policemen, spoils captured from Gamblers among the troops. The statement concludes as follows:

"This is the low brute whose word the Belgian officers would accept to destroy my character."

He encloses as sad a restriction in which he says the story in regard to buying a girl to be eaten by cannibals was misunderstood. The handkerchiefs said to be given for her purchase were a gift and had no reference whatever to the occurrence with which they were erroneously connected.

Bonny's official report is dated from the Arab village Unaria Arumivi River, July 1888 six handkerchiefs. Then followed the most horrible scene I ever witnessed in my life. The whole thing happened so quickly that it was impossible to make sketches had I wished to do so. Further, I had nothing to sketch with. The small sketches I made were done in the evening at my own house. The girl never looked for help. She seemed to know it was her fate. She never stirred hand, foot or head. How the girl was obtained I don't yet know, but will send you all the particulars, signed by witnesses, as promised."

Then follows the statement that Assad boasted of swindling the British Government in the purchase of camels. In this Bonny says that after Stanley left the Arabs followed him closely, attacking the villages as Stanley departed and capturing natives. He does not know whether Stanley was cognizant of this or not. In describing the advance of the rear guard Bonny says the officers concluded that Stanley was dead at one time and for an unknown reason they thought of changing their route, but that plan was abandoned. There was also difficulty about sending a cablegram home conveying their plans, Barttelot desiring to be recalled. Jameson was very cross at the delay, fearing a recall. Bonny describes the march from Yamugba to Unaria and says the constant delays were due to hinter, swagger and bad management. He says Barttelot lacked sufficient powers to discover when he was pleasing and when insulting. The Arabs could buy and sell him at their pleasure. It was a wonder he was not knifed at Yambuga.

AKRON'S WEALTHY THIEF.

A Scheme to Detect a Criminal Traps an Ex-Mayor of the City.

AKRON Ohio, Nov. 14.—Charles A. Collins, ex-Mayor of Akron and a prominent manufacturer, was at noon to-day detected in the act of robbing the saloon of Werner Gille For eight years Gille has been missing small amounts almost daily, but until within the last week the thief went undetected.

Five employes had been discharged on suspicion and members of his family had been suspected Then customers were watched with the assistance of policemen to-day Some Collins, take money from the bar Upon searching him they found coins, marked for the purpose of detecting the thief, in his pocket. Collins was at once locked up in the city prison, but was later released upon his own recognizance. He at first denied the charge of theft, but wilted when shown the marks on the coins

Collins is over 50 years of age and is the head of one of the most prominent and highly respected families in this part of the state. He was mayor of Akron in 1862-3 and president of the council in 1877. He is the senior member of C. A. Collins & Son, extensive manufacturers, of this city. His Masonic career has been brilliant and he has received the thirty-third degree.

THE NEWS IN ENGLAND.

The Dead Man's Brother Prostrated with Grief—Mrs. Birchall's Father.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The news of Birchall's execution was received here and throughout England with the deepest interest. As a rule executions in Great Britain do not attract much attention from the general public, but no crime of recent years has aroused the curiosity and anxiety for details that the Birchall case has excited. Crowds waited anxiously for the news of the hanging, which came about three minutes after the execution, and the papers were eagerly bought up. At Oxford University, where Birchall was a student, some one draped in mourning the door of the apartment which he had occupied, and nothing else has been talked of by the students for several days but Birchall's crime and fate. Birchall had many warm friends among his old college chums, and to this day he is spoken of with favor and regret at the college. His mother is rapidly sinking and it is feared that the news of the execution will finish her.

Birchall's half-brother, the Rev. Oswald Birchall, denied himself to all callers to-day and yesterday, and is said to have spent all of Thursday night in prayer. Mr. Stevenson, the father of Mrs. Birchall, is crushed with anxiety about his daughter and has again sent word to Mrs. West-Jones to return to England immediately with her sister. Mr. Stevenson is very well situated as to property and there is no danger of Mrs. Birchall wanting for anything. The newspapers are unanimous in approving the action of the Canadian authorities in enforcing the law to the letter in Birchall's case.

JUVENILE CRIME

OLD COUNTRY WAIFS SHOULD NOT BE DUMPED IN TOWNS.

Erect Public Playgrounds—Enforce Truancy Laws—Three-Fourths of Youthful Delinquents Totally Uneducated—Manual Training Essential.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—The Prison Commission concluded the taking of evidence on the subjects of enquiry yesterday. It will now endeavor to digest the immense amount of material collected and to have the report ready for the opening of the Legislature.

The witnesses were:

W. Stark, inspector of detectives.
J. J. Kelso of the Humane Society.
G. A. Barnett of the Newsboys' Home.
Mrs. O'Reilly, superintendent of the Mercer.
Miss Elliott, superintendent of the Girls' Refuge, Mercer.
D. J. O'Donoghue, trades delegate.

The evidence dealt principally with different phases of juvenile crime, and brought out the great need of increased care for that part of the population.

Inspector Stark declared that the first and chief cause of crime was the deplorable lack of parental control over young children. The great majority of noted criminals began their career at an early age. Intemperance was the next most important factor, and it was found that persons of this class gradually drift into dissipated habits and their expertness as thieves leaves them. Junk and second-hand shops exercised a very damaging influence on juveniles, especially before they were put under police regulation. They are now conducted on the strictest possible lines, and the owners of them are often the first to come and report to us any suspicious transaction. He did not think pawn shops encouraged crime to any extent. He put in a statement showing that in four months there were 213 convictions for felony in Toronto, of which 73 were boys between 7 and 15 years of age. Public playgrounds should be provided at the public expense and under police surveillance. Juvenile crime was increasing with the growth of the city. It was a mistake to bring waifs from the Old Country and dump them in Canadian cities and towns. They should be placed on farms. Toronto already contains a professional criminal class.

Enforce Truancy Laws.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, who has been connected with the Humane Society, the Fresh Air Fund and other similar institutions for some time, gave the commission the result of his experience. He believed that the first and most pressing thing to do to lessen crime was to commence with the children. Truancy laws should be enforced. A probation officer should be appointed to attend the police headquarters and examine into the history of every juvenile offender and see that the young or innocent were not injured by contamination with others. A place of detention should be established where children could be kept until absorbed again into the family relation. Industrial schools should be established for the older boys, and the Penetangushene Reformatory should be made more of a home and less of a prison. He said the fate of children, under the present system, "often causes me great tribulation."

Mr. G. A. Barnett, superintendent of the Newsboys' Home for the past four years, gave an interesting description of the work of that institution. The average number of inmates is 24 and in winter the number sometimes rises to 35. The reason why more did not take advantage of the place was that they disliked the restraint necessary for carrying on the home. The conduct of the boys while in the home is very good. The cost of maintaining the home last year was about $5000, obtained by voluntary subscriptions, except a Government grant of $126.

Advocated the Cottage System.

Mrs. O'Reilly, superintendent of the Mercer Reformatory since its establishment in 1880, said that 1556 women and 160 girls had passed through that institution. Of the 134 inmates last year, the majority were convicted as vagrants and only six as prostitutes, but more than half of the inmates were really prostitutes. There are 85 inmates to-day. Owing to the structural arrangement it is impossible to properly classify them. To secure proper classification and to effect more reformation, the cottage system ought to be adopted and the institution placed in the country. She believed a considerable number of women reformed even with the present arrangements.

A peculiar point brought out in the evidence of Mrs. O'Reilly was that there were no rules governing the institution. She said she never had any experience of other institutions which were governed by rules, and did not know whether they would be effective or not.

Mr. Langmuir: "For my part I don't see how the institution can be carried on with out bylaws of some kind."

Mr. Drury: "I think it is the only institution in the province without rules."

Three-fourths Totally Uneducated.

Miss Elliott, who has charge of the refuge for girls, a department of the Mercer, said her aim was to make good servants of them and thought that 90 per cent. of them became respectable members of society. About 12 per cent. of the girls are weak-minded with vigorous constitutions and should never be permitted to be sent out in the world, because nothing but criminals spring from them. The refuge ought to be at a distance from the reformatory. Nearly 75 per cent. of the inmates when first admitted can neither read nor write.

Mr. D. J. O'Donoghue produced a statement from the police department showing that 369 children under 15 years of age were brought before the Police Magistrate during the 10 months ending Oct. 31. In January there were 26 boys and 1 girl, in February 39 boys and 2 girls, in March 43 boys and 3 girls, in April 36 boys and 6 girls, in May 47 boys and 3 girls, in June 58 boys and 4 girls, in July 64 boys and 4 girls, in August 33 boys and 2 girls, in September 70 boys and 2 girls, in October 106 boys and 5 girls. He placed before the commission the views of the labor organizations upon manual training in schools and similar subjects.

Telegraphic Taps.

By a premature explosion of dynamite in Custer's stone quarry at Lima, Ohio, yesterday, Charles Burkett, Henri Wincup and George Fisher were blown to pieces and Frank Fisher and Samuel Watt seriously injured.

It is alleged that Patrick O'Sullivan, now serving his sentence in the State Penitentiary for complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin, has confessed, claiming he was a dupe from the beginning, merely supposing he was to be an instrument for securing from Dr. Cronin papers damaging to the Irish cause, but with the idea that the Doctor would not be hurt.

The Parnell Divorce Suit.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—In the divorce court today Mr. Lockwood, on behalf of Mrs. O'Shea, applied for a postponement of the Parnell suit, pending the proceedings in the case of Mrs. Steele, sister of Mrs. O'Shea, against whom there is a counter accusation of adultery with Capt. O'Shea. Justice Butt refused to grant any further postponement.

The Labor Knights.

DENVER, Nov. 13.—The general assembly of the Knights of Labor is in session here. Among the prominent Knights present are Grand Master Powderly, A. W. Wright of Canada, and Morris L. Wheat of Ohio. Last night Mr Powderly delivered an address on the "Labor Situation of the Day."

No Pleuro-Pneumonia.

SUICIDE AT ST. HELENS.

An Old Man Shoots Himself While Temporarily Insane.

ST. HELENS, Ont., Nov. 14.—George Staples, a farmer in good circumstances living in the 6th concession of West Wawanosh, committed suicide last evening about 9 o'clock by shooting. Deceased has been in poor health lately and at times temporarily out of his mind. During one of these fits he took a loaded gun, which was left in the room by his son who had been hunting, placed the muzzle in his mouth and pulled the trigger, the charge coming out and blowing off his right ear, killing him instantly.

THE WRECKED SERPENT.

She Ran Upon the Rocks at Full Speed—Bodies Washed Ashore.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The street dealings at the stock exchange were the worst of the day. Every department was demoralized. The fact that over a million pounds in consols had been sold led to a reaction. The rush to realisations increased on bear rumors that notable financial houses were involved. The influx of £1,089,000 in gold into the Bank of England from Paris failed to relieve the strain. Several discounters refused bills at 6 per cent. or on any terms owing to the general feeling of uneasiness. The heaviest fall was in Uruguay securities, which declined 5. Argentine declined 2½ to 4, American railroads 1 to 3½ and English railways ½ to 2. On the Paris bourse prices were weak. Rio Tinto dropped 17 francs. The Berlin bourse was very unsettled under the reports of financial troubles in London.

The Lost Cruiser Serpent.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The survivors of the wreck of the cruiser Serpent near Camarins, Spain, are unable to give any details of the disaster except that the vessel was going ahead at full speed when she struck the rocks. Intelligence has been received here that another person was saved in addition to the three who were known to have reached the shore.

A Mayor Suicides.

SONDERSHAUSEN, Germany, Nov. 14.—Mayor Von Borke, aide-de-camp of the Prince of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, committed suicide to-day by shooting.

Thirty bodies washed ashore from the torpedo cruiser Serpent have been recovered. They are terribly disfigured from being dashed against the rocks.

The Hull steamer Derwentwater struck a reef off Cape Finisterre and foundered. Two of the crew were drowned and six were saved.

The O'Shea divorce case will come up for trial before Justice Butt in the Divorce Court to-morrow. It is rumored Parnell will conduct his own case. Captain O'Shea will produce 30 witnesses in his support. Mrs. Steele, sister of Mrs. O'Shea, says no matter how the case may end she is determined to vindicate her character against the charge of adultery with Captain O'Shea.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—During the past week Some important changes have been made in the work of the Ontario Ministers. The care of the public institutions—Asylums, Central Prison, etc.—has been transferred from the department of the Provincial Treasurer to that presided over by Hon. J. M. Gibson. The liquor license branch, formerly under the control of the Provincial Secretary, afterwards under the management of the Treasury Department, and still more lately attached to that of the Provincial Secretary again goes to the Department of the Provincial Treasurer, where it will be administered by the new head, Mr. Harcourt.

Mr. N. G. Bigsiow, Q.C., got down from Orillia yesterday, where he has been attending the Civil Assizes. He tells a funny story of breach of promise case of Bernard v Nelson. The plaintiff is a young milliner who carried on business above a store in the town. She was courted by the defendant, who finally deserted her to marry another. She sued for breach of promise, and on Thursday got judgment for $40. Some peculiar correspondence was read in court. After the trial Miss Bernard met her faithless swain in the corridor of the court house and assaulted him violently She was pulled away, but before retiring told Nelson that she would shoot him on sight. Nelson intended to leave for Toronto on the night train, but as she was at the depot he changed his mind and has been in hiding ever since.

All these meetings have been largely attended, not only by the regular members, but by visitors from all lodges in the vicinity of the centres visited, and the welcome to the chief officer of the craft has been generous and enthusiastic. Bro. Robertson gives an address on the history of Craft Masonry in Canada, compiled from a large collection of manuscripts, the collection of 10 years' labor, and its recital has given great pleasure to the craft. He will be banqueted at the Grand Central Hotel to-night by the Ridgetown brethren.

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

A MUCH NEEDED RAILWAY.

A paragraph in our Apsley correspondence in Wednesday's issue of the DAILY EXAMINER called attention to the great need of a railway for the north country. Our correspondent pointed out that this section is rich in minerals, and that there is no reason to doubt that nickel, a mineral which recent researches and experiments have invested with an unusual economic and industrial importance, abounds in paying quantities. The known deposits of iron, mica and phosphates, demand an outlet as one of the prime conditions to the successful and profitable development of these mines. In view of these facts, it is in order to again insist on the importance of the construction of the projected line of railway in Ontario, at some point in Northumberland, to Sault Ste. Marie. This line, as projected, would pass through the region in question, and serve not only its interests, but those of the whole country on each side of the route—a rich country all the way, either in agricultural, grazing or mineral respects. The construction of this line will not only develop the natural resources of the country through which it passes, but render a very large area of country tributary to Peterborough, to the large increase of her trade, and consequently of her wealth and prosperity.

In view of the suddenly-acquired importance of our mineral deposits it behooves the local promoters of this line to be on the alert. A Mr. Ritchie, of Akron, Ohio, who is largely interested in the nickel mines of Northern Ontario, has, on behalf of himself and others interested with him in these mines, asked the Dominion Government for a ten years' guarantee for five million dollars to aid in building a railroad from Cos Hill to Sudbury. Now the local line under consideration is of equal importance to the country and to this section and particularly, with the Cos Hill Sudbury line, except to the nickel-plated speculators immediately and personally concerned.

SOUTH VICTORIA CONTEST.

The election contest is going forward briskly in South Victoria—"on spec.," for the writ is not yet issued, and, therefore, the Liberals, especially, are going in on the principle of being prepared for any emergency. They are anxious for the fray, for they have an exceptionally strong candidate, upon whom the Liberal party is strongly united, and whose broad platform affords room for many liberal minded Conservatives. They are the more encouraged on account of the unpopular character of the Government candidate, and the consequent dissension in the Government camp. This dissension has reached such an acute stage that the junior Conservate organ, the Lindsay Watchman, announces its withdrawal from the contest—it can't stand the Warder as a running mate. In view of the peculiarity of the political situation and the dubious nature of its chances, the Government is naturally hesitant in issuing the writ that will precipitate an election contest.

THE Regina Leader expresses its astonishment that "such an ass as Mr. McKinley" should have been allowed to frame the Republican trade policy of the United States. Yet the Leader is a firm supporter of the trade policy of the Tory party, and its editor, Mr. Davin, the Chinook sage, is a firm supporter of Mr. Foster, whose trade policy is in principle the exact counterpart of Mr. McKinley's, only a little less so. If therefore, McKinley is, in the Leader's opinion, an ass, Mr. Foster must be an ass'colt, and by the time he becomes a full grown ass, the people of Canada will give him a similar rubbing down to that they gave the senatorial ass of Ohio.

The Dominion Alliance.

The "Convention Call"—The Past, Present and the Future.

The Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance has issued its call for the convention of 1890, which will be held in Richmond Hall, Toronto, (29 Richmond Street west) on Thursday and Friday, December 11th and 12th. As many of the readers of the EXAMINER have a very deep interest in this question of prohibition, the following report and statement of the position of the Alliance, extracted from their "Convention Call," is given:

THE YEAR'S WORK.

At the meeting of the Alliance last December, it was resolved that a strong effort should be made to secure as large a measure as possible of prohibitory legislation from our Provincial Assembly, and a number of proposals for much needed reform in our laws were submitted and approved. The decisions of that Convention were pressed upon the attention of the Government with the gratifying result that the following among other prohibitory measures were embodied in our Provincial Statutes, and are now doing effective work in the curtailing of the evils of intemperance:—1. The prohibition of the sale of liquor to all persons under eighteen years of age. 2. The prohibition of liquor selling in clubs incorporated under the General Act, or unincorporated. 3. The making of hotel keepers, who sublet their bars, responsible for any illegal selling in such bars. 4. The requiring an applicant for a new license to secure a petition for such license from a majority of the electors in the Polling Subdivision. 5. The absolute prohibition of liquor selling on all steamboats and other vessels. 6. The empowering of the electors of any municipality to prohibit entirely the sale of liquor within the limits of such municipality.

It is the duty of prohibitionists to take advantage of these measures and continue to press for still further restrictions, never forgetting that our ultimate aim is the total prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating beverages.

It is specially gratifying to know that under the provisions referred to in class (6) above, very active and aggressive campaigning for the securing of total prohibition is now going on in different parts of the Province.

THE COMING CONVENTION.

Three important matters will doubtless receive much attention at the approaching Convention:—(1) The question of immediate and general organization to secure as large a as possible the benefits of the Municipal Prohibition above mentioned. (2) The question of applying to the Ontario Legislature at its approaching session for still further measures of prohibitory legislation. (3) The question of definite and aggressive political action at the forthcoming general elections for the Dominion Parliament.

These questions are of vital interest to the people of Ontario. The Convention hereby called to consider them is expected to be of an unusually important character. We are cursed to day with the liquor traffic. Our country is ripe for prohibition. "Let us go up and possess the land for we are well able."

WHAT THE ALLIANCE IS.

The Alliance, as an organization, is not in any sense in competition with any other organization. It is simply the Legislative Committee of the various temperance societies and workers. It is composed of members and delegates. Any temperance or church organization that contributes annually one dollar or upwards to the funds of the Alliance is considered a branch, and has a right to send to the convention one delegate for every dollar so contributed. In addition to the delegates so constituted, any temperance worker approving of the objects of the Alliance may become a member by paying one dollar or more.

It is specially requested that all churches and temperance societies will kindly connect themselves with the Alliance on the plan above named, and that as far as possible they will appoint representatives to the approaching convention.

CHEAP RATES—A FARE AND A THIRD.

The time for the Convention has been fixed to suit the convenience of those who desire to visit Toronto just before the Christmas holidays. All who can arrange to come will be cordially welcomed. They may secure reduced fares by carrying out the following instructions:—Purchase on starting a single-fare first-class ticket for Toronto, and get from the agent who sells this ticket a standard certificate of its purchase. All ticket agents are instructed to give these certificates when requested. This must be presented to the Secretary of the Convention at Toronto, who will sign it, after which the Toronto ticket agent will sell the holder of it a ticket to his starting point for one-third of a single fare. This plan of reduced rates will be good to come to Toronto from December 8th to 11th inclusive, and to return from Toronto from December 12th to 15th inclusive.

The Sudbury Nickel Treasure.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—The excitement over the Sudbury nickel deposits continues, and a number of local capitalists are considering the propriety of putting some money in the mines along the line of the railway between Sudbury and Algoma Mills. Mr. R. J. Ritchie, the chief promoter of the nickel industry was in Ottawa on Tuesday endeavoring to obtain a promise of a government subsidy in aid of the extension of his railway, the Central Ontario from Cos Hill to Sudbury. The Government has the matter under consideration. Mr. Ritchie wants his railway extended to Sudbury in order that he may ship his nickel matte to Lake Ontario to be shipped thence by water to American lake ports.

Fire at Hamilton Last Night.

HAMILTON, Nov. 13.—At 6¼ this evening fire was seen in the extensive pork-smoking establishment of Thomas Lawry & Son in McNab-street south. The fire department responded quickly and by its prompt and efficient work confined the flames to the starting point. The fire had made great headway before being discovered, and when the department arrived flames were already issuing in half a dozen different places in the roof. The smoke house is located near the front, and over it on the roof there is a large erection and cupola. It was here the flames were the most fierce and on account of its height difficult to reach. A very strong southwest wind prevailed at the time and made it uphill work from the first to fight the flames. In half an hour the roof caved in and shortly after the men got the flames under control. The packing house is completely gutted and the loss on building and stock will be heavy.

Hotel and Boarding House Burned Down.

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 13.—Late last night a fire broke out in the rear of the Albion House, occupied by George Raymond, baker, and in ten minutes the building, being a frame one, was enveloped in flames. The fire spread to the adjoining building, the Victoria House, a boarding house owned by Mrs. Margaret Calder. The Albion is totally consumed and the Victoria House so completely gutted as to be a total loss. There was an insurance of $1000 on the Albion and $1200 on the Victoria House.

Big Enterprise for the Sault.

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—Col. Hope of London, Eng., is booming a big enterprise for Sault Ste. Marie. He says the water power now going to waste there is equal to 236,000 horse-power per second. He proposes to organize a syndicate to utilize that power by building a tail race five miles long on the Canadian side and a canal of equal length on the American side. He proposes to have dry docks emptied and filled by gravitation, pulp mills, flour mills and blast furnaces.

More Shipping Disasters.

HALIFAX, Nov. 13.—The Government steamer Alert, bound to Quebec with materials saved from the wrecked steamer Napoleon III. arrived at Port Hawkesbury this morning. This evening news was received that she collided off Cape George with the schooner Schylla, owned by Hennessey Bros. of Port Hawkesbury, and left her in a sinking condition, taking the crew to Pictou. The Schylla was loaded with produce for Boston.

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unnatural silence! Purify your Blood importance of the blood in pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

H. W. BEECHER'S ADVICE.

GOOD RULES FOR THE GOVERNANCE OF YOUNG MEN'S LIVES.

Twelve Paragraphed Regulations Covering in a General Way the Chief Points of Difference Between Right and Wrong Modes of Living.

The following letter from Henry Ward Beecher to his son is declared on good authority never to have been published. It is reminiscent of the worldly good sense of the advice given to Laertes by Polonius, but it is also permeated by the leaven of Christian experience. The precepts in it are those which if followed would produce a good man as well as a gentleman.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 15, 1878.

MY DEAR HERBERT,—You are now for the first time really launched into life for yourself. You go from your father's house, and from all family connections, to make your own way in the world. It is a good time to make a new start, to cast out faults of whose evil you have had an experience, and to take on habits the want of which you have found to be damaging.

1. You must not go into debt. Avoid debt as you would the devil. Make it a fundamental rule: No debt—cash or nothing.

2. Make few promises. Religiously observe the smallest promise. A man who means to keep his promises cannot afford to make many.

3. Be scrupulously careful in all statements. Accuracy and perfect frankness, no guesswork. Either nothing or accurate truth.

4. When you are working for others sink yourself out of sight, seek their interest. Make yourself necessary to those who employ you, by industry, fidelity, and scrupulous integrity. Selfishness is fatal.

5. Hold yours n responsible for a higher standard than anybody else expects of you. Demand more of yourself than anybody else expects of you. Keep yourself standard high. Never excuse yourself to yourself. Never pity yourself. Be a hard master to yourself, but lenient to everybody else.

6. Concentrate your forces on your own proper business; do not turn off. Be constant, steadfast, persevering.

7. The art of making one's fortune is to spend nothing; in this country any intelligent and industrious young man may become rich if he stops all leaks and is not in a hurry. Do not make haste, be patient.

8. Do not speculate or gamble. You go to a land where everybody is excited and strives to make money, suddenly, largely and without working for it. They blow soap-bubbles. Steady, patient industry is both the surest and the safest way. Greediness and haste are two devils that destroy thousands every year.

9. In regard to Mr. B——, he is a Southern gentleman, he is receiving you as a favor to me, do not let him regret it.

10. I beseech you to correct one fault—severe speech of others. Never speak evil of any man, no matter what the facts may be. Hasty fault-finding and severe speech of absent people is not honorable is apt to be unjust and cruel, makes enemies for yourself, and is wicked.

11. You must remember that you go to Mr. B—— not to learn to manage a farm like his. One or two hundred acres, not forty thousand, is to be your future homestead; but you can learn the care of cattle, sheep, the culture of wheat, the climate, country, manners and customs, and a hundred things that will be needful.

12. If by integrity, industry, and well-earned success you deserve well of your fellow-citizens, they may in years to come ask you to accept honors. Do not seek them, do not receive them while you are young—wait, but when you are established you may make your father's name known with honor in halls of legislation. Lastly, do not forget your father's and your mother's God. Because you will be largely deprived of church privileges, you need all the nerve to keep your heart before God. But do not despise small churches and humble preachers. Mind not high things, but condescend to men of low estate."

Read often the Proverbs, the precepts and duties enjoined in the New Testament. May your father's God be with you and protect you.

The Art of Conversation.

The art of conversation is to some women a gift. Like the poet, they are born with their glorious powers. But many women who converse intelligently and pleasantly have become masters of the art by patient care and study. Even persons of ordinary ability will find upon making the effort that where it is not a gift no other deficiency can be so well supplemented by art. For the untutored there are three old rules which may not prove amiss. Talk to men on the subject which belongs to their peculiar callings, talk about those things which interest yourself, assuming also that they interest your listener, and make it a point to inform yourself upon a variety of topics; never be guilty of introducing in a mixed company a subject upon which all may not be able to converse. There is a wonderful faculty in drawing people out, in making the strangers and the timid feel at ease, in putting questions so skillfully and adroitly as to compel them to answer as though they were conferring a favor on you, not you seeking to entertain them; but here the rule of good breeding is the best to follow. Many of our city bred women excel in this elegant accomplishment, and some of our social gatherings, for wit, repartee and intelligent thought, bring to mind the historical salons of that queen of conversation, Mme. de Stael. But it is not always the most brilliant talker who is the most pleasing conversationalist; truth, deference, good nature, sympathy, tact and charity are the ingredients of the best conversation, without these the most sparkling wit and liveliest imagination must soon repel rather than attract. Above all shun doleful topics. Tears come unsought, unbidden. Make people happy by kind and gracious words. The world wants more sunshine. The wisest art in life and speech is to cultivate smiles, to find flowers where others shrink away for fear of thorns.

A Seal Resort.

St Paul Island is one of the chief resorts of the seals in Behring sea. For about 400 feet above the water the ground slopes gently and it is along this incline that the seals establish themselves, the coast for sixteen miles in some seasons being literally black with the animals. The males are very quarrelsome and fight for their positions, making a din almost deafening, which may be heard for miles. Here the young seals are born and nursed for a few days by the mothers, who then desert them, to be cared for by the older males until they are big enough to shift for themselves. The antics of the young when learning to swim are highly amusing. They flounder about in the water at first as totally helpless as a kitten. It is soon over, however, the seal being the most graceful of swimmers.

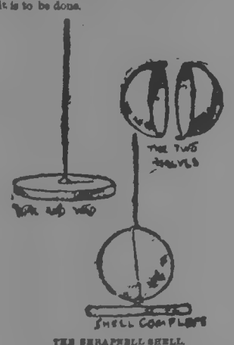
VARYING THE RANGE.

A New Shell That Can be Adjusted to Any Distance.

ONE of the most recent discoveries of the gun-makers is a method for increasing the range of any gun from forty yards or so to one hundred and fifty yards, at will. Most sportsmen understand that by varying the number and position of the wads in a cartridge they can cause the shot to spread wide or to shoot close with almost any gun, but beyond that few have any definite idea of how it is to be done.



THE SHRAPNELL SHELL.

The new device is known as the Shrapnell shell, and consists of a brass ball, slightly smaller than the bore of the gun, which is divided into halves, each half being fitted with two small flanges, each flange having a tiny hole in it, through which a steel wire can be passed. The shell is filled with any size of shot desired, and the wire being passed through the holes, the halves are held together, making a solid ball. At the bottom end of the shell a thick felt wad is fitted of the size to fit the bore of the gun. The cartridge is loaded with powder in the usual way, with the usual wads, and on the top of these the Shrapnell shell is forced down so that the wad at the bottom of the wire comes next to the wads over the powder and the brass shell has snug within the cartridge. When the gun is fired the wad fits the barrel and prevents any escape of gas, and so leaves the muzzle behind the shell. As it strikes the air the wind catches the edges of the wad, which is slightly larger than the circumference of the shell, and so draws the wire slowly out and sets free the two halves of the shell, when the shot spreads as if just leaving the muzzle of the gun. With this equipment I have shot curlew at a distance of 147 yards with an ordinary 13-bore gun, of which the average range may be said to be fifty to sixty yards. By cutting the wire with a pair of sharp nippers (being careful not to leave any rough, overhanging edges) to catch in the small flange holes, the spread of the shot can be made to take place at almost any distance, as the shorter the wire the sooner it is withdrawn by the force of the wind on the wad, and the shorter the range at which the shot is liberated.

In case one unexpectedly meets bear or other large game, the wire can be bent over the brass shell by the fingers in an instant, so that the shell becomes a solid bullet, with an accurate dead-line range of eighty yards. They are made to fit four, eight, ten, twelve or sixteen-bore guns, and are imported from Edinburgh.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the proposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach,

a generous stimulant. It not only removes the dirt, but the layer which carries the dirt; and it promotes the displacement of the old cuticle to make way for the new, to increase the activity of change in the skin. Now turn we to Toilet Soaps and there we find

PEARS' SOAP! an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and the most refreshing and agreeable of balms to the skin."

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

DORENWEND ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments,

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit, get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. The Dorenwend Electric Belt and Attachment Co., C. H. DORENWEND, Electrician, 103 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. sod w

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home Institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

Thos. Bradburn, Esq., of Peterborough, says the Minden Echo, paid Minden a visit on Wednesday and Thursday last on his way to and from his farm; he was accompanied by three men who took his cast to and those that he had pasturing here all summer, to Peterborough. The animals were all in very fine condition; they comprised ten horses and seventeen head of cattle.

Hymeneal.

Wednesday evening Mr. John P. Cunningham, who is connected with Mr. J. W. Crosby's piano agency, was married to Miss Agnes McNaughton. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's mother, Water street, by Rev. P. Clifton Parker. Miss Clara Kennedy was bridesmaid, and Mr. R. Shelton groomsman. The happy couple left on the evening train for a brief honeymoon trip. Both young people were well known in Peterborough, and their many friends will bestow cordial congratulations upon Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham. The gifts to the bride were numerous and handsome testimonials of the warm regard of her friends.

New Savings Bank Facilities.

As a people Canadians are beginning to practically believe the principle that a penny saved is a penny gained, and are always glad of an opportunity of placing their savings so that the place of deposit will insure the conditions of safety and undoubted security, a readily available opportunity of withdrawal for pressing needs, and afford a fair interest on deposits. To meet the demand for increased facilities in this direction, the Bank of Montreal has decided to add to its already large banking facilities a savings bank department in connection with each of their numerous branches. The twelve million dollar capital of the Bank of Montreal and the integrity and ability of its management, and the strong position it holds in the money markets of the world, are ample guarantees to depositors of the perfect safety of their funds.

Benefit Entertainment.

The benefit to Mr. W. J. Riley in the Royal Templars' Hall last night was not largely attended, and the financial outcome consequently not as large as Mr. Riley's friends had hoped for. The programme was good, of itself deserving of a better audience. The principal feature was the stereoptican exhibition of Mr. R. M. Roy, whose views of Canada, Europe, the Holy Land, the Rocky Mountains, and of the scenes connected with Birchall's trial, were excellent. Mr. Roy also exhibited for the first time his cycloidotrope, from which some pretty mechanical effects were produced. Besides these amusements there was a well rendered solo, "Marguerite," by Mrs. Bowman, an instrumental solo by Mrs. G. A. Smith, club swinging by Master John Connors, and a reading by Mr. A. Clegg.

Molson's Bank.

It is probable that a branch of the Molson's Bank, one of the largest financial institutions in Canada, will shortly be established in Peterborough. Yesterday Mr. Wolfenstan Thomas, general manager of the Molson's Bank, and Mr. H. S. Ewing, of Montreal, both prominent men in that city, were in town. They were on their way home from the Northwest, where it had been decided to establish branches at Winnipeg and Calgary, and were looking for a suitable location for another branch in the Midland district. It is probable that Peterborough will be selected. The Molson's Bank has no agency between Toronto and Brockville, and another office is necessary in this district. The Mon real men were chaperoned by Mr. W. Hill of the Sun Life, and they expressed themselves as highly pleased with Peterborough.

"Two Old Chums."

The public have not yet recovered from the shock produced by that dismal failure, "Running Wild," which passed through the country not long ago, and anything advertised as a farce-comedy is looked on with suspicion. On this account a really meritorious company is liable to go a-begging for patronage, and this is what happened to the "Two Old Chums" at the opera house last night. As a farce comedy the "Two Old Chums" is a success, and Harry Austin's company put it on the boards in good style. Harry Austin in his musical specialties was heartily applauded and frequently encored, and Field and Winchell in their low comedy were simply irresistible. The musical novelties were a taking feature of the performance. "Two old Chums is well worth seeing by those who have a taste for the comic and farcical.

The New Convent Building Extension.

Ample and Substantial Enlargement.

The need for an increased accommodation for Separate School pupils has been met by the erection of a large and substantial addition to the Convent building, Hunter street, south of the Cathedral. The new structure is an extension southward to Scott street of the older convent building, of the same width and height. The new structure has a entrance separate from the original main entrance, and the east front has an ornamental gable. The new portion is solidly and substantially built. Two fourteen inch red brick wall rests on a foundation of rock face Longford stone, neatly pointed. This addition is 40x54 feet in area and three stories in height. The basement is a well-lighted, brick floored room with nine feet ceilings, and contains the Smead-Dowd heating and ventilating furnaces and apparatus, the latrines belonging to this system, coal bins, etc.

THE FIRST FLOOR

contains the entrance hall, 9x26 feet, with its wide stairway. This hall terminates in the rear at a large class room 21x28 feet, with 12 feet ceilings and abundant light, and a stretch of blackboard of forty-four feet by 4 feet wide. To the right of the rear of this hall, under the stair landing, is an entrance to the old building. At the front of this hall, a door on the left admits to another large class room 21x32 feet, also well lighted.

THE SECOND FLOOR

contains a large room suitable for the purposes of a school hall. This is 40x54 feet in size, with lofty twenty foot ceiling with a heavy double wooden cornice, and exposed truss beams. This fine apartment is lighted with eleven large windows. From the upper hall a door admits to the original building, and on both floors in the southern part of the old building to the left of the central hall, the two rooms into which they were divided have been thrown into one on each floor, thus giving two commodious class rooms, which have been very neatly repaired and renewed. Altogether the addition gives a large amount of additional space for pupils, and to a character that cannot be improved on. Both the new portion, and the old portion just referred to, are heated and ventilated by the Smead-Dowd system, one of the most complete and thorough systems for school use at the present time. The new portion has been very solidly constructed, and is a credit to both the architect, Mr. J. E. Belcher, and the contractor, Mr. Henry Carveth. The sub-contractors, who did their work in a praiseworthy manner, were:—Mr James Bogue, stonework; Mr. P. J. McNamara, brickwork; tin work, Jas. Murty; plastering, Geo. Brown; painting, T. Carveth. The structural work of the new school premises is completed, but it will take some time to provide and arrange the seating accommodation and furnishing, and it is not probable that they will be occupied and used before the beginning of the new year.

A Case of Child Desertion.

A Man Who Was Very Anxious to Get Rid of a Baby—The Infant Deserted in Lindsay.

Thursday evening a bit of gossip came to the ears of Chief Roszel, which he regarded as an idle tale at the time, but a letter which he received yesterday invested it with some importance. It was reported Thursday night that a man had been trying to get rid of a baby at several houses in town, threatening to drown it if some one did not take the infant in. Yesterday forenoon this letter was received by the Chief:—

LINDSAY, Nov. 15.

A man giving his name as Morrison left a child at a boarding house here yesterday. (Here followed a description.) Arrest him for child desertion. He is believed to be Littleton, of Fenelon Falls. Enquire if a child, a boy two months old, left your town yesterday.

THOS. BELL,
Chief Constable.

Chief Roszel in the afternoon made enquiries at several houses in the south ward, and learned that a man answering exactly to the description given in the letter had called at three places in the vicinity of Wescott street about dusk Wednesday evening, and tried to leave a child. He gave his name as Lytle, told at one place he was from near Omemee and at another that he was from west of Toronto. He said his wife was dead and he could not take care of the child, but he would pay for its board with any one who would take it in. He was refused, and went away.

The same man, with a woman who passed as his wife, and child arrived at the Kennedy House last Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were away, and there being no register in connection with the hotel, no one could give their names. They stopped there until Wednesday night, but did not leave town till the next morning. Where they passed the night is not known. The man was a stranger here and none of the hotel employes could remember his name. He took the train Thursday morning, and, as the letter would indicate, succeeded in unburdening himself in Lindsay.

No further trace of the man has been gained, and the corporation of Lindsay will probably be saddled with another burden of charity.

Echoes of the Execution.

Post Mortem Examination of Birchall's Body—The Last Sad Scene Over.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 14.—The excitement over Birchall's execution is subsiding. After the hanging the citizens were disgusted with the conduct of the hangman, who paraded the town and exhibited himself as if he had done something heroic. He last night returned to Toronto, and officiated as steward at an "at home" of the Sunnyside Boating Club, with which he has been connected. He has been compelled to resign his position, however, as the club would not keep a hangman in their employ.

The post-mortem examination showed death was caused by strangulation, although medical men agree that the patient suffered no pain. The neck was not broken. Death was almost instantaneous, that Birchall's heart was apparently normal in appearance, and weighed 50½ oz. The average brain weighs 49 oz. Certain vessels, however, were particularly large, such as might not be expected in the brain of a man of Birchall's education.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict that deceased came to his death from the combined effects of strangulation and the shock to his system. And that the sentence of the court had been carried out.

THE BURIAL.

The remains of Birchall were embalmed and placed in an airtight metallic coffin and this evening were interred in the jail yard, but was buried beneath the scaffold as was generally supposed would be the case. The idea of inclosing them in a metallic coffin was that another effort will be made to induce the Attorney-General to allow Mrs. Birchall to take the remains home with her to England. She is expected to leave with Mrs. West Jones on Wednesday next.

Birchall, as he lay in the coffin, was dressed in evening costume, and on his breast was a gold locket containing a picture of his wife and a lock of her light flaxen hair, which she had given him the night before. The casket was a most smoth-red with flowers when the officials reached the grave. While Mrs. West-Jones wept silently Rev. Mr. Wade stood by the open grave. Mr. Wade had refused to repeat the burial service of the Church of England, but extemporized a prayer.

RECEIVED THE INTELLIGENCE CALMLY.

Mrs. Birchall was made acquainted with the fact that the execution had taken place by her sister, Mrs West Jones, when she awakened at 10 o'clock. She was partially dazed as the result of the light opiate which had been given her during the night, and did not fully realize the import of the communication conveyed to her. However, she soon rallied and acted as though she had resolved to hear the result without any more emotion than was necessary.

The last words that Birchall spoke to Mrs. West-Jones were that he was innocent of Benwell's murder.

The hangman received $50, and his expenses were about $25 additional.

On Wednesday next Mrs. Birchall will celebrate the second anniversary of her marriage.

That Little Tickling

In your throat, which makes you cough once in a while and keeps you constantly clearing your throat, arises from catarrh, and as catarrh is a constitutional disease the ordinary cough medicines all fail to hit the spot. What you need is a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Many people who have taken this medicine for scrofula, dyspepsia, loss of appetite, and other troubles, have been surprised that it should cure this troublesome cough. But to know the actual cause of the cough is to solve the mystery. Many cases of consumption can be traced back to the neglect of some such slight affection as this. Consumption can be controlled in its early stages, and the effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla in purifying the blood, building up the general health, and expelling the scrofulous taint which is the cause of catarrh and consumption, has restored to perfect health many persons on whom this dreaded disease seemed to have a firm hold.

Another Idol Shattered.

Who has not read the "Pilgrims Progress" and been charmed with the rough but fervid allegory of John Bunyan, who was cast into Bedford jail, as it is said for conscience? But it has been discovered that he richly deserved prison, for he who has posed for two centuries as a saint is a fraud. Instead of being a saint he is an illicit whiskey seller. A hotel keeper named John Bunyan was arrested the other day in a western Ontario town charged with keeping open his dive after hours. It is a sad fact that there is no place where you can get the real article in the shape of tea but hawley bros'. The best of teas and rare good coffees. dw

CLOSE OF THE FOURTH SESSION OF THE SIXTH PARLIAMENT.

The List of Bills Which Received the Royal Assent Text of the Governor-General's Speech Hon. C. H. Tupper Seriously Ill

OTTAWA, May 16.—The Commons met at 11 o'clock this morning and passed the bills reported from the Senate, thus completing the business of the session. One Senate amendment to the Banking Act, providing that bills defaced or torn need not be accepted in payment of a debt, was protested against by Messrs Foster, Laurier and others as mischievous and dangerous, but was concurred in because there was not time for the Senate to reconsider the matter this session. As the bill does not go into effect until July 1, 1891, Parliament will have opportunity next session of removing the objectionable provision.

In answer to an inquiry by Hon. Peter Mitchell relative to the fishery negotiations at Washington Sir John Macdonald said he could not make the expected communication as the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who was to have been home last night or this morning, had not yet arrived. The minister had been dangerously ill and therefore travelled slowly. Generally speaking, it might be said that the negotiations were proceeding quite satisfactorily.

Mr. Trow made an enquiry about the Bremner fur case as to whether the Government would undertake to see that Bremner was indemnified. Mr. Kirkpatrick spoke in defence of the General, pointing out that he had acted quite properly in ordering the furs into the charge of the Mounted Police, when Bremner, their owner, was arrested and imprisoned. The impropriety of which he had been guilty consisted in afterwards declaring them confiscated and ordering a portion put up for himself and staff, and he claimed that the General should not pay for any except the portion thus put up.

At 12¼ Mr. Speaker left the chair.

At 4 o'clock, the Commons being in attendance at the Senate Chamber, the Governor-General signified the Royal assent to these bills.

For granting to Her Majesty certain sums of money required for defraying certain expenses of the public service for the financial years ending respectively June 30, 1890, and June 30, 1891, and for other purposes relating to the public service.

His Excellency then delivered the following Speech from the Throne.

His Excellency's Speech.

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In bringing to a close this somewhat protracted session of Parliament, I desire to convey to you my best thanks for the diligence with which you have applied yourselves to your important duties.

The negotiations respecting the Behring Sea question are still in progress at Washington with good prospects of an equitable settlement. Meanwhile the continuance for another year of what is known as the "modus vivendi" will serve to show our earnest desire to cultivate the most friendly relations with the United States Government and people.

The readjustment of the customs tariff, intended to promote the development of our natural resources in mining and other industries, I have reason to hope will operate to the advantage of all classes.

I am glad to believe that the act relating to trade marks has been carefully considered, and will be found to guard the interests of the public and to be sufficiently liberal to those who are more immediately affected by its provisions. The measure relating to bills of exchange, checks and promissory notes will doubtless render more certain and plain the law relating to these instruments, and make the law in that regard uniform in almost all respects throughout Canada.

The amendments to the criminal law include a great number and variety of provisions, all of which will probably be found useful, and several of which were urgently demanded for the public welfare.

The creation of a bureau of labor statistics will promote the investigation and study of the questions which affect the relations of capital and labor, and which are now engaging the attention of all great nations. It will likewise aid the diffusion of information on all that concerns the occupations and well-being of the working classes. In some other measures of the present session your desire to improve the laws which apply particularly to those engaged in industrial pursuits will likewise be recognised.

The various provisions to amend the laws relating to railways, to patents, copyrights and trade marks, and to the department of Inland Revenue, and likewise the enactments to improve the statutes for the management of our Indian population, are well adapted to promote the efficient administration of the departments to which they relate, which a large amount of private railway legislation indicates a spirit of enterprise throughout the country which, it is to be hoped, will lead to a substantial development of the railway works of the country.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I thank you for the liberal provision which you have made for the requirements of the public service.

Honorable gentlemen of the Senate, gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I take leave of you for the present with the earnest hope that in the coming season our people in every part of Canada may be blessed with an abundant reward for their labors and may witness a marked advance in the prosperity of the Dominion.

ONTARIO'S CROPS.

Summary of the Bureau of Statistics' May Bulletin.

TORONTO, May 17.—A bulletin issued yesterday from the Bureau of Statistics contains the usual interesting facts with respect to the crops, progress of spring work, live stocks etc. The information is gathered by 971 correspondents under date of May 1. Fall wheat, it would appear, presents a very uneven condition throughout the province. Owing to the alternate thawing and freezing of the mild winter, following late seeding, the crop suffered more or less from winter-killing in the west. The dry northerly winds and rains, commencing in February and continuing late in the spring, greatly retarded the growth in other portions of the province, where the crop is said to have wintered better than was expected. In Essex, Lambton, Kent and Lincoln, which send the worst reports, considerable portions of the wheat land will be plowed up and seeded over. Little or no damage is reported from worms or insects. Recent rains have improved the outlook, and with a favorable season there is reason to anticipate a fair, although not a large, harvest.

The condition of the winter rye crop is generally satisfactory, the winter-killing not having been sufficiently extensive to impair the prospects of an average crop. The acreage is greatly decreasing.

The condition of clover is not satisfactory, especially in the south-western counties, much damage having been caused by the alternate freezing and thawing. On high and sandy soils the prospects are better, and a good crop is promised under favorable conditions.

The reports concerning orchids are on the whole favorable. The damage to the peach trees was slight, apples promise well, and grapes and small fruits generally are considered as promising. Plums and cherries are suffering from black knot.

Seeding is far advanced in the western portion of the province, owing to the favorable season, but wet land in some of the eastern counties has delayed plowing operations. Oats and peas continue in favor and there will be a considerably enlarged area of spring wheat sown, inclining some. Barley will be grown to a smaller extent, probably one half to two-thirds that of last year. Low prices of late and a fear that the U.S. tariff will discriminate against Canadian barley supply the reasons.

TO SHELVE THE QUESTION.

The General Assembly Will Shirk a Revision of the Confession.

SARATOGA, May 16.—At the General Assembly to-day the committee on methods of effecting changes in the Confession of Faith and the constitution of the church reported

1. That the differences of opinion as to the methods of amendment of the Confession of Faith and the larger and shorter catechism are so marked and widespread that it is unwise to raise the issues involved in the General Assembly.

2. That the church has always considered the doctrine of such vital importance that changes in the doctrinal standards should be made under greater restrictions than changes or alterations in the form of government, the book of discipline and the directory of worship.

3. That the methods of doctrinal alteration should be included in the constitution itself and in definite terms.

4. That the church speaking officially through the Presbyteries can alone determine with authority the questions at issue.

Therefore the committee recommends that the question be transmitted to the presbyteries, where there shall be added to the form of government Chapter XXIII of amendments providing

First, for the proposal by the General Assembly to the presbyteries of amendments or alterations of the form of government, book of discipline and directory for worship, but that these shall not be obligatory unless a majority of all the presbyteries approve it within

Second, that alterations in the doctrinal standards shall not be proposed to the Presbyteries unless they have been under consideration for one year by a committee of not less than 15 ministers and ruling elders not more than two of whom shall be from any one synod.

Third, no alteration shall be made in the provisions of this chapter for changes in the doctrinal standards unless an overture from the General Assembly submitting the proposed alterations shall be transmitted to all the presbyteries and be approved in writing by two-thirds of them.

Fourth, the General Assembly must transmit to the presbyteries any overture submitted to it by one-third of all the presbyteries.

Fifth, any amendment so submitted and approved shall go into effect immediately after the General Assembly shall have certified the fact. The committee also recommended that the presbyteries be directed to answer the overture as a whole by a simple yes or nay to be reported to the stated clerk in time to be presented to the next General Assembly.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER.

A CHAMBER OF HORRORS IN THE WILKESBEARRE MINE

Mine Inspector Williams' Daring Exploration Nineteen Blackened, Burned and Mangled Bodies Found Side by Side—A Fire Boss' Terrible Carelessness.

WILKENBARRE, May 16.—It was through the daring efforts of Mine Inspector Williams that the fate of the imprisoned miners was learned this morning. After numerous attempts to enter the mine through the newly made opening the officials concluded the air-currents must be changed and left with their workmen for this purpose. Inspector Williams became impatient of delay and with Abednego Rees made another attempt to penetrate the workings. Gas abounded despite the strong air-current drawing through the gangway, and their safety lamps glared and flickered in a manner telling of fearful danger. They persisted, however, and followed the gangway 300 feet. Waiting but a moment for the air to clear they advanced down a steep incline of nearly 60 degrees 300 feet further, when gas became so plentiful that they again paused. Finally advancing 500 feet through the main gangway they came to a large chamber, which proved a chamber of horrors.

By the faint glow of their lamps the two men discovered on every side corpses blackened, burned and mangled. The mine inspector counted the bodies—19 in all. Here lay a man with his head missing, there a boy stripped of every shred of clothing and covered with wounds. Another lay near by with one arm and one foot blown off. Dead bodies of mules lay crushed to a jelly by mine cars, which were scattered about in splinters. The two men soon hurried back to open air and summoned help. Stretchers and sheets were brought, ropes provided and a rude sled built to draw the corpses up a steep incline. Soon the work of removing the dead bodies was under way and terrible scenes were witnessed as they were brought to the surface.

The first body was that of a Hungarian. It was taken to a boarding-house. His fellow countrymen refused to receive it, but it was taken in in spite of their protests. At 5 p.m. it lay there yet uncared for, an unsightly object. The company directed that the bodies be taken to an undertaking establishment and made as presentable as possible. They were removed later to their houses and the company will see to their proper burial. This afternoon thousands of persons flocked to the scene of the disaster.

No pen can describe the blood curdling scenes at the mines, the morgue, and at the undertakers'. Many of the bodies had no heads, others were entirely nude, and most were mangled and disfigured. Those in charge of removing bodies from the mine found difficulty in identifying many of the victims. Every working is filled with explosive gases and deadly black damp. At 6 o'clock this morning another party attempted to enter the slope and proceeded 300 feet, when they were driven back.

The three men rescued last night separated from the others and advised them to follow but they refused. They then walked along the gangway on their way out by the abandoned opening through which the rescuing party entered. When about 250 feet from the surface Allen's naked lamp set fire to the gas and the explosion occurred. The others were waiting 500 feet still further in the mine for the rescuing party to enter by the slope and dig away the debris of the wall. It is presumed they were overcome by the afterdamp of the explosion and rendered unconscious. They did not know of the opening for which the three men were making and waited in vain for the rescuers from the other side.

The number of men still in the mine is uncertain, as Thursday was a church holiday and most of the miners were idle, no record being kept of those who were at work. The families of the dead miners are in extreme poverty. The company will look after their wants. The cave is believed to be due to the excessive amount of coal removed, not sufficient being left to carry the superincumbent rock. The roof was specially dangerous.

Frequent comment is made on the fact that the explosion which followed the cave in, like many others of recent occurrence was due to the carelessness of a fire-boss. Only a week ago two fire-bosses were convicted of criminal carelessness and fined $50 each and another is now awaiting trial, while several others have lost their lives along with several fellow-workmen.

Among the thrilling experiences of the disaster was that of James Sullivan. Sullivan was standing on the gangway beside his little door-tender, a Polish boy named Jos Bobrouki. A short distance behind was Michael Henry, a miner. When the shock came it almost lifted Sullivan off his feet. With rare presence of mind, however, he grabbed the door-tender in his arms and ran for his life. After he had gone a short distance he heard a crash, and looking back saw Henry. It is supposed Henry was caught by the falling roof and buried alive.

At 8 o'clock this evening all operations at the mines were abandoned. There are yet six men in the fatal chamber. They are Michael and John Scalley, brothers; Robert Richardson, Michael Henry, Richard Jones and Joshua Williams. To-morrow morning operations will be resumed and the work of rescue pushed until the remaining bodies are recovered. Six mules were taken out alive this afternoon. The bodies of five Polanders were buried this afternoon.

Three Men Killed by this Cave-in.

SCRANTON, Pa., May 16.—At Oliphant to day five Italian laborers while shoveling culm were buried by a falling bank of culm. Two of the men were taken out alive but badly hurt. The other three were killed. Names unknown.

The Doran & Wright Bucket Shop

ALBANY, May 16.—A certificate has been filed with the Secretary of State extending the original five years' existence of the "Doran & Wright Company" for five years from May 25 next. The certificate is signed by S. Gregor Doran, Arthur H. Doran, Edgerton R. Williams, Albert J. Stoddard and Edward D. Weldon, who own over two-thirds of the capital stock.

Eavesdropper Choate's Costly Escapade.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Dilworth Choate, the reporter who achieved notoriety in connection with the Flack divorce case, pleaded guilty to-day to contempt of court. Judge Barrett fined him $10, which he paid. Choate's escapade cost him 41 days in jail and $200 cash.

AMBITIOUS CITY NOTES.

A Protest Against Type-setting Machines—Increase in Bread Prices.

HAMILTON, May 16.—The Hamilton Typographical Union at their meeting last night passed a resolution protesting against the proposed purchase of type-writing machines for the Government Bureau and appointed a committee to draft a memorial to be presented to Sir John Macdonald explaining their grievances.

Mrs. Morton, who was so terribly burnt by the explosion of a lamp in her house on Wednesday evening, died in the city hospital to-day as the result of her injuries. She never recovered consciousness after being taken to that institution.

The master bakers of the city have decided to increase the price of bread from 11 cents to 12 cents per four pound loaf, the increase to go in force on Monday next. The raise is caused by increase in the price of flour.

The 13th Battalion band of this city and the Queen's Own band of Toronto gave a joint concert in the drill hall to-night before a large and appreciative audience, and the playing of the bands individually and jointly received loud applause.

Mr. William Carey of the firm of Southam & Carey, proprietors of The Spectator, died at his residence about 8 o'clock this evening.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

THE KAISER SAYS HE IS A MAN OF ROCK AND IRON.

Miss Ward's Approaching Nuptials—The Family History of Her Prince—Henry M Stanley to Wed Miss Tennant—German Haters Visit Bismarck.

BERLIN, May 16.—A banquet was tendered to the Emperor at Koenigsburg to-day by the provincial deputies. The Emperor afterwards made a speech in which he said whoever attempted to attack the security of the country would find him a man of rock and iron who had an army at his back and could enforce peace.

German-Haters Visit Bismarck.

BERLIN, May 16.—The Tageblatt calls attention to the frequent visits to Friedrichsruhe made by foreign writers who are haters of Germany.

Stanley Meets His Fate.

LONDON, May 16.—It is said a marriage has been arranged between Henry M. Stanley and Miss Dorothy Tennant, who is young, artistic and much admired. Miss Tennant lives in Richmond-terrace, Whitehall. She is a daughter of the late Charles Tennant and has become well known through her clever pictures in the Academy and other galleries. The marriage will probably take place early in June.

The Telegraph Conference.

PARIS, May 16.—The international telegraph conference opened here to-day. One hundred and seventeen delegates are present. M. Roche, Minister of Commerce, made the address of welcome. He reviewed the developments in telegraphy and telephony, and predicted that the deliberations of the conference would result in further improvements and would serve to draw closer and tighten the bonds of peace between nations.

Miss Ward and Her Prince.

PARIS, May 16.—Miss Clara Ward will be married to Prince Chimay on Tuesday at the Nunciature. The witnesses for the bride will be Minister Reid and the British Ambassador. The Belgian Minister and the Duc Fezensac will have the same office for the bridegroom. Miss Ward was born in Detroit, but now resides in Toronto, with her mother, who is married to a barrister named Cameron.

Mrs. Crawford writes in London Truth about the bridegroom's family as follows: The De Caimays' family name is Riquet (a contraction of Riquetti). They are of Belgian new nobility, being of the same stock as the Mirabeaus, who could not obtain admission to the Court of Versailles in the last century because their titles of Marquis and Comte were of recent date. Mme. Tallien, the daughter of Cabarrus, a Bordeaux banker, was a Princess de Chimay at the beginning of this century, she having divorced her revolutionary first husband. The actual head of the family was married to a daughter of Pelleprat, who had a tobacco monopoly under the First Empire, and of Francois Leroy, his wife. No daughter of a Prince de Chimay could enter as canoness any of those old German orders for women such as that of Remirmont or the Bohemian, one of which Queen Christina was superior, a condition of entrance being "pure" blood on both sides for sixteen generations.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The St. George Accident Case Advanced Another Stage.

TORONTO, May 17.—Before Mr. Justice Rose yesterday afternoon at Osgoode Hall the now famous St. George case was advanced another stage, when the G.T.R. renewed their motion for a non-suit. D'Alton McCarthy, Q.C., John Bell, Q.C., A. B. Aylsworth and Wallace Nesbitt appeared for the G.T. and G. T. Blackstock, Walter Read and Dugal McMurchy for the plaintiffs. Mr. McCarthy opened the argument in favor of a non-suit and Mr. Blackstock replied, after which judgment was reserved. Mr. Blackstock then moved a verdict for the plaintiffs on the findings of the jury. Among other things he contended that the one answer given by the jury as to culpable negligence was alone sufficient to require a verdict against the G.T. He had not finished when the court adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

Hon. William Proudfoot, Vice-Chancellor of Ontario, has resigned on account of increasing deafness.

BUCHANAN'S BREAK.

The ex-Toronto Printer Swallows a Dose of Laudanum.

MUSKEGON, May 16.—John Jackson, the New York murderer captured here the other day, did exactly what the officers wired to watch out for and tried to commit suicide. When left alone about half a minute he swallowed a big dose of laudanum. He was in a stupor all yesterday afternoon and refused to eat anything in the evening. He was terribly disappointed when he learned he was not to die. He says he will plead guilty to the charge of manslaughter as soon as arraigned.

WHO MAY VOTE?

The following notice to the persons entitled to vote at the coming provincial elections on June 5th. The conditions to be answered are:—

(1) Must be on voters' list.

(2) Must be British subject and 21 years old.

(3) Must have resided in Ontario for nine months preceding time fixed by statute for beginning to make assessment roll on which list is based, viz., 15th Feb., 1889, unless altered by by-law; see R. S. O. 193, sec. 149, or twelve months preceding time up to which complaint may be made to County Judge under Voters' List Act, viz., 30 days after list posted by clerk; see Ontario stat., 1889, cap. 3 sec. 13. Get certificate at once from Municipal Clerk when posted.

(4) Must have been bona fide resident of and domiciled in municipality at the time fixed as aforesaid, viz., for commencing assessment roll or for making complaints against voters' list.

(5) Must, on polling day, be a resident of and domiciled in riding, and must have resided in riding continuously since the time fixed as aforesaid, viz., for commencing assessment roll, or for making complaints against voters' list, as the case may be.

MR. E. B. STONE in the evening Review of Thursday, publishes a letter denying that the failure of the Mowat Government to recognize his pre-eminent fitness for the police magistracy of Peterborough county under the Scott Act, was the cause of his adopting the Equal Rights platform, and he says he was induced to apply for the position by Mr. Stratton. The latter statement is entirely untrue, for Mr. Stone came to Mr. Stratton's office, to consult him respecting his application for the position which he subsequently made. He was told that he (Mr. Stratton) had no objection to Mr. Stone's application for the position, if he could secure the recommendation of the leading friends and supporters of the government in the county. This he could not obtain and of course he was not appointed and Mr. Elmison, who was recommended to the government by Mr. Stratton and the leading Liberals of the county was given the position. Those who know Mr. Stone's natural modesty know also what influence would be exercised upon his application for a position, by the fact that another gentleman was an applicant, who by virtue of thirty years residence in the county as against Mr. Stone's two or three years had a fair claim to the position. At all events, Mr. Stone applied for the position; he did not receive it; he is now in opposition to the government. Two and two make four. Personalities have been avoided in this campaign so far as possible. If Mr. Stone thinks the people of West Peterborough are sufficiently interested in his personal affairs, to overthrow the Mowat government on that score, he may continue to pursue his little fad.

THE Review had a little fit of jubilation last evening because it thought it caught Hon. Mr. Ross tripping in his Opera House speech, and accuses that gentleman of "trying to mislead". It is the Review that tries to mislead. Hon. Mr. Ross stated that the Separate Schools in the County of Peterborough receive $42, which is the fact. Did the Review examine the report of the Minister of Education, and not notice that the report of grants to schools is divided into two parts, one for grants to county schools, including villages, and one to schools in towns and cities? Hon. Mr. Ross referred to the grant in the county, not including the town. In stating a simple fact, Mr. Ross did not try to mislead as badly as the Review did, in putting words into Mr. Ross' mouth and then denouncing him for uttering the alleged statements.

Mr. Mowat and Labor.

How He has Befriended the Workingmen

The address presented to Mr. Mowat by the Knights of Labor of Woodstock is an admirable summary of the Premier's long and faithful work for the toilers of Ontario, while it is broad and generous spirit, its freedom from mere class narrowness and prejudice, does honor to the workers of Woodstock, composed alike of Conservatives and Liberals. The address says:—

"While not claiming that we have all been heretofore your party friends, we cordially unite in acknowledging your many services to the cause of labor and for the amelioration of the conditions of the workingmen.

"Under your auspices the franchise has been gradually extended, as public opinion demanded, until now we shall for the first time enjoy the full benefit of manhood suffrage. This act, we believe, gives the workingmen a larger voice in the government of the Province, and will also enfranchise a large body of intelligent young men who have hitherto been permitted to exercise no effective influence in public affairs.

"To your Government we are also indebted for the Ballot Act, which has always been considered an important boon by all classes of employes.

"The legislation passed under your Premiership, which specially affects the interests of workingmen, includes: A Mechanic's Lien Law, with numerous important amendments, all of which have given increased security for the payment of working men's wages; the Employers' Liability Act, which in certain cases secures damages for employes who may be injured by accident in factories and by railways; the Factories Act, which makes valuable provisions with reference to the age and hours of employment of children, young girls and women, and also for the careful inspection and proper sanitary condition of factories; the Railway Accident Act, the object of which is to make provision for the greater safety of railway employees and the public, and which compels Railway Companies to make certain improvements on their bridges, tracks and freight cars, and also provides compensation in certain cases for accidents to their employees. The Work and Wages Act and the Co-operative Associations Act are both calculated to benefit alike the employers and employed by facilitating agreements between them for sharing the profits of the business in which they may be engaged and by more easily adjusting disputes which may arise between master and workmen. The Mining Operators Act and the amendments to the General Mining Act, both passed last session, have our warm approval, being calculated to protect miners and to facilitate the development of our vast mineral wealth. The Franchise and Representation Act of 85 and and its amendments of 86 also confer an important right on wage earners by allowing them two hours' time on day of polling in which to cast their votes.

"We congratulate you, sir, on having had so large a share in placing this volume of important legislation upon the statute books for the special benefit of the working classes of our Province; and that while thus recognizing the interests of the working men, you have not been neglectful of other interests and classes in the community. We believe that in a young country, such as this is, the interests of all classes should be identical, and we strongly deprecate all agitation or legislation that would excite hostility or ill-feeling between the varied elements of our people. Harmony between all classes, creeds and nationalities is absolutely essential to the building up and permanency of a great Canadian nationality.

"We also desire to acknowledge the judicious expenditure of the public revenues of the Province by your Government, by liberal aid to railways, by aiding and encouraging dairy and agricultural pursuits, in fostering and encouraging education in all its varied branches, the erection and maintenance of public institutions for the care and relief of the afflicted, the encouragement given to the settlers in the newly-opened sections of our Province, by your providing them with work on the colonization roads, and in this way enlarging the boundaries of our settlement, while giving material assistance to those who need it."

The address concludes with the hope that Mr. Mowat "may long be spared to continue his good service to this Province, and by his example, in private as in public life, to inspire our young men to a nobler patriotism and with a higher ideal of public service."

And there is the evidence of a deep sincerity, gratitude, and a touch of eloquence in the Premier's reply. He said:—"I am deeply grateful for this address. I have heard it read with great interest. I do not know that I ever had an address presented which gave me greater satisfaction. It shows that the Knights of Labor have been giving close attention to public affairs, that they have been reading and thinking. I appreciate it all the more that it is not only an address from the Reformers, but the whole body, including those who have not belonged to the Reform party. (Hear, hear.) I am glad that we have had the opportunity of rendering these services so that part of the population to whom the address specially refers. I have always taken a special interest in that part of our population. They have a smaller proportion of the comforts and advantages of life than the rest of the community—that is one reason I have for taking a special interest in them. (Applause.) Then there is our common manhood, which binds us all together. In a Christian country one cannot help remembering that the great Saviour of the world, when He came into the world, lived and worked with mechanics, with humble toilers, and it was for the poor as well as the rich that He laid down His life. In a right state of society there ought to be no antagonism between the various classes of which the community is composed. I am glad to believe that there is little antagonism between the different classes in this glorious Province, but if there is antagonism my sympathy and that of my colleagues is with the masses rather than the classes. I thank you for this address—it has been a delight to me to receive it, and I can assure you it will serve to give increased encouragement to our efforts in the direction of improving the condition of this and all other sections of our community." (Loud applause.)

Such an address as the above, and from such a source, more almost than could any other, shows how truly Mr. Mowat, during his marvellously long career of office, has appreciated the legislative requirements of the all-important class from whose representatives it came to him. By far the greater portion of Mr. Mowat's life—a life that has now reached three score years and ten has been spent in part or wholly in the service of of his country. No other man in Ontario politics has his great experience of public questions, and few men any where have sympathies as keen and so quick, combined with an ability to wisely guide them and effectually embody them in legislative enactments. His reply to those who presented him with the above address showed how keenly alive the Premier is to the difficulties and hardships of the class represented by the Knights of Labor, and this is a guarantee—were such required—that in the future, as in the past, he will carefully and wisely legislate for the removal of those difficulties and the relief of those hardships so far as the same lies within his power as Attorney-General and Premier of Ontario. That his efforts are recognized and appreciated so completely by the class on whose behalf he has been so active, is a deserved compliment and a happy omen of future opportunities to continue its usefulness to them and to Ontario as a whole.

MONDAY IS WASH DAY

In nearly all households among civilized nations, and it's to the civilized housekeeper we offer a suggestion. The heathens get along without much washing of clothes; semi-barbarians may extract some benefit from the prolonged muscular exertions of using a washboard; but the strength of the mothers, wives and sisters of the town of Peterborough is too precious to be wasted in this unnecessary labour.

J. Graham & Co. are prepared to give figures for family washing that will meet the purse of the most saving housekeeper—in fact be cheaper and better finished than it can be effected at home. By leaving an order at the office of the firm, at 406 AYLMER ST., the washing will be called for and returned when finished, ☞ A Trial is Solicited.

Our Story.

THE DESERTER.

By the Author of Dunraven Ranch, The Colonel's Daughter, Marion's Faith, etc.

They went down to the creek one one morning early in April. There had been a sudden thaw of the snows up the gorges of the Rockies, and the stream had overleaped its banks, spread over the low lands and flooded some broad depressions in the prairie. Then, capricious as a woman's moods, the wind whistled around from the north one night and bound the lakelets in a band of ice. The skating was gorgeous, and all the pretty ankles on the post were rejoicing in the opportunity before the setting of another sun. Coming homeward at luncheon time Mrs. Rayner, Mrs. Buxton, Miss Travers and one or two others, escorted by a squad of bachelors, strolled somewhat slowly along Prairie avenue towards the gate. It so happened that the married ladies were foremost in the little party, when who should meet them but Mr. Hayne, coming from the east gate! Mrs. Rayner and Mrs. Buxton, though passing him almost elbow to elbow, looked straight ahead or otherwise avoided his eye. He raised his forage cap in general acknowledgment of the presence of ladies with the officers, but glanced coldly from one to the other until his blue eyes lighted on Miss Travers.

No woman in that group could fail to note the leap of sunshine and gladness to his face, the instant flush that rose to his cheek. Miss Travers herself saw it quickly, as did the maiden walking just behind her, and her heart bounded at the sight. She bowed as their eyes met, spoke his name in low tone, and strove to hide her face from Mr. Blake, who turned completely around and stole a sudden glance at her. She could no more account for than she could control it, but her face was burning. Mrs. Rayner, too, looked around and stared at her, but this she met firmly, her dark eyes never quailing before the angry glare in her sister's. Blake was beginning to like Hayne and to dislike Mrs. Rayner, and he always did like mischief.

"You owe me a grudge, Miss Travers, if you did but know it," he said, so that all could hear.

"You, Mr. Blake! How can that be possible?"

"I spoiled a serenade for you a few nights ago. I was officer of the day, and caught sight of a man gazing up at your window after midnight. I felt sure he was going to sing; so like a good fellow, I ran over to play an accompaniment, and then he wouldn't sing after all."

She was white now. Her eyes were gazing almost imploringly at him. Something warned him to hold his peace, and he broke off short. "Was it! Oh do tell us, Mr. Blake!" were the exclamations. Mrs. Rayner being most impetuous in her demand. Again Blake caught the appeal in Miss Travers' eyes.

"That is what I want to know," he responded, mendaciously. When I woke up next morning, the whole thing was a dream, and I couldn't fix the fellow at all."

There was a chorus of disappointment and indignancy. The idea of spoiling such a gem of a sensation!" But Blake took it all complacently until he got home. Then it began to worry him.

Was it possible that she knew he was there?

That night there was a disturbance in the garrison. Just after 10 o'clock, and while the sentries were calling off the hour, a woman's shrieks and cries were heard over behind the quarters of Company B and close to the cottage occupied by Lieut. Hayne. The officers of the guard ran to the spot with several men, and found Private Clancy struggling and swearing in the grasp of two or three soldiers, while Mrs. Clancy was imploring them not to let him go—he was wild like again; it was drink; he had the horors, and was fairly her while she was trying to get him home. And Clancy's appearance bore out her words. He was wild and drunken, but he swore he meant no harm; he struggled hard for freedom; he vowed he only wanted to see the lieutenant at his quarters. Mr. Hayne, [illegible] the scene and was striving to [illegible] woman, who only screamed and cried the louder. At the quiet order of soldiers released Clancy and the latter stood patient and subordinate.

"Did you want to see me, Clancy?" asked Mr. Hayne.

"Askin' yer pardon, sir, I did," began the man, unsteadily, and evidently struggling with the fumes of the liquor he had been drinking; but before he could speak again, Mrs. Clancy's shrieks rang out on the still air.

"Oh, for the love of God, howld him, some o' ye's! He'll kill him! He's mad, I say! Shure 'tis I that know him best. Oh, blessid Virgin, save us! Don't let him loose, Mister Foster!" she screamed to the officer of the guard, who at that moment appeared on the full run.

"What's the trouble?" he asked, breathlessly.

Clancy seems to have been drinking, and wants to talk with me about something Mr. Foster," said Hayne, quietly.

"He belongs to my company and I will be responsible that he goes home. It is really Mrs. Clancy that is making all the trouble."

"Oh, for the love of God, hear him, now, whin the man was tearin' the hair o' me this minute! Oh, howld him, men. Shure 'tis Capt. Rayner wud niver let him go."

"What's the matter, Mrs. Clancy?" spoke a quick, stern voice, and Rayner, with face white as a sheet, suddenly stood in their midst.

"Oh, God be praised, it's here ye are, captin! Shure it's Clancy, sir, dhrunk, sir, and runnin' round the garrison, and batin' me, sir."

"Take him to the guard house, Mr. Foster," was the stern, sudden order.

"Not a word, Clancy," as the man strove to speak. "Off with him, and if he gives you any trouble, send for me."

And as the poor fellow was led away, silence fell upon the group. Mrs. Clancy began a wail of mingled relief and misery, which the captain ordered her to cease and go home. More men came hurrying to the spot, and presently the officer of the day. "It is all right now," said Rayner to the latter. "One of my men—Clancy—was out here drunk and raising a row. I have sent him to the guard house. Go back to your quarters men. Come, captain, will you walk over home with me?"

"Was Mr. Hayne here when the row occurred?" asked the cavalryman, looking as though he wanted to hear something from the young officer who stood a silent witness.

"I don't know," replied Rayner. It makes no difference, captain. It is not a case of witnesses. I shan't prefer charges against the man. Come!" And he drew him hastily away.

Hayne stood watching them as they disappeared beyond the glimmer of his lamp. Then a hand was placed on the arm:

"Did you notice Capt. Rayner's face—his lips? He was ashen as death."

"Come in here with me," was the reply; and, turning, Hayne led the post surgeon into the house.

Rushing on the Rocks.

We live fast, we eat fast, we talk fast, we even play fast. What is the result? Like a ship driven rapidly before the gale, all control gone, we rush on the rocks. Soon there is a shipwreck. We struggle, we moan, we gasp, we sink into the arms of death.

When a ship is nearing the rocks, what can be done? When brain and nerves are well nigh wrecked, what can be done? Alas, many a time the dreadful situation is not realized until too late, and nothing can be done but struggle desperately with little hope of being saved.

The time to ask what can be done is when the cloud of the gathering nerve storm are first noticed. If no attention is paid to the first nervous symptoms, there will be serious trouble. The stomach will grow weak, and food will not benefit; sleep will be poor, and the person feel more tired the next morning than upon going to bed. There will be dizziness, headache and languid feeling. Memory will become poor, the brain will lose its power of application, and the trembling hands, heavy eyes, hesitating walk, and feeble muscles show how close the unhappy victim is to the rocks of nervous prostration.

An old sailor whose nerve strength was restored by Paine's Celery Compound, called that medicine "the anchor of health." Use this pure remedy at the first warnings of nervous diseases. It will give you sweet and restful sleep, good appetite and digestion, strong nerves and a clear mind. There is nothing like it. It combines the medicinal virtues of our common herbs with the brain invigorating power of rare South American plants.

Remember if you get tired easily, or feel old, here is a tonic that will make you as fresh and strong as ever and give you the vigorous feeling of youth.

About Hair.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—I have as you know, for some time, advertised in Canada and the States a preparation for the hair called "Dr. Dorenwend's Hair Magic." I have received some thousands of flattering testimonials from those who have used it as to its merits, as a restorative of gray or faded hair, also as a promoter of the growth and a certain cure for Dandruff.

A great many of my correspondents ask the questions—Why is my hair turning grey so early? Why is my hair falling out? As it is impossible for me to answer every one, I take the liberty of encroaching on your valuable space to make a general reply. A great many persons do not seem to be aware that excessive washing and rubbing is injurious to the growth of the hair; such is the case however, constant washing and rubbing the scalp and hair causes over irritation and renders the oily substance which gives strength to the hair. Undue heat caused by the wearing of heavy headgear is also injurious. Anything that will tend to dry up the sap or life of the hair will cause dandruff falling out of the hair, gray or faded hair and finally baldness. Of course there are other causes as diseases hereditary tendencies, etc. but the first mentioned are the main and most common. Dr. Dorenwend, an eminent German physician has given to the world after years of toil and experiment his now famous "Hair Magic." The object of this preparation is to assist nature in the production of this oily substance absolutely necessary to the growth of the hair. It is now sold by all reliable druggists at $1 per bottle or 6 bottles for $5, or will be sent on receipt of price to any address. See that each wrapper bears the seal and signature of the manufacturer.

THE OLD RELIABLE.

The Canada Life

Gives further Evidence of its Remarkable Progress as will be seen from the following Extract taken from the "Shareholder."

When the directors announced at the last annual meeting of the shareholders of the above company, held on the 3rd September last, that the new business for the twelve months ending 30th April, 1889, had reached the high figure of $5,040,188, astonishment and satisfaction at the result were the prevailing features. At that meeting it was decided to change the company's financial year in order to make it fall within the period of the calender year, the result of which would be to reduce the ensuing one in reality to eight months, that is from the first of May to the 31st December, 1889. Owing to this change it was natural to expect that the business of the company for the year, being compressed into eight months, would curtail it considerably, and such was the result looked for. We are pleased to learn, however, that on the closing of the lists for the period referred to, the company had booked new business to the extent of four millions two hundred thousand dollars, or within $840,188 of the amount secured for the preceding twelve months. Taking the average business at $525,000 per month, this would give a total of $6,300,000 for twelve months. Such an exhibition of still increasing confidence in one of our Canadian institutions is most gratifying and must prove highly encouraging. We congratulate the Canada Life Company upon this most convincing proof of its high standing with the community generally. We hope it will go on rolling up its new business at even a greater rate and that its next annual statement at the end of the current year will show the same steady increase that it has done of late years under its present excellent management. dw

Polling Day, June 5th.

THE Empire becomes frantic over what it considers an infringement of the patent of the Boodle Brigade. Because Mr. Preston, secretary of the Ontario Reform Association, asked a Liberal for a balance of $66 66 subscription to the funds of the Association, the Empire brushes up its multiplication table and figures out an immense bribery fund. The Empire is foot-hardy, as well as dishonest, the Mowat government has no boodle fund; but the Reform Association has a fund to meet the expenses of the publication of campaign literature and other incidental, but perfectly legitimate expenses of the provincial contest. It has no other means of securing funds than voluntary subscriptions. Such a fund is necessary and proper, and no one but a blatant, and Mowat manmaniac would raise the howl the Empire has over so little a matter. But the insignificance of the sum is what excites the Empire ire. It doubtless would have respected and applauded Mr. Preston if he had written the historic words—"Send me another $10 000." But a paltry $66 66, why that's dog-and-cat-petit larceny, compared to bank robbery to the tune of five or six figures. To show the Empire the propriety of such a fund, it may be stated that the Executive Committee of the Equal Rights Association issued a call for $5,000. Why doesn't the Empire do so that this is the success of a big bribery fund? Is it because $5 000 (5 new $1000 dollar bills) sounds more respectable, as being a good deal nearer "another $10,000." The fund of the Equal Rights Association is perfectly legitimate, and for legitimate purposes, as is the fund of the Reform Association. And the Empire knows it. But it would be honest to admit it, and the Empire has an insurmountable prejudice against honesty in political matters, as witness the bogus dispatches it publishes to make capital against the Mowat government.

SOME of Mr. McWilliams organs amused themselves by extracting from the name of his supporters, the vindictive but often indulged-and hopeless wail "Mowat must go," and the lineal descendant of the discarded catch cry, "His hour has come." In reprisal, the Ottawa Free Press amuses itself by grinding from the names of seventeen supporters of Mowat, the self-evident fact that appears below:

Keene

Mr. Blezard and Hon. Chas. Drury addressed the electors at Keene Friday evening, Mr. Jas Drummond was chairman. Mr. Stone appeared for Mr. Kidd. Mr. Blezard spoke for over an hour, dealing with the public question of the day in such a manner as to surprise his old neighbors. His straightforward and honest statements captured the meeting.

Mr. Stone's address was a religious appeal, and only disgusted the right thinking men. Hon. Chas. Drury followed, in a masterly address, naming the record of the Government and explaining the Separate School legislation to the satisfaction of every honest man. He paid a high tribute to Mr. Blezard and stated that very few members was so highly respected, that any riding should be proud of having such an honest and capable representative.

The meeting was almost unanimous for Mr. Blezard and showed that the electors of Otonabee are fine to and admire their old and tried member. The electors of Otonabee are too late sent to be carried away by the rascally whoop-ery, and will show on the 5th of June that they admire an honest man.

Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Stone.

After a week's labor Mr. Stone has succeeded in getting his brother-in-law Dr. Goldsmith to give him a coat of whitewash and a very thin coat at that.

The Dr. says that Mr. Stone was not his solicitor; my reply to that is that the Dr. told me Mr. Stone was his solicitor, and asked if I had any objection to him drawing the agreement between us; besides I can prove by documentary evidence that Mr. Stone was his solicitor, but he may have had good reason for discarding him. The doctor's letter is like a witness giving evidence in court to prove a man innocent when all he could say was that he was not there at the time.

I charge Mr. Stone and Mr Kidd with uttering deliberate falsehoods on the public platform. With regard to Mr. Kidd I offered to pay the expenses for himself and the other four members of the Dummer council, to Toronto to examine the original documents and if they did not prove the statements made by him to be false I would give $100 to any charitable institution in the county that he named.

With regard to Mr. Stone I offered to submit all the evidence to Mr. John Burnham for his decision and in doing so no man can accuse me of wanting any advantage, for I have always been a strong opponent of Mr. Burnham's and could not expect any favour from him. The statements made by me, if not true, are libellous, and Mr. Stone being a lawyer can have law at first cost. Let him bring an action.

J. B. McWILLIAMS.

Middleton's School House.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, on Friday night, addressed a very large meeting at Middleton's school house, 2nd line Smith. The building was crowded to the doors. Mr. James Middleton occupied the chair, and at the close of the meeting referred to the untrue statements that were being circulated in regard to his position in the present campaign. He wished it distinctly understood that he was a warm supporter of Mr. Stratton, and if Smith town did her duty, on June 5th, she would roll up a large majority for him. Mr. Stratton he asserted, had worked faithfully and successfully for the best interests of the riding and deserved the hearty support of all classes, which he was sure he would receive. Mr. G. M. Roger opened the meeting by referring to the questions engaging public attention in the present campaign. He exposed the tactics employed for pulling the wool over the eyes of Liberals by the circulation of untruthful statements. Mr. Robert Weir and Mr. Merrick appeared on behalf of Mr. Carnegie. Mr. Stratton took up the record of the government and showed that no charges of a very serious nature could be brought home to it. The fallacy and unfairness of the cries now being raised against the government were fully exposed. These cries had no foundation in the record of the government and were chiefly used by politicians who had despaired of the use of fair means for gaining their ends. The meeting was strongly in favour of Mr. Stratton, and closed near midnight with the usual cheers. It may be mentioned that Mr. Carnegie's meeting at the Fourth Line the same evening was simply attended, while Mr. Stratton's meeting of the previous night, at the same place, was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in the vicinity. Mr. Carnegie had to content himself with singing his political funeral knell to very few electors and many empty benches.

In Memory of an Old Oddfellow.

Handsome Donation to the Charitable Funds of Otonabee Lodge.

The following is a copy of a letter forwarded to day to the Secretary of Otonabee Lodge. It explains itself:—

PETERBOROUGH, May 16 h, 1890.

Bro. W. H. Meredith Esq., Secretary of Otonabee Lodge No. 13, I.O.O.F., Peterborough:

DEAR SIR AND BRO.—Accompanying this note, you will find my cheque for the sum of $200 00, TO BE APPLIED TO THE CHARITABLE FUNDS OF OTONABEE LODGE. The funds in presenting this cheque were forwarded to me by Miss Eliza M. Rowe, of St. John's N.B., in memory of the late Robert Rowe, her father, and one of the earliest members of Otonabee Lodge, and who for many years held the office of Treasurer of your Lodge.

Miss Rowe expresses her desire that this money should be devoted to the purpose above mentioned, and it is no doubt an expression on her part of her knowledge, from her father, of his warm attachment to, and his deep interest in both the welfare of Otonabee Lodge and of those who may become the objects of its benefactions.

These circumstances give a practical demonstration of the strength and enduring nature of the tie that binds together the brethren of the Order; a tie which it seems in this case even death has not snundered.

It gives me the greatest pleasure to be used as the medium of transmitting to you the substantial expression of Miss Rowe's thoughtful generosity.

I have the honor to be,
Fraternally yours,
J. R. STRATTON.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The General Secretary received with his mail to day anonymous letter containing this precious message from "God's word"—"The silver is mine and the gold and the cattle on a thousand hills are His," with $5 00 enclosed. Last evening another interested unknown friend left $5 00 at the office. We do rejoice and give praise unto one God for these marks of His approval. We know He will bless these kind friends, much more than we can thank them.

We are resting on this precious promise—"My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." We do thank Him for He will not allow us to be in debt, praise His Holy name. Christians pray that the good work may continue.

ROYAL

Gorton's Minstrels.

Gorton's famous New Orleans Minstrels, the oldest organization of its kind in America, and one with twenty-three years of unblemished reputation for refinement, will appear at Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening, May 23rd. This company was originally organized at New Orleans, La., in 1867, and is credited with being one of the most complete and best equipped of its kind in existence. The public are assured that while the performance will be laughable, and at times ridiculous, it will not border on offensive coarseness, and any lady can attend without the least fear. 1d

BELL-RINGERS

A Day at Norwood.

Norwood celebrates the Queen's Birthday on Monday, May 26th, and it is probable large numbers of Oddfellows and others will go down to the village from Peterborough. A team leaves here for Norwood at 10 a.m. on Monday, the 26th, and returning leaves Norwood at 11 p.m. The attractions are the Oddfellows demonstration, laying the corner stone of the new Methodist church, the Roman Catholic picnic, a football tournament, and a grand concert in the evening under the auspices of Norwood Lodge of Oddfellows.

MAY 22nd.

The "Y" Parlor Social.

The young ladies of the "Y" held a successful parlor social at the residence of Mr. W. J. Mason last night. There was a large attendance and the proceeds will amount to a nice little sum for the "Y." The hostess provided games and other amusements for the young people and a pleasant evening was spent. No regular programme was presented, but a number of those present sang songs and Miss L. Sanderson gave a couple of recitations. There was also an abundance of refreshments provided, and altogether the social was a gratifying success.

First Match of the League.

The rifle team of the 57th Battalion which has entered the new Rifle League, shot at the ranges yesterday. The League comprises some fifty-nine regiments in the Dominion, each paying a $10 entrance fee. A series of seven matches are held, for which prizes are given by the League. The government supplies the ammunition. All the teams entered shot Friday afternoon, and the scores will be sent in to Montreal. The Peterborough men did well considering the bothersome fish-tail wind which was blowing. Out of a possible 1050 points they scored 688, a fairly good average. Following are the individual scores:—W. H. Hill, 69; R. M. Dennistoun, 69; W. A. Mason, 81; D. Cameron, 76; G. Fitzgerald, 75; A. Wade, 61; F. Hall, 58; J. B. Pentland, 67; C. Curtis, 65; W. A. Bell, 67.

At the Opera House.

The audience at the Opera House last night was twice the size of the preceding one—sure evidence that the Hyers company succeeded in pleasing the public the night before. And indeed they do give a really good variety performance of the rough-and-tumble sort, but in which there is "heaps of fun." Last night the first part was a comedy, "Colored Aristocracy," then followed an olio comprising songs, dances and specialties, the programme concluding with a roaring farce, "Jake's Troubles." The singing, both in solo and chorus, of the troupe was excellent, as negro singing generally is. As actors they do not amount to much, but Tom Davis is such a rattling comedian, and Miss Hyers herself a dashing soubrette, that the mediocrity of the others is overlooked. Miss Hyers has a charming contralto voice. The company perform again this evening. They deserve a good house.

Turf Notes.

At a recent meeting of the National Trotting Association J. M. Allen, of Kingston, Ont., and the bay gelding F.O.P., were expelled. It appears the bay gelding was campaigned in slow classes for a short time last season under the name of Tom Allen and must suffer disgrace through the dishonest by of his then owner..... Mr. Smith of Cannington, who is now the owner of F.O.P., will no doubt take prompt steps to have the horse reinstated at once.

The Orillia Driving Park Association are out with announcements for a two days' meeting for trotters and runners on May 28th and 29th, with the following programme:—First day—Three-minute trot, $100; 2 32 trot, $150; running race, mile heats, two in three, $125. Second day—2 45 class, $150; free for all trotters and pacers, $150; running race, half-mile heats, $125; hurdle race, half-mile dash, $125. Entries close on the 22nd inst. The Orillia association is now a member of the American Trotting Association and this fact together with the liberal purses and good track will ensure success.

Mr. Ed. Brown, of Peterborough, says the Lindsay Post, was in town this week visiting friends. "Ed." is fast coming to the front as a trainer and driver of equine stock at the popular trotting gait and is also a leading shareholder in the track at the "burg." He owns the well-known chestnut pacing mare Maud B. and a promising three-year-old colt, and has also under his charge the speedy Mayflower. We believe he has had his "string" supplemented by Mr. Jos. Daly's fine two-year-old Paul Rysdyk colt and will no doubt give the bay fellow a thorough lesson in his preliminary alphabet, so to speak.

"There is no manuscript, printed book or pamphlet this spring of the year of our Lord 1890, that contains any account of this region of horrors other than this book of mine.

HENRY M. STANLEY."

A DOUBLE CALAMITY.

TOMSK SWEPT BY CONFLAGRATION AND CYCLONE.

Hundreds of Lives Lost—Three-fourths of the Buildings Destroyed—Brutality of the Garrison — Thousands Wander Homeless in the stinging Cold.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 17. Horrible scenes are reported as having occurred during the burning of Tomsk, the capital of Western Siberia. The place was visited by a conflagration and a cyclone, the result of the combined disasters being the destruction of three-quarters of the buildings, which were of wood, and the loss of hundreds of lives.

The cathedral, situated in the High Town, is in ashes. The walls in falling crushed the adjacent hospital, burying the inmates, who were subsequently roasted alive. The garrison brutally refused to render the least assistance in saving lives and property on the plea that they had enough to do in protecting the barracks and other government buildings. They also added that they had no time to assist "worthless exiles." In strong contrast to this action of the troops was that of the bishop and his assistant priests, who went about the streets succoring the wounded and blessing the dead.

Much of the suffering might have been averted had there been the slightest effort at organized relief. The storm was followed by a sudden fall in the temperature and soon the devastated city was buried beneath a mantle of snow that added stinging cold to the sufferings of the thousands of men, women and children that were without shelter.

Moltke's Speech Makes for Peace.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The Tribune's London cable from Mr. Smalley says: Count von Moltke's speech on the Army Bill on Wednesday in the Reichstag is more important than any other event on the Continent during the week. So deep is the impression which this discourse has made that it may be said it will do not less to preserve the peace of Europe than all the new legions which Germany is preparing for. Count von Moltke has dispelled once for all the delusion that the next war is likely to be a short war. The powers of Europe, he tells the world, "are armed as they have never been armed before. No one of them can be shattered in one or two campaigns so completely as to confess itself beaten and to conclude peace on hard terms or not to recover in a year or two and renew the conflict. It may be a Seven's War or may be a Seven Years' war. Woe to him who sets fire to the train."

There is more than this, perhaps even no Emperor who utters such a warning as that from the first soldier of the time, counting upon a war which is not to be his last. Count von Moltke tells the world that the best contest is to prevent war if possible and by public opinion and every other moral means to compel statesmen to keep the sword in its sheath. It will be long before the echo of these pacific phrases, with the ring of steel in them ceases to reverberate throughout Europe.

Bismarck's Talk to a French Reporter

PARIS, May 18. The Matin publishes an account of an interview had with the French journalist, Des Soux, who recently spent a few days at Friedrichsruhe and was entertained at dinner by Bismarck. The conversation was devoted principally to political reminiscences. Bismarck referred to his resignation as a first-class funeral but added that he was quite alive still. He did not understand the French law compelling retirement from public service at 60 to 65 years of age. He had been forced to retire at 70 but he was too young to do nothing. He was accustomed to politics and now felt the lack of political business. His resignation was absolutely final. He defended himself against the charge of barbarity in having caused the bombardment of Paris. He declared that Germany would never attack France or provoke France to attack her. Germany well understood that Russia would intervene to protect France if attacked, just as Germany would aid Austria if Russia attacked her. He professed high admiration for President Carnot. M de Freycinet and M Constans.

Russia Threatens the Porte.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 18.—The Porte has not yet replied to Russia's claim for the payment of the arrears of the war indemnity. M Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador, in an urgent note to the Porte demands the payment of the arrears from the 1st of June. Otherwise he adds Russia will reserve the right to take further measures.

Another Trans-Atlantic Race.

LONDON, May 18.—The Anchor Line steamer City of Rome sailed from Queenstown at 12:30 p.m. to-day for New York. The Guion steamer Alaska sailed at 1:30 p.m. and the Cunard steamer Aurania at 2 p.m. All went ahead at full steam "shrieking" they cleared Queenstown harbor. There is heavy betting on the result of the race.

A Riot at Halle.

BERLIN, May 18.—An anti-Semitic meeting was held at Halle to-day at which Deputy Sommerberg was the principal speaker. Rioting broke out between Socialists and anti-Semites and the meeting was dissolved by the police. The Socialists stormed the platform and a free fight ensued. Many arrests were made.

ROYAL SOCIETY OF CANADA.

Topics for the Annual Session at Ottawa on May 27.

OTTAWA, May 18.—The Royal Society of Canada will hold its annual session here on May 27 and following days in the railway committee room of the House of Commons. This year's meeting promises to be of unusual value to the country, judging from the program which has been prepared. Mr. Sandford Fleming, C.M.G., will devote his presidential address to the topic of the unit measure of time, which his well known knowledge of the subject is sure to render popular and interesting. In the English literature section, Dr. J. G. Bourinot, C.M.G., the clerk of the House of Commons, will deliver a series of important papers upon politics under the title of "Canadian Studies in Comparative Politics," which will be divided under the heads of Canada and England, Canada and the United States and Canada and Switzerland.

Sir Daniel Wilson, president of Toronto University, will read a paper upon the Vinland of the Northmen, in which he will review the narrative of the Sagas relative to the explorations of the Northmen on the coast of North America in the tenth century, and will argue that the site of "Vinland the Good" was a Nova Scotian locality rather than that in Rhode Island favored by Rafer in The Antiquitates Americanæ. Rev. George Patterson, D.D., has promised a paper upon "The early Portuguese explorations on the northeast coast of America and the first European attempt at colonization there," and Mr. Charles Mair of Prince Albert, the historian of the Northwest, will contribute what is sure to be a valuable paper upon "The American Bison."

But perhaps the most attractive portion of the intellectual bill of fare to be submitted to the societaires is that of the section of French literature. Such names as Benjamin Sulte, Napoleon Legendre, Louis Frechette, Hon. Felix Marchand, J. Marmette, J. M. Lemoine, Paul de Cazes, P. LeMay, Faucher de St. Maurice and the Abbes Leflamme, Cuoq, Verreau and Casgrain carry their own value and an assurance that the documents they will submit will be of the highest interest.

LIVED NEARLY A CENTURY.

Death of Mrs. Nancy Bridge Jefferies at Hamilton, Aged 96.

HAMILTON, May 17. Mrs. Nancy Bridge Jefferies, relict of Col. Jefferies, who was perhaps the oldest woman in Hamilton, died this morning. She was born in Montreal on Oct. 18, 1794, and was therefore 96 years old. Her father was a U.E. Loyalist. She was married three times. In February, 1815, she married Philman Terrill, who died in December, 1820. Her second husband was Dr. Parker, whom she married on May 13, 1824. He died on Oct. 20, 1825. In March, 1831, she married Col. Jefferies, who took part in the putting down of the rebellions of 1812 and 1837. He died in August, 1856.

Mrs. Jefferies lived in Montreal most of her life and used to take great pleasure in telling about the growth of the city. Three or four years ago she came to Hamilton and lived with her granddaughter, Mrs. J. S. Robinson, 58 Victoria-avenue north. She enjoyed good health until three or four months ago, when she was taken sick, but her illness was not considered serious until a couple of days ago. Her memory was clear, and she was very active for a woman of her age. Her two children, Dr. Terrill and Mrs. Creighton, wife of Rev. William Creighton, are both dead.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Argument in the St. George Case Finished Judgment Reserved.

TORONTO, May 16. The argument in the St. George accident case was concluded Saturday. His Worship reserved decision, to be given at an early date. It was decided to meet at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, June 18, to proceed with the assessment of damages in each case before the same jury.

Mrs. Abbie Burrell, who displays a modiste's sign at 382 College-street, was arrested Saturday night on a charge of keeping an irregular house. Three young women with a male companion each, found in compromising situations when the police called, were also arrested. All gave fictitious names.

It is claimed that Assistant Police Magistrate Baxter's appointment was illegal and that consequently all his judgments and sentences are void. Chief Justice Galt on Saturday, on application of counsel for James Lynch, sentenced to six months at hard labor for vagrancy, issued a writ of habeas corpus calling upon the authorities to show cause to-day why the conviction should not be quashed.

AMONG THE POLITICIANS.

MURDERER SMITH'S CONFESSION.

He Beat His Wife with a Bible, then with a Poker.

LONDON, Ont., May 17. In connection with Henry Smith's confession of the murder of his wife, the prisoner says that he inflicted the bruises on the woman's head by beating her with the Bible before he hit her with the poker. It is understood further that he accused his wife of improper intimacy with a soldier in the Old Country before their marriage, and this was the ground on which he was provoked into the crime.

Blais as Bishop of Germanicopolis and Coadjutor to Bishop Langevin for the diocese of Rimouski took place at 9 o'clock this morning in the quaint old Basilica. Besant's New Paper.

LONDON, May 18.—A new paper appears, "The Author," to be published monthly. It is the organ of the Incorporated Society of Authors and is edited by Mr. Besant. It is founded, says Mr. Besant, as the organ of literary men and women of all kinds, the one paper which will fully review, discuss and ventilate all questions connected with the profession of literature in all its branches. Publishing and the ways of publishers will be a prominent topic. Many other features of practical value and much interesting literary discussion and literary news are found in this first number, which is excellently edited throughout.

ALL ON BOARD LOST.

THE JESSIE BRECK CAPSIZES NEAR NINE MILE POINT.

Her Crew of Seven Find Graves in the Angry Waters—All the Victims Residents of Wolfe Island and Kingston—The Latest Particulars.

KINGSTON, May 17.—During the gale today the schooner Jessie Breck, loaded with oak timber from Toledo for Garden Island, capsized near Nine Mile Point and it is feared the crew were all lost.

The victims were:

THOMAS MACKIE, captain, Wolfe Island.
JOSEPH MACKIE, mate, Wolfe Island.
MARIA MACKIE, cook, Wolfe Island.
JOHN MACKIE, sailor, Wolfe Island.
FRANK GEORGE, sailor, Kingston.
WILLIAM MURPHY, sailor, Kingston.
R. DAVIDSON, sailor, Kingston

The first four were brothers and sister. The captain was married.

People on shore who saw the vessel capsize say that about 1½ o'clock she was first seen battling with the heavy sea. She careened time after time, but righted, until finally she went over on her side and disappeared. The steamer Hiram Calvin was at once dispatched and found the boat water-logged and drifting down the Batteau channel. Her canvas was torn into shreds, her stern knocked out and her deck load floating. Her boats had undoubtedly been torn away while trying to weather the storm. The steamer hung about Wolfe and Simcoe Islands for an hour, but could get no trace of the crew. The capsize is supposed to have occurred two miles from shore. The Jessie Breck was valued at $5000 and uninsured. Breck & Booth owned her.

Damage on Burlington Bay.

HAMILTON, May 18.—Considerable damage was caused on the bay, principally among the yachts, by the gale of Friday night. The Verve dragged her moorings from opposite Zealand's dock to near the yacht club house. Here her anchor was let go and she rode easily until this morning, when the Macassa, in turning round, ran into her, cutting her mooring and anchor lines and carrying away her bowsprit. She immediately went on the shoal, where she appears to be lying easily. The White Wings broke her mooring, but her anchor was let go before she touched the shoal, although she is lying very close to it. The little Daphne broke loose and went to pieces against Myles' dock, not a vestige of her being left above water.

FATAL EXPLOSION OF FIRE DAMP.

Two Men Killed at the Empire Colliery Near Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, May 18.—An explosion of fire damp occurred about 7¼ last evening at the Empire colliery of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company, near this city. William Thomas and his helper, Robert Craig, were in that portion of the colliery doing their work, and it is supposed they fired the gas. Both were killed and their bodies have not been recovered.

The Colliery Disaster.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 18.—The remains of four more victims of the Ashley colliery disaster were recovered yesterday: Robert Pritchard, Michael Scully and Michael Henry, one body was unrecognizable. There are only two more bodies in the mine.

Heliographing Extraordinary.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., May 18.—The greatest achievement made yet in heliographing was accomplished during practice in the department of Arizona yesterday by Lieut. Wittenmeyer, who signalled a message by a single flash 125 miles from Mt. Reno, near Ft. McDowall to Mt. Graham, near Ft. Grant, where it was received by Capt. Murray. The latter by turning his instrument flashed the message to Ft. Huachuca, a distance of 90 miles, making a total distance of 215 miles with a single interviewing station. The longest distance heretofore with a single flash is said to be about 70 miles.

The Brazilian Insurrection.

MONTE VIDEO, May 18.—A telegram received here says that on the occasion of the recent rising at Puerto Alegre, Brazil, the troops, after firing a volley and killing and wounding many, joined the citizens in deposing the Governor. Advices have been received confirming the report of disorders throughout the provinces of Rio Grande du Sul. The populace, it is stated, will reject by force of arms if necessary the new banking laws of Dr. Barbor the Brazilian Minister of Finance.

Six Seamen Drowned.

BOSTON, May 18.—The steamer City of Macon, from Savannah, on Friday last, rescued Charles Polaski, who was adrift in a waterlogged dory. Polaski was the cook of the schooner Hattie S. Clark of Gloucester, Mass., bound for Key West. He says the schooner capsized last Thursday in a squall off Frying Pan shoals. He believed all on board except himself were lost. The victims are Captain Sargent Lane and five seamen.

Cutting Western Passenger Rates.

CHICAGO, May 18.—The Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City road yesterday gave notice that it would reduce the rate between Chicago and Des Moines from $10.15 to $8.85. This is cutting into the local territory which has been so jealously guarded by some of the Missouri River lines and will move a particularly hard blow to the Rock Island, which has advanced its Missouri rates in order to protect the revenue on interstate local traffic.

Psycho will Beat Nellie's Record.

NEW YORK, May 18.—George Francis Train arrived here to-day on his race around the world against time. His journey ends at Tacoma, Wash. Train started from Tacoma March 18, and has therefore been 61 days on the road.

A NOVA SCOTIA TRAGEDY.

Fatal Ending of a Drunken Quarrel—Beaten to a Jelly.

HALIFAX, May 16.—An atrocious murder was committed at Westville, Pictou county last night.

Dan Robertson is proprietor of a livery stable. William Robertson was a respectable citizen, a widower with two children, aged 1 and 8 years respectively. Both men had been drinking. At midnight Dan was on his way home, accompanied by three or four companions. They called at the residence of William Robertson. He came out on the street and hot words ensued. Dan moved on towards his livery stable followed by William.

When the stable yard was reached the two men clinched. Dan literally pounded his antagonist's face into jelly with an iron bar while four half drunken companions stood by.

When Dr. Sutherland arrived the body of William Robertson presented a horrible sight. His brains were spattered over the sidewalk, blood oozed from his mouth, nose and ears. His skull was battered in and his face pounded out of all recognition.

An inquest was held and a verdict returned that William Robertson came to his death at the hands of Dan Robertson.

The murderer attempted to escape but was captured.

A CUBAN DISASTER.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION OF POWDER AT A FIRE.

Nearly Forty Persons Killed and Over One Hundred Injured—Four Fire Chiefs Among the Victims—Portions of Mutilated Bodies Taken out.

HAVANA, May 18.—At 11 o'clock last night a fire broke out in Ysasi' hardware store. In a short time the flames reached a barrel of powder in the building and a terrific explosion followed. The whole structure was blown to pieces and 22 persons were killed. Among the dead are four fire chiefs, Senores Mussett, Zenovich, Oscar Couill, Francesco Ordorez and the Venezuelan consul, Senor Francesco Silva, who was in front of the building at the time of the explosion.

In addition to the killed over 100 persons are injured. The explosion caused the wildest excitement throughout the city and thousands flocked to the scene of the disaster. The Governor-General, the Civil Governor and all the principal authorities of the city were promptly on the ground and did everything in their power to aid the injured and calm the grief-stricken relatives of the victims.

Several houses adjacent to the wrecked building were damaged by the explosion.

Gangs of men are at work on the debris. Many human limbs have been taken from the ruins. The relatives of missing persons supposed to be in the ruins are gathered on the spot and as the bodies are brought out the scenes are most distressing. The conduct of the authorities is the subject of universal praise. The highest officials have incurred personal risk in conducting the search for the dead and have offered the use of their own carriages to convey the injured to the hospitals. Ysasi, the proprietor of the wrecked hardware store, has been arrested. It is feared that there are several more victims in the ruins.

Over the theatres and the Chamber of Commerce and many other buildings flags are hanging at half mast. Everywhere are signs of mourning.

Up to the present time the number of the dead is 34.

Other Fires

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 17.—The works of the Oriel Cabinet Company were burned last night. Loss, $150,000; Insurance, $70,000. A few dwellings adjoining were destroyed.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., May 17.—Covington, the saloon town across the river, was entirely consumed by fire yesterday morning. In January all the buildings on the west side of the only street were burned, and yesterday's blaze took all on the east side. Nine buildings were burned, including 6 saloons. Loss $16,000. There is no probability that the town will be rebuilt.

LAKE PARK, Minn., May 17.—Carlson Ebeltaft's store was burned here early yesterday morning. Ebeltaft and his family lived in the upper story. Two of Ebeltaft's children were cremated, and the rest of the family had a narrow escape. P. Martinson's residence was also consumed and the business portion of the town was only saved by hard work.

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 18.—An explosion of dust occurred in John A. Cole's flour mill here yesterday and the mill was destroyed by fire, which followed. Loss $50,000.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 18.—Henry Dinwoody's furniture establishment was burned here to-day. Loss $125,000.

TOLEDO, May 18.—Early this morning fire broke out in the third floor of the Crescent Candy Company's establishment in the Hiett block, which speedily spread to the wholesale grocery of Wood & Manzy. There were 600 boxes of firecrackers and Roman candles in the stock of the Crescent Candy Company, whose explosion caused the flames to spread with great rapidity. All four stories of the candy company's store were gutted and the wholesale grocery is nearly a total loss. The loss is $107,250.

BELIEVED TO BE A SUICIDE.

The Body of a Former Resident of Dundas Found in a Creek.

BUFFALO, May 18.—The man's body found in Scajaquada Creek at Black Rock Friday was buried yesterday, as it was in an advanced state of decomposition and could not be held longer. From letters found on the body it was thought that the remains were those of John W. King of No. 350 Washington-street. A reporter called at that number yesterday afternoon. In a small back room in the tenement block were found John King's sister, a widow with two daughters, and old Mrs. King. They were horror-stricken at the intelligence which the reporter was first to bear to them.

"It must be my poor brother," said Mrs. Sullivan. "He has been missing since about Christmas and not a word has been heard from him. Those letters that were in his pocket addressed to "John W. King" from Dundas, Ont., were from my father, John King, I suppose. Poor Jack was in the habit of writing to father, who lives at Dundas."

Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. King immediately went to the morgue, where their worst fears were corroborated, although they were not allowed to see the body. It is believed that the death of King was a suicide, as there were about 15 pounds of lead in his coat pocket.

BROUGHT TO BAY.

Carnegie Canvasser.—It is your duty to vote against Mowat, who is the slave of the Catholic church.

Honest Elector.—Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha!

C. C.—What are you laughing at?

H. E.—Why, don't you remember the time you canvassed my vote for Mr. Carnegie, seven years ago?

C. C.—Yes, I have a faint recollection of calling on you.

H. E.—And don't you remember that you thought I was a Roman Catholic?

C. C.—(Smelling a rat). Yes-es, I believe I did think that you belonged to that church.

H. E.—Now, see here, I have no use for hypocrites. Here is a circular you gave me at that time when you thought I was a Catholic. Your "Facts for Irish Electors," claimed that Mr. Mowat was the enemy of Catholicism, and that Mr. Meredith had always been the true friend of the Irish Catholics). You came here with one story in 1883, and now you are back with another. I am for Mowat, honest government and equal justice.

In the absence of any shadow for complaint against Mr. Stratton his opponents and the opponents of the government agree as a reproach that Mr. Stratton and the Mowat government voted against a bill making every ratepayer prima facie a supporter of Public schools. That is merely a campaign falsehood. The law now provides that every ratepayer must be classed a supporter of Public schools until he gives notice to the clerk of his municipality that he desires to be rated as a supporter of Separate schools. Instead of voting against such a provision Mr. Stratton supported the bill introduced by the government removing all the doubts which had been created in the public mind by widely advertised to the meaning and intention of the law. True he declined to support a contrap bill brought in by Mr. Meredith declaring the law to be what it is, on the very proper ground that there is no necessity for there is an effective law already in force. The law now classes every ratepayer as a supporter of Public schools, and no man can escape the payment of Public school assessments except by giving notice to the municipal clerk that he is a supporter of Separate schools. What more do the Meredith dunders ask want?

Temperance people should not forget that to-day 141,000 good citizens of the Province are studying the temperance text-books authorized three or four years ago. No wonder the temperance organizations are satisfied with the Mowat government or that the Good Templar, the organ of the organization in Canada, should say:—"Mr. Mowat's government have always shown a sincere interest in the work of the Temperance men in the Province, and on no occasion that we are aware of have they refused to make any amendments to our laws that were deemed necessary. It therefore be now our duty to do all in our power to strengthen their hands, and not to be carried away by worthy politicians, who are full of promises at election times."

We have manhood suffrage and "one man" vote in provincial politics. That is true Liberalism and Equal Rights. The Dominion Franchise Act provides for a lot of fancy franchises and allows a man to vote in any county where he may happen to own property. A man with $2,000 worth of property situated in ten constituencies has ten votes at election for the House of Commons, while a man with a million dollars worth of property as Beaver in one constituency has only one vote. That is neither justice nor common sense. Young men show your appreciation of manhood suffrage and one man one vote by marking your ballots for Reform candidates.

Though the Separate Schools were abolished to-morrow, that would not bring the Catholic children into the Public Schools. The United States have no State aided Separate Schools, but the proportion of Roman Catholic children attending Separate Schools is larger in the States than it is in Canada. Of two millions Catholic children in the States, 934,000—or about one-half—attend Separate Schools. In Ontario, out of 90,000 Catholic children, 30,000 or one-third—only attend separate schools.

Mr. Mowat has no boodlers to provide for, so he has not consequently been able to appropriate during the last eighteen years more than $38,000,000 for the opening up and development of the Province, the assistance of the farming industry and for education, charitable purposes and similar ends. Mr. Stratton is a supporter of this wise, patriotic and prudent government and deserves your support. See that he gets it.

The Conservatives have enjoyed eleven years in Ontario with a vacation at Ottawa to the extent of two years in the history of the party under Sir John Macdonald began with the Pacific scandal and ended with the Washington Treaty. Mackenzie Bowell recently remarked: What a contrast!

Because the Catholic electors of Ontario refused to vote solidly for his candidates after he had assured them that they were being badly treated by Mr. Mowat, and promised them two representatives in the provincial cabinet and all the patronage they wanted, Mr. Meredith has started a crusade against Separate Schools and the French language. How exceedingly statesmanlike.

Ennismore.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

It is with deep regret we chronicle the death of Mr. Timothy Murphy which sad event occurred on the 8 S. The deceased was a venty seventy ars old and was one of the first settlers in Ennismore and was highly respected by all who knew him. That Mr. Murphy was successful in all walks of life. He accumulated considerable property in this township by industry and attention to his affairs. He reared a family of six daughters and three sons, all of whom he had the satisfaction of living to see comfortably settled in life, and respected members of the community. He took an active interest in public affairs. He held positions of school trustee and member of the council for several terms. He was also at times, assessor, collector and treasurer of the school section, and in fact had to turn filled almost every municipal and school office. He was a native of Kerry, Ireland. He came to Canada in 1838, and settled in Ennismore, then a howling wilderness, on the farm where he lived and died. He always attentive to his religious duties, and was a moving spirit in every enterprise tending to promote the spiritual and material welfare of the church. The last tribute of respect was paid to the deceased on Saturday when solemn high mass offered. A large concourse of friends and neighbors followed the remains to the last resting place.

FAST TYPEWRITERS.

Fact and Fiction With Respect to It—Mr. Munson's Opinions.

English newspapers have given considerable space of late to the feat of a Parliamentary shorthand reporter who transcribed 6,000 words in two hours and three minutes. In a conversation with Mr. J. E. Munson, well known as the inventor of Munson's system of phonography, and one of the oldest law reporters in the country, he made some interesting statements about rapid writing.

"The fact is," he said, "we have in this city one or two typewriters who write from dictation at a speed of forty folios of 100 words an hour, and any number who can write from thirty to thirty-six folios in that time. Twenty-four folios is only the average time of a good typewriter. I understand that there is a difference in writing from dictation and transcribing one's notes, but I do not regard the feat spoken of as anything but fairly good work.

"The highest authentic speed in shorthand that I know of was the feat of a lady who wrote 377 words in one minute. There is a great deal of humbug in the way speed contests have been conducted of late years. A man sits down to write after a very fast reader. He takes down what he can, and what he cannot get he lets go. The number of words that he has taken are counted, and this is given as his speed, looked at from a practical stenographer's stand-point. Every mistake made in a contest by the competitor should be counted against him.

"The shorthand writers in Washington do as good work as is done anywhere in the world; and I think, taking it on the average, the best law reporting is done in the city of New York. We have a number of shorthand writers in this city who have written as fast as 250 words a minute for five or ten minutes. The matter in these tests were new to them.

"A court stenographer works about five hours a day. In that time as will take, if the examination is a quick one, about 400 folios. This, however, is a heavy day's work, and the average is 250 to 300 folios. It is not always necessary to transcribe the notes of a trial. In reporting the debates at Washington U. stenographers are relieved every twenty minutes to write out the matter they have taken, so that the proceedings are nearly always written out almost as soon as an adjournment is taken."

A Candy-maker's Good Word for Candy.

"Candy is not now-a-days one of it is made of pure sugar and harmless coloring and flavoring," said a Fulton street sugar baker. "Sugar, you know, is very nourishing, and if people with sweet teeth would only eat candy as it should be eaten the dentists in New York would have less work to do. Candy should be absorbed, not masticated, and you can always detect impurities in candy by sucking it. If it is pure sugar it will all melt away in a few minutes, but if any sediment remains you may be satisfied that you have eaten impure candy. However, as a rule, even adulterated candy is not injurious, because flour or corn starch are usually the ingredients used to increase the quantity, and, beyond destroying the flavor, they do not materially injure the quality.

"Always choose brown candy if you can. It is much more likely to be pure than the green, or the pink or red, or even the white. Never crunch it between your teeth. Allow the natural heat of the mouth to dissolve it and then attempt to chew it as though it were a tough beefsteak.

"The idea of a worsing candy maker is decidedly unfounded. In the manufactures of the sweetmeats that he manufactures, but the hot sugar carries particles that impregnate the air in which the works are almost certain to affect his lungs. Sugar bakers are not a long lived race. I make many tons of candy in the course of a year, but I can't say that I ever eat any of it." New York Sun.

CHAPTER XII.

THE LITTLE FORAGE CAP WAS RAISED WITH COURTEOUS GRACE.

There was an unusual scene at the matinee the following morning. When Capt. Ray relieved Capt. Gregg as officer of the day, and the two were visiting the guard house and turning over prisoners, they came upon the last name on the list—Clancy—and Gregg turned to his regimental comrade and said:

"No charges are preferred against Clancy, at least none as yet, Capt. Ray; but his company commander requests that he be held here until he can talk over his case with the colonel."

"What's he in for?" demanded Capt. Ray.

"Getting drunk and raising a row and beating his wife," answered Gregg, whereat there was a titter among the soldiers.

"I never struck a woman in me life, sir," said poor Clancy.

"Silence, Clancy!" ordered the sergeant of the guard.

"No I'm blessed if I believe that part of it, Clancy, drunk or no drunk," said the new officer of the day. "Take charge of him for the present, sergeant." And away they went to the office.

Capt. Rayne was in conversation with the commanding officer as they entered, and the colonel was saying:

"It is not the proper way to handle the case, captain. If he has been guilty of drunkenness and disorderly conduct he should be brought to trial at once."

"I admit that, sir; but the case is peculiar. It was Mrs. Clancy that made all the noise. I feel sure that after he is perfectly sober I can give him such a talking to as will put a stop to this trouble."

"Very well, sir. I am willing to let company commanders experiment at least once or twice on their theories, so you can try the scheme; but we of—th have had some years experience with the Clancy's, and were not a little amused when they turned up again in our midst as accredited members of your company."

Her Last Will and Testament.

How Mrs. Nicholls Bequeathed a Million—The Presbyterian Church a Favoured Beneficiary—The Nicholls Hospital Again Endowed—The Town Generously Treated—Personal Bequests of Nearly Half a Million.

On Saturday afternoon after the funeral of the late Mrs. Nicholls, her last will and testament was read at her late residence. The executors named in the will are Messrs. Richard Hall and Charles McGill. These gentlemen decline to give at present the particulars of the private bequests. It is known that they amount to a very large sum—$454,800. But below is given a full list of the donations, which all of the public interests:

Presbyterian Church schemes:
Aged and Infirm Ministers' fund	$20,000
Widows and Orphans	20,000
Home Missions	10,000
Northwest Missions	10,000
Foreign Missions	10,000
French Missions	5,000
Queen's College	20,000
Knox College	20,000
Deaf and Dumb Institute	20,000
Toronto Ministerial Association	20,000
Mechanics' Institute	10,000
St. James' Church	10,000
St. Paul's Church	5,000
North Hill Church	10,000
To each Sunday School in Town	$500
Collegiate Institute	1,500
Collegiate Institute—To found Scholarships	2,000
For Public Parks	50,000

It will thus be seen that Mrs. Nicholls has dealt with the greatest liberality. The secular bequests are the benefit of the public among the $454,800 about of the population. It must not be omitted to state that during the past year or so Mrs. Nicholls has donated many ways for public institutions and charities and for the relief of private persons a sum of between two hundred and three hundred thousand dollars, in addition to the bequests in her will. From the nature of the public donations of Mrs. Nicholls, every person in town is able to say that he or she has been remembered in her will.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

"Come let us magnify the Lord together." "Holy, holy, great things for us, wherefore we are glad."

These who attended our evening meeting Saturday night received a great blessing. Mr. Wm. Smart gave an impressive address on the turning point in the life of Adam. Mr. Rogers in a few words told how God had been leading us, and how He had led Mrs. Nicholls to give us the money to build a home for our boys. The effect can be better imagined than described.

We praise God from whom all blessings flow.

The Consecration meeting led by Mr. Frederick was a season of great refreshing Sabbath morning.

The Personal Purity meeting in the afternoon was addressed by Mr. J. C. Turnbull, who gave us earnest talk to our young men which will bear fruit to God's glory.

The Gospel Song service was addressed by Mr. Wm. Wallbridge, who gave a heart searching address. The hall was filled by an attentive audience. We do thank God for these signs of showers of blessing from the presence of our Lord.

Every evening this week we purpose holding a praise and prayer service at 7:30 asking for guidance and humility. Christians pray for us that we may be better for service.

Bible Training class Tuesday evening at 8 p.m.

Young men's meeting this week on Friday evening instead of Saturday owing to band concert by Q. O. R. in the park Saturday evening.

To the Editor of the Examiner:—

SIR,—The Rev. Jno. Burton, M.A., B.D., will lecture to-morrow evening in the Opera House on "Socialism and the Land Question viewed Scripturally." This question is stirring the minds of the people the world over. It is fast becoming the topic of the hour. Already many distinguished statesmen approve of it and await but a hint from the people to make it a part of their legislation. Free admission will enable all to enjoy a lucid explanation of the theory. Let the people of Peterborough show their interest in progressive measures by hearing the well-known lecturer who comes purely from devotion to these principles and charges only his expenses.

Special Sunday Sermons.

Annual Church Parade of the Volunteers—A Fine Military Display—Sermons to the Sons of England.

The annual church parade of the 57th Battalion took place Sunday forenoon to the George street Methodist church, where an admirable and appropriate sermon was preached to the volunteers by Rev. M. L. Pearson. There was a fairly good turn-out of the Rangers, who in their new uniforms and helmets looked more neat and soldierly than ever. The officers also wore full dress uniforms. Headed by the band, the battalion, about 175 strong, marched to the church, where the volunteers occupied the middle seats.

The hymns were chosen with special reference to the occasion, and were sung with spirit, the band assisting the choir in leading. Rev. Mr. Pearson took for his text, Psalm xxiv, 7-10:

Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

Who is this King of glory? The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle.

Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

Who is this King of glory? The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory. Selah.

There are four great events in history, said the speaker, four rungs in a ladder which rests on earth and reaches to heaven, and by which we may ascend to the joys above. These are, (1) born of the Virgin Mary; (2) suffered under Portius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried; (3), He rose again from the dead; (4), He ascended into heaven and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty. It is generally conceded by Bible expositors that the verses of the text refer to the ascension of Christ, who, accompanied by an angelic escort, approaches the heavenly city in triumph. The advancing hosts cry unto the gates to lift up their heads. The angels on the battlements ask, who is this King of glory? And the answer comes, He is the Lord, mighty in battle. Christ had conquered death and led captivity captive, and was making a triumphant return to his celestial domain. No wonder the heavenly host rejoiced. His visit to earth had necessitated his withdrawal from heaven for a time, and the angels were rejoicing over his return. And why, asked Rev. Mr. Pearson, should not we rejoice at his absence from earth, when it means so much to us? Some people thought it would have been much better if Jesus Christ had remained on earth, so that the church would be kept together, so that doubters could see and hear for themselves, and so that there would always be some head of the church to whom great theological questions could be referred for settlement. All that was very well, said the speaker, but Christ's resurrection and ascension were an evidence to us that we had been restored to our condition before the fall. Without the ascension there would be no indubitable proof that our sins had really been expiated. Then it would be impossible without miraculous interference for Christ to have lived 2,000 years and occupied the same position towards us that he did toward the Jews. Again, Christ's absence tended to strengthen our faith. Blessed is he who, having seen and heard, believes in Christ; but more blessed still is he who, having neither seen nor heard, yet has faith in His love and power. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Pearson dwelt upon some thoughts in connection with the triumph of Jesus Christ over the powers of darkness and death, urging his hearers to enlist under the Captain of their salvation and participate in His rejoicing.

The service was ended by the singing of the National Anthem and the pronouncing of the benediction. After the general congregation had left the church, the volunteers followed and reformed in line on the street, marching by a circuitous route back to the drill shed, where they were disbanded. The boys made a creditable appearance. Some of the companies were nearly full strength, but a couple of them were rather weak in numbers.

Sons of England.

The Sons of England marched to St. John's church and had a downpour of rain at half past three Sunday afternoon. There were about one hundred members of the two lodges in line, each wearing a badge, a rose and white gloves. Printed orders of service were distributed among the congregation. A novel feature of the service was the fact that it was wholly conducted by the Sons of England. The choir was composed of members of the Order, and Rev. J. C. Davidson, who preached the sermon, is also one of the brethren and chaplain of Peterborough Lodge No. 64 and Deputy Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge.

Rev. Mr. Davidson chose for the subject of his discourse Deut., xxxi, 7-8

And Moses called unto Joshua and said unto him in the sight of all Israel, Be strong and of good courage, for thou must go with this people unto the land which the Lord hath sworn unto their fathers to give them; and thou shalt cause them to inherit it.

And the Lord, he it is that doth go before thee; he will be with thee, he will not fail thee, neither forsake thee; fear not, neither be dismayed.

These attributes of men mentioned in the verses of the text—courage, strength, endurance, quiet—were qualities of manliness which were commended by nature and further confirmed in God's own word. And the Bible was not lacking in examples of this combination of courage—Joshua, Daniel, Christ himself. These good qualities were, the speaker said, pre-eminently exhibited in Epaminondas and had been the means of their possessor—not this qualities alone, but united as they were, with true Britain faith in God. It was the object of the Sons of England Benevolent Society to encourage and develop these manly attributes, as well as to retain the love for the mother country—not however, to teach true Englishmen who had been led by divine providence to settle down in this fair land, to look upon their home as a place of exile, but rather to bind them together that they may unitedly advance and prosper in the country of their adoption and look hopefully forward to its future. Their order was unique among societies in that it combined the comforts of love for the mother land and fatherland. It also practised a Christian charity, love and charity, cared for the sick, buried the dead and protected the widow and orphan. Rev. Mr. Davidson urged the members to continue to carry out the principles of their society, and remember that in doing so they were carrying out good courage and as he put it in Joshua—God, He will be with you and thereby shield them.

Upon returning to their lodge room the brethren passed a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. J. C. Davidson for his excellent sermon, and to the churchwardens for the use of the church.

News Nuggets.

—The team of the 57th Battalion which shot in the Rifle League matches last Friday, stood sixth on the list—a very good record.

—James Welch, while drunk Saturday night, was "run in" by the police. This morning he went up to gaol for ten days, having no money to pay his fine.

—License Inspector M. J. Granger, of Bowmanville, has instituted an action for libel against the Cavan Milford Herald, which accused him of receiving hush-money from an hotel keeper. Inspector Granger claims $10,000 damages.

—The team of cricketers to play against East Toronto next Friday will be chosen from the following:—Messrs. Parker, Rogers, M. Hamilton, Burritt, Gower, Kay, Goldsmith, Attewell, Rutherford, Burnham, Salisbury, Montgomery, Turnbull and Stocker.

Personal.

The music loving public and especially the congregation of St. John's, are to be congratulated on the fact that on Saturday evening Dr. Davies telegraphed from Ottawa his acceptance of the position of organist of St. John's. Dr. Davies gives as his reason for the seeking of the position, his excellent impression of St. John's and of the town gained on his previous visits. Dr. Davies, is a musician of Dominion reputation and his casting in his musical lot with Peterborough is no small compliment to the town.

The Colored Troupe.

The performance of the Hyers Company Saturday night was rather disappointing. A three-act comedy was put on, entitled the "Blackville Twins." The Hyers company had better stick to variety performances, and leave the drama alone. They are not a success in that line. In their specialties, however, they succeed very well and give a good show. They have decided to remain in town to-night also, the opera house not being engaged. A complete change of programme is announced for to night.

There will be a lacrosse match on the picnic grounds between Norwood and a Toronto club.

Gorton's Minstrels.

What promises an exceptionally fine minstrel entertainment, will be the one given by the above company at the Opera House on next Friday night May 23rd. Concerning the performance the Chatham Oct. Planet says:—The high expectations entertained by the large and critical audience were more than realized. There was every thing in the performance to commend and nothing to criticise. Did our space permit we would like to give a special mention of each performer—for each was worthy of it. Suffice it to say, that the Gold Band gave some of the finest band music we have ever heard. The singing and the dancing were superb and the musical features surpassed. The comicalities were irresistably funny, and the entire entertainment was a glorious success. 1d

IN OPERA HOUSE

Royal Hand Bell Ringers.

"The Royal Hand Bell Ringers, of London England, who appeared last night in the Pavilion Music Hall, gave a highly pleasing entertainment. They play on a series of 131 bells, and have acquired a manipulative dexterity which can only result from special talent, supplemented and strengthened by long practice. The music they produce is remarkably sweet, the quality of the tone from the bells being, while soft and sweet, of surprising carrying power. This kind of entertainment could very easily be made monotonous, but variety is given and interest maintained by a skilful management of the programme. Very successful numbers last night were Sullivan's Lost Chord, the Irish and Welsh airs, and a piece introducing the Westminster Chimes and Big Ben. CRANKS WHO SAY THAT BATHING IS UNHEALTHY.

The Cholera Scare Again to the Front—On the Dangers of Shaving—Clothing and Exercise—General Information for the Man Who Would Keep in Good Health.

Nothing in human affairs has a reputation so fixed that it may not be called in question by some one in a moment of originality. This has happened recently in the case of the daily bath. Some critics, for example, suggest that the bather, in consequence of his very cleanliness, lives too fast, is functionally too active, and that delayed and more gradual secretion would better accord with health. Others appear to think that by daily ablution the skin loses a part, or all, of the protection against weather, derived from its own effete products. Yet the bath not only continues to hold its own, but its popularity increases year by year. As regards amenity, both personal and relative, to one's neighbors, there can be no doubt that this is usually much assisted by a habit of regular bathing. Other advantages are not lacking. Among these are—cold water is used, the invigoration of the nervous and circulating system, resistance to weather changes, and the vitality of skin engendered by immersion. Further, it is undeniable that the non-removal of effete matters from the body imposes a most unwholesome check upon waste of excretion in obscure tissues. It is said that some savage races surround in a peculiar life in spite of personal uncleanliness. To these tribes, it must be remembered, all are commonly favored in regard to fresh air and exercise. It is probable, also, that civilized people do not thrive as they should, and would under purer conditions. For civilized men of sedentary habits, the advantage of possessing a clean and freely active skin is a virtual necessity of healthy existence.—Lancet.

The Cholera Again.

Experience has shown that in the most violent and extensive outbreaks of the disease, its virulence is invariably confined to circumscribed localities. Even in the districts most severely attacked, the great bulk of the mortality always occurs within a limited space, while the disease seldom lasts long at any one point, but attacks a number of points in succession. The dirts of any city where cases are the most numerous are always less salubrious than those in which the disease prevails in a less degree. The epidemic generally prevails most in sections densely inhabited and abounding in poverty and filth, and vice. As the Doctor puts it:—Cities, localities and individuals who endeavor to guard, if possible, against its approach by instituting timely measures for its prevention, are always those who experience, during a visitation of this pestilence, the successful results of such prudential enforcements of sanitary appliances, in a checking of the progress of cholera, in shortening its duration and in mitigating its severity.—Canada Health Journal.

A Theological Diagnosis.

Said Talmage "my brother your trouble is not with the heart, it is a gastric disorder or a rebellion of the liver. You need a physician more than you do a clergyman. It is not sin that blots out your hope of heaven, but bile. It not only yellows your eyeball and furs your tongue, and makes your head ache, but swoops upon your soul in dejections and forebodings."

Open Windows at Night.

An advocate of ventilation by open windows at night says that the danger of catching cold, which has so often been objected unreasonably to this method, seems not at all to be feared for a patient who is in bed and well wrapped up, and in this connection it may be useful to recall the opinion of certain physicians who claim that a horizontal position is very advantageous for persons trying to resist a lowering in the surrounding temperature, probably because it favors a uniform distribution and circulation of the blood warmed in the interior portions of the organism, and thereby prevents the results of a too great exposure to cold.

CUSTOMS SEIZURES.

The New York Officers Make Two Rich Hauls on Saturday

New York, May 17.—An important seizure of men's clothing, cutlery and bric-a-brac was made this afternoon. The articles were discovered on a wagon on the Inman line dock. They were in parcels and trunks and had been carried from the steamer City of New York, which reached here Wednesday. Customs officers this afternoon also seized upward of $50,000 worth of rare Japanese silks and bric-a-brac at Martin's store, Brooklyn, on the American ship Leading Wind. Captain Huntley is in command of the ship the Leading Wind arrived from Japan on Thursday. The officials learned there were numerous articles aboard which were not on the ship's manifest. They searched the cargo and in one corner of the hold and among some old rope and tarpaulins found what they were looking for. Several boxes, barrels and vases were there and in them were porcelains and silks said to be the finest ever brought into this country. No mention of these was made on the manifest. There were also thousands of dollars worth of rugs, laces and shawls. Captain Huntley said the goods were personal property and that he had brought them over for the purpose of decorating his cabin.

Gladstone on Siberian Outrages.

London, May 18.—Mr. Gladstone speaking at Lowestoft yesterday said the English public conscience had been greatly shocked by the reports of Russian prisoners being ruthlessly shot without the form of a trial and by the fact that these outrages passed without the reprobation of the Russian Government. He had been asked why he did not denounce these outrages in the House of Commons, but he felt a scruple about asking the Government to take steps unless he could see the way to a favorable result. He desired to see the law applied in his own land when ever cruelty and oppression were found. He would be glad if the Government was in a position to expostulate with Russia, but he feared Russia might retort that a country whose police ruthlessly shot innocent Irish citizens engaged in a public meeting was hardly in a position to dictate how another country should treat its convicts.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT CONSEQUENT UPON A MADRID MURDER.

Turkey Notifies the Arab Chiefs to Organize an Irregular Army of 100,000 Foot Soldiers and 10,000 Cavalrymen—General Foreign News from Various Points.

TRIPOLI, Nov. 18.—The Turkish authorities recently informed the chiefs of the various tribes that the Government proposed to form a corps of irregular troops to co-operate with the regulars, and ordered the chiefs to provide men and horses for the purpose. The chiefs were informed that 100,000 foot soldiers and 10,000 cavalrymen would be required for the new branches of the service. This order created considerable excitement among the Arabs, it being generally believed that Turkey was about to go to war with a foreign power. Subsequently the chiefs who had expressed anxiety as to the cause of the Government's action were informed that there were no immediate fears of an outbreak of hostilities, but that the Porte attached importance to the readiness of the Arabs to co-operate with the regular troops.

HOT HEADED FRENCHMEN.

France's Finance Minister Accused of Using His Office For Private Gain.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—During the debate on the budget in the Chamber of Deputies Mr. Lauer asked leave to question the Government as to what it proposed to do to prevent the drain of gold from France for the benefit of foreign markets.

M. Rouvier, Minister of Finance, declined to receive the question, whereupon Lauer made a violent attack upon the Finance Minister, accusing him of using his official position to enrich himself by speculation.

A great uproar followed and the President twice called Lauer to order. The latter became greatly excited and endeavored to continue his harangue, but was finally stopped.

WILL NOT RESTRICT ITS CURES.

Humanity Generally to Benefit from Dr. Koch's Discovery.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Prof. Gerhardt to-day explained Koch's method to a large number of foreign doctors, exhibiting three cases in illustration. The first was a case of aggravated disease of the throat. The patient received an injection yesterday of two milligrams of the lymph; to-day there was a decided reaction, and a cure is expected. The second case was a case of phthisis, in which the treatment had already been attended with marked success. In the third case the treatment was applied as a means of diagnosis, and as no reaction followed Prof. Gerhardt assumed that the patient was free from tuberculosis. In the course of a lecture Prof. Gerhardt warned his hearers against the idea that Koch's treatment merely required the injection of the lymph to drive out the disease. It has been arranged that after fresh supplies have been prepared the lymph shall be distributed, first among the laboratories and hospitals of Berlin, next among universities and large hospitals throughout Germany, then among the hospitals of Vienna, Paris and London and lastly among private practitioners. Only small portions of the lymph have as yet been sent abroad—to Dr. Waltsoldt of San Remo and to a doctor at Davos.

Bursting Thermometers.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Doctors who have returned from Berlin express doubts as to the real cure of lupus by Koch's treatment. They say that in some of the cases declared to be cured suspicious looking pustules were seen breaking out afresh near the cicatrized wounds. The leading Austrian specialists warn the faculty against overestimating the efficacy of Koch's method. They affirm that up to the present time not a single case of undoubted and permanent cure has been recorded. They also think it possible that strong reaction of the remedy on diseased tissue may prove dangerous to weak lungs and interfere with respiration. Three deaths attributed to this cause have already been reported.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Prof. Koch is chagrined over the reappearance of lupus in a patient reported cured. This is the only instance, however, of the return of the disease after a supposed cure.

More Lives Than a Snake

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—Dr. Fraenkel in a lecture to-day mentioned a case where death had been caused by the injection of an overstrong dose of the Koch fluid. In other cases he had obtained very successful results. Care was necessary, however, in order to prevent a relapse after apparent cure. Under the Koch treatment, he said, the bacilli dwindled in size, become crooked with swellings at the extremities and then became disintegrated and converted into shreds and minute globules. Even then they do not lose wholly the potenticity of life, and it is possible for them, unless care and watchfulness be maintained, to resume activity.

FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

Business Continues Unsettled—Tone of the London Stock Exchange.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—On the Stock Exchange to-day business until the unofficial close continued unsettled. Every department was sensitive and distrustful and dealings were limited. The fall in silver caused a further decline of 1⅛ in rupee paper, also a decline in Mexican Railway—ordinary falling 4 and preference 4½. There was more heavy realizing on South American issues, causing a decline of 5½ in Uruguay and of 3½ to 5½ in Argentine securities. Mexican government securities are now involved in the general distrust and suddenly dropped 3½ to 5. Brazilian securities lost 4½. English railways gave some promise of strength early in the day, and prices advanced beyond the New York parity, but there was a relapse on New York selling prices reaching the lowest points in street dealings. The decline for the day was moderate, ranging from ¼ to 1¼. Discount houses continue to act with the greatest caution. They do not seem to care to do anything while the financial atmosphere is obscured. Nearly all bill business goes to the Bank of England. The demands upon the Bank of England are so considerable that a further advance of the discount rate at an early date is probable.

Prices on the Paris bourse to-day closed firm under speculative buying. Foreign securities closed 3¼ per cent. higher and Rio Tinto ½ francs higher.

Prices were irregular on the Berlin bourse, improving somewhat towards the close, owing to bear re-buying.

There is a rumor that another prominent banking firm is in difficulty, owing to its inability to rediscount maturing bills.

The Financial News says it hopes the report is not true but it is afraid that many [illegible] have been made in the [illegible] by reckless underwriting and that more than one house is tottering under a load of overwhelming unforeseen liabilities.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The Times says no bills drawn on Baring Bros. after last Saturday by correspondents will be accepted, but all drawn previously will be recognized. The Bank of England is practically in charge of the Barings affairs. It is probable the firm will be resuscitated with fresh capital.

The bank is charging a high rate of discount in order to prevent an inrush of bills. It desires holders to exercise forbearance and not throw unnecessary work on the bank. All acceptances already provided for will be met at maturity.

The Stanley Controversy.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Mr. Quilter, editor of the Universal Review, has an article in that publication on the Stanley controversy which has attracted much attention. Quilter says he is especially informed that Jamieson's diary and private letters were placed in a box by Bonny after Jamieson's death and that the box, after being sealed up by Bonny, was confided to Stanley. Instead of forwarding the box to Jamieson's family Stanley broke the seal, opened the box and retained the papers in his possession, only parting with them after legal proceedings. Stanley made extracts from the diary before handing it over to a bank. Quilter traces the origin of the stories against Bartelot and Jamieson to Bonny, who, he says, acted as tale-bearer in general to the camp. Stanley, he declares, would never have dared to make such statements unless he had been assured that Bonny would confirm them. Bonny, he says, was a paid servant of Stanley.

They Carried Black Banners.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—The board-room of the Schull Union, County Cork, was besieged today by small farmers and laborers, who came to implore the guardians for food or employment. The applicants, some of whom carried black banners, numbered fully 1000. Father Forrest of Goleen said 30 families were starving in his parish and he was obliged to assist them out of his own scanty means. A deputation of directors of the Schull and Skibbereen railway, headed by the High Sheriff of Cork, asked the board to approach the Government for money to extend the line to Crookhaven and build piers, etc. They also suggested further means to relieve the prevailing distress, and the board adopted resolutions in accordance with their proposals.

Faction Fight in Church

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—A fight occurred Sunday at Bistritz, Transylvania, between the opposing members of one of the churches there. The trouble originated in the opposition of the Saxon members of the church to a newly appointed Roumanian minister. When the new minister attempted to enter the church he was prevented from doing so by the Saxons. The supporters of the pastor came to his aid and tried to force their way into the church, and a desperate conflict ensued. When the battle was ended it was found that 6 persons had been killed and 16 injured.

THE LEAGUE HEARD FROM

PARNELL MUST CONTINUE TO LEAD THE NATIONALISTS.

What the English and Irish Press have to Say Respecting the O'Shea Case and Parnell's Connection Therewith.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Parnell-O'Shea divorce is the sensation of the hour, even excluding the Stanley-Bartelot recriminations from popular attention. It is generally regarded as imperative that Mr. Parnell must at once retire from the leadership of his party. Aside from the question of morality the fact that the woman in question was the wife of his intimate friend puts the guilty man out of the pale of honor, even in the eyes of the most tolerant "man of the world."

The Star, which is the London organ of the Irish party, makes more of a sensation in the matter than the Tory press itself. The episode of the balcony fire-escape and the giving of four different assumed names are such undignified affairs that an impression of general regret extends even to Mr. Parnell's bitterest enemies that so able a man should be so completely extinguished.

The National League Stick to Parnell.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—A meeting of the National League was held to-day. Edmund Leamy, M.P. for South Sligo, presided. Mr. Leamy, referring to the reports of the withdrawal of Mr. Parnell from the leadership of the Nationalist party, said Mr. Parnell was the chosen leader of the party, and that the party would stand by him while he stood by them. He would lead the party in the combat in Parliament during the coming session and the Irish people would be more than ever devoted to him.

John Redmond, M.P. for North Wexford, ridiculed the idea of Mr. Parnell being prejudiced in politics by the verdict in the O'Shea case. His colleagues, he said, were bound to him by unfailing loyalty. Never in the career of the Nationalists were the members of the party more determined to stand by Mr. Parnell. Mr. Redmond's remarks were greeted with cheers. Joseph Kenny, member for South Cork, and other leaders spoke in a similar strain.

There was a large attendance of Irish members of Parliament at the league meeting, all of whom agreed that Mr. Parnell should retain the leadership of the Nationalist party. They all said that English or Scotch opinion on the subject had nothing to do with the matter. The meeting closed with cheers for the leader of the Irish party.

Stephen Williamson, M.P. for Kilmarnock, Scotland, addressing his constituents said the only course left open to Parnell was to resign.

Earl Granville spoke at Alton last night on Irish affairs, but made no reference to Parnell.

LONDON Nov. 18.—The Standard says it is expected the Irish bishops will protest if Parnell does not retire from the leadership of his party.

Dr. Parker of the Temple says he considers Mr. Parnell bound to surrender the leadership of the Irish party. "The better the cause," said the doctor, "the cleaner should be the hands that handle it."

Envoys Support Him Also.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The Associated Press learns through T. P. O'Connor, M.P., and T. P. Gill, M.P., that the Irish envoys are firmly resolved to stand by the leadership of Parnell. They think this course dictated not merely by gratitude for Parnell's imperishable services in the past, but by the conviction that his leadership is absolutely essential to the success of their movements. A joint message, which is uncompromising in support of Parnell's leadership, is being signed by all the Irish envoys and will be sent early to-morrow.

DUBLIN, Nov. 18.—The Freeman's Journal, commenting upon the outcome of the O'Shea case, and the predictions that have been made concerning its effects upon Mr. Parnell's future, recalls the private lives of the Duke of Wellington, Lord Nelson, Lord Palmerston, and a number of other prominent personages, who, it says, in their time, were the subjects of scandal similar to that in which Parnell will be subjected is absurd, because he never went into society. The pastors charged with his moral well-being are not the pastors of the majority of the Irish people. It is neither our duty nor our province to adjudge his private life nor to examine his conscience. Ireland's business with him is entirely of a political nature. He has ably, faithfully and successfully served the country and has brought her out of bondage and led her within sight of the promised land. A juncture has now been reached when there can be no swopping or changing of leaders. We would not change if we could, and we could not if we would. The Irish, not the English, people, will decide if the head of the nation for years is to be lost, or the fruit of that toil risked because a man has been weak and a woman frail. Continuing, The Journal says it is imperative that Parnell should be leader of the Irish parliamentary party. The necessity for this course will be proclaimed at a meeting of the National League to be held to-day, and at a public meeting to be held Thursday.

The Express says it would be wise for Parnell to retire to private life, but we can hardly expect him to show much self-respect as this course would evidence.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Star (T. P. O'Connor's paper) says Mr. Parnell does not intend to resign the leadership of the Irish Parliamentary party. He is certain to appear in the House of Commons when that body meets on November 24. Home Rule, The Star says, is a compact between nations and not persons and it will stand.

A rumor is current that Mr. Parnell will retire from active political life, and that he will marry Miss O'Shea as soon as the law will permit him to do so. It is also said he has promised to give continuous advice to his successor in the leadership of the Nationalist party.

Notice has been given in the Edinburgh town council that a motion will be made to remove Mr. Parnell's name from the roll of burgesses.

Suicide Preferable to Capture.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 18.—Advices from Honduras say Gen. Louginos Sanchez was not shot after capture but committed suicide when nearly captured by Hogran's forces.

Hamilton Jottings.

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—The banquet to the members of the British Iron and Steel Institute cost $647.50.

At the meeting of Hamilton Presbytery to-day the call from Cayuga to Rev. Joseph Johnston was sustained, and the induction will take place Dec. 2. Rev. Mr. Mitchell of Waterloo declined the call to Erskine Church.

The Truth.

Friend, though thy soul should burn thee, yet be still.
Thoughts were not meant for strife, nor tongues for swords.
He that sees clear is gentlest of his words,
And that's not truth that hath the heart to kill.
The whole world's thought shall not one truth fulfill.
Dull in our age and passionate in youth:
No mind of man hath found the perfect truth,
Nor shalt thou find it; therefore, friend, be still.
Watch and be still, nor hearken to the fool,
The babbler of consistency and rule;
Wisest is he who, never quite secure,
Changes his thoughts for better day by day:
To-morrow some new light will shine: be sure,
And then shalt see thy thought another way.—Archibald Lampman.

BALFOUR IN LINCOLN.

HIS REMEDY FOR THE IRISH DISTRESS.

The Problem of the Present Winter and the Problem of the Future—The Habits of the People Must Be Changed—The Secretary Does Not Despair.

GRIMSBY, Nov. 18.—Mr. Balfour in a speech to-night declared that his tour in Ireland had no political object, but was made merely in quest of information. Although he had been attacked by the Irish party and press he had no reason to complain of his reception, but every reason to feel gratified. He had not had the bad taste to obtrude his political opinions on the people and they were equally courteous. The priests talked like rational men on the people's troubles. He did not attempt to bribe them, nor did he ask them to give up their conscientious opinions. He was sure they would never accept such a bribe. They met him with the courtesy, kindness and business spirit natural to them. Their manner was far different from that of the Dublin politicians, whose shrieks of fury when they heard that he was making a tour in Ireland were amusing, but did not represent Irish opinion. His tour left the impression on his mind that districts visited were not congested in the sense of being crowded, but people appear to be unable to draw from their holdings a sufficient livelihood. It was not wearing and incessant toil for a wretched pittance such as was seen in the industrial centres of England and America, yet they were always on the brink of want that a serious failure of the potato crop might make imperial assistance necessary. If the peasant's condition was to be bettered he must be made a better farmer and a better fisherman. There were two distinct problems to be faced, the problem of the present winter and the problem of the future. He should have much to say on this question in another place. He would observe in the meantime that it would be of little use to provide for immediate distress unless they had in view the permanent amelioration of the condition of the distressed. Nothing would be easier than to squander public money to remedy the evil, because he was sure the Chancellor of the Exchequer would not grudge the money. But though money was essential, he did not regard it as the greatest necessity. He was firmly convinced that something more was required than money and relief works. It was necessary to change the habits of the people. Such a change he believed to be possible, but it would necessarily be slow. He had long studied the problem, both in regard to Ireland and in regard to the west coast of Scotland, and he did not yet despair of a solution if the people of the three kingdoms would co-operate. If those concerned could but see wherein their salvation consisted the problem would slowly but surely be solved.

THOUSANDS OF SEALS.

Canadians Did a Big Business During the Season Just Closed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—Complete returns of the sealing operations of the British Columbia fleet for the season received at the Fisheries Department show that 39,547 seals were taken—an increase of 6000 as compared with 1889. Of this number 21,385 seals were taken off the coast of British Columbia and 18,165 in Behring Sea—a reversal of the proportions as compared with the past season. This is altogether due to the uncertainty which prevailed in the early part of the season among the sealers of British Columbia as to whether or not they would be molested if they entered the waters of Behring Sea. Twenty-nine vessels were engaged in the business this year. About 35 vessels will be in commission next season.

TORONTO TOPICS.

A Budget of Newsy Notes From the Queen City.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday an order was made by the Queen's Bench Divisional Court striking the name of George Denmark, solicitor, Belleville, from the rolls for non-payment of monies received by him on behalf of a client.

A meeting of the Benchers was held yesterday when it was decided to erect a new building at the north of the east wing. No gymnasium will be built.

While James Tyner, a corporation driver, was unharnessing his horse at the foot of Frederick-street yesterday afternoon the animal starting forward drove the shaft of the cart against Tyner's face, crushing in his cheek and knocking him down in front of the horse which trampled on him, inflicting other serious injuries.

Policeman W. J. Allen, who was so brutally assaulted in River-street by a gang of roughs on Monday night, is in a serious condition. His head which was so badly battered by his assailants, is swollen up almost beyond recognition, and should erysipelas set in the result would be fatal.

Firemen Saved His Life.

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—At 11½ last night fire broke out in the house of Samuel Cook, carpenter, 65 Evans-street. Cook managed to get his wife and seven children out and then returned to get his clothes, when he was overcome by the smoke. When the department arrived Mrs. Cook was running about screaming that her husband was inside. Foreman Thomas Wilson immediately pushed his way in and found the man lying insensible at the foot of a bed in one of the rooms and carried him to a window. Ladders had meanwhile been run up and the body was carried to the ground. Dr. Lackner worked on the man for over half an hour before he could re-useitate him. This morning he was better and will no doubt recover.

Heavy Losses to Cattle Shippers.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—Private cables received here to-night announce disastrous losses to the cattle ships which arrived in Europe from Canada to-day. The Series from Montreal to Dundee lost 600 head loaded by James Aiken, Port Hope. The Circe lost 300, the Escatoria 38. Thus, with the 854 lost from the Lunda last week and 151 from the Straits of Magellan, makes the season a disastrous one.

Mr Meredith Sworn In.

SARNIA, Nov. 18.—At the Chancery Sittings to-day Richard W. Meredith of London, recently appointed one of the judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, took the oath of office before Chancellor Boyd and assumed a seat on the bench.

Smallpox on Board.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The steamer La Normandie, from Havre, was detained at quarantine on account of an outbreak of smallpox in the steerage. She has 430 immigrants on board.

Sudden Death.

HAMILTON, Nov. 17.—Saturday evening Jesse J. Upfield, commercial traveler, 88 West-avenue south, arrived home from a trip apparently in good health. Sunday he felt slightly ill and took a walk as a restorative. In the evening he was taken suddenly and alarmingly ill and doctors were called. In about twenty minutes he was dead. Apoplexy was the cause of death.

The Failure of The North River Bank.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—State Bank Superintendent Preston said to-day the North River Bank would not resume and it is quite likely a receiver will be appointed to-morrow. The directors were unable to secure the required funds. The value of the bank's collateral is found on closer inspection to be less than at first estimated and there will probably be a deficiency of $100,000.

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1.25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season, our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

SLANDERING A PEOPLE.

In another column is published an extract from Grip satirizing those journalists and individuals who are everlastingly praising of their loyalty, making brag of it as though they had a copyright of this desirable commodity, and berating all those that differ from them on political questions as traitors of the deepest dye. Is is such mischief-mongers as these that inflict injury upon a country and bring it into contempt. Now, in a country like this there is no need to talk of loyalty or disloyalty—the great mass of the people are loyal to Canada and loyal to British institutions, though they may not think it necessary to go about making a howl of it, like the Empire and other disgusting illoyalists. If Canada were to be invaded by a foreign foe the loyalists would be found to be divided into two classes; one the great mass of the able-bodied male adults, who would rush to arms to repel the invader, and the other, (thank God! a very insignificant remnant,) who would rush home, and stay home, to tell through the newspapers how loyal the were, or more probably wrap the "glorious old flag" round their "recreant limbs,' and take rendezvous in a cool cellar. When one hears a man perpetually boasting of his honesty and parading it as a rare commodity it argues a consciousness of an utter lack of honest principles, and one had better keep his pocket buttoned when the honesty braggart is about. What faith would be placed in the virtue of a lady who found it necessary to be making boast of it lest others should suspect its absence? Nor does any loyal citizen feel the necessity of keeping his clothes-line in the back yard draped with the British flag lest someone should charge him with using Yankee cotton or with not being a subscriber to the Empire. There are no disloyal citizens in Canada except in the jaundiced brain of such newspapers as the Empire. The woman who traduces her neighbour, wearing a better bonnet and attacks her virtue, is no more a common scold and public nuisance, than a newspaper is a journalistic termagant because it falsely gives out to the world that the great mass of the Canadian people are traitors, because they express a desire to get rid of paying burdensome taxation to enrich pet politicians of the Tory party and "Red Parlour' patriots, without the shadow of a benefit in return.

THE Brockville Recorder advocates the organization of a Tariff-reform Association for the promotion of the interests of a fiscal policy to supplant the present oppressive high taxation system. While the suggestion is deserving of practical attention, it would seem in the light of the lesson of the United States elections, as expressive of public opinion on the McKinley bill, that such an association would only anticipate the tariff-reform that must speedily come from the working of the present tariff itself. The more stringent the application of the principle of protection the more quickly will its own destruction be brought about—as the farmers' boy would say, "give the calf enough rope and it will hang itself." Principle must in time vindicate itself. Unrestricted trade is a correct economic principle; protection is a policy.

Loyalist Arithmetic.

Grip thus touches up those ranting loyalists who make capital out of their hollow professions:—

Now that it has been determined to teach the principles of true loyalty in the schools, in order that Canadians may be imbued from their infancy with proper feelings of hatred and contempt for Yankees, Commercial Unionists, traitors, etc., it is felt that some changes in the school books in use are desirable. The patriotism of the youthful mind would be stimulated if, instead of the tame and commonplace examples usually found in arithmetics, others were substituted embodying strikingly loyal sentiments and ideas of Canadian superiority. Something like the following would probably be found appropriate:—

1. A Canadian army, commanded by Col. Denison, comprising 2,000 men, encountered a force of 10,000 cowardly Yankees—of whom they killed 1,025½, wounded 2,065 and captured 4,087. How many Yankees ran away?

2. An invading army of Yankees met a body of Canadians half their number and, taking precipitately to flight, ran, without stopping, 23 miles in 4 hours. Supposing they had met a force equal to their own, how many miles would they have run in 6½ hours, other things being equal?

3 A truly loyal Canadian patriot cheered for the Queen 1,502 times, made 347 speeches abusing the Yankees and wrote 729 letters to the newspapers denouncing annexationists. Finally he was awarded with a $2,500 office which he kept ten years. Supposing his speeches were worth twice as much as his letters and four times as much as his cheers—how much did he receive for each?

4 A protected manufacturer realizes $20,000 per year owing to the tariff, and a farmer has his expenses increased $175 by the same cause. How many times more loyal ought the manufacturer to be than the farmer?

5 If a loyal Canadian can lick an annexationist in two minutes, and a Yankee in three minutes and a half, how long would it take to lick both of them together, and how much would Denison fine him?

And the following might be added to the rules: To ascertain the amount of loyalist sentiment in a given community—add the square of the number of office-holders to the amount of the protection conferred on manufacturers by the N. P. minus the contributions to the party campaign fund, multiply by the number of Union Jacks hoisted on school houses and divide by the number of disappointed office seekers, plus the McKinley tariff on barley and hen fruit.

A Startling Contradiction.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says "a prophet is not without honour save in his own country," and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Instead it is expanded into the generally accepted belief that true merit, whether it be that of an individual, or that of some medicinal preparation is much more likely to meet with popular approval at a distance than at home. Nasal Balm, acknowledged as being the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, ever offered the people of Canada, affords a striking instance of the fact that popular opinion, for once, at least, is wrong. From the outset its popularity in the home of its manufacture has been unbounded and constantly increasing. In evidence of this we offer testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen who are known throughout the Dominion.

D. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville, and for the past two years President of the Ontario Creamery Association, says:—"Your Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh, accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies, but without avail, and well-nigh despaired of a cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results arising from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the droppings into the throat, sweetens the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel altogether like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should lose a moment in giving this remedy a trial."

James Smart, Esq., Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says: "It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse, and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm, and was relieved from the first application and thoroughly cured within twenty four hours. I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most skeptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents small size, and $1 large size bottle — by addressing FULFORD & Co., Brockville, Ont.

RAILROADS RUN IN HEAVEN.

Blasphemy of a Spiritualists—The Couple Jailed.

MONTROSE, Pa., Nov. 18.—In the criminal court here to-day there was concluded the most singular case on record. Olive Brown and her husband, Philander Brown, spiritualists, secured through their peculiar doctrines and manifestations such control over Paul Hill, an aged man residing in Brooklyn township, as to obtain from him nearly $3000. The Browns represented that they were in communication with the spirit world, that Jesus Christ was in need of money and that Hill must furnish some to be forwarded. Also that Hill's first wife, now in the spirit land, needed money for new clothing, etc. Hill from time to time furnished money, which was placed in a Bible in the presence of the trio. During the night the money would vanish and Hill believed it went to the spirit land. While on the witness stand Hill told of the manner in which the spirits instructed himself and wife to do various things and of hearing the spirits singing "I am so glad that Jesus loves me." They also heard railway trains running in heaven, and sawmills turning out lumber with which to build the heavenly city. Mrs. Hill often conferred with St. Peter and St. Paul and with Hill's first wife. After long deliberation the jury found the prisoners guilty, and they will be sentenced Friday.

Sudden Death of a Minister.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—Rev. George Jemmett, rector of Hintonburg, entered Bryson, Graham & Co.'s grocery here at 1½ to-day to make some purchases and almost immediately fell to the floor unconscious. Medical assistance was summoned, but deceased only lived 30 minutes. Death was due to heart disease.

Chauncey Depew on Commercial Union. Fatal Fall.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—At the Chamber of Commerce dinner to-night Mr. Depew, in his speech, touched upon the need of fair exchange between Canada and the United States. He thought the unifying processes of natural prosperity produced by Commercial Union would lead in a few years to political federation, which would carry the American flag from the Falls of Niagara to the North Pole.

A Labor Candidate Ahead.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—An election was held at Montmartre to-day to fill the seat in the Chamber of Deputies made vacant by the death of M. Joffrain. M. Lavy, the labor candidate, received 2343 votes and M. Lissagarie 2065. A second ballot will be necessary.

Poverty in Skibbereen.

DUBLIN, Nov. 16.—Col. Turner has just returned from a visit to the district of Skibbereen, which Mr. Balfour was prevented by illness from visiting on his recent tour. He gives a very gloomy report of the condition of the district. The inhabitants, he says, are for the most part in a state of abject poverty, especially in Schull, where the greatest destitution prevails.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

14,000,000 in One Day.

Purify Your Blood

importance of having the blood in a healthy condition is generally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

SIR WALTER SCOTT'S DIARY of Abbotsford 1825 & 1826 Vol. I.

Or I watched by myself
I watched by my lady
And how my self cannot be mean
Aldsworth

The long withheld journal of Sir Walter Scott, the Wizard of the North, and the writer of the most famous romance in our literary records, is now in type and will be published this or next week. The heading of this article is reproduced from the title page, and is a facsimile of the author's own handwriting in his diary. This journal was begun Nov. 20, 1825, in Edinburgh, when Sir Walter was in his fifty-fifth year and on the top wave of literary success. He persevered in the practice, with but few lapses, as long as he lived, and he penned the last entry at Rome in April, 1832. And now, after nearly sixty years have gone by, these thoughts of the great novelist when alone with himself are to be given to the world. The American edition will be issued by Harper Bros., of New York, and the advance sheets inform us that the journal is published in its entirety "exactly as Scott left it, but for the correction of obvious slips of the pen and the omission of some details chiefly of family and domestic interest." It is evident that there has been no modification of passages. It is also noticeable that Scott hated nobody. The fear of offending living persons, which is usually the excuse for delaying publication of a prominent man's diary, need not have been thought of in Scott's case, for he does not speak heardly of any one—except the autograph fiend. Of this tormentor of prominent persons he writes as follows in his very first paragraph, anent autograph albums:—

It is a most troublesome shape of mendicity. Sir, your autograph—a line of poetry—or a prose sentence! Among all the sprawling sonnets and blotted trumpery that dishonors these miscellanies a man must have a good stomach that can swallow this botheration as a compliment.

It may truly be said that a better tempered, less morbid diary was never published.

When the journal was in its third month, Constable, Scott's publisher, failed in business, and the downfall embarrassed Scott so greatly that he lost the estate in which he took unspeakable comfort and pride. Yet he writes bravely in the little book, which seems his one means of being alone with his own thoughts and feelings:—

I feel neither dishonored nor cast down by the bad—now really bad news I have received. I have walked my last on the domains I have planted—sate the last time in the halls I have built. But death would have taken them from me if misfortune had spared them. My poor people whom I loved so well! * * * But I find my eyes moistening, and that will not do. I will not yield without a fight for it. It is odd, when I set myself doggedly, as Dr. Johnson would say, I am exactly the same man I ever was, neither low spirited nor distrait. In prosperous times I have sometimes felt my fancy and powers of language flag, but adversity is to me at least a tonic and bracer; the fountain is awakened from its inmost recesses, as if the spirit of affliction had troubled it in his passage. * * * But I will involve no friend, either rich or poor. My own right hand shall do it—else will I be done, in the slang language, and undone, in common parlance. * * * Well—exertion—exertion. O Invention, rouse thyself! May man be kind! May God be propitious! The worst is I never quite know when I am right or wrong; and Ballantyne, who does know in some degree, will fear to tell me.

Then began the most wonderful, most remunerative struggle that an author ever made. Scott was working on "Woodstock," and soon afterward on his "Life of Napoleon." When he wearied of work or was apprehensive of the future he seems always to have discussed matters with himself—in the pages of his journal. Sometimes he introduces a character named Duty, who seems to have presided him and of whom he was much in awe, yet he talks of her amusingly and seems always in good spirits. Here is a sample:—

February 12.—Having ended the second volume of "Woodstock" last night I have to begin the third this morning. Now, I have not the slightest idea how the story is to be wound up to a catastrophe. I am just in the same case as I used to be when I lost myself in former days in some country to which I was a stranger. I always pushed for the pleasantest road, and either found or made it the nearest. It is the same in writing. I never could lay down a plan—or, having laid it down, I never could adhere to it; the action of composition always diluted some passages and abridged or omitted others; and personages were rendered important or insignificant, not according to their agency in the original conception of the plan, but according to the success or otherwise with which I was able to bring them out. I only tried to make that which I was actually writing diverting and interesting, leaving the rest to fate. I have often been amused with the critics distinguishing some passages as particularly laboured, when the pen flowed over the whole as fast as it could move, and the eye never again saw them except in proof. Verse I write twice and sometimes three times over. This may be called in Spanish the Dar donde diare mode of composition in English hab nab at a venture. It is a perilous style, I grant, but I cannot help it. When I chain my mind to ideas which are purely imaginative—for argument is a different thing—it seems to me that the sun leaves the landscape, that I think away the white vivacity and spirit of my original conception, and that the results are cold, tame and spiritless. It is the difference between a written oration and one bursting from the unpremeditated exertions of the speaker, which have always somethi[ng] [of] enthusiasm and inspiration. [I] have young authors imitate my [exa]mple, however; cuncta[n]ter non carrum [pe]rdas.

But no extracts can do justice to the book as a whole—to the manly, cheerful, tender spirit of the man. These two volumes are worth a library full of the literary Dryasdusts who generally write journals.

Tricycle Coaches.

The coming introduction of tricycle coaches on the streets has met with the hearty approval of a long-suffering public, whose hopes are now raised that the new conveyances will be a[t] one relief from the present slow-going street cars. The promoters of the new enterprise have been running a sample of the new coaches for several weeks, with a view to testing its adaptation to their requirements. The coaches which are to be used here, however, will be twice the size of that, carrying sixteen passengers, while that carries but eight.—Detroit Free Press.

The secret of success in life is for a man to be ready for his opportunity when it comes.—Disraeli.

Home-Made Standing Work Basket.

Every woman appreciates the convenience of a standing work-basket, but the expense of the frail, dainty wicker ones sold in the shops deters many from gratifying their fancy. Here is a pretty, ornamental little affair that can be easily made by any moderately clever person and at comparatively small cost, while it serves every purpose for holding work, and being "a thing of beauty" is therefore "a joy forever." The legs are formed of pieces of broom-sticks cut twenty-two inches in length and securely nailed together in tripod fashion. Any strong, flat basket about thirteen inches in diameter is then fastened firmly on top and the whole given two coats of either white or black enamel paint; while, if a very fancy stand is desired, touches of liquid gilt may also be added. The basket is lined with yellow, or any other light-colored sateen, one yard and a half being quite sufficient, and tiny pockets are neatly sewed on the sides for holding spools, buttons, etc. The whole is finished by three bows of ribbon, placed as in the illustration, and matching the tint of the lining.

How Much Soup.

A society woman: I have discarded my soup-plates and given orders that in the future soups are to be served in small tea-cups. I am indebted to a well-known French caterer for this, and when you stop and think how the best meaning people eat soups you will see the propriety of decreasing the quantity. One doesn't consider how much one is eating. The result is, where the soup is served in the usual soup-plates, one gets a dinner before the time comes for serving the courses. The teacup of soup obviates this. How many good dinners I have lost on account of the generous hostess who filled the soup-plate to the brim!

Shawls Turned Into Dresses.

White ghuddah shawls, with narrow border brocbes in white wool, are made into house dresses with lovely effect. Dark, handsome cashmeres and the fine Paisleys are made into combination dresses.

Velvet crossed with India camel's hair shawling ought to be elegant enough for any carriage dress. A dark shawl from Paisley blends well with a cocoa, camel or umber shade of plain serge. Plaid wool shawls, when a good tartan can be found, make most satisfactory and enduring winter dresses and cloaks. Two shawls make a full suit, one draped for the skirt, the other cut into a mantle, effectively draped.

Children's Dresses Lengthening.

The skirts to children's dresses are longer than they have been, few of them being up to the knees, as was the custom. Any color in vogue for parents is considered suitable for girls. Plaids are much worn, but plain goods and stripes are also seen.

A Sensible Man

Would use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. It is curing more cases of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis Croup and all Throat and Lung Troubles, than any other medicine. Self Application of Electricity

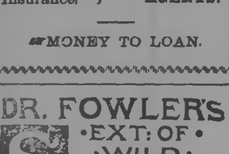
FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

DORENWEND ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments,

THE WORLD'S BEST.



ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfills the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. The Dorenwend Electric Belt and Attachment Co., C. H. DORENWEND, Electrician, 103 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. eod w

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home Institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

J. Braden, Esq., Secretary-Treasurer Brooks Manufacturing Co.:

DEAR SIR.—We have been using your carbons with our Bel Electric Light plant, and find them equal to the best American carbons, and have much pleasure in testifying to their excellence. We find them to last as long as any of the American carbons, using the same current.

Yours truly,

In proof of the genuineness of their praise of the carbons of the Brooks Manufacturing Company, the Belleville Company enclosed with their letter an order for a large number of carbons.

Those Military Cloaks.

At the end of every drill year the military clothing given out to the 57th Battalion is called in and stored in the armory. Some of the volunteers, however, neglect to return all their clothing, and every year considerable loss is incurred by this means. The men are particularly forgetful with regard to the heavy cape overcoats with which the department supplies them. They find the cloaks very useful for winter wear. Lieut.-Col. J. Z. Rogers requested Chief Reesel to take charge of any military clothing wherever he came across it. To-day the Chief saw a young man on Water street wearing one of these coats. He made him promptly disrobe. The overcoat belonged to No. 8 Company. The volunteers might as well learn first as last that all the military clothing must be returned; the Department will not be trifled with.

Meeting of Creditors.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. J. J. Turner, tent and awning maker, was held yesterday in the office of Mr. E. A. Peck, when the creditors agreed to take $50 a month during the winter, and $100 a month during the summer until the liability was cleared off. Port Hope property to be held in trust by the assignee for the benefit of the creditors. Mr. Gower, of the Bank of Toronto, and Mr. Campbell, of John Macdonald & Co., were appointed inspectors. The assets showed considerable of a surplus over the liabilities, but consisted of unrented hotel property in Port Hope, and upon which Mr. Turner had made a large expenditure this year. The creditors, whose claims amounted to $2,400, all showed a willingness to give Mr. Turner an opportunity of realizing on the property, which if satisfactorily turned over, will enable the estate to pay a good dividend, if not in full.

The Fatal Railway Crossing

Old Mrs. Detcher Killed on George Street By a C. P. R. Train.

The tragic ending of a chequered career was reached to-day in the fatal accident which befell Mrs. Sam. Detcher, an old lady well known about town. It appears that Mrs. Detcher, who is about 80 years old, decrepit, lame, and partially deaf and blind, was on her way up town, from her home on Wescott street, and came to the C. P. R. crossing on George street just after the express had gone eastward. A freight train was doing some shunting, and the engine and four cars were backing up from the bridge towards the station on the main track. Mrs. Detcher had crossed the other tracks and was creeping slowly over the last pair of rails as the cars bore down upon her. The train hands saw her danger and shouted a warning, but the poor old lady, hard of hearing, with weakened eyesight and stiff with age, did not realize her peril until

TOO LATE TO SAVE HERSELF.

She was knocked down, her body falling outside but her legs across the rails, and the cruel wheels severed the left limb near the knee and left the foot of the other hanging by a shred only. The train was stopped immediately so that only one car passed over her.

The old lady was picked up and carried into the baggage room, where she had the attendance of Dr. Scott, who happened to be at the station, and later on Dr. Yelland; but her hold on life was too feeble to withstand such a shock, and after living about an hour in unconsciousness, she expired without reviving sufficiently to speak. Rev. Father Rudkins was with her in her last moments.

Dr. Bell, coroner, was summoned, and he has called an inquest for this evening in the police court room. The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Comstock.

Mrs. Detcher's figure was a familiar one on the streets, and her history is well known to every old resident of the town. Mrs. Detcher and her husband were people of Peterborough, and were engaged in the hotel business for a long number of years. Reverses came, and their wealth vanished, and in their old age they were relegated to a little house on Wescott street, in the south ward, where the two old people have lived for some time, bearing their misfortunes as best they could. Mrs. Detcher was a little bit of a body, bent with age, and she walked with the assistance of a stick. Her many old acquaintances and those who know her history will cordially regret the casualty. The family consist of Wm. Detcher, of Auburn; Sam. Detcher, jr., of Rochester; Mrs. McGregor, of Ashburnham, and another son.

Now that a fatal accident has occurred, no doubt the town council will take up the question of protecting the street railway crossings with some purpose. Numerous complaints have been made, particularly of this George street crossing, but the council has so far taken no definite steps to guard against the danger. To-day's fatality will probably precipitate legislation which should have been EFFECTED YEARS AGO.

The C. P. R. company claim that they are in no way responsible for the accident. The trainmen say that they were backing up at the low rate of speed required by law, and tried to stop the train. However he may be, there is no doubt, as the EXAMINER has repeatedly stated, that the railway street crossings need gates, and it is to be regretted that the council has not acted more promptly in the past. No time should now be lost in securing the necessary protection.

Mission Band Entertainment.

Matrons, Maidens and Music—Eloquence, Coffee and Cake—A Very Successful Entertainment.

At the Mission Band entertainment in St. Paul's church on Tuesday night there was a fair attendance—fair in the best and highest sense, for the overwhelming majority of those present were ladies, reminding one of the millennial age when there shall be so much more good than evil in the world.

Promptly at 8 o'clock Mr. G. M. Roger, who performed the duties of chairman, began the introduction of the programme, which opened with a finely rendered pianoforte duet performed by Miss Fairweather and Miss Hall. Miss M. Patterson sang very sweetly the song, "If the Waters Could Speak as they Flow," followed by a well-spoken recitation by Miss Smyth, "John Jenkin's Sermon." The solo in solo of Miss Maud Edmison was performed in a manner which amply justified the liberal applause with which it was favoured. Mr. C. N. Brown, the ever popular Hibernian humourist, read in his racy way "Pat's Letter," and in reply to the recall he had to respond to, he gave "How Dennis Took the Pledge." This was followed by a brilliantly played pianoforte solo by Miss Weighton. Mr. A. L. Davis sang in most excellent voice the stirring solo of Henry Parker's "Jerusalem," and was warmly applauded and recalled, to which he kindly responded. A very nicely sung quartette, "Row, Boatmen, Row," was so well sung by Misses Cameron and Crane and Messrs. Crane and Nelson, that a repeat was urgently insisted on, and another aquatic song very well sung. A debate followed on the subject of the future of Canada, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun advocating "Independence; Mr. R. R. Hall "Imperial Federation," and Mr. R. Rose, "Annexation." Three really clever speeches were made, and the decision as to which had made the best case was left to the audience. There were 51 votes for Independence, 19 for Imperial Federation and 26 for Annexation. The votes of the ladies decided the question, and their declaring against Annexation showed a laudable amount of self-denial and settled the point, about which there might have been some previous doubt, that as much as the ladies may be in favour of Annexation, (especially in a matrimonial sense) they more dearly love to have their own way.

At the close of the debate, excellent refreshments—cake and coffee, were served to the guests of the Mission Band, bringing a delightful evening to a practically pleasant close.

News Nuggets.

—There will be a meeting of the town council to-night.

—It is dangerous to neglect catarrh, for it leads to bronchitis and Consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh in all forms.

The Captain Caned.

Captain Lee, of "D" Company, Presented With a Gold Headed Cane by Members of His Company.

Last evening the men of No. 4, "D" Company, Peterborough Rangers, gathered in the parlor of the Commercial House, and invited their commanding officer, Capt. R. J. Lee, to join them. The Captain was agreeably surprised at being made the recipient of an unusually handsome gold-headed cane, which was intended to be a practical expression of the regard and good feeling which exists between Capt. Lee and his men. Capt. Lee is deservedly popular with his company and with the whole regiment, and his friends both military and civilian will be cordially pleased to hear of the presentation.

The following address was read by Pte. Douglass:—

To Capt. R. J. Lee, commanding "D" Company, 57th Batt., Peterborough Rangers:

We the members of "D" Company, of the 57th Battalion, take this opportunity of expressing the esteem in which you are held by us, and the appreciation your efforts for the advancement of your men have met with during the past year.

Your genial disposition, your sense of discipline, and thoroughly soldierly and gentlemanly manner at all times have won you a warm place in our hearts which time will not efface.

You were always ready and willing to use your best endeavours for the promotion of any scheme which had for its object the advancement of the corps of which we form a part, as well as that of our own company.

We feel that we have improved under your discipline, and that under your command we have become imbued with some of those qualities which are the fundamental and necessary characteristics of a true soldier of Her Gracious Majesty the Queen, and trust that company "D" will continue to uphold the standard of excellence it has attained under your command, and that you will always have men in the company who will appreciate your efforts and be a credit to their corps.

We cannot allow this occasion to pass without offering you some token of our regard, and now present you with this cane, in the hope that you may long be spared to use it, and that many years will elapse before your connection with the company will be severed.

Signed on behalf of the men of "D" company,

SERGT. DISTIN,
CORP COVENEY,
PTE. DUNCAN,
PTE. DOUGLASS.

The cane, which was nicely engraved, was presented by Sergt. Distin.

Capt. Lee, in reply, said that, though used to addressing the men in a more military and formal sense than he had done that night he had always found a willing response. It was a great pleasure for him at the end of his first year's command of No. four company that any order that involved the discharge of duty had been cheerfully obeyed. During the past military year his association with No. four had been of the most pleasant and satisfactory character. Every member of the company had shown himself alive to the responsibility of giving his company a creditable standing for military proficiency. The members had been prompt and regular in their attendance at drill and had performed their duty like British—or what was, he remarked, perhaps better—like Canadian soldiers, and the result had been that No. four was one of the best behaved, one of the best drilled and one of the smartest and most creditable companies of the creditable 57th. He was proud of the high rank they had taken. Referring to the gift, he said he had no words to thank them for their kind remembrance and appreciated gift. He knew no reason except their pure kindness of heart why they should honour him. He took it as an expression of the fact that he had tried to do his duty, and he could bear willing testimony to their having done theirs, and when officer and men thus meet half way it was no surprise that they should meet on as pleasant grounds as they had done that night. In closing he thanked the boys again for their beautiful gift, and said he would always cherish it as a sign of reward for marching in the path of duty and as a happy memento of staunch and trusty No. four company.

Lieut. HAYES, of "D" Company, was also present and added a few appropriate remarks, proposing the health of Capt. Lee, which was drunk heartily. A social hour was afterwards spent.

Veterans of 1837-38.

Port Hope's and Cobourg's Honour Roll of Heroes.

An esteemed Port Hope correspondent writes: "In Port Hope there are three survivors of the Cobourg Rifles: Lieut. Henry Covert, aged 75; Lieut. Henry Howard Meredith, aged 75; James Calcutt, aged 70; and in Minneapolis, Minn., U S A., Henry W. Jones, aged 77, of the same company—and all that are left out of 60!

This company organized Nov. 1837, and offered their services to the Government to go to Lower Canada to aid against the Papineau rebellion. The answer was to march at once to Toronto, where the Mackenzie rebellion had in the meantime broken out. They were the first company to leave Cobourg, followed immediately by Capt. Jas Calcutt's, Capt. W. S. Conger's, Capt. Chas. Clark's, and a troop of cavalry commanded by Capt. Rogers, and Lieut. Thos. Scott. At the Rouge Hill there were lying in wait 100 rifle men (so we had information) commanded by Lount and Matthews, but when they heard that the Cobourg volunteers were approaching they hid themselves. Lount and Matthews were taken prisoners by some of the Cobourg rifle men, as were also a number who were escaping from Toronto in the stage.

There are in Port Hope, besides, Lieut. Ely Ward, who served on the Niagara frontier under Col. Kingsmill, aged 75; Bugler J. W. Stevenson, who served under Col. Fitzgerald at Cobourg, aged 62; Ed. Crowley marched from Cobourg to the Windmill, Prescott; and Sergeant Jas Collins, who went under Major Elliott in '37 and served in Cobourg in 1838 under Col. Donald Bethune. Crowley is aged 77 and Collins 73.

There were sixteen of the Cobourg Rifles in the cutting out expedition against the steamer Caroline. (The whole company volunteered, but only picked men were taken.) This occurred between Christmas and New Year, 1837. When the company returned we volunteered for six months, and served until disbanded.

I remember dismissly Sir Francis Bond-Head proclaiming that every one that had turned out to suppress the rebellion and defend the country against invaders from the United States, of which there were tens of thousands among the rebels, would receive one hundred acres of land or its equivalent. There was also a proclamation from the Imperial Parliament of Egg and to the same effect.

The Man Weighed, Not His Title!

I weigh the man, not his title 'tis not the king's stamp can make the metal heavier or better. Your lord is a leaden shilling, which you bend every way, and debases the stamps he bears.—Pickerly. "Diamond Dyes" have been weighed in the test scales of experimental experience, and have never been cast aside or rejected. The ladies have not simply judged them by their titles which they justly claim. They have given satisfaction in the most crucial tests, and their grand results have called forth the admiration of all. Not so with common imitation package dyes; they bear a stamp and various high sounding names, but deceive in work, and cause ruin to materials, and discord and discontent in every family who use them.

Charged With Seduction.

John Gilman, of Ashburnham, Arrested under the Charlton Act.

John Gilman, jr., of Ashburnham, was arrested this morning by Constable Craig on a warrant issued under the Charlton Act by Police Magistrate Edmison at the instance of Hannah Huffman, a young woman employed as a domestic in Lipsett's hotel. The girl, who has a strain of negro blood in her veins, alleges that in June last Gilman seduced her under promise of marriage, as a result of which she is now enciente. Being under 21 years of age, the charge of seduction was laid.

Gilman, who is a tinsmith by trade and has worked in Peterborough, was brought before P. M. Edmison this morning. He did not appear to think his position a serious one. He did not deny having seduced the girl but claimed that he never promised to marry her.

The magistrate asked him why he didn't marry the girl and avoid the disgrace to all concerned; but Gilman gaily replied that "he didn't have to."

He was remanded until two o'clock tomorrow, when the trial will take place at the court house. The prisoner was allowed out on bail, himself in $1 000 and two sureties in $500 each.

The girl, Hannah Huffman, is not unprepossessing appearance. Her parents live in Millbrook.

The family will have the deep sympathy of the neighborhood in their bereavement.

KOCH DISCLOSES TESTS MADE OF HIS DISCOVERY.

"The White Plague" Likely Soon to be a Thing of the Past—Full Text of Dr. Koch's Paper on the New Consumption Cure.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—In view of the widespread interest taken in the discoveries of Dr. Koch of a cure for tuberculosis, the following paper prepared by the doctor will be read with interest. It is a translation of the original article published in The Deutsche Medicinische Wochenschrift:

A Further Communication on a Cure For Tuberculosis.

BY PROF. ROBERT KOCH, M.D., OF BERLIN.

In an address delivered before the International Medical Congress I mentioned a remedy which conferred on the animals experimented upon an immunity against inoculation with the tubercle bacillus, and which arrested tuberculous disease. Investigations have now been carried out on human patients, and these form the subject of the following observations. It was originally my intention to complete the research and especially to gain sufficient experience regarding the application of the remedy in practice and its production on a large scale before publishing anything on the subject; but in spite of all precautions so many accounts have reached the public and in such an exaggerated and distorted form that it seems imperative, in order to prevent false impressions, to give at once a review of the position of the subject at the present stage of the enquiry. It is true that this review can, under the circumstances, be only brief, and must leave open many important questions.

The investigations have been carried on under my direction by Dr. A. Libbertz and Stabsarzt Dr. E. Pfuhl, and are still in progress. Patients were placed at my disposal by Professor Brieger, from his polyclinic; Dr. W. Levy, from his private surgical clinic; Geheimrath Drs. Frantzel and Oberstabsarzt Kohler, from the Charite Hospital, and Geheimrath v. Bergmann, from the surgical clinic of the University. I wish to express my thanks to these gentlemen.

As regards the origin and the preparation of the remedy, I am unable to make any statement, as my research is not yet concluded. I reserve this for a future communication.

A Brownish Transparent Liquid.

The remedy is a brownish, transparent liquid, which does not require special care to prevent decomposition. For use this fluid must be more or less diluted, and the dilutions are liable to undergo decomposition if prepared with distilled water. As bacterial growths soon develop in them they become turbid, and are then unfit for use. To prevent this, the diluted liquid must be sterilized by heat and preserved under a cotton-wood stopper, or, more conveniently, prepared with a one-half per cent. solution of phenol.

It would seem, however, that the effect is weakened both by frequent heating and by mixture with phenol solution, and I have therefore always made use of a freshly-prepared solution. Introduced into the stomach the remedy has no effect. In order to obtain a reliable effect it must be injected subcutaneously, and for this purpose we have exclusively used the small syringe suggested by me for bacteriological work. It is furnished with a small India-rubber ball and has no piston. This syringe can easily be kept aseptic by the use of absolute alcohol, and to this we attribute the fact that not a single abscess has been observed in the course of more than a thousand subcutaneous injections.

The place chosen for the injection, after several trials of other places, was the skin of the back between the shoulder-blades and the lumbar region, because here the injection led to the least local reaction—generally none at all, and was almost painless. As regards the effect of the remedy on the human patient, it was clear from the beginning of the research that in one very important particular the human being reacts to the remedy differently from the animals usually used in experiments, namely, the guinea-pig. A new proof of the experimenter of the all-important law that experiment on animals is not conclusive, for the human patient proved extraordinarily more sensitive than the guinea-pig. As regards the effect of the remedy, a healthy guinea-pig will bear a subcutaneous injection of two cubic centimetres, and even more, of the liquid without being sensibly affected; but in the case of a full-grown, healthy man 0.25 cubic centimetre suffices to produce an intense effect. Calculated by body weight one-fifteen-thousandth part of the quantity which has no appreciable effect on the guinea-pig acts powerfully on the human being.

Dr. Koch as a Subject.

The symptoms arising from an injection of 0.25 cubic centimetre I have observed after an injection made in my own upper arm. They were briefly as follows: Three to four hours after the injection there came on pain in the limbs, fatigue, inclination to cough, difficulty of breathing, which speedily increased in the fifth hour and were unusually violent. A chill followed, which lasted almost an hour. At the same time there were nausea, vomiting and a rise of body temperature to 39.5° C.

After twelve hours all these symptoms abated, the temperature fell and on the next day it was normal. A feeling of fatigue and pain in the limbs continued for a few days, and for exactly the same period of time the site of injection remained slightly painful and red. The smallest quantity of the remedy which will affect the healthy human being is about 0.01 cubic centimetre, equal to 1 cubic centimetre of the one hundredth dilution. As has been proved by numerous experiments, when this dose is used reaction in most people shows itself only by slight pains in the limbs and transient fatigue. A few showed a rise of temperature to about 38o C

Nursing as an Aid.

In many cases the decided impression was created that the careful nursing bestowed on the patient had a considerable influence on the result of the treatment, and I am in favor of applying the remedy in proper sanataria, as opposed to treatment at home and in the out-patient room. How far the methods of treatment already recognized as curative, such as mountain climate, fresh-air treatment, special diet, etc., may be profitably combined with the new treatment cannot yet be definitely stated, but I believe that these therapeutic methods will also be highly advantageous when combined with the new treatment. In many cases, especially in the convalescent stage, as regards tuberculosis of the brain and larynx, and ordinary tuberculosis, we had too little material at our disposal to gain proper experience.

Patients under treatment for the first stage of phthisis were freed from every symptom of disease and might be pronounced cured; patients with cavities not yet too highly developed improved considerably and were almost cured, and only in those whose lungs contained many large cavities could no improvement be proved. Objectively, even in these cases the expectoration decreased and the subjective condition improved. These experiences lead me to suppose that phthisis in the beginning can be cured with certainty by this remedy. This statement requires limitation in so far as at present no conclusive experiences can possibly be brought forward to prove whether the cure is lasting.

The most important point to be observed in the new treatment is its early application. The proper subjects for treatment are patients in the initial stage of phthisis, for in them the curative action can be most fully shown, and for this reason, too, it cannot be too seriously pointed out that practitioners must in the future be more than ever alive to the importance of diagnosing phthisis in as early a stage as possible. Up to the present time the proof of tubercle bacilli in the sputum was considered more as an interesting point of secondary importance, which, though it made diagnosis more certain, could not help the patient in any way, and which in consequence was often neglected.

This I have lately repeatedly had occasion to observe in numerous cases of phthisis, which had generally gone through the hands of several doctors without any examination of the sputum having been made. In the future this must be changed. A doctor who shall neglect to diagnose phthisis in its earliest stage by all methods at his command, especially examining the sputum, will be guilty of the most serious neglect of his patient, whose life may depend upon the early application of the specific treatment. In consequence, in doubtful cases, medical practitioners must make sure of the presence or absence of tuberculosis, and then only will the new therapeutic method become a blessing to suffering humanity, when all cases of tuberculosis are treated in their earliest stage, and we no longer meet with neglected serious cases forming an ineradicable source of fresh infections. Finally, I would remark that I have purposely omitted statistical accounts and descriptions of individual cases, because the medical men who furnished us with patients for our investigations have themselves decided to publish the description of their cases, and I wished my account to be as objective as possible, leaving to them all that is purely personal.

WAS HIS FLIGHT DUE TO FRIGHT?

An East Peterboro' Scoundrel Turns up at Lockport.

LOCKPORT, N.Y., Nov. 19.—Harvey Ames, a Canadian, arrived here Saturday with a pretty little country bride and registered at the Grand Hotel from Round Lake, Ont. Saturday night the couple were supposed to have blown out the gas and would have been asphyxiated but for an open window. Yesterday morning Ames left the hotel and has not been heard from since. His wife kept to her room and refused food, being prostrated by her husband's absence. She finally made up her mind that he had deserted her. Her maiden name was Emily Keetch, and she was sent back to her father, a well-to-do farmer.

One Man Killed and Several Others Injured.

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 19.—A collision between two jiggers occurred on the Northern between Cheltenham and Cardwell Junction with the result that one of the workmen, named Boilen, was instantly killed. The cars came together with a terrible crash, and the accident is reported to have been the result of shameful carelessness. Not only was Boilen killed, but a boy named Gilmer was very seriously injured and others more or less hurt. Boilen's remains will be interred by the A.O.U.W. and Orange Order. He leaves a wife and family.

Dr. Koch's Discovery Endorsed by Many Physicians.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—To-morrow's German Medical Weekly will contain an article signed by Drs. Bergmann, Fraentzel and William Levy and Staff-Surgeon Kohl in which they declare that after experiments in many different cases they are prepared to fully endorse Prof. Koch's statements regarding his remedy.

Some of the evening papers warn the public against the illusions entertained by many regarding the efficacy of Koch's remedy. They also complain that the stock of lymph is being exhausted. The Tageblatt says: Koch's procedure so far is open to severe criticism because he has only given his lymph to a few co laborers whom he could thoroughly trust to follow his instructions, while the great scientific establishments and hospitals are excluded from the benefits of the discovery.

The Tageblatt considers that the dissatisfaction among medical men and the many patients who are anxious to submit to treatment is quite justified and declares that the present arrangements must be altered.

The demand for the Koch syringes is so great that the manufacturers are unable to fill all their orders.

Herr Steiner, the celebrated tenor of Friedrich Wilhelm Theatre, who is suffering from lupus of the face, was introduced at today's meeting of the medical society after receiving an injection of the Koch fluid.

Two French Duels.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—M. Ephrusi, the well known race horse owner, recently became involved in a quarrel with M. Trelile, a journalist, which resulted in the sending of a challenge to fight a duel. The fight took place today and M. Trelle was slightly wounded.

A duel was also fought to-day by M. Laguerre, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, and a journalist named Lesinne, in which M. Laguerre received a slight wound.

Holland Aiding France.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A despatch from Brussels says: It is becoming manifest that the Dutch opposition to Great Britain's Congo State tariff proposal really aims at the transfer of the Congo State territory to France.

Fooling With Gunpowder.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 19.—While fooling with gunpowder a young lad named McInnes was terribly burned about the head and face.

TWAS A ROYAL AFFAIR.

THE MARRIAGE OF A GERMAN PRINCE AND PRINCESS.

The Russian ex-Chief of Police Murdered in Paris by Nihilists—The London Stock Exchange Recovers from Its Period of Depression.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Gen. Seliverskoff, a Russian agent in France, died to-day from effects of a bullet wound in the head. A stranger called upon him yesterday at his residence at Hotel Bade and half an hour after his visitor had departed Gen. Seliverskoff was found by his valet lying unconscious in his room shot in the head. A Russian Pole named Padlesky is suspected. He has disappeared.

The police believe the murder was committed while Gen. Seliverskoff was answering the note of invitation which was delivered by Podlesky, and afterwards Podlesky left the hotel unobserved. The report of the revolver was drowned by the noise of traffic in the street. One of the Nihilists arrested this afternoon has been released. Podlesky was in Paris at the time of the Nihilist arrest in February last, but he escaped to Galicia. The police have visited the lodgings of all the Russians implicated in the February affair and have discovered that Podlesky was one of them. In Podlesky's lodgings they found cartridges of the same calibre as the revolver used by the murderer. The act was undoubtedly one of political vengeance.

Another Russian was arrested to-night. All the prisoners decline to answer questions. Nothing is missing from the General's room and it is evident that theft was not the motive of the murder.

A man resembling Podlesky, the suspected murderer of Gen. Seliverskoff, has been arrested on the Spanish frontier.

The Marriage of Prince Adolphe and Princess Victoria of Prussia.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—Princess Victoria of Prussia, sister of the Emperor, was married to-day to Prince Adolphe of Schaumburg-Lippe. The ceremony took place in the chapel of the Alte Schloss. The Court Chaplain, Dr. Dryander, officiated. The Duke of Connaught represented the Queen of England and the Duke of Clarence represented the Prince of Wales. A royal crown was placed upon the head of the Princess by the Empress Augusta and the Empress Frederick as she entered the chapel. Her wedding dress was of cream satin brocaded and trimmed with costly lace, the train embroidered with wild roses and silver. The veil was of tulle, enwoven with silver and surmounted by a wreath of orange blossoms and myrtle. The chapel was filled with members of the Imperial family and of the royal and princely houses of Germany in their state robes, making a magnificent picture.

After the ceremony there was a grand banquet, at which Emperor William offered a toast in honor of the bride and bridegroom.

Quietness Restored on the Stock Exchange.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The stock exchange today was a prey to unfounded rumors. There is nothing in the monetary situation to create uneasiness. The Bank of England returns will probably exceed £14,000,000, and it is expected to reach £16,000,000 a week later. Every facility will be given by the Bank of England and other banks to borrowers on stocks and other securities. The country banks have ceased to withdraw money from London and there is every appearance that the sub-acute panic is over. There was a sharp rally this afternoon all around. Prices did not fully recover but the market was reassured and business, which had been practically impossible, was resumed even in the most speculative stocks. The money for the payment of the January coupons of the Argentine loans and the next coupon of the Uruguay debt is already in hand. The statement that bills drawn by Baring Bros. after Saturday would not be accepted is denied. They will be accepted as usual. Rupee paper fell 1 to-day. Argentines 1 to 3 and Uruguay 3.

On the Paris bourse prices were irregular. There was a general recovery toward the close, but an uneasy feeling prevailed.

Prices were unsettled on the Berlin bourse. At the close there was a moderate recovery, but the last quotations showed a general decline.

Yesterday was almost the gloomiest day that the stock exchange here has ever experienced. The feeling on the Berlin bourse was the worst in many years. The depression there originated in Vienna's sending unlimited selling orders to Berlin. The Vienna bourse was agitated. Austrian credit shares closed 9 florins lower than the noon quotations.

Almost Another Panic.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Loose statements regarding the position of the Barings again alarmed the guarantors to-day. The report that a manager of a joint stock bank had told a member of the stock exchange that loans might be restricted at the next settlement was magnified and sufficed to cause almost a panic. Once more the governor of the Bank of England and the Rothschilds stepped into the breach and communications passed between the Bank of England and other banks with the result that there is every reason to expect that the lenders will to-morrow announce that accommodation will be liberally provided. One of the best authorities in the financial world now emphatically expresses the conviction that the most of the depression has passed.

France and Germany are sending delegates to the Argentine committee. The Bank of England delegate only sits in the interest of the Baring guarantors and not with the idea of taking part in any means of relief.

It is also said that the customs and other revenues of the Argentine Republic are to be placed in the hands of an European trust.

Disarmed the Police.

MADRID, Nov. 19.—To-day was the anniversary of the riot of 1881. The students at the university refused to enter the building. They formed in procession and marched to the offices of the Minister of Justice, where they made a hostile demonstration. They then marched through the streets singing and shouting. The police drew their swords and attempted to check the progress of the mob but were speedily disarmed. The students afterwards gradually dispersed.

The disorder was renewed in the afternoon. The students marched to the Conservative Club, where they indulged in hooting and jeering. Afterward they went to the Liberal Club, where a portrait of Zorilla was displayed, and they gave vent to loud cheers.

Another Spy Arrested.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—A former employe in the French engineer service has been arrested at Bayonne on the German frontier on the charge of being a spy. He has confessed that he was hired by a foreign government.

COLBORNE, Nov. 19.—The family of Rev. George Carr had a narrow escape from death from coal gas Tuesday. Both husband and wife were unconscious, and Dr. Mallory had great difficulty in restoring them.

The Boy and the Gun.

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 19.—While Hugh Matthews was out shooting the other day he was struggling through some brushwood, when by some means the gun discharged when the muzzle was pointing toward Hugh's arm. He was severely wounded.

Collision on the Line at Scarboro.

The Midland mixed was run into at Scarboro yesterday morning by the express train. The engine of the mixed was slightly damaged, causing a delay of 5 hours. The train was backing into the siding at the time and had not got clear of the main line when the express came along.

Died in a Buggy.

COLBORNE, Nov. 19.—John Porter, stag driver, and his wife were coming into Colborne, where they are taking up their abode, yesterday, and when on their way noticed that their infant child was seemingly in great pain and on reaching Colborne were surprised to find that the child was dead.

UNITED IRELAND SAYS PARNELL WILL CONTINUE AS LEADER.

Dillon and O'Brien Receive the News That They Have Been Sentenced to Six Months' Imprisonment Each—A Telegram of Encouragement to Parnell.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19.—United Ireland says: "We do not desire to condone Mr. Parnell's grievous sin, but from Ireland, which he has served so long and faithfully with such dear devotion and such magnificent success, he may at least look for generous forbearance in the hour of his trial. To his praise be it spoken that he has not attempted to shield himself by perjury. He yielded to a temptation to which many great and wise men have succumbed since and before the days of King David. He has atoned by what, to a man of his proud and high spirit, must have been indeed humiliating and bitter. But to the coercionists' clamor for his dismissal from the Irish leadership Ireland's answer is sharp and decisive—"No"; Irishmen have no mission to judge his private life. Leave that to his conscience and to his God, who weighs the temptation with the offence."

LOYAL TO THEIR LEADER.

The Irish Members of Parliament Stick to Parnell.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19.—At a private meeting of Irish members of parliament in Dublin today it was unanimously resolved to remain loyal to Parnell. Great preparations are being made for a meeting to be held in Leinster Hall to-morrow.

The Lord Mayor will preside at the meeting in Leinster Hall to-morrow. Justin McCarthy will propose and Tim Healy will second a resolution of confidence in Parnell's leadership. John Redmond will propose a resolution of thanks to the English democracy for their support of Home Rule, while Mr. Leamy will propose a resolution of thanks for America's magnificent reception of the Nationalist delegates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The Irish members of parliament in this country cabled this evening the following message to their colleagues in Ireland: "We stand firmly by the leadership of the man who has brought the Irish people through unparalleled difficulties and dangers, from servitude and despair to the very threshold of emancipation, with a genius, courage and success unequalled in our history. We do so not only out of gratitude for these imperishable services in the past, but also in the profound conviction that Parnell's statesmanship and matchless qualities as a leader are essential to the safety of our cause."

This message was dispatched by T. P. Gill, M.P., the only member of the party here, but he acted on the authority of the entire party.

The Ennis Board of Guardians to-day unanimously adopted a vote of confidence in Mr. Parnell.

NATIONALISTS FOUND GUILTY.

Dillon and O'Brien Convicted and Sentenced to 6 Months' Imprisonment.

DUBLIN, Nov. 19.—In the court at Clonmel to-day, a verdict of guilty was rendered against O'Brien, Dillon, Patrick O'Brien, all of whom are members of Parliament, John Cullinan, Thomas Walsh, Patrick Mackler and Mr. Bolton, who were indicted on charges of conspiring to induce the tenants on the Smith-Barry estate not to pay rent. William O'Brien and Dillon were each sentenced to two terms of imprisonment of six months each, the sentences to run concurrent. Patrick O'Brien and Cullinan were each sentenced to six months' imprisonment, and Walsh, Mackler and Bolton to four months each. All the sentences were without labor. Father Humphrey, Thomas J. Canden, M.P., Daniel Kelly and David Sheehy, M.P., who were indicted on the same charges, were found not guilty and discharged.

O'Brien to Resign His Seat.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Mr. O'Brien and the other members of Parliament who were convicted to-day sent telegrams to Parnell expressing their fullest devotion to him. O'Brien also sent the following to Parnell: "In view of my six months' sentence my duty to my electors and colleagues and to you is to resign, so that Monaghan may be represented during the coming session of Parliament."

O'Brien Takes it Coolly.

BUFFALO, Nov. 19.—Dillon, O'Brien and T. D. Sullivan and others spoke in Music Hall to-night. They were presented with a check for $5000 from the citizens of Buffalo. Mr. O'Brien in the course of his remarks said: "So long as we know that in this mighty republic we have thousands, aye hundreds of thousands, of true-hearted friends like those assembled here to-night, so long, believe me, the task of laboring for Ireland and if necessary of suffering will be a proud and joyful task and my friend John Dillon and myself will go home to Clonmel jail, or whatever jail Mr. Balfour may assign us. We shall go to that jail, I assure you, with a happier and more tranquil mind than that which the Chief Secretary will enjoy in his place in Dublin Castle."

Balfour and the Nationalists.

SOUTHPORT, Nov. 19.—Mr. Balfour addressed an enthusiastic meeting this evening and he characterized Gladstone's recent references to the police, land cultivation and antilordism in Ireland as extraordinary fallacies and amazing fictions. He also said Dillon and O'Brien were following a wild career of misstatement in America. Their stories were concocted for the American market and their purpose was to extract dollars from credulous audiences. The course of events in Ireland, could the American people but know it, afforded a most striking commentary in the travelers' tales with which the fugitives from justice were regaling them.

Sang a Song on the Guillotine.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—A curious scene occurred yesterday at the execution of the murderer Schuster at Barmerstein, East Prussia. He begged as a special act of grace to be allowed to sing a couplet before the sword fell. Permission was readily accorded to him and he commenced to sing and continued his musical exercises until the quick swing of the sword severed his head from his body.

THOUSANDS OF SEALS.

Canadians Did a Big Business During the Season Just Closed.

OTTAWA, Nov. 18.—Complete returns of the sealing operations of the British Columbia fleet for the season received at the Fisheries Department show that 30,547 seals were taken—an increase of 6000 as compared with 1889. Of this number 21,383 seals were taken off the coast of British Columbia and 18,165 in Behring Sea—a reversal of the proportions as compared with the past season. This is altogether due to the uncertainty which prevailed in the early part of the season among the sealers of British Columbia as to whether or not they would be molested if they entered the waters of Behring Sea. Twenty-nine vessels were engaged in the business this year. About 35 vessels will be in commission next season.

It is a Mistake

To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood reaches every part of the system expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit

Although early in the season, our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to policy-holders continue to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefitting themselves by increasing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1890.

CONGRESSMAN MCKINLEY is getting pretty severely buffetted. His high tariff outrage is not only severely sat on by the electors, but he is also receiving little post election echoes like the following letter, which he has just received from F. Crane, representing M. Gebner, exporter to South America. It is from New York and reads:

To William McKinley, Canton, O.

As a non-partisan private citizen who is perfectly willing to pay his share of the taxes levied for the common good of his country, but who strongly objects to any taxes extorted from him solely to further your corruptional ends, and as an exporter who, likewise, strongly objects to difficulties increased by your corruptional tariff scheme in finding foreign markets for American goods, permit me to express to you personally my gratification at your defeat by the American people at the polls, coupled with the wish that the Republican party will not be long in purifying itself from the corruptional influence of you and your infamous clique. F. CRANE.

McKinleyism, whether in the United States or Canada, is detrimental to commercial prosperity. Canadians are long-suffering, but the high taxationists will find that there is a limit to their partial blindness in fiscal and trade matters.

Who is to Blame?

Will the Responsibility for Mrs. Datcher's Death be Thrown upon Anyone?—Opening of the Inquest.

"How and by what means Mrs. Mary Datcher came to her death, whether by accident, violent or unfair means, or through the culpable negligence or carelessness of others'—that is in brief what the coroner's jury is called upon to decide. The inquest was begun last night in the police court room, Dr. Ben, coroner, presiding. The coroner in his warrant made the sworn statement that to the best of his belief Mrs. Datcher's death was due to one of the foregoing causes. The question thus resolves itself into this—are the trainmen responsible for having run down a pedestrian on a public street, or the C.P.R. Company for not providing proper guards and gates, or the corporation of the town of Peterborough for not having notified the Privy Council that the crossing was a dangerous one and the railway company should be compelled to protect it. It is possible the onus may be thrown, partially at least, upon

EITHER OF THESE THREE PARTIES.

It may be shown that the old lady was, on account of her age and infirmity, partly to blame herself, but, in the coroner's opinion, taken upon oath, others are also responsible in some degree. However the inquest ends, there is no doubt the important question of protection of railway street crossings will be brought to a focus—a thing which should have been done long ago.

Mr. R. E. Wood, C.C.A., represented the Crown, Mr. McMurchy, of Toronto, (who arrived at eight p.m.,) the C.P.R. Company, and Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, the corporation. Dr. Fife was associated with the coroner.

THE CORONER'S JURY.

The jury was empanelled as follows:

A. MCNEIL, Foreman.

Geo. H. Howson,	F. Foote,
Jos. Picard,	R. McWhinnie,
K. G. Loch,	W. R. Greatrex,
W. H. Anthony,	P. H. Pearce,
W. A. Mason,	John Micklland,
D. Hunter,	John Irwin,
Jas. Fanning.

ADJOURNED FOR WITNESSES.

The first duty of the jury was to inspect the corpse, and the jurors in a body proceeded to Undertaker Comstock's warerooms, where the remains of the old lady were on view. This gruesome duty performed the jury returned to the court room.

Coroner BELL told the jury that he did not think they would be able to proceed further just then, as important witnesses were not present. He had arrested one a number of people who he had heard were present at the time of the accident, but on investigation it was ascertained that they had not actually seen the accident but were there a moment afterwards. It would also be necessary to have the presence of some railway employee in order to learn the position of affairs on the train before the accident occurred. The coroner thought an adjournment necessary.

There were several witnesses present who came in late, among them the railway employee who handled the train which caused Mrs. Datcher's death. They had been brought up from Havelock by the company to attend the inquest. But as the request of the County Crown Attorney, who wished to take the evidence in a systematic way, an adjournment was made till to-night at 7:30 o'clock to secure the attendance of other witnesses.

Young's Point.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SERIOUSLY ILL.—We are sorry to learn that our miller, Mr. Golborne, is suffering from a severe attack of inflammation of the bowels. We hope that his recovery may be speedy, and that he may soon be able to resume his duties here.

POST OFFICE.—The residents of Young's Point and vicinity have suffered a great deal of inconvenience owing to the lack of a daily mail service, and efforts have at last been made to supply the long-felt need. On Saturday Assistant-Inspector Jones, accompanied by our genial Warden, Mr. Casemen, visited this place to enquire into the matter, and as a result of his visit, it is very probable we will be supplied with a daily mail service.

ACCIDENT.—Some time ago, a son of Mr. Thos. Hunt, of Burleigh, accidentally fell and injured his hand. Little attention was paid to it at the time, until it became very much swollen, and when examined by our village doctor the bone of the fourth finger was found to be broken. The doctor very skilfully extracted a portion of the bone and dressed the finger and the boy will have full use of the hand.

STEAMBOATS.—The steamboat season here is about over. The Cruiser and Undine make occasional trips. The empress will be placed upon the dry dock at Burleigh in a few days and her machinery sent to Peterborough for repairs. The Mary Ellen is laid up here and is about to receive a thorough overhauling.

Springville.

Mr. Jos. Tully, North Monaghan, has relinquished agricultural pursuits, having purchased the stock of general goods and premises of Mr. A. Goodfellow, Springville, and will continue business of general merchan formerly carried on by Mr. Goodfellow. The EXAMINER wishes Mr. Tully much success in his new departure, and if he shows as much a lily and enterprise in mercantile pursuits as he did in farming, he will conduct a prosperous business. He is popular amongst all classes, and will doubtless do well in his new departure.

Barley Markets.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Barley—The offerings were limited from the market at prices about the same as quoted yesterday. There was a reduction in the offerings, so that without any material increase in demand the market was steered of consignments. Offerings consisted of from fair to good to common quality, with little or no really high grade lots to be seen. The outward movement has fallen off and to-day no withdrawals were reported. Stock figures given on the other side show a moderate decrease for the past week. There were sales of screenings at $17 to $ 8 per ton, and at 52c. for low grade or No 5 barley; No. 4, by sample, ranging from poor to fair, sold at 56 to 61c.; fair to good malting grades, inspecting No. 3, usually sold at 60 to 66c.; choice at 68 to 70c., and fancy nominally higher.

Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18th.—Wheat was fairly firm but dull during the first half of the session in spite of three millions increase on passage. Cables were strong, and there was generally a more confident feeling that the financial crisis had passed. The market, however was feeble, and gave way readily on various rumors of failure in New York, a rise in the Bank of England rate, and other similar stories. Trade was large, and recent buyers turned eager sellers. No important eastern failures are confirmed, but the feeling is again very nervous and unsettled, and the market closed weak.

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggists and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

14,000,000 in One Day.

Over 14,000,000 bushels of wheat were recently sold in New York in a day. What a monument of magnificent bread this would make if properly reduced to flour, and made into savory, sweet, palatable loaves with Imperial Cream Tartar Baking Powder. It is sold by all grocers. 2 th s-w

What is a Day's Labour?

ONE day's work for a healthy liver is to secrete three and a half pounds of bile. If the bile secretion be deficient, constipation ensues; if profuse, billiousness and jaundice arise. Burdock Blood Bitters is the most perfect liver regulator known in medicine for preventing and curing all liver troubles. 2w42d

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

DYSPEPSIA, that great source of misery to so many people, can be effectually cured by the use of Dyer's Quinine and Iron Wine. It is purely prepared, easily assimilated, and can be taken by the weakest invalid. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal. d116 importance of the blood in condition is generally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

ONTARIO'S LONE LAND.

REACHING ALONG THE HEIGHT OF LAND TO JAMES BAY.

A Country as Large as Many European States—Great Rivers and Lakes—Its Timbers, Minerals, Etc.—Marvellous Results of the Glacial Age.

IT IS PROBABLE that very few Canadians are aware of the vast extent of Ontario's great Lone Land, which stretches along the Height of Land from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the shores of Hudson Bay and James Bay. It is more than probable they do no know that the area of this great northern territory is not less than 73,000 square miles in extent. This tract includes what is known as the Height of Land, which is 500 miles in length by an average breadth of 70 miles—35,000 square miles in all. The Height of Land, where the parting of the rivers takes place, is not, as many suppose, a chain of mountains with sharp, well-defined ridges dividing the waters which flow South from those flowing North, but it is in reality a tableland or plateau, the average elevation of which is only about 1200 feet above the sea level.

This large territory belonging to Ontario, while now practically uninhabited, save by a few tribes of Indians, may yet see the day when it will hold a large population that will settle on the banks of its great rivers.

They may also be unaware that Ontario has a frontage of 150 miles following the shore line of James Bay.

That portion of the coast which forms this frontage is low and shallow. Unfortunately this 150 miles of shore line contains no harbor for vessels drawing more than ten feet of water. And yet another fact is in all probability not widely known, viz:—that some of the main rivers flowing into James Bay are navigable for a distance of from 50 to 100 miles from their mouth for vessels drawing six or eight feet of water.

Omitting the Great Lakes, Ontario now contains, roundly speaking, 200,000 square miles of territory. This is nearly double the area of the United Kingdom; only 12,000 square miles less than the whole German Empire and equal to the combined areas of Holland, Portugal, United Italy, Switzerland and Belgium. Thus we who live in Ontario can boast of a no mean country in so far as area is concerned.

There is living in Toronto, at 43 Walker Avenue, a gray haired gentleman, Mr. E. B. Borron by name, who during ten successive summers explored this extensive stretch of country, and it is to him that I am largely indebted for the brief fact given below.

He divides this territory into three belts or zones, viz:—1 The Height of Land plateau, chiefly remarkable for the number of its fresh water lakes. 2 The intermediate plateau or belt, note for the falls and rapids in all the rivers by which it is crossed in their course to James Bay, and 3. The northerly or coast-belt, the plain or flat country, largely covered with muskegs or peat-mosses, almost treeless (excepting those near the rivers,) and extending from the foot of the great falls or rapids above mentioned to the coast of James Bay.

Nearly all the great rivers, where flowing North or South, have their origin in the chain of lakes on the Height of Land plateau. Six of these great rivers having their sources on this plateau nearly a thousand miles apart, converge to such a degree that they pour their waters into James Bay within a radius of only sixty miles! The Albany River is the largest river in the territory and is navigable for a distance of 250 miles from its mouth. The Abittibi is navigable for 70 miles; the South Moose for 90 miles and the North Moose for 125 miles. The Abittibi and Moose rivers become one stream eighteen miles above Moose Factory, but, strange to say, their waters do not appear to mingle until both are lost in James Bay. No less than thirty large rivers run into Hudson and James Bay.

Moose Factory is situated on an Island in James Bay in the estuary formed by the Abittibi and Moose Rivers. Moose Island has an area of only 1000 acres and is perfectly flat. The settlement is on the south east side of the island and contains the office, warehouses and cottages of the Hudson Bay Company, as well as a church and School house.

Mr. Borron discovered several important and curious geological facts on his various tours. He found, for instance, that a large proportion of the clay and other loose materials lying on the height of land plateau must have come from the far north and that it had been carried in some mysterious way up hill! He discovered fragments of the Devonian limestone 150 miles from where that rock is found in situ, and, what is still more remarkable, not less than 500 or 600 feet above it! He further observed a variety of quartzite near Lake Winnipeg, which he believes to have come from the Eastern coast of Hudson Bay 1000 miles distant! The character of the loose material on the surface of the plateau, the rugged shape of the hills and ridges, the gorges extending for miles north and south—quarried by no visible hand out of the hardest of rock—afford convincing proof of tremendous erosion. It is evident that a sea of no 2,000 feet deep must have covered the height of land. Whence came the mighty propelling power to move such a prodigious mass southward? Mr. G Dawson, F.G.S., says that during the glacial epoch a polar ice-cap formed at the north pole which ultimately attained such a vast height that by the sheer force of gravity alone the ice began to spread and move toward the equator, thus taking inconceivably great quantities of rock and mud, miles from their natural quarries and grinding and crushing them into gravels, sands and clays, thereby forming the raw material for soil in regions where animal and vegetable life could exist.

While it is true we do not comprehend the vastness of our provincial territory, it is equally true that we fail to realise the expanse of water in the great Canadian Sea—Hudson Bay. Including James Bay, it measures 1000 miles in length and 600 in width in its Northern part, while its area is one half that of the Mediterranean! Hudson Strait alone is 800 miles in length and has an average width of 100 miles. It is a basin for the enormous area of 3,000,000 square miles, extending to the Rocky Mountains on the West. Both the Bay and Strait are remarkably free from rocks and shoals which might interfere with free navigation.

As to the timber in the territory, spruce and tamarack are the chief trees, there being only enough pine to supply the local wants of future settlers. The spruce often has a circumference of from six to eight feet. There are enormous quantities of spruce of useful sizes which are confined to the rich river bottoms. The maximum circumference of the tamarack is about five feet. According to Mr. Borron there are tracts of tamarack large enough for railway ties, telegraph poles and similar purposes. Good tracts of cedar are also found in many places on the Height of Land Plateau on the central belt. Though of no great economic importance at present, the spruce, tamarack and cedar must become more and more valuable after the lumbermen have exhausted the pine in the older parts of the Province.

Explorer Borron has also discovered evidences of vast beds of lignite or brown coal, iron, ore, Kaolin or china-clay, potter's clay and gypsum. He also sees a future for the utilization of the peat-beds in this territory as fuel.

Summing up his ten years experience, he has come to the following conclusion regarding the agricultural possibilities of this new Ontario. He believes wheat may be successfully grown in suitable soil in all that part of the territory south of the 50th parallel of latitude. Barley can be grown further north than any other variety of grain. The Northern boundary of our Height of Land is from 600 to 700 miles south of where barley is cultivated, even in Siberia. Oats will grow wherever wheat will, while rye will grow further north than wheat and on soils too poor and sandy for any other grain.

The fitness of both soil and climate for the growth of the potato has been established beyond dispute at the various Hudson Bay Company's posts. Its ability, too, to produce the more important roots and grasses has been proven.

The winters are, of course, very cold in this part of the world, the temperature falling at times as low as 40° below zero but occasionally rising to 90° in the summer, even down on the coast. Strange to say the quantity of snow is much less than that which falls in Quebec, while the snow fall at Moose Factory is not as heavy as that in Muskoka or Parry Sound.

QUEBEC, Nov. 18.—Count Auguste Gaudebois de Villeneuve of Paris and Mlle. Pauline Marie de Tanguerel, Comtesse De Villeneuve are applying to the Provincial Parliament of Quebec for an act authorizing Joseph Grance Gaudbois to add to his name that of De Villeneuve. The Count and Countess being childless, deputed Abbe Casgrain, the historian of Quebec, to select a healthy young French-Canadian boy for adoption, and little Grandbois, aged four years, is his choice. He is an orphan and a native of Saint-Casimir, county of Fort-Neuf. He will inherit forty million francs beside the title.

ON SOAP,

IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

THE CROSSING TRAGEDY.

The lamentable killing of Mrs. Dutch at the C. P. R. crossing on George street on Wednesday, brings into prominence the matter of providing gates for the railway crossings of the town. The position of the freight sheds with relation to this crossing render it particularly dangerous to pedestrians coming north on George street, and that of Hamilton's Restaurant, to parties going south, from the two moving east and west respectively. The Charlotte street crossing of the Grand Trunk, owing to the warehouse on one side of the tracks and the coal sheds on the other, is also dangerous. Now, it is not to be denied that there is danger of serious, or fatal, accidents at the above level crossings every day, or many times every day, and the neglect of the parties responsible for remedying the evil is criminal, and cannot be too strongly condemned. The town council should take its responsibility in the matter. It may be assumed that the railway companies will not move in the matter until they are compelled to do so. Aside from considerations of humanity—which do not seem to affect corporations to any extent—the business aspect of the matter should appeal to the railways—they run the risk of having to pay damages that may amount to much more than the cost of erecting and maintaining the gates. It is therefore the plain duty of the council to take immediate and vigorous steps in the matter. The death of a citizen indirectly through their neglect, should be a powerful stimulant to protecting the lives of other citizens, which remain in danger so long as these crossings are left unguarded by gates. There was a meeting of the council last night, but not a word of reference was made to the matter, though an end of it's mangled dead body lay only a few rods away. The miserably petty personalities with which a certain councillor started each, in the evening, aroused a spirit and created an atmosphere unfavourable to the proper conduct of legitimate matters. The capability of the council is grave when it permits one of its members to monopolize the attention and time of the council in, as in other member charged, efforts to promote his personal interests, and this, especially when the question of the slaughter of our fellow-townsmen being continued, demanded immediate and grave attention. The public will not be satisfied unless prompt action is taken to remove or reduce to a minimum the dangers of the deadly level railway crossings.

The Women's Missionary Work

An Interesting Meeting in the George Street Church—The Amounts Spent on Missions.

One of the most important and most active branches of the Methodist church work is that of missions, and every year vast sums of money are raised for the purpose of carrying the Gospel to the heathen abroad and the benighted at home. But the missionary funds are raised only by means of the indefatigable and zealous collecting labor of societies in Christian lands. Much of this work is done with the various Leagues which they wish to share with all mankind. Among these workers none are more devoted and energetic than the ladies of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, who last year raised over $25,000 for this cause; and the Auxiliary in connection with the George street church is one of the liveliest and most flourishing of the branches. Their annual public meeting was held on Wednesday night, and it attracted a large audience. Mrs. Kendry, president of the Auxiliary, occupied the chair, and there were associated with her the other officers of the Society: the First Vice-President, Mrs. A. Rutherford; Second Vice-President, Mrs. G. Monroe; Secretary, Mrs. Wm. Fitzgerald; Corresponding Secretary, Miss L. Sandercock; Pianist, Mrs. A. Bradbury. The following attractive programme was presented:

A Dental Feat.

When Dr. Bell was summoned yesterday to the scene of the fatal railway accident, he was engaged in a dentist's office giving chloroform to a girl who had twenty-two teeth extracted within half an hour. The girl was rather weak and delicate, but stood the operation well. The skilful dentist completed the operation within the half hour. Every one of the patient's upper teeth and a number of the lower ones were drawn—twenty-two in all. She was a plucky Miss to undertake such an operation.

Hymen at Port Hope.

Port Hope has been roused from its lethargy by a number of weddings, past and prospective. In stagnant towns like Port Hope Cupid has ample time and material to work his wonders, and a wedding creates more commotion than a dog fight in such busy burgs as Lindsay and Cobourg. Ergo, Port Hope is all excitement from the effects of a hymeneal epidemic. Weddings are of everyday occurrence. Last evening Mr. Geo. Watson, druggist, was married to Miss Hattie Dean. Two more marriages followed soon by in which Mr. Wilbur Curtis and Miss Winnie Hughes, and Mr. W. Mercie, of Lindsay, and Miss Bella Hadden were the contracting parties.

An Heiress in Gaol.

Mary Powers, the girl whose term in gaol for the theft of a fur cape expires to-day, may emerge from the gloomy portals an heiress. Chief Ruzell has information in his possession that may lead to the girl's recovering of a share of an estate near Rochester. Chief McKinnon, of Haimi on mide quiries concerning Mary Powers, who at one time near Rochester had recently died. Newspaper reports from Peterborough gave them information concerning the Mary Powers here, and a correspondence was begun. Chief Ruzell this morning interviewed the girl with regard to her relatives, and learned that her father lived near Fowler's Corners, her mother's name was Mary McKan and she had an aunt living near Rochester, from whom she expected a remittance, named Mary Hetherington. This information will be forwarded, and it will soon be known if she is the girl who is entitled to the property in question. Meanwhile, Mary Powers will remain in gaol until she learns more of her future prospects.

A Profitable Prisoner.

The cheapest job the county ever had done was the painting and graining of the woodwork in the halls and corridors of the court house. One of the prisoners paints and setters artistically, and he has employed the hours of his confinement to the county's advantage. He struck Peterborough late one night a few months ago, tired, hungry and penniless, and made his way to the police station. He was sent up to gaol as a vagrant, and as soon as his talent became known he was sent to work. He has over two months yet to serve, and by spring he intends to fresco the walls and ceilings of the main corridors. Nichols, by which name he is known to the police, is an adept at his trade. He came from England to this country eighteen years ago, and has since been "tramping" from place to place. Whisky is his bete noir—as fast as he earns money he throws it away on drink. He realizes the foolishness of his conduct, but says he cannot help it, and he accepts his imprisonment with cheerfulness, indeed, he prefers it to freedom, for he knows he is better off in a place where he cannot get liquor to drink. He whistles merrily as he goes about his work, and seems quite contented.

MORE WIND THAN WORK

At the Council Meeting Wednesday Night.

Routine and Trifles—The Edison Company's Siding By-Law Passed—Tall Talk About Telephone and Telegraph Poles—Notices of Motion—Three Hours Consumed to Transact a Half-Hour's Business.

A special meeting of the town council was attended on Wednesday night by His Worship Mayor Stevenson, in the chair, Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Winch, Hall, (E. H. D.) Hall, (Adam) Dawson, Rutherford, Kendry and Langford.

A QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

On the May meeting for the reading of the minutes being called, in answer to Mr. Rutherford, that the meeting was a special meeting for general business, and Mr. Rutherford held that the Mayor had no right to call such a meeting especially as two or three members of the council were absent. The Mayor held that he had such authority, and on Mr. Rutherford further urging his objection, the Mayor took a vote of the members present who decided that the general business should be transacted at the meeting.

After routine

The Mayor stated the meeting was called in reference to a by-law respecting the railway siding to the premises of the Edison Company.

The following

were received:—

From Mr. E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, respecting the tax on the Edison Company property.—Court of Revision.

From Messrs Dumble & Leonard, solicitors for Catharine Leonard, in regard to trespass on her property, corner of Wolfe and George streets.—Referred to the Town Solicitor.

From W. H. Robertson, requesting the division of the town printing.—Referred to the Printing Committee.

From John Bell, respecting the depreciation of his property by the building of a railway siding on Townsend street.—Finance Committee.

From F. W. Reily, asking for a license for shooting gallery.—License Committee.

From Sarah Carr, "Vine Cottage," asking remission of taxes on a dog that had been killed last May.—Granted.

From H. W. Keefer, local manager of Bell Telephone Co., asking permission to erect telephone poles on some back streets.—Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

From Susan Cornell, asking remission of tax levied on excess of assessment.—Court of Revision.

From Wm. Snowden, respecting a temporary wooden shed in rear of his hotel.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The following

TELEPHONE POLES.

During the discussion on the application of the Bell Telephone Company Mr. Adam Hall said he understood that the G. N. W. Telegraph Company had given permission to the Ontario Telephone Company to erect wires on their poles on George street, and this would interfere with the operations of the fire brigade in case of fire.

Mr. KENDRY explained that the Ontario Company's wires would be strung 31 feet above the ground—10 feet higher than the low-set limit prescribed by law.

Mr. HALL said that the Great North Western Telegraph Company had no right to put on second line of main poles. They had permission from the town for the erection of only one line.

THE TOWN PRINTING.

In response to charges made by Mr. Rutherford and Mr. Kendry, Mr. HALL said that he had not called a meeting of the Printing Committee because there had been no occasion to call a meeting, and no member of the committee had asked him to call a meeting.

Council or KENDRY charged Mr. Hall, (E. H. D.) as chairman of the Printing and Manufacturers Committee that he had arrogated to himself the duties of all the members of the two committees.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

Mr. ADAM HALL gave notice that at the next meeting of the Council he would move for the revision of the electric light decided upon at the last meeting of the council

Mr. KELLY gave notice of a motion at the next meeting of the council for an electric light at the corner of Queen and Hunter streets, and Mr. Hartley for an electric light on the corner of Aylmer and Dublin streets, and Mr. Cahill for an electric light at the intersection of Weir street and the G. T. R., and for another on Shuebrooke street west of Park.

EDISON SIDING BYLAW.

Mr. Moore introduced a by-law to authorize the C.P.R. to cross certain streets with a railway siding to the premises of the Edison Electric Company, and for a lease to the company of the right of way through certain private lands to be used for such siding which was duly passed.

ARCADE LIGHTS

Mr. A. Hall moved, seconded by Mr E. H. D. Hall, that two gas lamps be placed in the opera house arcade, to be kept burning all night.—Carried.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Moore, that John Robertson be assessed the same as last year by the assessor, as Mr. Dawson stated, having been omitted by the assessors.

GARMENTS FOR OUR GUARDIANS.

Mr. Kendry moved, seconded by Mr. Hurley, that the Police Supervision Committee have power to purchase four pairs of pants (each) and four rubber coats for the police force.—Carried.

TELEGRAPH POLLS.

Mr. Hall (Adam) moved, seconded by Mr. E. H. D. Hall, that the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company be instructed to remove their poles from their office on George street to Court the street.

A lively discussion ensued; the mover and seconder in supporting the motion advocated it on the grounds of the public benefit, in the interest of keeping George street free from unsightly obstructions and preventing the impoverishing of the protection of property on that street from fire, and both warmly disclaimed any hostility to the Ontario Telephone Company, as insinuated by Mr. Kendry, who, on the motion, as during the course of the whole session, had conducted himself in the most scandalous and, to speak mildly, ungentlemanly manner. His rude and unmannerly personalities and reprehensible insinuations of unworthy motives were severally resented, by especially Mr. E. H. D. Hall and Mr. Moore. These gentlemen, in stating that such insinuations came with ill grace from a man who had been the whole evening using his position in the council to promote his personal interests, were evidently not stating anything that was not plainly apparent to every member of the council present. The exchange of compliments was for a time very lively.

Mr. DAVIDSON favoured the resolution, not for the reason that he was in favour of this or that corporation, but out of regard to the public interests.

Mr. HARTLEY and Mr. DAWSON spoke briefly in opposition to the resolution.

Mr. HALL (Adam) in general reply to the remarks that had passed, said he merely wished to protect the interests of George street in the matter, without reference to any company.

Mr. CAHILL moved, seconded by Mr. MOORE,—That the resolution be allowed to stand as a notice of motion.

This motion was carried, and the council adjourned.

Personal.

Mr. Terry Smith, town teamster, left today for Marmora to attend the funeral of his brother James, who died at that place last night.

Mr. R. Bowker, of Toronto, supreme organizer of the Scptential Benevolent Society, is in town for the purpose of organizing a branch here. His advertisement appears in another column.

HARSH purgative remedies are giving away to the gentler action and mild effects of Carter's Little Liver Pills. If you try them they will certainly please you. dw

The Assessment Wrong.

Town Solicitor Edwards' Opinion on the Question of Statute Labor Assessment.

It will be remembered that last week the case of Jas. Whitehair was adjourned at the police court pending an expression of opinion of the town solicitor. Mr. Whitehair was arraigned for non-payment of the Statute Labor tax, but he showed that he owned property in the south ward and was paying the taxes thereon for his tenants. Under these circumstances the magistrate did not feel disposed to press the charge, but deferred judgment. This morning the police court clerk received the town solicitor's opinion, on the strength of which Mr. Whitehair's case was dismissed.

Following is the letter:—

J. G. Macdonald, Esq., town clerk, Peterborough:

DEAR SIR.—With reference to the cases of persons owning property which is assessed to a tenant and the owners themselves being placed on the roll for the statute labour tax of $2.00, I have to say:—1. That the assessment is wrong, because the owner ought to be assessed jointly with the tenant, their names being bracketed in column two, when the owner is resident in the municipality; and in such case the owner should not in addition be assessed for the $2 poll tax, unless the taxes paid are less than $2 for each of them. 2. That although the roll when finally revised is binding, yet where a manifest error has occurred the Court of Revision should relieve the party improperly on the roll, 3 That under the circumstances, I think such cases should not be pressed before the magistrate, but the attention of the Court of Revision should be called to them so as to relieve the collector of the responsibility.

Yours truly,
E. B. EDWARDS,
Town Solicitor.

Women.

When Eve brought woe so all mankind,
Old Adam called her too-mas;
But when she stood with love so kind,
He then pronounced her woo-man.

But now with folly and with pride,
To be husbands' pockets trumming,
The ladies are so full of whim,
The people call them whim-men.

The above composition is indeed ingenious, but here let us say that we cannot entirely agree with the lines of the second verse. Our extended experience leads us to firmly believe that men have more whims than women. Who has not seen a sick man and a sick woman? Have you studied their characters as sufferers? If so, you must have observed the great and wonderful patience of women, and the vast amount of impatience and fidgetiness shown by man. Woman is uncomplaining and suffers all only; man is loud in his complaints, and bluster his word because he suffers. Woman has faith and confidence even in times of great trouble; man gives away to fears, and is weaker in sorrow and trial. Almost the first to plant faith in that infallible remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, were the women of Canada.

It brought tidings of great joy to many a home but, where the dear mother through overwork, is languid, tired, sleepy, headache, and a broken down, system, was laid on a sick bed.

The dear sick wife and mother had confidence in Paine's Celery Compound, and in a short time was restored to her loved ones, strengthened and invigorated and able to minister to them with joy and pleasure.

Woman of Canada! ye who are suffering and who have not yet heard of this great restorer, go and do as your sisters have done; thy find new life, you too may secure it, and live anew to be a blessing to husband and children.

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Long Point Shooting Case Again in Court.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday a motion was made to quash convictions against W. H. Anderson and J. Duncan for killing a deer, the property of the Long Point Shooting Company. Anderson owns land adjoining the property of the company, and he and his friend Duncan, while out shooting on Anderson's land, killed a deer, which the company claim was their property. These gentlemen were tried before the police magistrate at Simcoe and fined $25 each and costs. The convictions were quashed with costs, the court holding that sec. 10, R.S.O., c. 221, under which they were made, was not wide enough to sustain them.

At a meeting of the House of Industry Board yesterday it was reported that 760 men and 83 women had been given temporary shelter and food since April 1.

Thomas Sheahen, 44 Turner-avenue, who is reputed to be worth $10,000, is in a cell at headquarters on suspicion of stealing two bars of pig iron found in his possession.

Mr. James W. Jacobs, who has been living in Toronto for the past two years, died yesterday from the effects of inflammation of the bladder. For ten years before he settled in this city Mr. Jacobs kept the Dominion Hotel, Huntsville, and was favorably known to the summer tourists in Muskoka.

Mr. Orson J. Phelps, ex-M.P.P., has been appointed sheriff of Simcoe in place of Mr. Thomas McConkey, deceased. Mr. Phelps is a lumberman by occupation. In 1881 he was warden of the County of Simcoe, and for several years was councillor and reeve of Orillia and Flos townships. In 1879 he was an unsuccessful candidate for a seat in the Local House, but in 1886 he was returned for West Simcoe and was re-elected for the same constituency. He retired at the last general election.

With all the honors prescribed by Salvation Army ritual and with every mark of respect the remains of Captain Cooper, S.A., were interred yesterday afternoon in the Army's plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. A short service was held in "Happy Bill's" late residence. The advance guard was composed of male cadets. The body was carried on the army's gun carriage, drawn by four horses. There was an immense turnout of local Salvationists and many from neighboring towns. Nearly all the Canadian staff was present. There was nothing gloomy about the entire proceedings. The marches played—full of thanksgiving, faith and hope—were from the S.A. song-book.

Guilty Love and Tragic Death of the Parties.

ELMIRA, N.Y., Nov. 19.—The bodies of A. L. Pierce and Miss Lou Woodward were found in the woods near Williawanna, a small station on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, not far from here, this afternoon. They were locked in each other's arms and a bullet hole in the temple of each and a revolver lying near by showed that Pierce had probably first shot the girl and then himself. He was about 35 years of age and married. She was 17 and single.

The present day is particularly marked by the cruel heartlessness of parents. The other day we had a Lindsay father trying to palm off his baby on the Peterborough public, and now now we have the case of a London street mother, who would never rest till she had got rid of her longing for bawley brew,' tea by buying a large supply. She could get no other that had such splendid flavour and strength, combined with cheapness of price. This is a pointer for you, thirsty reader.

ONTARIO'S LONE LAND.

REACHING ALONG THE HEIGHT OF LAND TO JAMES BAY.

A Country as Large as Many Loose European States—Great Rivers and Lakes—Its Timbers, Minerals, Etc.—Marvellous Results of the Glacial Age.

IT IS PROBABLE that very few Canadians are aware of the vast extent of Ontario's great Lone Land, which stretches along the Height of Land from the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the shores of Hudson Bay and James Bay. It is more than probable they do no know that the area of this great northern territory is not less than 75,000 square miles in extent. This tract includes what is known as the Height of Land, which is 500 miles in length by an average breadth of 70 miles—35,000 square miles in all. The Height of Land, where the parting of the rivers takes place, is not, as many suppose, a chain of mountains with sharp, well-defined ridges dividing the waters which flow South from those flowing North, but it is in reality a tableland or plateau, the average elevation of which is only about 1200 feet above the sea level.

This large territory belonging to Ontario, while now practically uninhabited, save by a few tribes of Indians, may yet see the day when it will hold a large population that will settle on the banks of its great rivers.

They may also be unaware that Ontario has a frontage of 150 miles following the shore line of James Bay.

That portion of the coast which forms this frontage is low and shallow. Unfortunately this 150 miles of shore line contains no harbor for vessels drawing more than ten feet of water. And yet another fact is in all probability not widely known, viz.:—that some of the main rivers flowing into James Bay are navigable for a distance of from 50 to 100 miles from their mouth for vessels drawing six or eight feet of water.

Omitting the Great Lakes, Ontario now contains, roundly speaking, 350,000 square miles of territory. This is nearly double the area of the United Kingdom; only 12,000 square miles less than the whole German Empire and equal to the combined areas of Holland, Portugal, United Italy, Switzerland and Belgium. Thus we who live in Ontario can boast of a no mean country in so far as area is concerned.

There is living in Toronto, at 45 Walker Avenue, a gray haired gentleman, Mr. E. B. Borron by name, who during ten successive summers explored this extensive stretch of country, and it is to him that I am largely indebted for the brief fact given below.

He divides this territory into three belts or zones, viz:—1 The Height of Land plateau, chiefly remarkable for the number of its fresh water lakes. 2 The intermediate plateau at least, note for the falls and rapids in all the rivers by which it is crossed in their course to James Bay, and 3. The northerly coast-belt, the plain or flat country, largely covered with muskegs or peat-swamps, almost treeless excepting those near the rivers, and extending from the foot of the great falls or rapids above mentioned to the coast of James Bay.

Nearly all the great rivers, where flowing North or South, have their origin in the chain of lakes on the Height of Land plateau. Six of these great rivers having their sources on this plateau nearly a thousand miles apart, converge to such a degree that they pour their waters into James Bay within a radius of only sixty miles. The Albany River is the largest river in the territory and is navigable for a distance of 200 miles from its mouth. The Abittibi is navigable for 70 miles; the South Moose for 90 miles and the North Moose for 125 miles. The Abittibi and Moose rivers become one stream eighteen miles above Moose Factory, but, strange to say, their waters do not appear to mingle until both are lost in James Bay. No less than thirty large rivers run into Hudson and James Bay.

Moose Factory is situated on an Island in James Bay in the estuary formed by the Abittibi and Moose Rivers. Moose Island has an area of only 1000 acres and is perfect ly flat. The settlement is on the south east side of the Island and contains the office, warehouses and cottages of the Hudson Bay Company, as well as a church and School house.

Mr. Borron discovered several important and curious geological facts on his various tours. He found, for instance, that a large proportion of the clay and other loose materials lying on the height of land plateau must have come from the far north and that it had been carried in some mysterious way up hill. He discovered fragments of the Devonian lime stone formation from where that rock is found 150 miles, and, what is still more remarkable, not less than 500 or 600 miles away. He further discovered a variety of quartzite near Lake Winnetaka which he believes to have come from the Eastern coast of Hudson Bay 1000 miles distant. The character of the loose material on the surface of the plateau, the rugged shape of the hills and ridges, the gorges extending for miles north and south—quarried by no visible hand out of the hardest of rock—afford convincing proof of tremendous erosion. It is evident that a sea of ice 2000 feet deep must have covered the height of land. Whence came the mighty propelling power to move such a prodigious mass southward? Mr. C. Darwin, F. G. S., says that during the glacial epoch a polar ice-cap formed at the north pole which ultimately attained such a vast height that by the sheer force of gravity alone the ice began to spread and move toward the equator, thus taking inconceivably great quantities of rock and mud, miles from their natural quarries and grinding and crushing them into gravels, sands and clays, thereby forming the raw material for soil in regions where animal and vegetable life could exist.

While it is true we do not comprehend the vastness of our provincial territory, it is equally true that we fail to realize the expanse of water in the great Canadian Sea—Hudson Bay. Including James Bay, it measures 1000 miles in length and 600 in width in its Northern part, while its area is one half that of the Mediterranean! Hudson Strait alone is 800 miles in length and has an average width of 100 miles. It is a basin for the enormous area of 3,000,000 square miles, extending to the Rocky Mountains on the West. Both the Bay and Strait are remarkably free from rocks and shoals which might interfere with free navigation.

As to the timber in the territory, spruce and tamarack are the chief trees, there being only enough pine to supply the local wants of future settlers. The spruce often has a circumference of from six to eight feet. There are enormous quantities of spruce of useful sizes which are confined to the rich river bottoms. The maximum circumference of the tamarack is about five feet. According to Mr. Borron there are tracts of tamarack large enough for railway ties, telegraph poles and similar purposes. Good tracts of cedar are also found in many places on the Height of Land Plateau on the central belt. Though of no great economic importance at present, the spruce, tamarack and cedar must become more and more valuable after the lumbermen have exhausted the pine in the older parts of the Province.

Explorer Borron has also discovered evidences of vast beds of lignite or brown coal, iron, ore, Kaolin or china-clay, potter's clay and gypsum. He also sees a future for the utilization of the peat-beds in this territory as fuel.

Summing up his ten years experience, he has come to the following conclusion regarding the agricultural possibilities of this new Ontario. He believes wheat may be successfully grown in suitable soil in all that part of the territory south of the 50th parallel of latitude. Barley can be grown further north than any other variety of grain. The Northern boundary of our Height of Land is from 400 to 700 miles south of where barley is cultivated, even in Siberia. Oats will grow wherever wheat will, while rye will grow further north than wheat and on soils too poor and sandy for any other grain.

The fitness of both soil and climate for the growth of the potato has been established beyond dispute at the various Hudson Bay Company's posts. Its ability, too, to produce the more important roots and grasses has been proven.

The winters are, of course, very cold in this part of the world, the temperature falling at times as low as 40° below zero but occasionally rising to 90° in the summer, even down on the coast. Strange to say the quantity of snow is much less than that which falls in Quebec, while the snow fall at Moose Factory is not as heavy as that in Muskoka or Parry Sound.

The Count and Countess being childless, deputed Abbe Casgrain, the historian of Quebec, to select a healthy young French-Canadian boy for adoption, and little Grandbois, aged four years, is his choice. He is an orphan and a native of Saint-Casimir, county of Fort-Neuf. He will inherit forty million francs beside the title.

ON SOAP,

IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

A SUICIDE'S AWFUL ACT.

ATE AN APPLE BESPRINKLED WITH RAT POISON.

Repenting of His Deed He Prays for Life, but Dies a Few Hours Afterwards in Excruciating Agony.

CONCORD, Nov. 20.—On Tuesday this town was the scene of a suicide, the particulars of which are very sad. The victim, W. A. Taft, aged 54 years, arrived here from Toronto a few weeks ago to spend a few weeks with his brother, Mr. J. W. Taft. About 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning the unfortunate young man left his brother's house to take a walk. Going down by the lakeshore, east of the town, he took some apples and a box of rat poison, which he had previously put in his pocket, and cutting up the apples spread the poison upon the pieces and ate them. Below the Kingston crossing he crawled into a barn, where he expected to die, but the poison did not take effect as quickly as he expected it would, and he spent the hours of the afternoon in terrible pain. Finding that death was slow in coming he began to repent of the act he had committed and decided to return to his brother's house. He was very weak, and but for the aid of a man who gave him a ride from the crossing would never have reached the house alive. He got there about 6½ in the evening and at once confessed what he had done. Dr. Douglas was summoned and found the man in a state of collapse. There was scarcely a flicker perceptible in his [illegible]. He remained sensible for about two hours, when his heart ceased to beat. There is no doubt Taft was suffering from mental despondency. Three years ago he left the mounted police, to which he belonged. He has been in a bad state of health ever since and in the hospital repeatedly. He imagined that he was afflicted with all kinds of diseases. His mother lives at Rosemore, near Belleville.

While in Toronto Taft was employed as a bartender for John F. Scholes. He resided in that city six or seven months.

THE WHITE PLAGUE LYMPH.

The Process by Which the Remedy is Obtained.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Dr. Horwitz, city editor of The National Zeitung, which is the only newspaper in Professor Koch's confidence, said to-day that the scarcity of guinea pigs was the reason why no lymph was available. Over 500 of the animals are now being used to obtain a further supply of the lymph.

The lymph is prepared in an incubating stove within an air-tight space. This is hermetically sealed and sterilized and thereby rendered free from fungus. The interior of the air-tight space is divided by an unglazed porcelain diaphragm into an upper and lower section. In the upper section is placed a salted meat broth in a gelatinous state containing colonies of the tuberous germ. This mass gradually liquifies and the gelatine liquid drops slowly through the porcelain plate into the lower section. The liquid then contains all the secretory products, but is free from all living or dead germs or reproductive spores and is the lymph as used.

By the injection of the lymph the tubercule germ is killed and at the same time the injection particles retain sufficient strength to detach and expel the dead germs, together with the dead tissue. The reparative process ensues and healing follows.

Dr. Koch Knighted.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Emperor William has bestowed the Grand Cross of the Order of the Red Eagle upon Prof. Koch.

Three patients treated by the Koch method are reported dead. They were all in a critical condition before they received the injection.

Physicians are agreed that Dr. Koch's tuberculosis remedy proves effective only in the treatment of mild cases of the disease.

Is Cancer Also Curable?

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—Prof. Billroth of this city entertains strong hopes of being able to perform effectual cures in cases of cancer. The professor has made this malady his especial study for years, and his operations are widely known in the medical profession. He is now convinced, from recent experience, that cancer is caused by infection and that it is bacillic in its nature.

"For Ways That are Dark, Etc."

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—The members of the firm of Tong Yong & Co., one of the most extensive Chinese mercantile houses and labor contractors on the Pacific coast, have fled to China with $40,000, the wages of 200 Chinese fishermen who recently returned from Alaska. Gong Hoh Yen and Haw Me Sen comprise the firm, which was next to the "Six Companies" in importance. The absconders owe other creditors $20,000, making their liabilities $60,000. There was a riot in Chinatown last night as a result of the absconding of the contractors. The Chinese fishermen are left penniless after a whole season's work, and 300 marched to the store of Tong Fong, one of the labor contractors' bondsmen, and forcibly took possession. About 50 of them closed the heavy iron doors and declared they would remain inside until they received their wages. After a hard fight the Chinese were dispersed. Serious trouble is anticipated. Tong Fong's store is still in possession of the rioters.

Burglars at Markham.

MARKHAM, Nov. 20.—Burglars broke into the Markham railway station and unsuccessfully attempted to drill the safe. They opened a number of express parcels, but all the plunder carried off consisted of 25 cents in coppers and a new suit of clothes worth $40 belonging to the watchman. An unsuccessful attempt was also made to rob Goodwood station.

Found Dead in Bed.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 20.—Elias Scott was found dead in bed yesterday morning at the residence of her brother-in-law, John Hooper. Deceased was subject to epilepsy and this doubtless was the cause of death. Deceased was 80 years of age, and her parents live in Brantford. Last spring she wandered away from home and was missing for several days.

Faster Train Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The Postoffice department has made arrangements for a mail train which will be faster than any run heretofore. It will run over the New York Central & Lake Shore and will cover the distance between New York and Chicago in 24 hours. The new train will be made up wholly of postal cars.

PARNELL SPEAKS AT LAST.

WILL CONTINUE AS LEADER OF THE PARTY.

Comments Favorable and Adverse From Friend and Foe Alike—John Morley at Sheffield.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Mr. Parnell has sent to several of his colleagues a communication to the effect that as long as he is supported by his colleagues and the Irish people he will remain at the helm. He says he has never sought either office or reward of any kind from any English party, and he does not seek their assistance now. The Irish people, not the English politicians, must decide the question of the leadership of the Nationalist Party. At the present critical juncture he would be false to his duty to Ireland if he should desert his position because of private matters with which politics have no concern. When his mission is accomplished and justice has been won for Ireland after her long struggle against overwhelming odds, the people may choose whom they will to conduct their local affairs. If they desire others as leaders they will be able to select the men of their choice.

The Labor World on Parnell.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Labor World hold that those who argue that the control of the Irish party is the sole affair of the Irish people, and that nothing will be involved or jeopardized if they do not repudiate Parnell's leadership, unconsciously play into the hands of the enemies of Home Rule. Others with surpassing extraordinary ignorance of the necessities of this political crisis and with the wild extravagance of blind zeal say that Parnell as a Protestant is not morally responsible to the Catholics. Those who advance the latter argument, says The Labor World, are shaking the very foundations upon which Home Rule stands in England. The paper adds: "Mr. Parnell is asked to make a small sacrifice in return for the sacrifices that a confiding and generous people have made for him. He must not consider his own political future in this crisis, but what is the best course to adopt in the interest of Home Rule in England. He must remember that he defied Irish popular sentiment when he rode roughshod over the feelings and opinions of his own party, when in 1886, in the presence of another crisis, he thrust O'Shea upon the electors of Galway. The wounds there by inflicted upon the minds of his ablest followers are yet unhealed. Loyalty to the union and fidelity to the cause compelled his colleagues to gulp down their indignation. Will Mr. Parnell ask a similar sacrifice from his Home Rule friends in England?"

The Nationalist Convention.

DUBLIN, Nov. 20.—In the convention of Nationalists of County Galway to-day, 50 priests being present, Sir Thomas Esmonde, M.P. for Dublin county south, said the Irish would be the greatest of fools if they changed their leader. Commoners Sheehy, Nolan and other speakers endorsed the sentiment.

The statement is made in Nationalist circles here that Parnell will resign his seat in Parliament at the end of the session and will offer himself for re-election.

At the great Nationalist meeting held here to day Mr. Kenny, M.P., read a telegram from the Irish delegates now in America, in which they expressed their staunch adherence to Parnell.

The Lord Mayor made the opening address. He said the only crime of which Ireland would take notice was one that Parnell was incapable of committing, namely, treason to Ireland.

Justin McCarthy, in moving a vote of confidence in Parnell, said he did not ignore the serious nature of the question they had to encounter, but he was sure it would not cost them a single friend who had supported them from the first.

Timothy Healy, in seconding McCarthy's motion, said that for 10 times Parnell was less a man than an institution. If Parnell resigned he would immediately be re-elected. If the Irish party disobeyed their leader they would see a pretty mess working in Parliament for Ireland—a party containing Socialists, land reformers and others, with whom they were not in sympathy.

The Mayor of Cork and others supported Mr. McCarthy's resolution, which was carried amid great excitement. Sir Thomas Esmonde, Messrs. Redmond and Leamy and other Nationalists made speeches.

Parnell and Dilke.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A split chamberlain, referring to the Dilke divorce, says the offence of Sir Charles Dilke was less than that of Parnell, for on the confession of a bad woman the former was driven from the Liberal party. If Parnell is to remain their colleague Mr. Gladstone and his lieutenants had better reconsider their course towards Sir Charles Dilke.

Sinned as Much Against Ireland as Against Morality.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Journal Irish Catholic says: "Mr. Parnell has wounded deeply the moral and religious sense of the people. He has sinned nearly as much against Ireland as against morality. He has needlessly created what may be a barrier to the national movement."

MORLEY AT SHEFFIELD.

He Replies to Balfour and Deals With the Parnell Case.

SHEFFIELD, Nov. 20.—Mr. Morley addressed a meeting of the Liberal Federation today, 2,000 delegates were present. Mr. Morley declared that public opinion was strongly in favor of an eight-hour limit for miners work. The Liberals, he said, must determine whether the state ought to intervene in this matter. He did not oppose state intervention whenever it was proved that such intervention could achieve good ends.

Referring to General Booth's scheme he spoke in favor of experiments being made toward making better the miserable condition of the poorest classes. He approved disestablishment of the church in Wales and local option.

Turning to Irish matters he attacked Mr. Balfour for using language against his opponents which lowered the tone of political controversy and degraded public life.

Mr. Balfour's words at Liverpool, accusing the veteran Liberal statesman of lying, would make but a small impression upon Mr. Gladstone, and would be quickly effaced by the great voice of the federation delegates assuring their leader of their reverence and affection and loyalty. [Cheers.] They had special difficulties and anxieties at this moment, but they never expected when they embarked on this voyage cloudless skies and summer seas. Having put their hands to the work it was their duty to keep the great Irish national question apart from personal considerations which did not belong to it. It was their duty now, as it always had been, to hold that question aloft to public view. That doubtless happened to be difficult at a moment when the country was stirred by anxious incidents and painful disclosures. [Hear, hear.] Only let them recognise that none of these disclosures in the slightest degree derogated from the justice, urgency and sacredness of the great cause. [Cheers. That cause was as sound to-day as it ever was and it became from day to day more urgent as it drew nearer to the final issue. [Cheers.] So it was more than ever necessary to look at the case on its merits and to allow nothing else, however grave, and which might be considered in its proper time and place, to slacken for a moment their devotion to what they had undertaken. [Prolonged cheering.]

Their Bail Bonds Estreated.

TIPPERARY, Nov. 20.—In the Court of Sessions to day the hearing was begun on the summonses against Mr. Harrison, M.P., and others, for riot. An adjournment was asked on the ground that Mr. Harrison was ill and unable to be present. The request was refused and the court granted a warrant for the arrest of Harrison. The examination of Col. Caddell, who had charge of the police on the day of the riot, was begun and was adjourned. The court then considered the question of estreat of recognizances in the case of Dillon and O'Brien. Mr. Redmond, counsel for the defendants, contended that the recognizances had lapsed through the alteration made in the summonses. The court, however, estreated the recognizances, but granted an appeal.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Alarming Increase of Contagious Diseases —General Notes.

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—There has been an alarming increase of contagious diseases in the city, at the Board of Health meeting this table was submitted for October:

Disease	1890.	1889.
Typhoid fever	55	32
Diphtheria	28	9
Scarlet fever	39	32

The next convention of the National Teachers' Association will be held in Toronto. It is expected that 10,000 delegates will be in attendance.

The Toronto and Trinity Medical School Association teams met in battle array yesterday afternoon on the university lawn and fought their annual football fight. The game was closely contested throughout and resulted in a victory for Toronto

Prof. Barwash, as representative of Victoria, will take his seat at the Senate of the University of Toronto to-night, and a letter from Victoria to the provincial institution received yesterday suggests the adoption at an early day of a joint matriculation for 1891.

A meeting of the University Senate was held last night in the Biological Department. A letter was read from W. H. Oliphant communicating a resolution of the Canadian Institute of Homeopathy, in which the Senate was asked to take into consideration the establishment of a chair in homeopathic practice of medicine and the granting of degrees in the same department in medicine. The committee to enquire into the wants of the various departments in arts in regard to additional facilities for teaching presented its report. After a review of the finances of the university it recommended these appointments:

1. A demonstrator in chemistry.
2. An additional fellow in modern languages.
3. An assistant for the department of mineralogy and geology.

The police have been in quest of a man named John Shields, who is wanted on suspicion of feloniously receiving. On Wednesday night Detectives Alf Cuddy and Davis located their man in one of the rooms in the Dun, Wiman building, Wellington-street, where he was found with two other young men and a couple of females. Shields asked permission to get his overcoat and hat in an adjoining room. The request was granted, but this was the last seen of him, for when the detectives entered the apartment they discovered he had made his exit through a transom leading to a bathroom. Although the detectives lost their bird they unearthed about $100 worth of silk handkerchiefs, lace curtains, etc.

The annual entertainment given by the arts and medical students came off yesterday morning in the now notorious lecture room No. 8 at Toronto University. The affair commenced at 9 a.m. and lasted for about an hour. To an onlooker the scene was amusing, and the rapidly changing mob of over 400 excitement-for a howling mob of over 400 students. Windows were broken, a door torn completely off its hinges, the lintels and plaster about several of the doors smashed, not to speak of the torn coats, lost hats, neckties, shirts and even boots, which disappeared with amazing rapidity. Buttons were at a discount; and the air was filled with flying note books, old paper and a collection of microbes such as has never before been seen together in one place. The occasion of the trouble was the absence of several of the arts students lectures which were being delivered to the medicals by Prof. A. C. McKay of McMaster College. At the previous lecture the professor had intimated that if the arts students came they would have to take "back seats," which of course roused the ire of the arts men, and yesterday both sides came prepared for action, accompanied by friends of higher years, clad in jerseys and old clothes.

On the Verge of the Gallows He Saves His Mother's Feelings.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20.—The recent death in Canada of alias Sterling, mother of Charles M. Sterling, who was executed at Youngstown, O., for the murder of Lizzie C. Gallagher, has unveiled the facts concerning an incident that occurred shortly before his execution. His mother came here from Maxwell, Canada, and though he had left home when but a lad with maternal intuitions she recognized him. When brought to his cell Stirling, without a quiver of a muscle, said:

"You are mistaken, madam, I am not your son."

She implored him to recognize her, but he refused, and she returned home half convinced that she was mistaken. To his counsel Sterling said:

"She is my mother, but I could not break her heart by telling her that her son would be hung. Keep it secret until she dies."

Her death the past week caused his attorney, W. S. Anderson, to break the seal of silence to-day.

"It was the most dramatic scene I ever witnessed," said Mr. Anderson. "I have seen all the tragedians for the past quarter of a century, but none that compared to the scene on that occasion—the mother, every line in her face showing the most intense suffering, and her heart nearly broken, while the son, knowing that the truth would kill her, stood like a statue, his face showing the pallor of death, assuring her that she was mistaken. Such intensity of action was never produced on any stage. It could not be."

A Thieving Pedlar.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 20.—William J. McGregor of Toronto, an expert thief, was brought before Judge Finkle charged with stealing three napkin rings from Thomas Midgeley and a watch from Mr. Oliver of the North American. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the Central. He was also charged with stealing a brooch from Jessie McDonald, a blind woman. His method was to go about offering to mend watches and clocks and to pocket everything he could get his hands on while he was supposed to be doing his work.

$10,000 Blaze.

ST. BONIFACE, Nov. 20.—There was a $10,000 fire here to-day. Hondé's livery stable, a double tenement house and Begin's butcher shop were destroyed. The fire originated in the stable, the contents of which, including six horses, were lost. The stabel and tenement were the property of the Manitoba and Northwest Loan Company and were partially insured.

Queen Emma Takes the Oath as Regent of Holland and the Dying Descendant of William the Silent Retires to His Chateau in Loo.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 20.—A large crowd, comprising all the high state officials, the members of the Chambers, military and naval officers and prominent citizens, assembled in the Chamber to-day to witness the taking of the oath by Queen Emma.

In an address the President of the Chamber expressed the nation's complete confidence in Queen Emma as regent.

Queen Emma in a proclamation says she is fully aware of the magnitude of her task at this critical juncture and accepts it for love of the people, relying upon the support of her faithful subjects. She adds: "The King has set me a lofty example of activity and devotion to the interests of the country which have always distinguished the house of Orange."

King William III. is slowly dying at his chateau in Loo.

THE MURDERED RUSSIAN.

The Paris Murder Was Not an Act of Political Vengeance.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The niece of General Seliverskoff, who was found with a bullet wound in his head in the Hotel Bade and who died yesterday, has arrived here for the purpose of arranging the details of her uncle's funeral. Le Matin says Padlewsky, the suspected murderer, was a lover of a girl who had been enticed by a woman at the instance of General Seliverskoff into a house of ill-fame, and this it is claimed was the motive for the crime. A liaison existed between the woman who induced the girl to visit the house and General Seliverskoff. General Seliverskoff was at one time chief of the Russian gendarmerie and head of the third section of the Department of Police. At the time of the assassination of General Mezentzoeff in 1879 he had the police mission to this city given him.

Dr. Brousardel, in a report on the death of General Seliverskoff, says that death resulted from the effects of a single bullet wound, that the bullet entered behind the ear and that the shot was fired at a distance of from six to eight inches. A funeral service for the murdered general will be held to-morrow. The body will afterwards be taken to Russia.

The Market Almost Buoyant.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The panic on the stock exchange has subsided. Throughout the day there was a steady growth of confidence. There was fair buying. Favorable Bank of England returns with better prices on the Continent and in New York assisted in giving strength to quotations. On the street the dealings approached buoyancy. American railroad securities were especially active and firm. This was partially due to large purchases to cover bear accounts. The recovery ranged from 1¼ to 3¾. The rise in silver caused an advance in rupee paper of 2½ in Mexican railways of 3 to 5¼. Argentines advanced 2½ to 3½, Mexican Government bonds 1¼ to 4¼ and Uruguays 3¼. In the latter part of the day the money market showed an easier tendency, and there was a better feeling all around. Reassuring reports that the joint stock banks will assist on moderate terms, operators requiring advances for next week's settlement have been among the leading factors in dispelling the alarm.

On the Paris bourse there was a general advance in prices, and the final quotations were the highest for the day. Rio Tintos rose 10 francs.

On the Berlin boerse there was a material recovery in prices.

The House of Baring.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—It is reported that the house of Baring Bros. & Co. is about to be reconstructed as a joint stock company. Baring has offered to return, bringing £1,000,000. The Hambros will probably amalgamate with the Barings, and fresh capital will be contributed by one of the Guinness family. The rumor that the Rothschilds had pledged £4,000,000 as a guarantee for the payment of the Argentine dividends is unfounded.

Hauled Down the British Flag.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Despatches from the Congo State say the Baptist mission steamboat Pearce, which was stationed on the Upper Congo River, has been confiscated by the officers of the Congo State on the ground that it is required for state purposes. The British flag was hauled down and the flag of the Congo State hoisted on the vessel. The engineers and stokers were compelled to continue their services.

They Were Too Previous.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—Elaborate preparations were made at Potsdam for a simultaneous illumination of the heights on the arrival of the train bearing Prince Adolphe of Schaumburg-Lippe and his bride. A Frascoli passenger train, however, was mistaken for the bridal train and the fires blazed up prematurely on all the heights. Before the bridal train arrived the illumination was all over.

Her Majesty's Approval.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—General Sir H. F. Ponsonby, Secretary to the Queen, has written to Gen. Booth in behalf of the Queen, thanking him for a copy of his book, "Darkest England." The writer adds: "The Queen cannot express any opinion on the details of your scheme, but understanding that your object is to alleviate misery and suffering, Her Majesty cordially wishes you success."

Severe Weather in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 20.—A severe frost prevails here. Heavy snow has fallen and the River Neva is full of drift ice. It is expected the river will close to-morrow. Many rivers in the interior of the country are frozen.

Railway Passengers Murdered.

WARSAW, Nov. 20.—When the Vienna mail train reached Kutno to-day it was discovered two of the passengers had been murdered and robbed.

A Twenty-Two Inch Bride.

PARIS, Mo., Nov. 20.—The wedding is announced to take place in this city of Miss Nellie Branham, the celebrated dwarf of this place, to a leading society man of Quincy, Ill. She is 23 years of age, and is 22 inches in height, while the prospective groom is 5 feet 9 inches tall and 21 years of age.

FORT GRATIOT, Nov. 20.—The three burglars who robbed W. B. Collins' store at Wyoming, Ont., were arrested here to-day with the stolen property in their possession.

Burglars at Wyoming.

WYOMING, Nov. 18.—Sunday burglars gained an entrance through the window in the rear of W. B. Collins' store and secured a quantity of ordered and ready-made clothing, an orange-colored leather valise, etc.

Stamboul's Mile in 2.11¼.

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 20.—Stamboul beat his record on the Stockton track to-day, making a mile in 2.11¼. The first quarter was done in :32, half in 1.03¼. Goldsmith drove and Harry Whiting accompanied with running mate.

Jailed for Making Illicit Whisky.

BRACEBRIDGE, Nov. 20.—J. J. Jackson, a wealthy farmer of Strong township, has been sentenced to one months' imprisonment and fined $100 or 3 months additional for making illicit whisky. He will serve the four months.

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit

Although early in the season, our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable, for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders can fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying it claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by placing a Home Institution, which invests all funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by producing the rate of interest here a cent higher, to build up their own side rather than those of foreign states.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1890.

It is stated that the recent gales on the ocean have played havoc with the profits of the shippers of cattle to the British markets, and reduced the profits of the year to a very narrow margin, if on the whole there has been a margin at all. The recent losses are due to the deficient facilities for shipping stock securely on the upper deck, high seas sweeping them overboard. So important a matter as the live stock trade should appeal strongly enough to ship owners to make special construction for cattle that will render their shipment safe, a careful study.

Over eight millions of tons of iron ore will be shipped from the mines on the American side of Lake Superior before the close of the present navigation season, while the Canadian iron mines are lying idle. "Yes," says the Free Press, "the iron mines of Ottawa county are nearer to the great manufacturing centres of the continent than are those of Lake Superior. What keeps our iron mines from being developed? The want of a market for the ore and the manufactured iron, which market can only be obtained through unrestricted reciprocity with the United States."

Mr. PARNELL'S trial is another instance of the badly-balanced characters that nature endows some men with. Parnell is a great man, a man of remarkable force of character and unusual ability, but with all his mental strength and his statesmanlike qualities, the baser part of his nature subdued a man of very common-place British moral stock—him of unstrength and we have the unusual spectacle of master gaining the mastery over mind—the baser part of man moulding the higher nature. There is little doubt that Parnell's usefulness in this great role he has been playing for so long, is gone. Public opinion will pronounce against him in this case, though the private lives of many great statesmen have not been free from the blemishes for which Mr. Parnell is so severely condemned. If Mr. Parnell's condemnation were a sign of improved health of public sentiment, it would be a great source of hope in times of moral advancement, but it appears that it is not such a sign. Some of the men high in place and power, who denounce Parnell, would be rebuked to silence if they were subjected to the same test that the Pharisees were put to in the case of the adulterous woman brought before our Saviour. There would be many a vacant seat in the House of Lords and in the Imperial Parliament if every member stained with the sin of Mr. Parnell were cast out. This condition of things is, however, no palliation of his offence. Purity of life and honesty of character should be a prime condition in the choice of our public men. The man or men that disregard the prohibitions of the decalogue are not fit to be entrusted with the making of laws to govern a free and virtuous people.

The Alleged Seduction.

Evidence Taken for the Prosecution—The Line of Defence which will be Followed.

The preliminary trial of John Gilman jr., charged with the seduction of Hannah Huffman, resulted in the prisoner being committed for trial at the County Court, which is to be held during the second week of December. The investigation was conducted with closed doors. Gilman pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried at a higher court. Police Magistrate Edmison's duty then being simply to hear the evidence, and afterward commit the prisoner for trial. Mr. R E Wood conducted the prosecution, and Mr. W. A. Stratton the defence.

The first witness was the complainant herself, a black-eyed, black-haired, dusky-complexioned and rather good looking young woman, whose taint of African blood was plainly apparent. She was neatly dressed, and conducted herself during her examination in a straightforward, modest, unaffected manner. Her testimony was right to the point. She said she was twenty years old the 14th of October last, and had for the last year and a half been employed as a domestic at Mr. Lynett's hotel in Auburnham. She had known the prisoner for about two years, having met him first at a party at Crowster's, on George street, but it was not until last winter that he began to keep company with her. He used to see her home from parties, and called frequently to see her, when he used to come into the kitchen to see her, becoming more regular in attendance in May. After repeated persuasions, and several promises of marriage, which she at first disregarded, she finally was ruined solely because prisoner promised to marry her, 'a lick to her, and do what was right.' This was near the end of May. The witness maintained that she had previously been of thoroughly chaste character. About four weeks ago, when the girl's condition began to be known, the prisoner told her he did not intend to marry her, but would give her money and put her home if she wanted. She replied that she did not want the money; that was not the bargain.

Her evidence was not much shaken by cross-examination. She maintained steadily that the prisoner was the only man with whom she had been intimate. Counsel mentioned the names of several other young men whom she was suspected of intimacy with, but she denied it. It is understood the defence will rest upon evidence which will be brought forward at the trial for the purpose of proving that the girl was of ill repute previous to the alleged seduction. This investigation being but preliminary, however, no defence was entered into.

WILSON HUFFMAN, the complainant's brother, testified that when he spoke to Gilman about the matter and accused him of his sister's shame, the latter replied that may be all right, but he had suspicions of others too," and he would have them subpœnaed. He had no particular thing against his sister's character. Gilman told him he had offered his sister money but as she had begun with the law she might go on and get what she could. This action was brought as his (the witness') instance; his sister did not wish to enter any action.

Mr. John Gilman, father of the prisoner, was also examined, after which the prisoner was committed for trial and admitted to bail in the meantime.

Mortuary Statistics.

The mortuary statistics for the month of October show Peterborough's percentage to be 1 93, which is remarkably high. Last month the death rate numbered 20 — the greatest number ever recorded here. Montreal's percentage was 1 98 Toronto's 1 14, Hamilton 1 11 Ottawa 1 27, London .71, Kingston 1.20, Brantford 91, St. Thomas 1.32 Guelph 1.04, Belleville the same, Windsor .99, Woodstock .86, Brockville .90, Chatham .45, Galt .95. Sherbrooke has the barren honour of the highest death rate in Canada, viz., 2.52 Quebec comes next with 2.38, and Halifax third with 2.33.

How an Ocean Cable is Made.

Let us first see what a submarine cable is and how it is made. To do this a visit must be made to the enormous factory on the banks of the Thames, a few miles below London. Here the birth of the cable may be traced through shop after shop, machine after machine. The foundation of all is the conductor, a strand of seven fine copper wires. This slender copper cord is first hauled through a mass of sticky, black compound, which causes the thin coating of gutta percha applied by the next machine to adhere to it perfectly and prevents the retention of any bubble of air in the interstices between the strands or between the conductor and the gutta-percha envelope. One envelope is not sufficient, however, but the full thickness of insulating material has to be attained by four more alternate coatings of sticky compound and plastic gutta-percha. The conductor is now insulated and has developed into "core." Before going any further the core is coiled into tanks filled with water and tested in order to ascertain whether it is electrically perfect—i. e., that there is no undue leakage of electricity through the gutta percha insulating envelope.

These tests are made from the testing room, replete with beautiful and elaborate apparatus, by which measurements finer and more accurate than those even of the most delicate chemical balance may be made. Every foot of core is tested with these instruments, both before and after being made up into cable, and careful records are preserved of the results.

After the core has been all tested and passed, the manufacture of the cable goes on. The core travels through another set of machines, which first wrap it with a thick serving of tarred jute and then with a compact armoring of iron or steel wire, of varying thickness according to the depth of water in which the cable is intended to be laid. Above the armoring, in order to preserve the iron from rust as long as possible, is applied a covering of stout canvas tape thoroughly impregnated with a pitch-like compound, and some times the iron wires composing the armor are separately covered with Russian hemp as an additional preservation against corrosion.—Selected.

A Delightful Woman.

Miss Kate Cummings, who lives with her parents on a farm in Winnebago, Wis., can beat any man in the county mowing hay. She wears boots and a waterproof, with a felt hat and lousey-woolsey dress, and mounted on the mowing machine she is as handsome as a Hebe. Kate has had a great many admirers and the admirers have had a great many difficulties to overcome. One of them had the audacity to swear out a warrant for her arrest on the charge of assault with malicious intent. Rufus Sloan was hired by Mr. Cummings for harvest work and while turning the new-mown hay he fell in love with Kate. Every time she came around on her chariot, pushing her side a little farther into the standing grain, Rufus would take his hat off and throw a handful of kisses at her. The young lady did not like this performance and told him so.

Then Rufus asked her to pull up, as he had something to say to her. She drew the horses in, pushed her red hair behind her ears, and with fire in her blue-gray eyes, said:—

"Well?"

Then Rufus planted his pitchfork in the stubble for a rest, told her he wanted a wife, and offered her the position. She curled up her nose, wrinkled her brow with scorn, and answered:—

"You! Bah!"

This was too much for Rufus, who jabbed her in the side with his pitchfork. Kate screamed; the horses started. In his excitement the irate swain got on the sickle side of the mower. The lady saw her advantage, seized the lines, and chased the fleeing lover all over the field, screaming that she would mow him down and cut his ugly legs off.—New York World.

What is a Day's Labour?

One day's work for a healthy liver is to secrete three and a half pounds of bile. If the bile secretion be deficient, constipation ensues; if profuse, biliousness and jaundice arise. Burdock Blood Bitters is the most perfect liver regulator known in medicine for preventing and curing all liver troubles. 2 e42d

Just imagin your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the home! what an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wistar's Wild Cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

Purify Your Blood

Importance of purifying the blood in a time condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

TIMELY INFORMATION OF VALUE TO CANADIAN AGRICULTURISTS.

"A Fleece of Wool" Ably Discussed by David McCrae, Guelph, Before the Dominion Sheep Breeders' Association—Other Topics of Interest.

Wool is the most important of textile fibres. It was early used for clothing, is now a necessity in such a climate as ours, and in all parts of the world has been found the healthiest covering for mankind. Wool is a modified form of hair, distinguished by its slender, soft serrated structure. Just where animal fibre ceases to be hair and becomes wool is hard to say. One class merges into another and a regular gradation can be found from the soft silky Merino to the hard bristles of the wild boar. The serrated edges of wool gives it the property of clinging in yarn and felting in cloth. The serrations all lie one way from the root up. They can be readily noted by drawing a single fibre between the finger and thumb. One way it will slip smoothly, the other way it will feel quite rough. The finest Merino wools have 2,400 serrations per inch, with a diameter of 1-1800ths, Leicester about 1,800. The coarsest wools 500, with a diameter of 1-625ths of an inch. Fine wools are all wavy, those with the most serrations, being most finely waved in structure. In most wools the closer the staple and the more wavy the wool the more will it yield of the finer qualities. Loose, open fleeces yield more of coarse quality. Wools with a soft rich feel improve during the process of manufacture, whilst those with a hard brittly feel get coarser as they are worked. Wool varies in character according to the peculiar breed of sheep which yield it, and also with the nature of the soil, the food, shelter and climate. In wool of first-rate quality the fibres are fine, soft, elastic, sound, of good color and free from impurities. Combing wools require to be long instead of fine and soft, and for some purposes require to have a good lustre. Very little fine wool is grown in Ontario, combing and medium wools forming the bulk of the clip. Canadian combing wools are usually of a good length and with a strong elastic fibre, sound and good. There are, however, in some sections far too many cotted fleeces, and some with a disagreeable yellow bottom. Otherwise for a sound elastic fibre Ontario wools compare favorably with any other part of the world. In Manitoba and the Northwest some grown are brashy and tender and apt to be unsound in staple. In color our wools compare unfavorably with British wools. The reason of this is not known to me. It may be the confinement in winter or the hot suns of summer, but the color is not in them. We are much worse in the matter of impurities. The big soft burrs in Canadian wool are a disgrace to the wool-grower and a source of much annoyance and loss to the manufacturer. They have to be clipped out singly or in bunches by hand. The same labor would have removed the weed before the damage was done. The best of farmers market their wool with a quantity of seeds, bits of straw, etc., about the neck of the fleece. Feeding, as many do, with racks, it may be difficult to avoid this but it is none the less a drawback in the value of the wool. Wool may either be shorn washed or unwashed. An increasing number of farmers are shearing their wool unwashed, considering that the greater weight of unwashed wool counterbalances the difference in price. The washing which a fleece receives on the sheep is not enough for the manufacturer and the work has to be done again. Most Canadian wools are washed before being clipped, but the great bulk of the world's clip is shorn unwashed. A skilful shearer will clip the fleece from a sheep in one unbroken sheet. In this condition the fleece is spread out on a table or sheet, tags and dirty locks removed and loose pieces put by themselves, the sides folded over and the fleece rolled up inside out, the neck twisted and put around to bind the whole. When opened on the sorters table the fleece will unroll, retaining its form which greatly helps the sorting. There are two or three qualities in every fleece. Most Canadians will give from four to six grades. All wool has to be graded into qualities before it is ready for manufacturing. Generally the best part of the fleece is from the shoulder and sides of the animal. Over the neck and back the staple is more irregular and has frequently seeds and impurities. The loin somewhat shorter in staple. The breech is often the coarsest and sometimes is hairy and kempy. Belly wool is usually short and dirty. The front of the throat, fine but short. Some farmers do not remove the dirty dung locks, which should always be removed. Others gather them and put them in a single good fleece. Any careful handler can quickly detect this without opening the fleece. Others roll up a cotted fleece with staple out, and if many be cotted roll all their clip in this way. Buyers are always suspicious of such wool and dealers ought only to buy at a reduction fleeces put up in this way. Wool clipped under a year old is known as "shorn lambs." very little of this is made in Canada. First clip, at 12 to 15 months, is known as "hogg" or "tegg" wool, and for many purposes this is finer and more valuable than the bulk of the clip. British dealers keep it separate. Second and following clips are distinguished as "wether" or "ewe" fleeces. Usually in Canada all are marketed together.

FARMING IN FOREIGN LANDS.

Selling cattle by their live weight does not give satisfaction to buyers in some parts of England and Scotland, as it is an innovation that does not allow of the balance always in the buyer's favor.

New Zealand enjoyed "a fine open winter" this year, from June to September, with little frost, and no snow except upon the mountains. Plowing continued the greater part of the winter, while American farmers were sweltering under the blazing sun of summer.

A new fiber plant, said to equal jute, has been discovered growing abundantly on the shores of the Caspian sea. The plant possesses a beautiful fiber, soft and elastic, with glossy texture, strong and pliable, and can be dyed without injury. The Russian name of the plant is "Kanoff."

The new pleuro-pneumonia law of the British Parliament provides for a thorough system of inspection, isolation of suspected animals, and slaughter of infected ones, with fair compensation to the owners. The sum of $800,000 was appropriated to cover expenses incurred under the law.

Denmark is dotted all over with butter-factories, all turning out butter of the finest and most uniform quality. Highly educated experts act as teachers and consulting dairymen, being employed by the various factories to correct any faults and keep up the quality of the butter produced.

A devastating moth known by the local name of "the nun," or "gypsy" moth, has appeared in terribly destructive numbers in Germany. Many of the forests of Bavaria were stripped of leafage, and in the city of Munich the pest came in such masses that the hydrants were turned on to keep them away.

Prof. Kedzie of the Michigan Agricultural College, before the State Dairy Convention, said, "The most economical general manure for the farm is stable manure. It is a complete manure, containing all the elements necessary for plant growth, and in the most available form. Special and commercial fertilizers may be used to supplement barn-yard manure, but they only hold a secondary position."

THE POULTRY YARD.

The Canadian Poultry Review prints the answers of thirty-seven breeders to this question: "What floor space (in square feet) per head do you allow your fowl in winter?" The answers range from 15 to 3 square feet per bird, but the average is about 6¾. The Review itself concludes that from 6 to 8 square feet per head is the proper caper.

Never use poles for roosts. No, it wont kill the fowls to roost on them, but it will bend the breast bone out of shape; narrow boards four inches wide are better.

I have known persons on market-day to go out and kill twelve or fifteen fowls, and to bring them into a room where there would be half-a-dozen women and boys pulling a few feathers at a time, between their thumb and fore-finger, to prevent tearing them. Now, for the benefit of such, I will give our plan: Hang the fowl by the feet by a small cord; then, with a small knife, give one cut across the upper jaw, opposite the corners of the mouth; after the blood has stopped running a stream, place the point of the knife in the groove in the upper part of the mouth, run the blade up into the back part of the head, which will cause a twitching of the muscles. Now is your time, for every feather yields as if by magic, and there is no danger of tearing the most tender chick. Before he attempts to flap you can have him as bare as the day he came out of the egg.

Prof. N. S. Helmers has very kindly given us the following receipt for the manufacture of a whitewash, which he concludes, after actual trial, is just the thing in every respect. His fences are of rough red wood surmounted by smooth lattice work, and the whitewash looks as well as paint and sticks like a brick. After slacking lime, about a bushel, add 2 lbs. glue which has first been soaked for 24 hours in water, and boiled over boiling water; 10 lbs. salt dissolved; 2 gallons fish oil, and 10 balls of blueing dissolved in water, which will prevent the lime from turning yellow. After being thoroughly mixed let stand for 48 hours, and then put coats enough on to make an even job.—California Cackles.

One of the best ways of ridding a chicken house of lice, which usually stay in the cracks and crevices of the wood-work and around the perches, is to fumigate with sulphur, tobacco, or the parings of horses hoofs, which can be obtained from any blacksmith. When either the sulphur or hoof-parings are used, take an old iron bucket, which should be of good size, holding about one peck, and punch some good sized holes in same near the bottom, for draft. Fill the pail about half full of red hot coals and sprinkle on the sulphur or hoof-parings, and beat a hasty retreat. If a tobacco fumigation is decided on, obtain a half bushel of tobacco stems from some cigar factory. Put a few shavings, or fine kindling in the bucket, on which place a good handful of the tobacco stems and ignite. After it is thoroughly started put on a quantity of the stems, which have been moistened, as they will make a more dense smoke. The best time to fumigate is in the morning, and ca should be taken that all doors and venti-

People make a sad mistake often with serious results when they neglect a constipated condition of the bowels. Knowing that Burdock Blood Bitters is an effectual cure at any stage of constipation, does not warrant us in neglecting to use it in at the right time. Use it now. 2w42d

Timely Wisdom.

Great and timely wisdom is shown by keeping Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. It has no equal for cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery, colic-cramps, and all summer complaints, or loose, ness of the bowels. 2w42d

Mining experts note that cholera never attacks the bowels of the earth, but humanity in general find it necessary to use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for bowel complaint, dysentery, diarrhœa, etc. It is a sure cure. 2w42d

ON SOAP,

IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health"

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

His Hand in the Cogs.

Wednesday night Mr. Philip English, of Eenismore, while working a chopper on his farm got his right hand caught in the cogs. The first finger was crushed out of shape, but the rest of the hand was not much injured. Mr. English drove to town the same night and Dr. Yelland amputated the finger.

Stripped of its Harness.

Mr. Terry Smith's handsome grey team, of which he is justly proud, had a narrow escape this morning. A C.P.R. train was running down the Dickson siding, and the team bolted off the street on which they were being driven parallel with the railway and were struck by the engine. The horses next the engine was stripped of every vestige of harness but almost miraculously escaped any serious injury.

Police Court Pencillings.

At the police court this morning Mr. T. Cavanagh was charged with a third offence against the Liquor License Law on Nov. 8th. In the absence of witnesses, the case was enlarged for a week.

Mrs. Robt. Mitchell, who was employed as a domestic by Mrs. Scully, corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, brought action to recover $6 00, which she claimed was due her. In the absence of the plaintiff $3 50 was accepted, on Mrs. Scully's affidavit that she only owed that amount.

Changes at the Market.

Market Clerk John Doherty has been making some appropriate changes and improvements in the interior of the new market building. The tables have been rearranged and made double width, three stoves have been put up, and a new set of scales put in. The scales are of Gurney & Ware's make, with platform and double beam, and weigh from 1 ounce to 150 lbs. Mr. Doherty charges a trifling toll for the use of these scales. The new market building is a great convenience, and Mr. Doherty is keeping it in good order.

Important Sale of Horses.

Mr. A. B Appl by, the well known dealer in hides, etc., of this town, has also an eye for a good horse, and a knowledge of the best methods of producing good stock, as shown by the successful sale made this week of his fine horseflesh. Within the past few days he has sold for the stock farm of Lake & Witter, of Bucyrus, Ohio, the well known roadster stallion, Tariff [3632] record 2 20¾, and the brood mare "Cissa," and three months foal out of "Tariff." A cheque for $2 000 was drawn in payment for "Tariff" and the figure for the mare and foal was $300. Mr. S. C. White, M. P., Windsor, Ont., paid $300 for the brood mare "Kittie" in foal to "Tariff," and Mr. R. M. Markell, of Dickenson's Landing, Ont., exchanged $400 for the two year old bay stallion, "Colobia" [10,920] record 2 26¾. These horses were all shipped during the past week by G. T. R., which has done a bad turn in the interests of good horse breeding by carrying out of the county so fine a foal getter and roader as Tariff but the Yankees in spite of McKinley wants new "Tariff" as they put up the financial equivalent accordingly.

A Civic Law Suit.

The town of Peterborough has now a full-sized law suit on its hands. It will be remembered that at a recent meeting of the council permission was granted to open up Water street, from the C.P.R track to Wolfe street, for the purpose of extending the wharf. The crib-work for the wharf had already been built by Mr. R. B Rogers, the government agent, and Street Inspector Pope went to work with a gang of men to open up and level the street and fill in the gribbing. On Wednesday an order was served upon those in charge, by Messrs. Dumble & Leonard, solicitors for Mrs. Catherine Leonard, restraining them from continuing the work, alleging that they were encroaching on private property. Instead of quitting work, the staff of employes was doubled and the work pushed forward as rapidly as possible. To-day application was made and granted by Mr. Judge McMahon, Toronto, for an injunction, restraining the town, its contractors or agents, from proceeding with the work until next Tuesday. At three o'clock Mr. Rogers stopped work, though he says three hours more would have seen the job finished. In the meanwhile Messrs. Dumble & Leonard have entered an action for damages in behalf of Mrs. Leonard. Inspector Pope and Foreman T. M. D'Orsay are also parties to the suit. The plaintiffs claim that there is no street allowance on the water front at this point, or if there ever was, it has been washed away by the water, and the street is being used up through private property.

A Hint to Young Business Men.

The transfer of the grocery business of Rush Bros. to Stapleton & Elcome, and the retirement of Mr. Harry Rush after twenty-eight year's connection with it, form an epoch in the trade history of the town. Mr. Rush went into business in 1862, and has conducted it with such success, that he has amassed a comfortable competency from the profits of it. His success has been accomplished by diligent attention to his business, and by application to it of an honourable principle and every-day integrity that won him confidence of the public. But while thus engaged, his attention was not so much engrossed that old not find time to discharge faithfully the several social and other duties of citizenship, taking an active interest in matters of public concern; in the Masonic fraternity he stands high, both in rank and estimation; he is an active member of St. John's congregation, and in social and business circles, he is held in great respect. These facts serve to show that a man may get rich by honorable methods; but "honesty is, to the end, the best policy," and that a man may conduct business for a generation, gather wealth and still retain not only an unsullied name, but one universally mentioned with respect, an achievement not always possible in the present days' mad scramble after wealth, regardless of the means employed and the reputation gained, so long as the goal is reached. Though Mr. Rush has retired from active business, he cannot remain idle. He employs his leisure in the somewhat Gladstonian style of faithfully representing the Confederation Life Assurance Company in this district.

An Attempted Suicide.

A Waterford Street Man Cuts His Throat With a Knife.

Mr. Thomas Jamieson, an elderly man residing on Waterford street, last night attempted to take his own life by cutting his throat. He inflicted a gash about five inches long, severing some of the arteries and cutting into the larynx. He bled profusely and is very weak, but if neuralgia does not set in Mr. Jamieson will likely recover. Dr Yelland, who was summoned, put five stitches in the wound.

It was a determined attempt at suicide. Mr. Jamieson is a shoemaker by trade and works in Mr. Simson's shop. Last night he took a home with him. He appeared to be very despondent and went to his bedroom about seven o'clock without taking any supper. He has of late years exhibited a melancholy tendency, and was further worried over a police court case which was to be heard this morning and in which he had been the principal informant. These are the only causes which can be assigned by his family for the rash act. He had not been drinking, and was in his usual health, which was very good for a man nearly 70 years of age.

KEEN EDGED SHOEMAKERS' KNIFE

About seven o'clock this morning his sons were preparing to go to work, and heard him moaning. They went into his room and beheld a shocking sight. On the bed lay their father partly dressed, his neck showing an ugly gash, blood on his shirt and on the bed clothes, an old coat saturated with the red fluid, and a bowl on the floor half full. Close at hand lay the knife with which the unfortunate man had tried to take his life. It would appear from all the circumstances that Mr. Jamieson

DID THE DEED ABOUT MIDNIGHT.

He evidently after cutting his throat stood over the bowl and allowed the blood to run into it until it was half full, and he was too weak to stand. Then he must have used his coat in some way to either stanch the flow or soak up the blood. He probably afterwards relapsed into unconsciousness, only reviving shortly before he was discovered. He lost a great deal of blood, and is very weak, but it is hoped that his life is not endangered.

Forester Relief Recognized.

The Sincerity of Sympathy Shown by Word and Deed.

To the officers and members of Court Little John, No. 92 C.O.F:

GENTLEMEN,—Kindly accept my sincere thanks for your kind resolution of condolence; also for the prompt payment of the policy for $1,000 held by my late husband, Joseph Butler, jr., in your Order, and for the sick and funeral benefits. You will also accept my grateful thanks for the kindness and attention given my late husband during his illness.

May God continue to bless your Order with prosperity and success, that it may be the means of relieving the distress and assisting the widows and orphans throughout the country.

Sincerely yours,
ELIZABETH BUTLER

Peterborough, Nov. 17th, 1890.

The following is the resolution referred to in the foregoing:

COURT Little John, No. 92 C.O.F.,
Peterborough, Nov. 17, 1890

Moved by Bro. W. S. Cook, seconded by Bro R. H Lithgow, Whereas in view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and brother, Joseph Butler, jr., and the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him, therefore, be it

Resolved, that while we bow with humble submission to the will of the Most High, we do not the less mourn the loss of our brother who has been taken from us;

EVIDENCE AT THE INQUEST

Testimony Touching the Manner of Mrs. Detcher's Death.

Several Witnesses Tell What They Saw —But None of Them Appear to be Very Certain About Anything—To be Continued To-night.

The inquest into the death of the late Mrs. Detcher was continued at the police court room last night. Mr. Wood represented the Crown and Mr. A. McMurchy the C. P. R. Company.

Mr. WM DETCHER, son of the deceased, gave evidence fixing her identity. He said his deceased mother was about 70 years of age, she was blind in on one eye, lame, but not deaf nor feeble for her age.

Dr. SCOTT'S evidence went to show that deceased came to her death from the effects of the injuries and shock received by being run over by the railway cars. He was approaching the station and saw the train running, but could not say whether any of the cars were separated from the rest. He did not see the woman on the track, but found her lying in the baggage room. He noticed a man on top of one of the cars, but he could not say whether he was on the first one or not.

AN EYE WITNESS.

Wm. JOB said he was at the C.P.R. station Wednesday forenoon and saw Mrs. Detcher approaching the George street crossing about 200 yards below it. He was working at Matthews' pork packing house as the old lady passed by towards the track. A few minutes afterwards he was driving up town and had to stop at the track while a train was shunting. He heard a shout from the old lady, and as he turned his head he saw her falling under the cars. As far as he could judge she had been struck by the car. There were about four or six cars on the train, which was backing up from the east. The engine was on the east end. He could not say whether the bell was rung or not. There was one brakeman on the second or third car from the rear of the train, putting on the brake. He saw no one on the rear car. The man he saw could not, in his opinion, see anyone on the track in the position in which Mrs. Detcher was. The brakeman did not appear to be paying any attention to anything but his braking. Witness sprang from his wagon when he saw Mrs. Detcher fall, and afterwards helped to carry her into the baggage room. Two trunks (one car) or perhaps three, passed over her legs. To Mr. McMurchy he said the old lady was walking along in her usual way, slowly, with her head down, looking neither to one side nor the other. Regarding the brakeman on the top of the car, witness could not swear that he was not on the rear car, supposing the brake was on the east end of the rear car. As far as he could see the cars were all connected. He helped pick the body up off the ground in front of the platform, two or three feet west of the planks between the rails.

THE SIGHT TOO MUCH FOR HER.

MRS. ROBT. JACKSON said she recollected that she was at the station Wednesday, and saw the accident. Her little girl who was with her, said: "Oh, ma look around!" She turned and saw an old lady coming across the track. She had passed the rail on the south side as a train, which was moving slowly from the river towards the station, knocked her over. Mr. Jackson put up her hands and shouted, but the train passed over the old lady. Witness could not say how many cars there were, but thought there was a man on top one of them. She left the place and could hear to see no more. To Mr McMurchy, witness said she could not remember whether the old lady looked around or not; but she seemed to stand where the cars passed over her, and witness thought if she had been younger she might have got out of the way. The deceased appeared to fall where she was struck. To a juryman, witness said she could not say whether the body was dragged or pushed along after it was struck.

SEEN BY YOUTHFUL EYES.

Miss LILY JACKSON corroborated her mother's evidence, and said she watched the old lady from the time she crossed the south track until she reached the first rail of the last track. She was on the sidewalk, and had one foot on the rail. A train was moving from the river towards the station, and it knocked her down and ran over her, though she tried to get out of the way. Her body fell inside under the car, and the wheels passed over her legs. The whole of the first car did not pass over her, only the two wheels. Witness saw a man on top of one of the cars, but could not say on which car. He was twisting the brake. The brakeman was not shouting and could not see the old lady from his position on the car. The old lady was moving slowly and the train was moving slowly also.

AN UNSATISFACTORY WITNESS.

JAMES MENZIES testified to having seen the accident. He was standing near the east end of the station, with his back to the north, and he looked around just in time to see Mrs. Detcher stepping on the track nearest the station. She was on line with the sidewalk going northward. He saw the train strike her, but turned away before she fell. The train was moving backward from the bridge. He did not see anyone on the train, nor any railway employee or other person about the crossing, though he did not notice any of these circumstances particularly. No one shouted to her from the car. The old lady was walking when struck. This witness put himself into a little difficulty when he answered a question of the coroner, that he did not see a man on top of the cars. He was not looking directly that way.

The CORONER enquired what he meant by making it a assertion when he had distinctly stated last night that he saw a man on one of the cars, and said which one of the cars the brakeman was on. The Coroner took the opportunity to remark that very frequently the county was put to the expense of holding inquests on the strength of statements made outside by just such witnesses as this one had proved himself to be, who tell all sorts of stories about accidents, but when they get in the box swear entirely different to what the Crown had been led to believe they would do.

County Crown Attorney WOOD asked the witness what he had changed his mind for since last night, and if anyone had been prompting him what to say; but the latter replied that he must have been excited last night, but was sure he was speaking the truth now. No one had suggested the change in his evidence.

The CORONER advised the witness to be careful in future to not go about telling stories after a thing of this kind which were not true, or he might get into trouble and lead others into trouble also.

DIDN'T SEE MUCH OF IT.

MR. RICHARD DINEEN said he was driving towards the C. P. R. track from the south at the time of the accident. He was about 50 yards from the track, and saw Mrs. Detcher walking on the track, but could not tell if she was in a line with the sidewalk. He saw the car strike her as the other witnesses had stated. He saw three cars of the train, but his horses were restive and he could not say whether there was any brakeman on them or not. He saw no other person about the crossing, nor could he say whether the bell was ringing or not. The train was going very slowly.

THE RAILWAY VERSION.

CHRISTOPHER WAGGONER, C. P. R. employee, said he was car brakesman on the train, and helped to carry Mrs. Detcher into the baggage room. When he saw her first she was just stepping on the south rail of the main track. He had just ridden three cars back on the freight shed siding, and had just got down off the cars when he saw the accident. Brakeman John McGill was in charge of the first part of the train which went back to the bridge. They were acting under Conductor Thomson's orders. Witness shouted to the old lady. It was part of his duty to see that the crossing was clear. She was struck almost immediately after he shouted, but if she had been a young person she might have got out of the way. The car was almost on her when he shouted. He was about 15 yards from her, and possibly may have taken one or more steps from the car when he first saw her. He heard a shout, but did not think the other sound proceeded from the car. He saw brakeman McGill on the rear end, about the middle of the last car. His business was to put on a brake, and witness intended to make the coupling when they backed up to join the rest of the train. He did not see Brakeman McGill make any motions of warning to the woman, but witness would not say that McGill did not give her warning. The body was picked up sixteen feet from the edge of the planks, but he was inclined to believe that the body was not dragged. There were about fifteen trains a day passed this crossing, at which there was no flagman or gates. About half way between the ends of the plank and the spot where she was picked up, there was blood, which he was inclined to think marked where she was struck. Witness immediately upon seeing the woman gave the signal to stop quick to the driver and to McGill, shouting also. Only two wheels passed over the old lady. Witness contradicted previous evidence to the effect that the body fell between the rails under the car. He stated the body fell outside. There were three cars attached to the engine, which was backing down at the rate of two miles an hour. The driver pulled up as quickly as he could. The car did not move more than twelve feet after the signal was given. To a juryman, he said the bell was ringing. He did not think, being a woman and old, that the car, however slow it was going, would shove the body much, for the clothes would catch, and, besides, she would not be smart enough to recover herself. The two separate pools of blood were explained by the theory advanced by the coroner that the body had been dragged about eight feet from the first pool to the second pool by the second wheel before it passed over her, but the witness could not see it that way. The witness said the old lady paid no attention to his shout.

The proceedings were adjourned at half past eleven o'clock until this evening. There are a number of witnesses yet to examine.

Obituary.

The Late Sidney Payne.

On Thursday Mr. Sidney Payne, one of the foremost residents of the township of Dummer, passed from life. Mr. Payne's death will be a surprise to many of his many friends and acquaintances. A few days ago he was in his usual good health. Less than a week ago he was in the EXAMINER office in good health and spirits, and now he is a corpse. On Tuesday evening about 5.30 Mr. Payne was stricken with paralysis, his left side being rendered helpless. At 7.30 he became unconscious and remained in that condition till death put an end to his intense suffering on Thursday morning. The deceased gentleman came to this country when a year and a half old, with his parents, who settled on the English line, Dummer. Here he remained till about the year 1855, when he was married to Miss Susan Jory and settled in Douro. Seventeen years since Mr. Payne removed to his late home near Warsaw, where he has since resided. Mr. Payne was twice married—the second time to Miss McGuire. He had two sons and two daughters by his first marriage and one daughter by his second. Mr. Payne was a prosperous and successful farmer, amassing a fine property. He took a great interest in the success of agricultural societies, being a large and successful exhibitor. In religion he was a Methodist, and in politics a staunch Liberal. He was a good citizen and good neighbour, and enjoyed the respect of all who knew him. The funeral takes place on Saturday at one o'clock p.m. The remains will be placed in the Warsaw cemetery.

Red Tape and Old Ideas.

A remarkable story is told of red tape in the General Post Office, London. Some time ago a cord of a Venetian blind in one of the rooms broke. The postmaster had no authority to employ a tradesman to put a matter of this kind right; it must be be attended to through the Office of Works. To that office, therefore, he applied. In the course of a few days a surveyor appeared to ascertain what was wanted, and this work he performed with the utmost deliberation. A few days followed, and then a cart, manned by two men and a boy, appeared on the scene! It is needless to say that such a force proved equal as a remedy to the broken cord.

Happily for the people of Canada, we can boast of an almost entire absence of "red tape" and "old ideas," not only in the conduct of our parliamentary affairs, but in commercial and household matters also.

Still there are now to be found men and women, who, if they do not believe in "red tape" as a theory, certainly often practice it. In this way thousands of dollars are needlessly thrown away every year by the families of our Dominion in the matter of Dyeing. The great idea of family dyeing is to economize and save money.

There are many who imagine, that, if they want an article of wearing apparel dyed, that it is cheaper to hand over the job to the town or city dyer, so as to ensure good work.

This is a fallacy and delusion, as thousands are willing to prove from experience after having used the Diamond Dyes for home dyeing.

Any person of ordinary understanding by following the advice and directions given by the manufacturers of Diamond Dyes, can dye any material or garments whether in Wool, Silk, Union or Cotton, as well and often better than the regular town dyer, who often uses strong acids, and dangerous mild dyes.

Then another important point, is the great difference in cost; home dyeing with Diamond Dyes costing only about one-tenth of factory dyeing.

These are facts worth considering by every economical housewife in the land.

Comfort and ease in work: safety as far as material is concerned, and perfect satisfaction regarding durability of color; all are guaranteed by using the popular "Diamond Dyes," manufactured by Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal.

Another Child Deserter.

The present day is particularly marked by the cruel heartlessness of parents. The other day we had a Lindsay farmer trying to palm off his baby on the Peterborough public, and now now we have the case of a London street mother, who would never rest till she had got rid of her longing for hawley bros.' tea by buying a large supply. She could get no other that had such splendid flavour and strength, combined with cheapness of price. This is a pointer for you, thirsty reader.

DEATH IN VARIOUS FORMS.

A LONG LIST OF SUICIDES AND SUDDEN DEMISES.

Death Came While Coughing, While Milking, While En Route to Church, and in Various Other Uncommon Ways.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 21.—The wife of John Dempsey of Rossmore, who has been subject to fits, cut her throat this morning with her husband's razor, making a terrible gash, but missing the jugular vein. She then ran from the house and jumped into a well containing several feet of water. Dempsey happened along as she took the plunge and rescued her, and Dr. Wilson sewed up the wound. Mrs. Dempsey will recover. She had made a previous attempt at self-destruction.

Boiler Explosion.

MIDLAND, Nov. 21.—Wednesday afternoon a terrific explosion occurred at the saw mill of Peters & Cain. One of the large boilers exploded and went through the roof of the boiler house, moving the other two boilers about 20 feet. One of the corners was knocked out of the mill. The boiler came down on Mr. Graham and he was found with his head in the mud port hole, the boiler resting on a heavy plank. Hugh Thompson was thrown several yards, and Messrs McClinchy and Wheeler were knocked into the bay. None are fatally injured.

Saved by a Buckle.

LISTOWEL, Nov. 21.—Sidford Holmes was out hunting with a companion, William Hume, and the latter handed Holmes his gun to carry across a log. The gun slipped and the hammer struck the log, firing the charge and striking Holmes in the side. By a happy chance the charge was broken by striking the metal buckle of his suspender. The lad was able to walk to the doctor's, who extracted the few shot that penetrated his side.

Coughed Himself to Death.

STREETSVILLE, Nov. 21.—An inquest was held by Coroner Heggie on the body of David Wholey, a boarder at Joseph Rutledge's, who died suddenly while in a fit of coughing. The post mortem examination showed that the immediate cause of death was the rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain, induced by a severe fit of coughing, and the jury brought in a verdict in accordance with this report.

Fell to His Death.

STRATHROY, Ont., Nov. 21.—This forenoon as No. 555 gravel train from Komoka was approaching Strathroy station Charles Cox, a brakeman residing in London, stepped out of the caboose to apply the brakes. The cars being somewhat frosty, he slipped and fell between them, his fall being noticed by the conductor, but when the train was brought to a stop life was extinct, his remains being horribly mangled. The body was taken to London.

The Scaffold Collapsed.

CRYSTORE, Nov. 21.—This morning about 7½ three men were tuckpointing Casey's new block when the scaffolding gave way and they fell about 20 feet on the hard ground. Edward Irwin was instantly killed. Joseph Gaynor had his arm broken in two places. William Eldridge, back severely hurt. The three men are from Toronto and are married.

An Indian Hunter Drowned

ORILLIA, Nov. 21.—Charley Jacobs of Rama, about the best known Indian in this district, attempted to cross over from Orillia to Rama, while under the influence of liquor. It is supposed that he was upset, the lake being very rough. His body was washed up on shore of Chief Island.

Poisoned by Oil of Tansy

WINDSOR, Nov. 21.—The 10-year-old child of Sydney Johnson, Drugall-street, was poisoned last evening by drinking oil of tansy, which its mother had just taken from her trunk and laid on the table. The child died this morning.

Drank Poison in his Beer.

OIL SPRINGS, Nov. 21.—A despatch from Detroit states that Daniel Griffin, teamster, formerly of this place, committed suicide last night by swallowing a dose of poison in his beer. He had been drinking and was discharged yesterday. Griffin leaves a widow and family.

Returned Home But to Die.

MITCHELL, Nov. 21.—Mr. Hugh McIntyre, sr., died suddenly at his son's farm in Fullarton, at the ripe age of 76 years. He spent most of the summer with his daughter, Mrs. Jolly, in Toronto and had been up here but a week when he took ill and died.

Died While en Route to Church

LINWOOD, Nov. 19.—Mrs. George Schwetzer dropped dead while en route to the Lutheran church last evening. She was apparently in her usual health on leaving home.

Killed With a Pipe Wrench.

KINGSVILLE, Nov. 21.—A pipe wrench which was being used in screwing up pipe in No. 3 gas well slipped from its fastening and struck Nicholas Scratch across the abdomen, inflicting injuries from which he shortly afterwards died.

Stricken Down While Milking.

INGERSOLL, Nov. 21.—Mrs. J. R. Pickout was seized with an apoplectic stroke while milking at Salford. She was carried into the house, but only lived a few hours.

JUMPED INTO THE RED SEA.

Sensational Suicide on Shipboard—Eaten By a Shark.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 21.—The steamer Lurentania arrived from Australia yesterday. The captain reports that while the vessel was passing through the Red Sea a beautiful young English girl, Miss McKnight, who took passage at Melbourne and was coming to England to be married, jumped overboard. She was depressed in spirits and was heard to regret that she had consented to wed. On the night of Nov. 3 Miss McKnight suddenly broke off the conversation with her fellow-passengers and mounting the rail leaped into the sea. The steamer was hove to and boats lowered, but nothing could be seen of the girl. It is supposed that she was eaten by a shark.

Florence Nightingale.

Although Miss Florence Nightingale is no longer young and has been for years past far from strong, she has never lost her interest in good work of all kinds, and does personally far more than many who are strong and active. Quite recently she wrote a letter calling attention to the importance of the "nursing work" done under the Irish Offices Act 1887, as it is somewhat clumsily called.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

THE FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE OF A SAILORS' WIFE.

Husband and Child Killed and the Vessel in a Typhoon for Three Days and Then Wrecked.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 19.—Happily it does not fall to the lot of many wives of sea captains to undergo the peril and hardship encountered by Mrs. Fownes, whose husband was commander of the ship Lizzie C. Troop. It is a thrilling story of the sufferings of those who go down to the sea in ships, related by the wife of Capt. Fownes, in a letter to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Keith of Havelock, King's county. Capt. Fownes, but a short time before, had been snatched from the brink of the grave, the native cook having attempted to poison him by placing arsenic in the tea. Its timely discovery led to the saving of his life as well as that of Mrs. Fownes and the mate. The vessel, after this affair, set sail on her return and was dashed to pieces on the island of Loochoo. It was not long before Mrs. Fownes found herself bereft of child and a widow. She tells the story as follows:

We left Nagasaki Monday noon, Sept. 15, with a nice breeze which lasted till next afternoon, when it changed ahead and increased to a gale. The next afternoon we met a typhoon which lasted three days, during which time we could carry no sail and were steadily drifting towards the islands. The wind roared and the rain poured so that it was terrifying. I watched the barometer all night for them, and at daylight saw it was beginning to rise. I ran to tell the captain, when he shouted: "There is the land,

My God! We Are Lost."

I ran and got my baby out of bed and put some warm clothes around him, put on my boots and shawl and called the cabin-boy, who was sea-sick. I took my baby and started to go on deck, but met the captain in the door and he said: "It is no use; in two or thee minutes all will be over; not a soul can be saved in this fearful sea." He took baby in his arms, bade me good-bye and with a prayer to God to have mercy on us, the sea came in on us, the deck gave way under our feet and we went down in the wreck. I was under the water long enough to go 30 or 40 feet towards the bow of the ship. The next I knew I came up in the light, but was fast in the wreckage. I tore my clothes off me and freed myself and looked for my husband and baby. I heard a groan, but could see nothing. Just then I saw my husband on the top of the house alone. He motioned me to get on the rock. The mate and some of the men had got on shore and were calling me to come. I tried to get my shawl as I was nearly naked, but could not and ran for the rock on floating pieces of the wreck. It was with much difficulty I got on shore and we found shelter from the wind and rain in a hovel. When they laid my husband down I saw he was badly hurt. He said it was his back. He shortly breathed his last. He was terribly injured; his ribs were broken, his head hurt, and the doctors said he was hurt inwardly. He died on the 22nd and was buried on the 23d. After he died we all went about a mile through the storm and in water to our ankles, over rocks and coral to a house for shelter. I had nothing on me but an old blanket for a skirt, an old coat of one of the sailors and an old straw hat that was picked up. When we got to the house they gave me a native dress. The mate and most of the men that were saved were injured more or less. On the fifth day the carpenter died. The natives were very kind. Our cabin-boy was a Japanese and could talk English, so he interpreted for us. We are the

and thousands have come to see us, and the women will come around me and cry and try to sympathize with me in my trouble. This is a closed port and they are going to send us about 60 or 70 miles to another island in a small boat where there are steamers trading with Japan. We have been here two weeks now and no prospects of getting away as they will only go in fine weather, and it has been blowing a gale for the last three days. We have ridden over 3 miles on horseback over rocks, as there are no roads here. I have been to the wreck, hoping to find my baby's body, but only one of the bodies has been washed ashore.

Later advices say that the survivors were taken off the island and reached Japan on the 16th of October, nearly one month after being wrecked. Mrs. Fownes expected to sail by steamer from Japan Nov. 5 for San Francisco.

FRONTENAC ELECTION TRIAL.

The Righteous Indignation of One Witness Forcibly Expressed.

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.—In the Frontenac election trial to-day much time was taken up in considering the promiscuous drinking at Verona. Dr. Claxton drank in Abrams' Hotel and from a bottle he found in a dentist's bedroom. A man named Wilson was with him. The day was rainy and whisky was liberally dispensed by both parties. Claxton knew Shibley's friends had a black bottle and he said: "I did not want to drink any of their liquor."

Hugh Smith admitted having treated after the polls were closed. He was offered liquor in the drive shed and courteously lifted the bottle to his lips, but drank nothing. Mr. Abrams swore he filled a bottle for him during the day.

Mr. Aylesworth urged that corrupt practices had been proven. Mr. Meredith demurred, and the judges reserved decision.

The charges this afternoon had regard to the movement of whisky in Pittsburg and Howe Island. A funny thing occurred. Harry Bates, in Walkem & Walkem's office, was sent down with whisky for Charles Welsh, Howe Island, but he gave it to Joseph Welsh, a brother, instead, and a supporter of Shibley. The Liberal and his friends enjoyed the liquor. Bates said he got the liquor on the order of George Smith, and Smith said Welsh met and told him to send it to him.

Joseph Henderson grew excitable when it was hinted he had got money. He loudly declared: "By God, I would break a man's neck if he offered me money for my vote."

Strange Disappearance.

SMITH'S FALLS, Nov. 21.—Last spring a daughter of James Latrace, near Jasper, disappeared from her home and since then no trace of her can be found. It is said she was accompanied to Smith's Falls one night and the next day was missing from here. Her relatives have been making diligent search for her ever since but in vain, and now it is understood the matter has been given into the hands of a provincial detective.

DAVIT ON THE SITUATION

HE SAYS EVERYTHING WILL BE ALL RIGHT SHORTLY.

Earl Compton Calls Upon Parnell to Resign—The Saturday Review Says that the Attacks of His Opponents Are Exciting Sympathy for Parnell.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 21.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-day Sir George Baden-Powell, M.P., said that the new United States tariff law had given a great impetus to Canadian industries. He thought Canada wise in developing her overseas trade. In speaking of her valuable natural resources he said that Canada offered many opportunities for the investment of British capital because he believed there would not be the same financial vagaries there that had characterized American government and legislation.

Parnell Should Resign.

SHEFFIELD, Nov. 21.—Henry J. Wilson and Earl Compton, respecting Yorkshire in Parliament, and both Home Rulers, made addresses to-night. Both speakers expressed the opinion that the best course left for Parnell is to resign.

SOUTHPORT, Nov. 21.—Michael Davitt in a speech here to-day said that a cloud rested upon the Irish cause at present, but that with God's help and the help of honest Liberals in England that cause would still prevail. Let the Tories, he said, try to surprise them with an election and they would soon be undeceived.

National Liberal Federation Platform.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—At a conference of the National Liberal Federation held to-day a platform was adopted in favor of free education, reform in the land laws, the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church of Scotland, local option, the formation of district and parish councils and the mending or ending of the House of Lords.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson advocated the immediate abolition of the state Church of England, the House of Lords and the liquor laws which he characterized as a threefold cord with which the aristocrats for generations had enslaved the democracy.

The federation adopted a resolution in favor of the payment of salaries to members of the House of Commons.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt addressed the meeting. He made no reference to Mr Parnell.

The Barings Will Continue.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—It is officially announced that arrangements for continuing the business of Baring Bros. & Co. have been concluded. A limited company has been formed and will be registered immediately with a subscribed capital exceeding £1,000,000. Thomas Baring, M.P., becomes chairman of the company and devotes the whole of his fortune to the firm's credit. Other directors are Viscount Francis Baring, M.P., John Baring, Mr. Kirkman and Mr. Hodgson.

The Emperor's Sound Advice.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The Kreuz Zeitung says that Emperor William in an address yesterday to a number of recruits just sworn in as members of the guards stationed in Berlin said that, although peace reigned within the empire, there existed within the country an enemy that could only be overcome by the principles of Christianity. No one could be a good soldier who was not a good Christian. Those who took the oath of allegiance to him as their earthly master ought, before all things, to remain faithful to their heavenly Lord and Saviour.

Labor Troubles Abroad

CORK, Nov. 21.—Fifty seamen and firemen on the Cork Packet Company's vessels Glanmire and Cormorant have been sentenced to imprisonment for one month for breaking the articles of agreement by joining in a strike.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Twenty-five hundred of Lord Londonderry's colliers in Durham have struck for higher wages. It is expected the trouble will be prolonged.

The Murdered Russian.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The funeral of Gen. Seliverskoff took place to-day in the Russian Church. All the members of the staff of the Russian embassy were present. The remains were placed temporarily in a vault.

The Saturday Review's Opinion.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Saturday Review expresses surprise at the tactics of the Parnellite journals in seeking Parnell's political head. Their action, it says, has naturally caused a revulsion of feeling in favor of the Parnellites.

Demonstrations Forbidden.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—The Government has issued a proclamation forbidding demonstrations in any part of Ireland on the anniversary of the execution of the "Manchester martyrs."

Received His Deserts.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Herr Voightgerr, a Socialist member of the municipal council of Berlin has been sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for using abusive language toward the Evangelical Church.

The Tipperary Trials.

TIPPERARY, Nov. 21.—In the O'Brien-Dalton and Gill case to-day the crown finished its evidence and the defendants reserved their defence. A decision will be given in the morning.

Richly Deserved His Fate.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Count Kleist has been sentenced to 15 months' imprisonment for assaulting Albers, the keeper of a restaurant, for refusing to admit him to the restaurant with a lady. The judge commented on Kleist's conduct in severe terms.

Pasteur to Koch.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Prof. Pasteur has sent congratulations to Prof. Koch, who in return has sent a specimen of his lymph to Pasteur.

Killed in an Explosion.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—By an explosion in a powder mill near Belfort to-day four persons were killed.

"Beware of Imitations."

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The Tageblatt says: "The preparation of Koch's curative lymph is proceeding rapidly, but the quantity required for hospitals and medical associations cannot be made ready before the end of January. The attempts that have been made to imitate the lymph justify the adoption of severe measures against the imitators. The lymph is now available for use in most of the Berlin hospitals. At the University Hospital the doctors limit the use of the remedy to persons who are strong enough to come and get an injection. All money realized from the sale of the lymph goes into the funds of the hygienic office."

The Proprietors Were Wise

GUTHRIE, O.T., Nov. 21.—The Commercial Bank of this city, the largest bank in the territory, made an assignment late last night to the sheriff. The proprietors have all left town. The failure involves all the capital that many of the depositors have. A large crowd has been about the building all day. The failure was caused by the failure of the Newton (Kas.) National Bank a few weeks ago.

Grinding U.S. Wheat in Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Treasury Department has denied an application made on behalf of citizens of Trout River, N.Y., for permission to take grain from the United States to Canada to be ground and then returned to the United States free of duty, on the ground that there is no authority of law for the granting of such a privilege.

Secured Large Booty.

WARSAW, Nov. 21.—The bodies of the two passengers found murdered and robbed on the Vienna rail train when it reached Kutno yesterday have been identified as those of cashiers of a Warsaw bank who were traveling to Berlin. They had 35,000 roubles in their possession. There is no trace of the murderers.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Notwithstanding the Stringency of Money Trade Has Been Little Affected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's from forty of the more important cities indicate that, while the stringency of money has been pronounced, there have been no serious results to general trade. At New York, where money has been in relatively greatest demand, bankers have continued to discount for regular customers to the extent of actual needs, but at higher rates. Brokers in commercial paper have done less than usual. Among eight leading New England banking centres at Boston alone is outside paper reported to be taken by the banks, and then only to a limited extent. Providence, Portland, Lowell, New-haven, Hartford, Worcester and Springfield banks have been discounting for actual wants of regular customers for more than a week, but have done nothing with outside paper. The stringency at Philadelphia has affected general trade somewhat. Few time loans have been made and less commercial paper than usual floated. Collections are slow. At Baltimore the contrast is striking, funds being in active demand; abundant supply. At Cincinnati commercial paper has not been placed freely except for regular customers of the banks, with collections only fair. Only the speculative community at Chicago are cramped for want of accommodation, the banks taking care of regular customers in industrial or commercial lines. Outside paper has been unsaleable there. The stringency at St. Louis has been reflected in a smaller volume of trade, caused in part there, as elsewhere, by unseasonably mild weather. Collections there are only fair and the demand for loans is large. In the North-west the situation is not unfavorable, but the outlook is less attractive. Minneapolis advices are non-committal, but St. Paul and Duluth frankly state that collections are unsatisfactory, that the banks for want of funds cannot supply the elevator companies, as in like seasons in other years, and that the latter have been paying for wheat with certificates and have now stopped buying, thus checking mercantile collections. Wholesale houses may feel some effects from this. Banks at Duluth discount only for regular customers and do not care to renew paper at all. A stringency appears at Portland, Oregon, too, where collections are poor because the railroads have not facilities necessary to move the wheat to market. Money has been tight in Denver for several months and several failures have been announced there as due to refusal of banks to renew notes. Cleveland and Detroit, Milwaukee and Kansas City report only a moderate closeness in the money market. The Memphis and New Orleans cotton export trade suffered from demoralization of sterling exchange. This has been overcome since. At Buffalo, Rochester, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Joseph, Grand Rapids, Mich., Desmoines, Galveston, Richmond, no special effects of tight money have been observed. Omaha, too, reports ease in the money market. Call loaning rates outside of New York city have ranged from ½ to 2 per cent higher; few time loans are reported. Commercial discounts have been at unchanged rates except at some of the larger eastern cities.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—The quarterly meeting of the Provincial Board of Health was held yesterday. A communication from the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, states that Prof. Andrew Smith had been instructed to investigate the spread of disease among the hogs of Stamford township. In regard to the proposed Parliamentary bill of the Association of Undertakers, in which they will seek authority to establish a school for embalming, the board agreed that the undertakers should be encouraged, as is the proposed bill the embalmers must conform to the regulations of the Board of Health. Secretary Bryce read a report on the dreaded flour moth. It has been discovered in several localities, but most careful steps have been taken to stamp it out, and it is now well under control.

Accommodation for Patients.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The municipal authorities have allotted temporarily to Prof. Koch five buildings in the Moabite suburb of Berlin for the purpose of aiding him in carrying on his experiments looking to the discovery of a cure of infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, measles, dipatheria and typhus fever. Prof. Koch will also carry on his investigations into the nature and cure of cancer in these buildings. There will be accommodation for 60 patients in the temporary hospital. The professor considers that his labors in connection with tuberculosis are finished.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—Further injections with Koch's lymh were made here yesterday and the symptoms observed confirmed the accounts from Berlin. Dr. Ullmann, an experienced bacteriologist, repeats the caution against any extravagant hopes in cases of consumption. He believes it will take a whole year, with frequent injections at long intervals, to enable a just opinion to be formed on the curability of consumption in either its advanced or initial stages. As to external tuberculosis, however, there is promise of good results, although it is not certain the reappearances can be guarded against. Dr. Krauss, a talented practitioner, thinks Koch's discovery very valuable for testing the existence of the tubercole in the human body, and also that good results may be made with it in the tuberculisis of the bones, skin and joints, but he does not believe it will ever heal consumptive lungs.

While the treatment of poor patients in the Hospitals is only half completed owing to the supply of Koch's lymph being exhausted a few favored physicians are treating from 100 to 150 patients daily, charging from £1 to £5 each patient. Hospital patients are only half treated and the neglected often in a dangerous condition. Some have been rendered comatose by the treatment and have been revived only by the use of powerful restoratives. One patient is reported to have lain unconscious and within an inch of death for 36 hours. Prof. Koch it is said, knows nothing of the scandal and is not responsible for it.

The Hangman Still Busy.

YOZOO CITY, Nov. 21.—Dorsey Edwards, colored, was hanged to-day for the murder of his wife.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—Jack Maples, colored, was hanged here to-day for rape upon Mrs. Rufe Lewis. Maples denied his guilt to the last.

Crushed by a Bowlder.

TEESWATER, Nov. 21.—William Rome was digging a pit on his farm in which to bury a bowlder, when the huge stone rolled in upon him, crushing and bruising the lower part of his body and breaking both legs below the knee. Rome endured terrible suffering during the 30 minutes required to remove the bowlder. His recovery is doubtful.

MINNEAPOLIS, [illegible] Tribune's correspondent at Mandan, N.D., obtains information from the Sioux agency from two reliable sources that the chances are against an immediate uprising unless Sitting Bull makes up his mind it would pay. Agent McLaughlin sent Indian police to arrest refractory Indians, but instead of obeying orders they threw off their clothes and joined the dance. They returned to the agency without prisoners and offered no excuse. Agent McLaughlin was afraid to punish them and condoned their offense. Governor Milton is in Mandan this evening. He says there is nothing between the white settlers south of the town and massacre but the good will of the Indians.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Acting Indian Commissioner Belt this afternoon received a telegram from Special Agent Cooper, at Pine Ridge agency, stating that 600 or 700 Indians are en route from Rosebud to Pine Ridge.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

DEATH IN VARIOUS FORMS.

A LONG LIST OF SUICIDES AND SUDDEN DEMISES.

Death Came While Coughing, While Milking, While En Route to Church, and in Various Other Uncommon Ways

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 21.—The wife of John Dempsey of Rossmore, who has been subject to fits, cut her throat this morning with her husband's razor, making a terrible gash, but missing the jugular vein. She then ran from the house and jumped into a well containing several feet of water. Dempsey happened along as she took the plunge and rescued her, and Dr. Wilson sewed up the wound. Mrs. Dempsey will recover. She had made a previous attempt at self-destruction.

Boiler Explosion.

MIDLAND, Nov. 21.—Wednesday afternoon a terrific explosion occurred at the saw mill of Peters & Cain. One of the large boilers exploded and went through the roof of the boiler house, moving the other two boilers about 20 feet. One of the corners was knocked out of the mill. The boiler came down on Mr. Graham and he was found with his head in the mud port hole, the boiler resting on a heavy plank. Hugh Thompson was thrown several yards, and Messrs. McClinchy and Wheeler were knocked into the bay. None are fatally injured.

Saved by a Buckle.

LISTOWEL, Nov. 21.—Sidford Holmes was out hunting with a companion, William Hume, and the latter handed Holmes his gun to carry across a log. The gun slipped and the hammer struck the log, firing the charge and striking Holmes in the side. By a happy chance the charge was broken by striking the metal buckle of his suspender. The lad was able to walk to the doctor's, who extracted the few shot that penetrated his side.

Coughed Himself to Death.

STREETSVILLE, Nov. 21.—An inquest was held by Coroner Heggie on the body of David Wholey, a boarder at Joseph Rutledge's, who died suddenly while in a fit of coughing. The post mortem examination showed that the immediate cause of death was the rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain, induced by a severe fit of coughing, and the jury brought in a verdict in accordance with this report.

Fell to His Death.

STRATHROY, Ont., Nov. 21.—This forenoon as No. 855 gravel train from Komoka was approaching Strathroy station Charles Clew, a brakeman residing in London, stepped out of the caboose to apply the brakes. The cars being somewhat frosty, he slipped, and fell between them, his fall being noticed by the conductor, but when the train was brought to a stop life was extinct, his remains being horribly mangled. The body was taken to London.

The Scaffold Collapsed.

CHATHAM, Nov. 21.—This morning about Thos. three men were tuckpointing Casey's new block when the scaffolding gave way and they fell about 20 feet on the hard ground. JUMPED INTO THE RED SEA.

Sensational Suicide on Shipboard—Eaten By a Shark.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 21.—The steamer Lurcania arrived from Australia yesterday. The captain reports that while the vessel was passing through the Red Sea a beautiful young English girl, Miss McKnight, who took passage at Melbourne and was coming to England to be married, jumped overboard. She was depressed in spirits and was heard to regret that she had consented to wed. On the night of Nov. 3 Miss McKnight suddenly broke off the conversation with her fellow-passengers and mounting the rail leaped into the sea. The steamer was hove to and boats lowered, but nothing could be seen of the girl. It is supposed that she was eaten by a shark.

Florence Nightingale.

Although Miss Florence Nightingale is no longer young and has been for years past far from strong, she has never lost her interest in good work of all kinds, and does personally far more than many who are strong and active. Quite recently she wrote a letter calling attention to the importance of the "nursing work" done under the Irish Office of ex ect, or it is more technically called.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

THE FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCE OF A SAILORS' WIFE

Husband and Child Killed and the Vessel in a Typhoon for Three Days and Then Wrecked.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 19.—Happily it does not fall to the lot of many wives of sea captains to undergo the peril and hardship encountered by Mrs. Fownes, whose husband was commander of the ship Lizzie C. Troop. It is a thrilling story of the sufferings of those who go down to the sea in ships, related by the wife of Capt. Fownes, in a letter to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Keith of Havelock, King's county. Capt. Fownes, but a short time before, had been snatched from the brink of the grave, the native cook having attempted to poison him by placing arsenic in the tea. Its timely discovery led to the saving of his life as well as that of Mrs. Fownes and the mate. The vessel, after this affair, set sail on her return and was dashed to pieces on the island of Loochoo. It was not long before Mrs. Fownes found herself bereft of child and a widow. She tells the story as follows:

We left Nagasaki Monday noon, Sept. 15, with a nice breeze which lasted till next afternoon, when it changed ahead and increased to a gale. The next afternoon we met a typhoon which lasted three days, during which time we could carry no sail and were steadily drifting towards the islands. The wind roared and the rain poured so that it was terrifying. I watched the barometer all night for them, and at daylight saw it was beginning to rise. I ran to tell the captain, when he shouted: "There is the land.

My God! We Are Lost."

I ran and got my baby out of bed and put some warm clothes around him, put on my boots and shawl and called the cabin-boy, who was sea-sick. I took my baby and started to go on deck, but met the captain in the door and he said: "It is no use; in two or three minutes all will be over; not a soul can be saved in this fearful sea." He took baby in his arms, bade me good-bye and with a prayer to God to have mercy on us, the sea came in on us, the deck gave way under our feet and we went down in the wreck. I was under the water long enough to go 30 or 40 feet towards the bow of the ship. The next I knew I came up in the light, but was fast in the wreckage. I tore my clothes off me and freed myself and looked for my husband and baby. I heard a groan but could see nothing. Just then I saw my husband on the top of the house alone. He motioned me to get on the rock. The mate and some of the men had got on shore and were calling me to come. All I tried to get my shawl as I was nearly naked, but could not and ran for the rock on floating pieces of the wreck. It was with much difficulty I got on shore and we found shelter from the wind and rain in a hovel. When they laid my husband down I saw he was badly hurt. He said it was his back. He shortly breathed his last. He was terribly injured; his ribs were broken, his head hurt, and the doctors said he was hurt inwardly. He died on the 22d and was buried on the 23d. After he died we all went about a mile through the storm and in water to our ankles, over rocks and coral to a house for shelter. I had nothing on me but an old blanket for a shirt, an old coat of one of the sailors and an old straw hat that was picked up. When we got to the house they gave me a native dress. The mate and most of the men that were saved were injured more or less. On the fifth day the carpenter died. The natives were very kind. Our cabin-boy was a Japanese and could talk English, so he interpreted for us. We are the first Europeans Ever on the Island and thousands have come to see us, and the women will come around me and cry and try to sympathize with me in my trouble. This is a closed port and they are going to send us about 60 or 70 miles to another island in a small boat where there are steamers trading with Japan. We have been here two weeks now and no prospects of getting away as they will only go in fine weather, and it has been blowing a gale for the last three days. We have ridden over 50 miles on horseback over rocks, as there are no roads here. I have been to the wreck, hoping to find my baby's body, but only one of the bodies has been washed ashore.

Later advices say that the survivors were taken off the island and reached Japan on the 18th of October, nearly one month after being wrecked. Mrs. Fownes expected to sail by steamer from Japan Nov. 5 for San Francisco.

FRONTENAC ELECTION TRIAL

The Righteous Indignation of One Witness Forcibly Expressed.

KINGSTON, Nov. 21.—In the Frontenac election trial to-day much time was taken up in considering the promiscuous drinking at Verona. Dr. Clarton drank in Abrams' Hotel and from a bottle he found in a dentist's bedroom. A man named Wilson was with him. The day was raw and whisky was liberally dispensed by both parties. Clarton knew Shibley's friends had a black bottle and he said: "I did not want to drink any of their liquor."

Hugh Smith admitted having treated after the polls were closed. He was offered liquor in the drive shed and courteously lifted the bottle to his lips, but drank nothing. Mr. Abrams swore he filled a bottle for him during the day.

Mr. Aylesworth urged that corrupt practices had been proven. Mr. Meredith demurred, and the judges reserved decision.

The charges this afternoon had regard to the movement of whisky in Pittsburg and Howe Island. A funny thing occurred. Harry Bates, in Walkem & Walkem's office, was sent down with whisky for Charles Welsh, Howe Island, but he gave it to Joseph Welsh, a brother, instead, and a supporter of Shibley. The Liberal and his friends enjoyed the liquor. Bates said he got the liquor on the order of George Smith, and Smith said Welsh met and told him to send it to him.

Joseph Henderson grew excitable when it was hinted he had got money. He loudly declared: "By God, I would break a man's neck if he offered me money for my vote."

Strange Disappearance.

SMITH'S FALLS, Nov. 21.—Last spring a daughter of James Latrace, near Jasper, disappeared from her home and since then no trace of her can be found. It is said she was accompanied to Smith's Falls one night and the next day was missing from here. Her relatives have been making diligent search for her ever since but in vain, and now it is understood the matter has been given into the hands of a provincial detective.

DAVIT ON THE SITUATION

HE SAYS EVERYTHING WILL BE ALL RIGHT SHORTLY.

Earl Compton Calls Upon Parnell to Resign—The Saturday Review Says that the Attacks of His Opponents Are Exciting Sympathy for Parnell.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 21.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-day Sir George Baden-Powell, M.P., said that the new United States tariff law had given a great impetus to Canadian industries. He thought Canada wise in developing her overseas trade. In speaking of her valuable natural resources he said that Canada offered many opportunities for the investment of British capital because he believed there would not be the same financial vagaries there that had characterized American government and legislation.

Parnell Should Resign.

SHEFFIELD, Nov. 21.—Henry J. Wilson and Earl Compton, respecting Yorkshire in Parliament, and both Home Rulers, made addresses to-night. Both speakers expressed the opinion that the best course left for Parnell is to resign.

SOUTHPORT, Nov. 21.—Michael Davitt in a speech here to-day said that a cloud rested upon the Irish cause at present, but that with God's help and the help of honest Liberals in England that cause would still prevail. Let the Tories, he said, try to surprise them with an election and they would soon be undeceived.

National Liberal Federation Platform.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—At a conference of the National Liberal Federation held to-day a platform was adopted in favor of free education, reform in the land laws, the disestablishment and disendowment of the Church of Scotland, local option, the formation of district and parish councils and the mending or ending of the House of Lords.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson advocated the immediate abolition of the state Church of England, the House of Lords and the liquor laws which he characterized as a threefold cord with which the aristocrats for generations had enslaved the democracy.

The federation adopted a resolution in favor of the payment of salaries to members of the House of Commons.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt addressed the meeting. He made no reference to Mr Parnell.

The Barings Will Continue.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—It is officially announced that arrangements for continuing the business of Baring Bros. & Co. have been concluded. A limited company has been formed and will be registered immediately with a subscribed capital exceeding £1,000,000. Thomas Baring, M.P., becomes chairman of the company and devotes the whole of his fortune to the firm's credit. Other directors are Viscount Francis Baring, M.P., John Baring, Mr. Kirkman and Mr. Hodgson.

The Emperor's Sound Advice.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The Kreuz Zeitung says that Emperor William in an address yesterday to a number of recruits just sworn in as members of the guards stationed in Berlin said that, although peace reigned within the empire, there existed within the country an enemy that could only be overcome by the principles of Christianity. No one could be a good soldier who was not a good Christian. Those who took the oath of allegiance to him as their earthly master ought, before all things, to remain faithful to their heavenly Lord and Saviour.

Labor Troubles Abroad.

CORK, Nov. 21.—Fifty seamen and firemen on the Cork Packet Company's vessels Glanmire and Cormorant have been sentenced to imprisonment for one month for breaking the articles of agreement by joining in a strike.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Twenty-five hundred of Lord Londonderry's colliers in Durham have struck for higher wages. It is expected the trouble will be prolonged.

The Murdered Russian.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The funeral of Gen. Selwerskoff took place to-day in the Russian Church. All the members of the staff of the Russian embassy were present. The remains were placed temporarily in a vault.

The Saturday Review's Opinion.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The Saturday Review expresses surprise at the tactics of the Pigottist journals in seeking Parnell's political head. Their action, it says, has naturally caused a revulsion of feeling in favor of the Parnellites.

Demonstrations Forbidden.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—The Government has issued a proclamation forbidding demonstrations in any part of Ireland on the anniversary of the execution of the "Manchester martyrs."

Received His Deserts.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Herr Voightherr, a Socialist member of the municipal council of Berlin has been sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment for using abusive language toward the Evangelical Church.

The Tipperary Trials.

TIPPERARY, Nov. 21.—In the O'Brien-Dalton and Gill case to-day the crown finished its evidence and the defendants reserved their defence. A decision will be given in the morning.

Richly Deserved His Fate.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Count Kleist has been sentenced to 15 months' imprisonment for assaulting Arbeis, the keeper of a restaurant, for refusing to admit him to the restaurant with a lady. The judge commented on Kleist's conduct in severe terms.

Pasteur to Koch.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Prof. Pasteur has sent congratulations to Prof. Koch, who in return has sent a specimen of his lymph to Pasteur.

Killed in an Explosion.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—By an explosion in a powder mill near Belfort to-day four persons were killed.

"Beware of Imitations."

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The Tageblatt says: "The preparation of Koch's curative lymph is proceeding rapidly, but the quantity required for hospitals and medical associations cannot be made ready before the end of January. The attempts that have been made to imitate the lymph justify the adoption of severe measures against the imitators. The lymph is now available for use in most of the Berlin hospitals. At the University Hospital the doctors limit the use of the remedy to persons who are strong enough to come and get an injection. All money realized from the sale of the lymph goes into the funds of the hygienic office."

The Proprietors Were Wise.

GUTHRIE, O.T., Nov. 21.—The Commercial Bank of this city, the largest bank in the territory, made an assignment late last night to the sheriff. The proprietors have all left town. The failure involves all the capital that many of the depositors have. A large crowd has been about the building all day. The failure was caused by the failure of the Newton (Kas.) National Bank a few weeks ago.

Grinding U.S. Wheat in Canada.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Treasury Department has denied an application made on behalf of citizens of Trout River, N.Y., for permission to take grain from the United States to Canada to be ground and then returned to the United States free of duty, on the ground that there is no authority of law for the granting of such a privilege.

Secured Large Booty.

WARSAW, Nov. 21.—The bodies of the two passengers found murdered and robbed on the Vienna rail train when it reached Kutno yesterday have been identified as those of cashiers of a Warsaw bank who were traveling to Berlin. They had 35,000 roubles in their possession. There is no trace of the murderers.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

Notwithstanding the Stringency of Money Trade Has Been Little Affected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's from forty of the more important cities indicate that, while the stringency of money has been pronounced, there have been no serious results to general trade. At New York, where money has been in relatively greatest demand, bankers have continued to discount for regular customers to the extent of actual needs, but at higher rates. Brokers in commercial paper have done less than usual. Among eight leading New England banking centres at Boston alone is outside paper reported to be taken by the banks, and then only to a limited extent. Providence, Portland, Lowell, New-haven, Hartford, Worcester and Springfield banks have been discounting for actual wants of regular customers for more than a week, but have done nothing with outside paper. The stringency at Philadelphia has affected general trade somewhat. Few time loans have been made and less commercial paper than usual floated. Collections are slow. At Baltimore the contrast is striking, funds being in active demand; abundant supply. At Cincinnati commercial paper has not been placed freely except for regular customers of the banks, with collections only fair. Only the speculative community at Chicago are cramped for want of accommodation, the banks taking care of regular customers in industrial or commercial lines. Outside paper has been unsaleable there. The stringency at St. Louis has been reflected in a smaller volume of trade, caused in part there, as elsewhere, by unseasonably mild weather. Collections there are only fair and the demand for loans is large. In the Northwest the situation is not unfavorable, but the outlook is less attractive. Minneapolis advices are non-committal, but St. Paul and Duluth frankly state that collections are unsatisfactory, that the banks for want of funds cannot supply the elevator companies, as in like seasons in other years, and that the latter have been paying for wheat with certificates and have now stopped buying, thus checking mercantile collections. Wholesale houses may feel some effects from this. Banks at Duluth discount only for regular customers and do not care to renew paper at all. A stringency appears at Portland, Oregon, too, where collections are poor because the railroads have not facilities necessary to move the wheat to market. Money has been tight in Denver for several months and several failures have been announced there as due to refusal of banks to renew notes. Cleveland and Detroit, Milwaukee and Kansas City report only a moderate closeness in the money market. The Memphis and New Orleans cotton export trade suffered from demoralization of sterling exchange. This has been overcome since. At Buffalo, Rochester, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Joseph, Grand Rapids, Mich., Desmoines, Galveston, Richmond, no special effects of tight money have been observed. Omaha, too, reports ease in the money market. Call loaning rates outside of New York city have ranged from ½ to 2 per cent higher; few time loans are reported. Commercial discounts have been at unchanged rates except at some of the larger eastern cities.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—The quarterly meeting of the Provincial Board of Health was held yesterday. A communication from the Agricultural Department, Ottawa, states that Prof. Andrew Smith had been instructed to investigate the spread of disease among the hogs of Stamford township. In regard to the proposed Parliamentary bill of the Association of Undertakers, in which they will seek authority to establish a school for embalming, the board agreed that the undertakers should be encouraged, as is the proposed bill the embalmers must conform to the regulations of the Board of Health. Secretary Bryce read a report on the dreaded flour moth. It has been discovered in several localities, but most careful steps have been taken to stamp it out, and it is now well under control.

Accommodation for Patients.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—The municipal authorities have allotted temporarily to Prof. Koch five buildings in the Moabite suburb of Berlin for the purpose of aiding him in carrying on his experiments looking to the discovery of a cure of infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria and typhus fever. Prof. Koch will also carry on his investigations into the nature and cure of cancer in these buildings. There will be accommodation for 60 patients in the temporary hospital. The professor considers that his labors in connection with tuberculosis are finished.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—Further injections with Koch's lymh were made here yesterday and the symptoms observed confirmed the accounts from Berlin. Dr. Ulmann, an experienced bacteriologist, repeats the caution against any extravagant hopes in cases of consumption. He believes it will take a whole year, with frequent injections at long intervals, to enable a just opinion to be formed on the curability of consumption in either its advanced or initial stages. As to external tuberculosis, however, there is promise of good results, although it is not certain that reappearances can be guarded against. Dr. Krauss, a talented practitioner, thinks Koch's discovery very valuable for testing the existence of the tubercle in the human body, and also that good results may be made with it in the tuberculsis of the bones, skin and joints, but he does not believe it will ever heal consumptive lungs.

While the treatment of poor patients in the Hospitals is only half completed owing to the supply of Koch's lymph being exhausted a few favored physicians are treating from 100 to 150 patients daily, charging from £1 to £5 each patient. Hospital patients are only half treated and the neglected often in a dangerous condition. Some have been rendered comatose by the treatment and have been revived only by the use of powerful restoratives. One patient is reported to have lain unconscious and within an inch of death for 36 hours. Prof. Koch it is said, knows nothing of the scandal and is not responsible for it.

The Hangman Still Busy.

YOZOO CITY, Nov. 21.—Dorsey Edwards, colored, was hanged to-day for the murder of his wife.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—Jack Maples, colored, was hanged here to-day for rape upon Mrs. Rufe Lewis. Maples denied his guilt to the last.

Crushed by a Bowlder.

TEESWATER, Nov. 21.—William Rome was digging a pit on his farm in which to bury a bowlder, when the huge stone rolled in upon him, crushing and bruising the lower part of his body and breaking both legs below the knee. Rome endured terrible suffering during the 20 minutes required to remove the bowlder. His recovery is doubtful.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21.—The Tribune's correspondent at Mandan, N.D., obtains information from the Sioux agency from two reliable sources that the chances are against an immediate uprising unless Sitting Bull makes up his mind it would pay. Agent McLaughlin sent Indian police to arrest refractory Indians, but instead of obeying orders they threw off their clothes and joined the dance. They returned to the agency without prisoners and offered no excuse. Agent McLaughlin was afraid to punish them and condoned their offense. Governor Milton is in Mandan this evening. He says there is nothing between the white settlers south of the town and massacre but the good will of the Indians.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Acting Indian Commissioner Belt this afternoon received a telegram from Special Agent Cooper, at Pine Ridge agency, stating that 800 or 700 Indians are en route from Rosebud to Pine Ridge.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

THE RAILWAY RESPONSIBLE,

And the Town Council Censured for its Vacillation.

Conclusion of the Inquest upon the Death of Mrs. Dotcher—No Question about the Necessity of Gates Now—The Jury Returns a Unanimous Verdict.

The Coroner's Jurors amused themselves last night while waiting for the opening of proceedings, by circulating a "round robin," requesting the Coroner and County Crown Attorney to share up a portion of their fees, and "set up" the oysters for the fourteen good men and true who were spending their time without any financial recompense. The document was duly forwarded and dealt with a la Privy Council, the subjects of the requisition being of opinion that their fees were too slim to warrant such an extravagant expenditure.

At eight o'clock business was begun, all the interested parties being present.

AN EXPLANATION.

WM JONES, who gave evidence the night before, was recalled, and stated that he had that day visited the spot where he had found the deceased lying after the accident. He was the first one there at the time of the accident, and he picked her up without assistance. Brakesman Waggoner arrived later. He found the body lying upon its back on the edge of the planking. He dragged her off the rails and held her in his arms, where there was a pool of blood from her bleeding legs. He had located the spot on his last visit, and saw also where the pool of blood before mentioned was. He measured the distance from the ends of the planks to the pool of blood, and found it to be exactly three feet. The ends of the planks were in direct line of the west edge of the sidewalk on George street. There was besides a space of about two feet between the edge of the sidewalk and the fence on George street. He was certain the body of the deceased was lying within two feet, or two feet and a half, of the ends of the planks; he believed the body was touching the planks. Witness also explained that owing to the close cross-questioning of Mr. McMurchy the night before he had been led in stating that he was under the impression that the brakesman he saw was on the rear car. He wished to correct this, and maintain as he had first stated, that the brakesman he saw was about at the third car. He had intended to state that, as he saw one brakesman on the ground and another on the third car, there might have been another man on the rear car, whom he did not see, because he understood that there were three brakesmen attached to every train, but had since learned that there were only two on this. He did not intend to convey the impression that the man he did see was on the rear car. If there was only one man on the train he was not on the rear car. The man he saw was putting on the brake. He was looking at this brakesman, out, on hearing the shout, immediately turned his head and saw the deceased fall.

Mr. MCMURCHY produced a diagram of the scene of the accident, showing a spot of blood on the rail and the pool of blood referred to between the tracks. Witness stated that the spot between the tracks was a little further from the ends of the planks than was the blood on the rail. He saw where there was a pile of sand alongside the track, but it was not where he saw the blood on the rail. The body was pulled rather westward, so that the pool of blood between the tracks would, of course, be further away than the spot on the rail. The diagram showed that the spot on the rail was about six feet from the planks, and the pool between the tracks five feet; but witness said that was correct.

CHIEF BOAZKI testified to measuring the distance between the pool of blood (which is now covered with cinders) and the planks. It was three feet. This crossing was on a main thoroughfare and much traversed.

THEY ALL KEPT GUARD.

WM. MOORE, C.P.R. station agent, said that it was the duty of the brakesmen to keep the track clear, and in this case it would be the duty of the man on the moving train, who should be on the rear car. There were twenty trains a day, or less, passed over the crossing, besides considerable shunting, all together making probably forty crossings a day. There is no watchman nor gates here nor any precaution was ever exercised at the brakesmen. They were very careful in their shunting, but sometimes made running shunts. To Mr. MacMurchy, witness said there was not much traffic at night. They did most of the shunting further up in the yard. Then trains always moved slowly at this crossing, and they had never had any accident, as far as he knew, until now. The day baggageman assisted at the shunting, and then it became his duty to see that the crossing was clear. The crossing was guarded against accident as much as possible. There were ten men employed around the station and they all assisted in this way. To Mr. Wood—If there had been gates there the probability is the accident would never have happened.

WHAT THE TOWN DID

Town Clerk McDonald produced some correspondence which had passed between the railway company and the corporation. Previous to this, over two years ago, the corporation communicated with the railway companies regarding gates, and afterwards in June last, with the Railway Committee of the Privy Council, but without effect. His communication to the Clerk of the Privy Council was handed over to the Department of Railways and Canals, and from Mr. Trudeau an answer was received that at that time most of the ministers were out of town, and on their return the matter would be laid before them. That was the last heard of the matter. At last complaints grew so frequent that the Clerk was again instructed to write the railway companies, drawing their attention to the necessity of gates. The letter to the C.P.R. company was produced:

PETERBOROUGH, August 8, 1890.

Dear Sir,—I am again requested to draw your attention to the great necessity there exists for placing gates where your track crosses George street in this town. It is the main thoroughfare and hundreds of horses and pedestrians pass over the track daily, and narrow escapes are of frequent occurrence. Kindly give the important matter your earliest attention and oblige,

Yours truly,
JAS. G. MCDONALD,
Town Clerk.

W. C. VanHorne, Esq.,
President C. P. R., Montreal.

To which the following reply was received on the 20th:

J. G. Macdonald, Esq., Town Clerk, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Your letter of the 8th instant to Mr. Van Horne in regard to placing gates where George street crosses our tracks in your town has been referred to me.

I have made careful inquiry but I cannot find any record of an accident ever having occurred at this crossing. It is impossible for railway companies to provide protection at every public crossing. We have on our lines in Ontario alone as many as 922 of these crossings. Owing to the proximity of the station to the crossing referred to, our trains run at a slow rate of speed at this point, and if people exercise any care whatever in they should whenever they approach a railway crossing there is no reason why there should be any trouble at this crossing.

Yours truly,
THOS. TAIT,
Gen'l Superintendent.

To this, witness replied to the effect that the corporation regarded the matter as one of great importance, and in default of the company doing anything they would have to have recourse to the Railway Committee of the Privy Council to compel the Company to place gates where necessary. Witness also gave evidence concerning the danger of this crossing.

DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

Mr. WOOD said that this was all the evidence he had to offer, as the testimony already in appeared to give the whole circumstances of the case.

The CORONER stated that there were several more railway employees present, and if the jury wished to hear them they had the privilege. He, however, did not think that any more evidence was necessary.

Mr. MCMURCHY stated that the evidence of the railway employees would not differ from Waggoner's, though he ought to say that he could prove that the deceased lady had been frequently rescued from death at this place. He could also prove that the plan presented was a correct one.

SUMMING UP.

The CORONER said he did not think much direction was necessary to the jury as no doubt they were familiar with the case. There was no doubt in his mind that the deceased's infirmity had contributed to the accident, but he thought that on that account greater care should be taken in protecting the public, and especially such as her. There was no doubt that this was a dangerous crossing, as he himself knew from personal experience. The crossing was not protected, as a result of which this life had been lost. It appeared that the town council had taken steps in the matter; it rested with the Jury to say whether the town's action had been sufficiently urgent. The Coroner read the provisions of the Railway Act regarding the protection of against trains which were moving backward, which required that a brakesman shall be on the rear car and keep a look-out. The jury would have to say whether the company employees had been derelict in this respect. The Act also provided for the placing of gates at all level crossings in towns and villages, and watchmen or guards. The question might arise as to whose duty it was to call the attention of the Privy Council to the necessity of having a gate at this place. The C.P.R., according to Mr. Tait, did not think it necessary; and the town had corresponded both with the railway company and the Privy Council. The Railway Committee of the Privy Council had evidently overlooked the matter. It was a question whether the town authorities had been prompt and urgent enough in pushing the matter.

Mr. EDWARDS called the coroner's attention to the reply received to the effect that the ministers were out of town, but the matter would be attended to as soon as they returned.

The CORONER said that, however that might be, no answer had been received, and, no doubt, the members of the Privy Council had returned to town by this time. The question was, seeing that the railway company did not intend doing anything, should not the town have pushed the matter?

Mr. EDWARDS said, that according to that section of the statute the duty lies between the railway company and the Privy Council. There was no duty cast upon the municipality in the way of making representations in any way.

Mr. MCMURCHY objected to this reading. The statute stated that the Company had not to provide gates until requested by the Privy Council. Hamilton and Ingersol were being provided with gates by order of the Railway Committee of the Privy Council. He said that any one who read the newspapers must have seen that every day almost the Railway Committee was meeting at Ottawa and considering applications.

Coroner BELL said, that in any case there was a moral duty resting on the Town Council to protect the streets, and the very fact of the council having written about it showed that they recognized that duty. The question was, did the death result from negligence on the corporation's part. With regard to the responsibility of the railway company there was conflicting evidence, but he believed that it had contributed to the death of this old lady. They had not listened to the appeal of the town because there had no accident happened. But it was not necessary to wait for an accident to happen to prove that there was danger. The general public of Peterborough know well it has always been a dangerous crossing. The C.P.R. Company did not of course wish to go to unnecessary expense, but no matter how carefully the trains cross the street there was still great danger. Then again, the old lady's infirmity contributed to the accident, but that was no crime on her part. He hoped the Jury would consider the evidence carefully, and would give their verdict without fear of bringing condemnation on anyone. He felt justified in saying that, no matter what the verdict was, a strong recommendation should be added that gates should be provided for almost all the railway crossings in town. It was the jury's duty to ascertain how and by what means Mrs. Dotcher came to her death, and if any person or persons were found responsible to state so without any hesitation.

A DOUBT CLEARED AWAY.

Juror IRWIN said he was in doubt with regard to the position of the brakesmen on the train. One witness said he was on the rear car and another that he was on the second or third. The railway law provided that, under circumstances such as this, a brakesman must be on the rear car. It was important to have this difficulty cleared up. He suggested calling Brakesman Morrill.

The CORONER said he would do so, and, continuing, said that the question had arisen as to where the body of the old lady had been found, the object being, apparently, to show that the old lady had been trespassing, if her body was found sufficiently far west of the street line. But it was a matter of only a slight difference, and to his mind she might have been knocked four, six or eight feet by the car, and there was nothing to show that she was not on the line of street when she was struck. With regard to the brakesman on the train, there is no evidence that he gave any warning. Witnesses stating that he was not in a position to see the old lady.

THE LAST WITNESS.

BRAKESMAN MORRILL, sworn, said he was on the rear car, about six feet from the west end, standing to the north side of the running board, when he saw Waggoner give the stop signal and he immediately ran to the brake, meantime repeating the signal to the driver. The brake was on the east end of the car. He did not see the deceased before the accident.

CORONER—How do you account for not seeing the deceased if you were within six feet of the rear end and were looking out for danger?

WITNESS—I saw that there was no one on the track and I looked to the north where there were some rigs waiting.

The CORONER asked if it was not his duty to look to both sides of the track as well as just ahead.

WITNESS stated that he looked ahead and to the north, but being on the north side of the car his view to the south was interrupted.

CORONER—You did not warn the deceased anyway.

WITNESS—No, because I did not see her.

CORONER—Do you consider that you were fulfilling your duty on top of the car.

WITNESS—Yes.

THE VERDICT.

The jury were then left to deliberate upon the evidence, and at twelve o'clock returned the following verdict:—

That Mary Dotcher came to her death on November 19th, 1890 at the George street crossing of the C. P. Railway in Peterborough, by being run over by a box car, causing such injuries as to produce death by shock and collapse.

We are of opinion that the railway company are guilty of culpable negligence in not providing better protection at this and other crossings in town, their attention having been particularly drawn to this crossing where the deceased met her death, and no action having been taken.

We view with regret the vacillating and subservient manner in which the Mayor and members of the Town Council have acted in not compelling the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railway Companies to place gates on such public thoroughfares as the one on which the deceased met her death.

THE IRISH LEADER.

DECLARED GUILTY OF ADULTERY WITH MRS. O'SHEA.

History of the Case—The Parties to the Suit—The Pleadings—Parnell Does Not Defend—Mrs. O'Shea Merely Pleads—The Irish Leadership.

The trial of the O'Shea divorce case, the utter collapse of the defence, the finding of the special jury declaring Parnell and Mrs. O'Shea guilty of adultery, are now matters of sensational history which are occupying the attention of the public.

CHARLES STEWART PARNELL,

co-respondent in the case and leader of the Irish parliamentary party in the Imperial House of Commons, is the idol of his followers. He has occupied so great a place in the public eye for years that a recapitulation of his history is superfluous. In the present unenviable notoriety which he has attained, it is worthy of note that the National League of Ireland has by resolution resolved to "stand by him while he stood by them." The Irish envoys in America take the same position, thinking "this course dictated not merely by gratitude for Parnell's imperishable services in the past, but by the conviction that his leadership is absolutely essential to the success of their movement." Parnell, himself, takes the matter very coolly. In the same paper in which the expose appears there was his whip, written by his own hand, urging his followers in Parliament to be present and attend at the coming session.

CAPTAIN O'SHEA,

the petitioner, is the only son of a well-known Dublin lawyer, and is just 50 years old. He is a man of excellent education, having attended the Catholic college at Oscott, near Birmingham, Eng., and Trinity College in his native city. He was an officer in the Eighteenth Huzzers, but retired from the service in 1867, when he married Miss Katherine Wood, daughter of the late Sir Page Wood, Baronet, of Rivenhall place, in Essex, England, and sister of Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood. He first met Mr. Parnell in 1880, during the Parliamentary contest, and they became apparently fast friends; indeed, when Capt. O'Shea was defeated in Clare, Parnell forced him upon an adjoining constituency, a step which the Irish leader's friends think was his chief error. After Parnell was released from Kilmainham jail, O'Shea invited him to his house to recuperate, his health being seriously affected. Originally the petition for divorce charged adultery against Parnell at various times since 1886, but later on the Captain asked the Courts to amend it so as to extend the charges back to 1880. In 1886, O'Shea went over to Chamberlain's side on the Home Rule question, and he was a witness against Parnell in his suit against the London Times.

MRS O'SHEA,

who is a beautiful, clever and captivating woman, was introduced to Parnell by her husband upon the occasion of their first meeting already referred to, on which occasion Parnell was invited to dine with them at their hotel in London. Her grandfather, Sir Matthew Wood, was twice Lord Mayor of London and won immense popularity in his day by his stanch championship of Queen Caroline, the consort of George IV. When Miss Wood met O'Shea she was one of the reigning belles of Dublin and he was the possessor of a very comfortable fortune, which he has since dissipated. A year ago she inherited a fortune in her own right, amounting to nearly $100,000,

A STATEMENT OF THE CASE.

In the London Divorce Court on the 15th inst., Lewis Coward by remarking that Capt. O'Shea, who at one time had been a member of the Irish Parliamentary party and one of Parnell's friends, was endeavoring to obtain a divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery with Charles Stewart Parnell, the leader of the Irish party. Parnell denied the adultery, and Mrs O'Shea, while denying it, also alleged that the petitioner had been guilty of neglect and misconduct conducing to adultery (if committed); that he had wilfully separated from the respondent; that he committed adultery himself, and that finally he had been guilty of unreasonable delay and cruelty. Capt. O'Shea denied these allegations.

NO DEFENCE.

Mr. Lockwood then rose and said: "I appear with Mr. Pritchard on behalf of the respondent. For Mrs. O'Shea I take this opportunity of saying that we do not intend cross-examining any witness, neither do we intend to call any witnesses, or take any part in the proceedings whatsoever." Sir Edward Clarke, who opened the case for the petitioner, said he understood Mr. Parnell was unrepresented in the case and therefore practically undefended. These announcements produced the greatest sensation, and the taking of evidence was only formal, and sufficient to enable the jury to bring in a verdict. The jury found Katharine O'Shea had committed adultery with Parnell and vice versa, and O'Shea had not connived at it. No other verdict was possible on the evidence, but it is impossible to find a man of the world who does not believe O'Shea was guilty of connivance. Both respondent and co-respondent are condemned in costs.

The questions still to be settled are:

Will Parnell marry Mrs. O'Shea at the end of six months when the decree is made absolute?

Will Parnell remain the leadership of the Irish Parliamentary Party?

PARTED FOR 30 YEARS.

Brothers and Sons United After Thirty Years.

Worcester, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Two brothers met here this afternoon after having been parted for thirty years. They are Bob and Tom Wilson, the former a resident of Farewell, B.C., and the latter of Nashua, N.H. Bob left home in New Hampshire, U.S., to start out for himself. He engaged in railway life and was shortly afterwards employed running supplies to the army of the north during the American rebellion. After the war, Bob, with some other companions, started off for California across the plains. He remained in California railroading for five years. Then he drifted north into Oregon. From there he went east through Washington Territory to the mines, where he remained three years and, through bad luck, lost nearly all he had. At this time he heard about the syndicate that had agreed to push and complete what is now known throughout the civilized world as the Canadian Pacific Railway. He and a friend, after considering the matter, decided to cross over the mountains to see if they could do better.

In time they reached Farewell, Revelstoke, and from that went on to Golden. There he got work shoveling gravel, and in a short time he was engaged as a brakeman on the ballast train. That was five years ago, and ever since that time he has been connected with the C.P.R. in various positions. He is now located at Field, and he has charge of what is known as the Big Hill from Field to Hector. Four days ago, Bob, as usual, called at the postoffice after the arrival of the express train No. 1. On enquiring for his mail, the clerk gave him a letter with a postmark N.H., U.S. He turned a trifle pale as he opened the letter and began to read the contents, and his hands were seen to tremble. He said to those around: "This is a letter from father; my father that I have not heard from in 30 years." His father writes that a young man from Field happened to meet him and told about a Robert N. that was living at Field and he thought it was his son. The father writes asking him to be sure and come home, if he was his son, as his mother was lying very sick. The readers may imagine Bob's feelings when he learned the news. He thought both his father and mother were dead years ago, and they heard that he was killed during the American war. He intends to ask for leave of absence, and in a few days the express train No. 2 will be carrying him over the C.P.R. east towards New Hampshire.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of grease or cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

And Attachments.

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliances. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the great cure-tive. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in Electric Belts, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap article, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit, get a Dorenwend Belt.

Who Disturbed De Dance?

A dance took place in a hall on George street last night, at which the police were invited guests for a short time. They were called in to quell a data dance which had arisen among some of the 1 isky devotees of Terpsichore, who began quarrelling over the right of possession of the "belle of the ball," and ended in a general free fight. A partition was knocked down, heads were punched and much hair torn before the combat ceased; then the fiddlers struck up once more and the mazy whirl continued serenely as before. No arrests were made.

The Masonic "At Home."

The meeting of the general committee held in the Masonic Hall last evening was well attended. Mr. Benj. Shortly, the energetic chairman, presided, and promptly disposed of the business of the evening. The chairmen of the various sub-committees reported progress, and the details thus mapped out gave ample facility for perfecting all the arrangements. If the interest manifested by the brethren is any criterion, the coming Masonic event promises to be an "At Home" of a unique character, and a delightful pleasure alike to craftsmen and their guests.

Midnight Marauders!

This morning between two and three o'clock nightwatchman Gordon heard cries of murder on Hunter street, and on going to the place from whence the cries proceeded, the house next Halpin's blacksmith shop, saw three men running away. He had not the power of a police constable, and could not, therefore, arrest them. A widow woman lives in the house, and she told Mr. Gordon that four men had knocked at her door, and she asked them who they were, and what they wanted. They replied that it was "McGinty," and they wanted to know what kind of a house she kept. She had just opened the door the least crack, when one of them hit her on the head with a stick. She slammed the door, and ran up stairs and began shouting from the window. The men ran away on Mr. Gordon coming up. They are believed to have been young men from the George Street dancing party.

An Evening Among the Young Men.

The Y. M. C. A. have arranged monthly receptions for the young men of our town, and have enlisted the hearty co-operation of the Y. P. S. C. E. The first took place last evening. The hall was crowded to excess with young men who enjoyed greatly the good things provided by the Y. P. S. C. E of the Murray street Baptist church. Mr. Eddy, president of the Y.M. C. A. presided. After devotional exercises introduced the following excellent musical and literary program me:

Mr. G. M. Roger in a few appropriate words voiced the sentiments of all present when he moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Murray street Y P S C E., for the delightful and profitable entertainment so graciously given. Mr. Isaac Richardson seconded this, which was carried by a standing vote. The ladies of the Y P S C E then passed around a bountiful supply of choice refreshments which were greatly enjoyed. All regretted the absence of the pastor, Rev. P. C. Parker, who is a favorite with the young men. A very important engagement prevented him from being present. All voted it was a success in every particular and the future of the young men will be all the better for these helpful gatherings.

Farewell to a Friend.

At the close of the regular meeting last night of the Bible Class of the George street Methodist Sunday School, the teachers and officers gathered around Mrs. Andrew Wilson, one of their number, who leaves for Toronto next Monday, to say good-bye. A touching and nicely-worded address written by Mrs. Kendry, was read by Mr. A. E. Scots. The address referred to Mrs. Wilson's faithful and painstaking labours during the year she had been connected with the Sunday school, and those assembled felt that they were losing an energetic, patient and consolentious teacher. She would also be missed in her capacity of "Friend," and they would greatly regret the severance of the sweet ties of friendship which bound them together. The address assured Mrs. Wilson that she would carry with her the very best wishes of the teachers and officers of the George Street Sunday School, and they most earnestly desired that her change of residence may be greatly to her advantage. The address was signed on behalf of the Sunday School by Mr. H. S. Griffin, Miss Mary Grandy, and Miss Annie Sanderson. Then Miss Grandy stepped forward and asked Mrs Wilson to accept the large silver water pitcher which she held, and which was intended to be a practical expression of their good will and esteem. Mrs. Wilson was totally surprised, but feelingly assured her friends that she would always hold them in dear remembrance. The gathering dispersed after having sung "God be with you till we meet again."

Divine Healing Mission.

In answer to a largely signed requisition, Rev. J. A. Dowie, who is a preacher of the gospel of Divine Healing, will open a ten days mission in the Baptist Church, Peterborough, on December 11th. Rev. Mr. Dowie is at present holding meetings in Toronto, and Mr. J. C. Turnbull and John Carlisle who attended these meetings presented a requisition of the Peterborough for his services and those of Mrs. Dowie to which the following reply was made:—

TORONTO, Nov. 19th 1890,

To the One Hundred and Nine-two Canadian Workers and Others residing in Peterborough, Ontario, who have signed an invitation to hold a Mission in that City:

BELOVED BRETHREN AND SISTERS IN THE LORD JESUS CHRIST.—Having attentively and prayerfully considered your kind and earnest invitation to conduct a Divine Healing mission in your city, which was handed to us by Messrs. Turnbull and Carlisle, we have concluded that God has called us to accept the same and to come over and help you in the proclamation of the gospel of salvation, healing and cleansing from all sin, which provides a redemption here and now for the spirits, souls and bodies of all believers. We shall, God willing, begin our mission in your city, publicly, on the evening of Thursday, Dec. 11th, and continue it, Saturdays excepted, until Monday evening, Dec 22nd. We should, however, be glad to meet with you all at 3 p.m. on the 11 h, so that we might have united prayer with you all, and counsel regarding the work upon which we shall be engaged in your midst, and in which we expect your hearty and prayerful co-operation.

I have explained many matters connected with the mission to Messrs. Turnbull and Carlisle, who will doubtless address you at the meeting when this will be read. Permit me to urge upon you the necessity for an early and careful distribution of the tracts and programmes announcing the details of the mission, and also the need for frequent united meetings for prayer and preparation previous to our coming, so that the greatest possible results for the glory of God, and the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom may result. Our mission is to all of the household of faith without respect to parties or names, and we have no desire that the work shall be other other than helpful to every portion of the church in Peterborough. Our mission adds a new chord of praise to the Lord, but is not a mission of discord, and we trust that all who love our Lord Jesus of every name will pray for and help on the work in every way within their power. We desire to thank the pastor and officers of the Murray Street Baptist Church for their kindness in placing their building at our disposal for the work and also the other brethren in the ministry who have signed the invitation and have sent us kind message.

Trusting that the "way of the Lord" will be prepared by your united efforts, and praying for you all needed wisdom and grace,

I am, faithfully yours in Jesus,

JOHN ALEX. DOWIE.

The signers of the petition and those who sympathise with Rev. Mr. Dowie's work are asked to meet in the Y.M.C.A. hall on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock to make the necessary arrangements.

The Mission.

The Services at St. John's.

As previously announced in our columns, the mission will begin this evening. Rev. F. H. DuVernet arrived by the 11.40 train from Toronto. He will hold a preparatory service and give an address especially directed to the workers of the parish and to all others interested in the success of the mission. There will also be a congregational practice of hymns for the mission after the service. A list of the Sunday services will be found in the usual place. The missioner will preach both morning and evening and also at the children's service in the afternoon.

The week day services will consist of Holy Communion at 7 30 a.m.; a series of definite instructions on the Christian life at 4.15 p. m.; mission service, followed by after meeting at 8 p.m. The instructions at the after noon services will be founded on the several petitions of the Lord's prayer.

On the Sunday following the distinguishing feature will be a service for men only at 4 p.m.

No Trace of the Boston.

HALIFAX, Nov. 21.—The new steamer Boston has not yet arrived and nothing has been heard of her. She is now 18 days out from Glasgow and serious fears are entertained for her safety. She is reported to have only had 340 tons of coal on hand, and it is thought that she was compelled to burn up this during the hurricane that prevailed, and she is now helplessly drifting about at sea without fuel. Others suppose that if she was struck by the tremendous sea that swept over the Vancouver that the Boston was swamped. Her agents here, however, say that she was splendidly built, and express the belief that she will turn up all right in a day or two.

Death of J. B. Freeman, M.P.P.

The Liberal "Whip" of the Legislature Lays Down His Life and His Office.

(Special to the Examiner.)

SIMCOE, ONT., Nov. 22nd, 1890.

J. B. Freeman, M.P.P. for North Norfolk, died at his residence near here at 5 o'clock this morning of Paralysis of the Brain. His funeral will take place on Tuesday.

[The EXAMINER joins with the Province generally and with every member of the past Legislature especially, irrespective of party, in regret at the death of John Bailey Freeman, Liberal whip of the Ontario Legislature. The deceased gentleman was 55 years of age. He first entered the Legislature in 1879, and has been government whip since 1883. He was exceedingly popular with both sides of the House, as shown by his receiving, at the end of the last session, a present of a handsome silver tea service, a recognition which his many estimable qualities of head and heart amply entitled him to.—ED. Little Lake Ice.

Not So Bad As Generally Supposed—An Analysis that Ought to Relieve the Public Mind.

Frequent alarms have been raised regarding the alleged impurity of the ice taken from Little Lake for summer use, and many people are averse to using it because the town sewer and other sources of refuse empty into the Otonabee river, and it is concluded that of necessity the water of the Little Lake must therefore be contaminated. There appeared to be good ground for this suspicion, and some time ago the Medical Health Officer, at the instance of the Board, sent a few samples of ice taken from the lake last winter, to Toronto for analysis. Dr. Clark has received the following communication in reply:

PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH, ONTARIO.
TORONTO, Nov. 17, 1890.

Dr. Clarke:

I would have forwarded the report with regard to the biological examination of the ice sent me sooner only that the matter has been delayed owing to my getting moved into new premises. I now have facilities for attending to all analytical work promptly, both of a chemical and biological character.

Re the report on the analysis herewith sent, I would say that the estimation of impurity is made from the number of colonies of bacteria in each cubic centimetre of water analysed; it being remembered that the ice was formed some eight months before the analysis was made, the number of colonies represents a very notable contamination at the time when the ice was formed, since every month would lessen the vitality of the bacteria enclosed in the ice.

The character of the forms shows that the disturbing forms are comparatively few, these being to some extent considered as the measure of the danger to health.

Typhoid bacilli are not likely to be found in ice after so long a time in any notable degree.

It would be of much interest to have analyses of the polluted waters made at the time the new ice forms, and also the ice forming on it. This is important, because there can be no doubt that the ice will contain more bacteria when new than when it has been stored for months.

A chemical analysis of the melted ice water might be made with advantage at the same time.

Trusting this report may prove of interest to your Board,

I have the honor to be
Your obedient servant,
PETER H. BRYCE,
Secretary.

P. S.—The sample of ice taken was a clear specimen. Bubbled ice is found to be made more impure usually.

PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH,
TORONTO NOV 14. 1890

EXAMINATION OF ICE FROM PETERBOROUGH.

TUESDAY, Oct. 14 h.—Poured four plates and rolled three tubes from melted ice as follows:

PLATES.

3	1 c. c. each.
1	10 drops.
1	5 drops.

TUBES.

1	5 drops.
1	3 rops.
1	1 drop.

MONDAY, Oct 20th.

PLATES.

No 1 (1 c. c.)	900 colonies.
No. 2 (1 c. c.)	340 "
No 3 (10 drops)	150 "
No. 4 (5 drops)	80 "

36 drops to cubic centimetre.

TUBES.

No. 1 (5 drops)	73 "

The other two tubes were so filled with bubbles that an accurate count was impossible.

In all the plates and tubes there were on an average about seven liquifying colonies and five moulds per c. c.

WHAT IT ALL MEANS.

In plain English, the above means that there is a certain amount of contamination, but this contamination is not proved, so far, to be dangerous to health. With reference to this matter, Dr. Clarke says some time ago he examined one sample, which was so bad that he was led to suppose that a mistake had been made somewhere. He examined two or three pieces of the same block of ice as was sent to Toronto and found it not free from pollution, but as pure as most water that is drunk around town. It has been assumed that, because a certain amount of sewerage is discharged into Little Lake, the water must be unhealthy, but, as a matter of fact, there has been no wide-spread disease, or even a single case, occurring from this cause, though a large amount of it is used. The town is very free from infectious diseases. Only two or three cases of scarlet fever are known. Dr. Clarke is about to examine the water used at the public school buildings in town, as complaints have been made regarding it.

The foregoing ought to relieve the public mind to a certain extent. It shows that Little Lake water and ice are not so bad after all. Still a good business might be done by bringing ice down from the best parts of Chemong Lake, and advertising it as such.

A Startling Contradiction.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says "a prophet is not without honour save in his own country," and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Indeed it is expanded into the generally accepted belief that true merit, whether it be that of an individual, or that of some meritorious preparation is much more likely to meet with popular approval at a distance than at home. Nasal Balm, acknowledged as being the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, ever offered the people of Canada, affords a striking instance of the fact that popular opinion, for once, at least, is wrong. From the outset its popularity in the home of its manufacture has been unbounded and constantly increasing. In evidence of this we offer testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen who are known throughout the Dominion.

D. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville, and for the past two years President of the Ontario Creamery Association, says:—"Your Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh, accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies, but without avail, and well-nigh despaired of a cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results arising from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the droppings into the throat, sweetens the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel altogether like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should lose a moment in giving this remedy a trial."

James Smart, Esq., Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says: "It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse, and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm, and was relieved from the first application and thoroughly cured within twenty four hours. I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most skeptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents small size, and $1 large size bottle — by addressing FULFORD & Co., Brockville, Ont.

MORSELS OF GASTRONOMY.

Soft-shell crabs are marching out of gastronomic sight.

Baked apples and cream has become really a "fashionable dish."

A few more days and nobody at dinner will acknowledge the corn.

Those who are not prejudiced can now enjoy roast pig and apple sauce.

People forget that potato salad for breakfast is as bad as pie at the same meal.

Baked quinces are to be more appreciated than ever, because of their scarcity.

Corn fritters, made of canned corn, are most enjoyed when left severely alone.

Buckwheat cakes and indigestion will be due in this country next month.

Mince meat for Thanksgiving pie should now be put up in the household.

A little of the Turkish sweetmeats now the rule at fashionable dinner parties may be said to go a long distance.

Woodcock is game that should be eaten hot. Cold woodcock is not to be compared to cold quail or partridge.

Those who always want to be ahead of everything are already anticipating the gastronomic glories of Thanksgiving by eating "turkey and cranberry sauce."

Queen Eleanora's Bedstead.

In a village about one hour's ride from the great French road between Beyrout and Damascus was found a bedstead made of gold and silver and inlaid with precious stones. An inscription upon it in English characters states that it belonged to Eleanor, Queen of England. The bedstead was discovered in a little recess dug out for the purpose within a natural cave, and must have been placed there for security when Edward I. left the East in 1272. The Turkish Government has taken possession of the treasure trove, though the prevailing opinion in the district seems to be that it should remain the property of the man on whose land it was found. It would be interesting to know what the Turks propose to do with it. But if the inscription calls Eleanor, Queen of England, the words cannot have been placed upon it before Edward left Syria, as he did not hear of his father's death until he reached Italy. There can, however, be little doubt that the bedstead had been buried in the earth for the last six centuries.—London Daily News.

Purity Your Blood

importance of ure the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more exclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

Another Child Desertion.

The present day is particularly marked by the cruel heartlessness of parents. The other day we had a Lindsay farmer trying to palm off his baby on the Peterborough public, and now now we have the case of a London street mother, who would never rest till she had got rid of her longing for hawley bros.' tea by buying a large supply. She could get no other that had such splendid flavour and strength, combined with cheapness of price. This is a pointer for you, thirsty reader.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

TO DEAL MAINLY WITH THE LAND PURCHASE BILL.

An Attempt to Celebrate the Anniversary of the "Manchester Martyrs" Results in a Riot General Booth is Meeting With Much Success

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A rumor is current and is credited that Lord Salisbury, deeming the time opportune while the Parnell scandal is fresh in the minds of the people, has decided to dissolve Parliament in the spring. Advices urging Conservative associations throughout the country to improve their local organizations immediately were issued yesterday from the central office of the Conservative party. Lord Salisbury attended a council at Windsor yesterday, when the Queen signed the Speech from the Throne, which is to be read on the opening of Parliament.

British Politics.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The speech from the throne on Tuesday next is looked forward to with more than usual interest. It is believed that Lord Salisbury will outline the policy of the Government on the Irish question in much the same style as has recently been given expression to by his lieutenants. The Land Purchase scheme is to be pushed through with energy and any obstruction overcome with all the resources in the power of the majority. The nation is to be congratulated on friendly relations with everybody everywhere, especially with Portugal, whose people are subsiding into a more amiable spirit toward the "British Lion." The surplus of income over expenditures will of course be alluded to as one of the strong points of the Conservative Government, and it is possible that Her Majesty may insist personally on some mention of the loss of the Serpent, about which she is said to feel deeply. The Canadians may be honored by a statement of what is being done for them in Behring Sea. The main popular interest centres in the Land Purchase scheme.

The Warsaw Train Murder.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—Details received regarding the railway murder at Kutno show that when the train left the Lonicr station all the passengers save the murderers and their victims had quitted the compartment. The murderers threw insect powder in the eyes of the victims and despatched one with a double edged hunting knife, while the other was killed with blows with a life preserver. The bodies were thrown out of the carriage and the murderers sprang off the train as it was slowing up near a crossing before reaching Princewo station.

Routed the Rioters.

DUBLIN, Nov. 23.—The people of Enniscorthy attempted to hold a meeting on Saturday night to commemorate the Manchester martyrs. A procession was formed with bands and banners flying, but the police ordered the people to disperse. The people refused to obey, whereupon the police charged the crowd, using their batons right and left. The crowd retaliated by throwing stones. Finally the police succeeded in dispersing the crowd and restoring order.

PARNELL'S CRITICS.

A PREACHER NARROWLY ESCAPES BEING MOBBED

By His Congregation, Who Dislike His References to the Nationalist Leader—A Row in Chicago—A New Nationalist Member Nominated.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—In the Italian Catholic Church at Hatton Garden to-day the rector, Rev. Mr. Sannin, took occasion to denounce Mr. Parnell, whereupon several members of the congregation left the church. A scene of great disorder ensued, the people shouting, "Mind your own business." "Leave politics alone," etc. On leaving the church Father Sannin was attacked by the crowd and was struck several times. He was escorted home by the police, who had great difficulty in protecting him.

In the City Temple to-day Dr. Parker declared that if the present government was selfish it would dissolve parliament with the certainty of gaining a victory if Mr. Parnell retained the leadership of his party.

A New Nationalist Member.

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—Sir John Pope Hennessy has been selected by the Nationalists to succeed to the seat in the House of Commons for North Kilkenny made vacant by the death of Edward P. M. Marum (Nationalist).

Refused to Sanction Parnell.

CORK, Nov. 23.—A public meeting was held here to-day to demand the release of John Daly, who has been in prison several years for his alleged connection with a dynamite conspiracy. Messrs. Healy and Lane, Nationalist members of Parliament, desired to put to a vote a resolution expressing confidence in Mr. Parnell. This the promoter of the demonstration refused to do, whereupon the two members of Parliament withdrew from the meeting.

Discord Over Davitt's Attack.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—The meeting of Irish leaders called last night to make arrangements for the reception of Dillon and O'Brien came near breaking up in a row over the question of Parnell's leadership. At the conclusion of the actual business of the evening P. W. Dunne presented the following resolution.

Resolved—That Charles Stewart Parnell is deserving of our support for his long continued and successful efforts on behalf of the Irish cause, and that we condemn the cowardly and contemptible attack upon our leader by Michael Davitt and by his paper, The Labor World.

There were cries of "Good" at the conclusion of the reading of the resolution, but the utterances were evidently made without much thought. For a moment afterward those responsible for them were loud in their denunciation. W. P. Rend got up and said: "For God's sake let us have harmony. I agree with the spirit of that resolution, but if our reception of the Parliamentary party is to be a source factional bitterness must be kept out. Mr. Parnell's mother is a guest beneath my roof, and I yield to no man precedence in admiration for her son, but this resolution, bound to be piprocative of discord, must have no place here."

The meeting adjourned a moment later, leaving things in a mixed-up condition.

The Liberals and Mr Parnell.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The closing session of the National Liberal Federation Conference was held to-day. Mr. Schnadhorst, the well-known Liberal caucus chief, presided. In a speech Mr. Schnadhorst referred to the Parnell scandals. He said that recent events had caused great pain to Mr. Gladstone, and that the cause of reparation and justice to Ireland, to which the Liberal leader had dedicated the closing days of his life, must not suffer through the unworthiness of any man.

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—The Government has issued a proclamation prohibiting the holding of a meeting which was to have taken place at New Ross to-morrow for the purpose of expressing confidence in Mr. Parnell.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Sad Fatality—Osgoode Hall Cases.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—A young lad was accidentally killed Saturday at the residence of Mr. James Wilson, the Yonge-street tailor, at 55 Murray street. A pea rifle, which had recently been repaired, was being examined by the two sons, Thomas and James, and while in the hands of the former the trigger caused its discharging. The ball entered the head of James near the eye killing him almost instantaneously.

Thomas Bailey, 3 Wilmot-avenue; Henry Harvey, 99 Parliament-street; John Welch, 19 Trefan-street; Chris Lawless, 19 Trefan-street, were locked up in Wilton-avenue Police Station yesterday, charged with burglarizing the branch store of P. HOLLAND'S KING DEAD.

KING WILLIAM THIRD DIED SUNDAY MORNING.

History of the Life of the Degenerate Descendant of William the Silent—Political Complications Likely to Arise in the Netherlands.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 23.—The King of Holland died at 6 o'clock this morning. Last evening there was a sudden change for the worse in the King's condition, the symptoms being those of uræmia. The Queen was immediately sent for and stayed at the patient's bedside during the night. Life ebbed away quietly. The public buildings are closed and all amusements have been suspended. The Ministers assembled in Council at noon. The shutters of all the royal palaces are closed and flags are at half-mast.

Emperor William has sent a telegram of condolence to the Queen of Holland and has deputed Prince Albrecht to represent him at the funeral.

A proclamation, signed by all the ministers, has been issued announcing the death of the King of Holland. His death, the proclamation says, leaves the country in deep mourning, but free, independent and prosperous. After eulogizing the late reign the proclamation says that the people's gratitude and blessing will follow the King beyond the grave. Continuing, it says: "The country views with perfect confidence the accession of the Duke of Nassau, whose chivalrous devotion has won the hearts of all. Promising fidelity and unswerving respect and affection, the country awaits the future with tranquility and confidence."

He Lies on a Bed of Palms.

Four physicians have made an autopsy on the King's body. The features of the King have not changed. The body lies on a bed and is covered with palms. The remains will probably be conveyed to the palace at the Hague followed by the royal family.

It is expected that Queen Emma will be proclaimed regent to-morrow and that she will take the oath at an early date.

After an anxious day the Queen appears to be more resigned.

William III (Wilhelm Alexander Paul Frederick Lodewijk), King of the Netherlands, was born Feb. 19, 1817. He was educated in England. In 1840, after his accession to the throne, he faithfully carried out and extended the liberal reforms initiated in 1848, and he reduced his civil list from 1,200,000 to 800,000 florins. The abolition of slavery in the India colonies was decreed in 1862. In 1866 the Dutch province of Limburg which since 1815, had formed part of the Germanic federation, was fully incorporated with his Dominions, and on May 1867, the neutrality of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg was recognized, and it was placed under the absolute sovereignty of his lynasty. During the Franco-German war of 1870-71 the king maintained a strict neutrality. In 1873 he became engaged in warfare with Achoen, in Sumatra, which continued down to 1876. His first wife, Sophia, a daughter of King William I of Wurtemburg, died in 1880, and he married the queen who last week assumed the office of regent.

The King's death will doubtless bring about serious political changes. One such change, indeed, is inevitable, namely, the loss of Luxemburg. The Salic law, that curious relic of mediævalism, is still in force there, preventing Queen Emma from acting as Regent and Princess Wilhelmina from succeeding to the Grand Ducal crown. Luxemburg and Holland must therefore part and the former become an independent state under the sovereignty of the next male heir, Duke Adolf of Nassau. There is a danger, however, that the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg will not long be allowed to figure as a separate dominion. Both Germany and France have long coveted it. Years ago, it is said, Prince Bismarck perfected plans for seizing it immediately upon the death of the King of Holland. Prince Bismarck is now out of power, and other policies prevail at Berlin. But there is no doubt that a very strong effort will be made, by a very strong and influential party in Germany, to annex the Grand Duchy to that Empire. France would, of course, protest. Whether she would go so far as to resist by force of arms is problematic. But certainly the possession of Luxemburg would be of enormous strategical advantage to Germany and a serious menace to France and Belgium.

There are really a good many things to be set down to the credit of King William III, among the many more disgraceful and scandalous features of his life. He always has had the welfare of his country much at heart, in both home and foreign affairs, and he has really done much to promote that welfare. It was he, for example, who drained the Sea of Haarlem, a stupendous undertaking. He fostered education, the arts and sciences, and did at least as much for such interests as any of his contemporary sovereigns. Despite his pleasure-loving life and spendthrift ways he did not squander public moneys nor increase the taxes of the people. On the contrary, he habitually and voluntarily returned half of his civil list to the treasury. His second marriage, also, was an act of good-will to the nation, for it was done solely for the purpose of providing a successor to the throne. The two sons who were born to his first wife did not turn out well. The younger, Prince William, was an amiable and high-minded youth, but he died of consumption. The elder, the Prince of Orange, who was commonly known as "Citron," lived largely in Paris, and was probably the most unquiety and thoroughly debauched Prince of the century.

[illegible] in his early days a musical enthusiast. All his life he maintained a deep interest in musical matters, delighting in nothing more than in getting up great musical festivals, or patronizing operatic ventures. He granted many liberal subsidies also, to various academies of music. But in other matters he was not highly educated, and never took much personal interest in literary pursuits. On that score he differed widely from his first wife. She was a highly intellectual woman, and aimed to make the Dutch court the literary and philosophical centre of Europe. He devoted himself more to making it the home of loose morals and profligate pleasures. There are not a few apologists who declare that it was largely his unfortunate marriage that drove him to those scandalous excesses that shocked Europe. She was plain, almost ugly, in appearance, and her tastes were almost diametrically opposed to his. Nor was there the least love between them on either side. So his married life was one long scandal, and it was only when he became a widower that he turned his best thoughts and most earnest purpose to the welfare of his people. He was 73 years old.

OXFORD'S RURAL DEAN.

John Is Said That the Murderer Confessed to Him.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 22.—A representative of the Sentinel-Review had a conversation with Rev. Mr. Wade, Birchall's spiritual adviser yesterday. The reverend gentleman in reply to the question, "Do you intend making a statement touching the question of Birchall's guilt and the confession that he is now generally supposed to have made to you?" said that his Mr. Wade's action at the burial must for the present, at least, be sufficient. He did not think it necessary to make a statement at present, but in the event of a circumstance arising that rendered such a course desirable he would probably do so.

DROPPED DEAD.

A Well-Known Fingal Physician Expires Suddenly

FINGAL, Nov. 23.—Dr. James McLaughlin, one of the best-known physicians of Elgin County, dropped dead in his office here at noon yesterday. He was 55 years of age and was born in this village. He graduated at Victoria in 1862, and after practising his profession at Duart, Kent County, for a few years removed to Fingal, where he has resided continuously since. His wife died five years ago.

DROWNED WHILE SKATING.

Alderman Andrews and Wife of Winnipeg Perish in the Assiniboine—A Desperate Battle for Life.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.—Alderman Andrews and wife were drowned while skating on the River Assiniboine just before 6 o'clock last evening. There was quite a space of open water, and it is supposed Mrs. Andrews was skating backwards before her husband and they did not see it until the fatal plunge was made. A man named Chisholm noticed the accident, but his efforts to get a plank to their assistance were unavailing. Andrews made a desperate struggle to save his wife and both called lustily for help, their fight for life lasting for four or five minutes and then, chilled through, they sank. His body was recovered at 1 o'clock this morning and his wife's about twelve hours later. His watch was found stopped at 17 minutes to 6. Their little child was waiting for them on the river bank, but it was not until late at night that it was known positively who were the victims. Andrews was senior member of the law firm of Andrews & Andrews and was married last summer to Miss McBean, he being a widower. She was daughter of Rev. Mr McBean and sister of George McBean, C.P.R. passenger travelling agent.

JACKSON IN AUSTRALIA.

Joe Goddard Stands Before the Dusky Pug for Eight Rounds.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—Advices from Australia state that Peter Jackson and Joe Goddard fought an eight-round draw at Melbourne Oct. 20. Jackson was in poor condition. The fight took place at the Crystal Palace. Jackson was somewhat taller than his opponent and had a longer reach. Jackson was the first to get in a blow, reaching Goddard's body slightly. The fighting was pretty even at the start and Jackson appeared surprised at the agility of his opponent. In the eighth and last round Jackson tried hard to wind his man, but Goddard stood up to him and got home with both hands on the face, stopping Jackson's rush. There were smart exchanges and Goddard essayed to rush, but Jackson stopped him with a left-hander on the ribs. Goddard landed his right and left on Jackson's face. Time was called and the contest was closed. Prof. Miller, the referee, said that one of the judges declared in favor of Jackson and the other in favor of Goddard, so he declared the match a draw.

Twenty-Five Thousand Persons See the Springfield Fight.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 24.—The American Intercollegiate championship football game at Hampden Park this afternoon between the elevens of Yale and Harvard resulted in a victory for the crimson by the score of 12 to 0.

There were 25,000 persons present, including college students from all over New England. The weather was fine, except for a chilly north wind.

A train of eight parlor cars, chartered for the trip, and three other special trains—one of nine cars and another of eleven—all heavily loaded, reached here about noon from Boston.

Both teams played like clock-work, and for the first half neither was able to score, though Yale was the aggressor throughout with a strong wind in her favor. In the second half, when the teams changed sides, Harvard forced the fighting, winning her two touch-downs by Lake and Dean in the first part of it. The Yale men fought like fiends the rest of the time, but the Crimson's dogged defence held them down to one touch-down, scored by McClung. This part of the game was by far the most brilliant. The feature of the game was the frequent punting by the backs, that of B. Trafford being much more effective than the attempts of B. Morrison and McClung and indeed a saving element of the Harvard defence. The loss of McBride, who was every bit as good as Trafford at punting in last year's game, was keenly felt by Yale to-day.

Howarth Wins the Walk.

DETROIT, Nov. 23.—The professional pedestrian contest closed here last night with Howarth a winner. The scores were:

	Miles.	Laps.
Howarth	540	7
Golch	532	..
Meeson	526	..
Sweeney	516	6
Hughes	515	..

Filemaker's Marvelous Jump.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Yesterday afternoon Filemaker jumped 7 feet 2¼ inches at the Exposition building, breaking his Friday's record of 7 feet 1¾ inches. D. H. Harris, his owner, is desirous that Moorhouse & Pepper of Toronto match their mare Maud against Filemaker. Harris says he will match the old horse against their entire stable, including Rosebery, for $1000 a side and two-thirds of the gate receipts in any place in the United States.

Drought in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Californians are not given to prayer, but if they were they would pray now for rain. The only people who have profited by the long dry fall are the wine-makers, whose grapes have had full opportunity to ripen and gather the requisite amount of sugar for perfect wine. Weather prophets always come to grief on this coast, for there are no known laws for the succession of dry or wet seasons. Last winter was extremely wet, while the dry season that has followed, and that is now nearing an end, has been one of the longest on record. It should be broken now in order that plowing may begin; but there are no signs of rain. Everything is exceedingly dry and dull. The farmers have done fairly well this season, while the fruit-growers have enjoyed a bonanza such as they have not known or more than a decade.

Drummers Must Act on Juries.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—Yesterday Chief Justice Dorion gave his decision upon a motion previously made to exempt a couple of commercial travelers from acting as jurymen. The court declared that it was not possible to grant the motion.

Frontenac Election Trial.

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—The Frontenac election trial has been adjourned until Dec. 29. Samuel Sears, contractor for the carriage of the Opinicon mail, secured the signature of B. Aykroyd on the bond on his promising to abstain from voting for Smith. Thomas Connolly also met Aykroyd. The latter agreed to wipe out an old account if Connolly would vote for Smith. The voter refused and after the election Aykroyd threatened to sue for the account, $1.50. Aykroyd said if any offer was made it was only by way of a joke. Abraham Abrams swore that James Wilson offered a dollar to have his father stay at home and not vote. Wilson denies the story and says he only suggested that "it might be worth $5 to keep your father home." Several charges were heard and dismissed and the court adjourned.

From a Reverent Agnostic.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Earl of Derby has subscribed £1000 for Gen. Booth's scheme of social regeneration. The Marquis of Queensberry sends £100 to the Salvation Army leader and promises a yearly donation for the cause. He asks an interview with Gen. Booth, saying that he believes the General is engaged in the best work that a man can lay his hand to, but he desires it to be distinctly understood that he opposes Christianity, which he says has failed to help the poor. He concludes by saying he sends his mite as a "Reverent Agnostic." Other donations of £100 and smaller sums continue to arrive.

Died in the Night.

PRESTON, Nov. 23.—When Mrs. William Fach woke up Saturday morning she found her 6-months-old babe lying dead beside her. The little one had been as well as usual the previous night.

It is a Mistake

To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood reaches every part of the system expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1.25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history, and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing unconditional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronising a Home Institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefitting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

THE MRS. DETCHER VERDICT.

THE verdict arrived at on Friday midnight by the coroner's jury, empanelled to inquire into the death of Mrs. Samuel Detcher, was such as was to be expected from the circumstances as revealed in the evidence. It is one in which the public generally, there is reason to believe, heartily concur. The verdict is an emphatic reminder to the Town Council that the people have no sympathy with the deliberate manner in which the council has looked after the public interest in the matter of railway gates at the several dangerous level crossing of the C. P. Railway and G. T. Railway in this town. Upon the town authorities the responsibility chiefly falls, for the railways cannot be expected to do anything that does not directly tend to their own interests, without compulsory influence—they seem to act on the theory that there is no necessity to protect any crossing until somebody is killed. The people of the town naturally look to the Town Council to compel the railways to protect the dangerous level crossings that exist in the town, and the neglect to attend to this matter in the past has justified the loud complaints that are heard on every side. The EXAMINER has no wish to unduly bear upon the council, for, as a rule, that body has done well during the past year; the interests of the town have been fairly well looked after, and the council is to be credited with the new era of industrial prosperity that seems to have set in. At the same time, the council needs a good deal of stirring up in the matter of the railway gates. It is to be hoped that the hint of the verdict, which seems to be in sympathy with public sentiment, will be practically taken, and that unobstructed facilities to the slaughter of our citizens will be removed.

Mount Pleasant.

A Most Pleasant Evening's Entertainment —The Foresters Hold High Festival —A Good Programme Well Carried Out.

The first entertainment held under the auspices of Court Primrose, Canadian Order of Foresters, No. 250, took place on Friday evening, Nov. 21st, and was in all respects a delightful success. The Temperance Hall, in which the entertainment was held, was jammed, comfortable standing room being at a premium. There was a large number of Peterborough people present, who were loud in their praise of the capital manner in which the Mount Pleasant Foresters conduct an entertainment. The entertainment took the nature of a basket social, the ladies providing baskets, which were sold by auction, the lucky buyer receiving as a bonus the pleasure of lunching with the fair provider of the feast. But none were left hungry, abundant and excellent edibles were provided on general principles, and all were fed.

The chair was occupied by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., who prefaced the introduction of the regular programme with a brief address in which the standing objects and benefits of Forestry were concisely and pithily put. The Canadian Order had, he said, now entered upon its second decade, having been established in November, 1879. The separate existence in Canada was due to the unsatisfactory relations with the United States brotherhood of Independent Order of Foresters—four hundred of the members separating in 1879 and organizing the Canadian Order. At present the number of Courts (or lodges) is 292 and that number is rapidly increasing. The object and aims of the Order commend themselves heartily to public confidence. These aims are essentially beneficial, benefitting members themselves in life and their widows and orphans after their death. The practice of the motto of the Order—Liberty, Benevolence, Concord tended to the cultivation of a spirit of practical benevolence and sympathy. As practical benefits in case of illness a member receives, is from $3 to $5 per week (according to the strength of the lodge) for from twelve to fifteen weeks, and should death ensue, the widow receives from $15 to $50 for funeral expenses (in Court Peterborough the funeral benefit is $30), and the widow or mother or sister, as the member decides during his health, receives $1,000. To secure this amount the payments were graded according to age. The payments to entitle a member to the endowment of $1,000 were as follows: From 18 years to 25 years 60c. per month.

"	25	"	30	"	65c. "
"	30	"	35	"	70c. "
"	35	"	40	"	85c. "
"	40	"	45	"	$1.00 "

And, by the payment of a proportionate amount, the endowment could be increased to $2,000.

The monthly dues, which are small, pay the sick and funeral benefits. In the way of endowment, the Order has paid out to date in death claims $273,550, and in sick benefits to date $130,000, making a total of $403,550. The membership is about 11,000, making the average expenses for death claims and funeral benefits, on the $1,000 endowment basis, $13.60, and on the $2,000 basis, $23.20.

There was at present in hand a cash surplus of $114,726.65. All funds were amply secured, each court having to make monthly returns. All these things combined, together with the social benefits, made the Canadian Order of Foresters worthy the notice of that class of our citizens to whom cheap, and at the same time safe, life insurance was an object.

THE PROGRAMME

was then introduced. It consisted of songs by Mrs. Bowman, of Peterborough, Mr. Anderson, of Millbrook, Mr. Parsons, of Omemee, Mr. J. J. and John Turner, of Peterborough. Mr. Dean, of Fairmount, gave a reading, and Mr. John Nugent, of Peterborough, two recitations. Mr. Frank Fowler, town, gave a well-rendered recitation, and Mr. K. R. Hall, town, an address.

Court Primrose may well be proud of their first entertainment, which was a most pronounced success, and quite in keeping with the flourishing condition of the order in Mount Pleasant. The financial results were beyond the most sanguine expectations of the brethren, who will start on a good financial basis.

Shorthorns Under the Hammer.

Auction Sale of Thoroughbred Stock.

The sale of thoroughbred Durham stock at the stock farm of Mr. Joseph Redmond, "Elm Grove," Otonabee, was pretty largely attended especially by outside buyers, these being present from as far west as Manitoba. The stock was very fine in quality but the bidding was not very brisk and the prices realized not being very encouraging. A few summer calves were knocked down for as high a sum as $100, a very reasonable figure for thoroughbred pedigreed stock. The stock bull "Gravesend Heir," was sold to Mr. James Rennie, Wick, Ontario county, for $310. About thirty head, including calves, were sold at an average of $100 per head. The sale was conducted by Mr. John Smith, of Brampton, but the result was not very encouraging to stock breeders. The slowness of the sale was attributed to the depressed condition of the farming interest and the scarcity of money amongst the tillers of the soil. Mr. Redmond kept a few choice cattle for the improvement of the stock of this district. Of the thirty head sold only four or five found owners in this district, showing that a prophet has little honour in his own country. Local farmers will better appreciate such opportunities for the improvement of their stock when they may be removed.

Timely Wisdom.

Great and timely wisdom is shown by keeping Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. It has no equal for cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery, colic-cramps, and all summer complaints, or looss, ness of the bowels. 2w42d

The Laundry of To-day.

An Interesting Description of the Steam Process of Washing Clothes.

Mr. J. E. K-ne, of Rochester, N.Y., who is here superintending the setting up of new machinery in the Persian Laundry, gives a few points which may be of interest to the public.

The work is now done with less wear and tear on the goods than by the old method of chasing them up and down the washboard, and them rubbing and poking holes through them with the point of a flat iron, and scorching them with the same.

Most laundries have many offices both in and out of town, but all goods finally reach the main office, at which place all goods are listed in the "marking room" by persons for that purpose. Each article bears the name of the owner or some mark that is recorded as his.

The goods are there assorted according to kind, quality and the amount of dirt they contain. Shirts that bear large streaks of industry are marked by themselve, the less soiled by themselves, and so on, and when they enter the wash room they receive washing according to circumstances. The styles of washers on the market are many but the machine used throughout the land as the standard is very simple in construction and easy on the goods. It is simply a

the outer one being stationary, the inner one perforated, and the goods are admitted through a large door in both cylinders. Soap and water are added sufficient to clean them. The inner cylinder, which revolves, is set in motion and makes a sufficient number of revolutions to force the water back and forth through the goods, and then reverses automatically, which washes them so thoroughly that they are clean when taken out, being blued and ready for the ringer. This is done by centrifugal force, by a copper basket perforated throughout, set inside an iron curb. The inner basket, after receiving the goods, is made to revolve at a rapid rate, thus throwing the goods to the outside, the water passing to the curb through the holes, thus avoiding the usual strain and tearing off of buttons. The finest lace curtains are wrung in this way without the least strain. The goods then pass to the starch-room, where the collars and cuffs are put into a single cylinder, and a sufficient amount of boiling starch is deposited with them, and allowed to work into them for ten or fifteen minutes. Shirts receive hot starch by it being and wristbands by machines for that purpose, each of them passing from person to person, one taking out the surplus starch, another the wrinkles, etc., till they reach the "dry room." This is a small room with racks to receive the goods, and it has a sufficient number of steam pipes to keep the temperature at about 210°, thus drying the goods very quickly.

From the "dryer" they go to the "dampening room." Here they pass through rubber rolls covered with cloth, which are fed by corrugated copper rolls that run in brass trays filled with water, and are then pressed so as to make the dampening thorough. From this they reach the ironing room, and the collars and cuffs are passed between two rolls, the one about twenty inches in diameter, and covered with about twenty yards of cloth, and the other a small polished steel heated with gas, the goods being embedded in one while the other

DRIES AND POLISHES THEM.

Many of these machines have a capacity of about eight hundred dozen a day. The shirts receive like treatment, the machines being constructed for that purpose. Bosoms, neck-bands, wrist-bands, sleeves and bodies each go through a different machine. Plain clothes are ironed principally on steam mangles, and skirts, pillow shams, &c., are ironed on machines similar to the body ironers. From this they reach the sorting room and are handled by experts, and bundled, each route being put in their respective places, and from thence they go to the office and wagons.

Much more could be said in detail, but for lack of space we will drop the question, stating that the cost of these machines range from $75 to $1,000. Many laundries have from $50,000 to $150,000 invested in plants.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

Purify the blood. The importance of pure blood in a perfect condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is heredited and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

SUNDRY AIDS TO CONVERT THE FORMER INTO THE LATTER.

The True Economy in Shoes—Embellishing Table Linen—Turning Shawls into Dresses—Teacups in Serving Soup—"Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep."

In the quiet nursery chamber,
Snowy pillows yet unpressed,
See the forms of little children
Kneeling white-robed for their rest.
All in quiet nursery chambers,
While the dusty shadows creep,
Here the voices of the children—
"Now I lay me down to sleep."

In the meadow and the mountain
Calmly shine the Winter stars,
But across the glistening lowland
Slant the moonlight's silver bars.
In the silence and the darkness,
Darkness growing still more deep,
Listen to the little children
Praying God their souls to keep.

"If we die"—so pray the children—
And the mother's head drops low
(One from out her fold is sleeping Deep beneath the Winter's snow),
"Take our souls," and past the casement
Flits a gleam of crystal light
Like the raiment of his garments
Walking evermore in white.

Little souls, that stand expectant,
Listening at the gates of life,
Hearing far away the murmur
Of the tumult and the strife;
We, who fight beneath those banners,
Meeting ranks of foemen there,
Find a deeper, broader meaning
In your simple vesper prayer.

When your hand shall grasp the standard
Which to-day you watch from far,
When your deeds shall shape the conflict
In this universal war,
Pray to him, the God of battles
Whose strong eye can never sleep,
In the warring of temptation,
Firm and true your souls to keep.

When the combat ends, and slowly
Clears the smoke from out the skies;
When far down the purple distance,
All the noise of battle dies;
When the last night's solemn shadows
Settle down on you and me,
May the love that never faileth
Take our souls eternally.

Long Waists are Here.

The coming styles call for long waists and in order to attain this effect you must be careful to fit the bosom gores with stiff unyielding bone, and cut the points of the waist in a pronounced slope from the side. You may accentuate this length of waist by bands of trimming or velvet, which must, of course, be brought to as pointed an ending as possible. But you will find that this so much to be desired gain in graceful length of figure can only be attained by the use of very stiff and unyielding bone, as already stated. The soft and elastic quality will at once "give" at the waist and destroy the illusion which you are endeavoring to produce.

A Brief But Comprehensive Summary of the Merits and Demerits of Game Fowls Which Have a Record as Old as the Oldest Written History.

No variety of fowl has been more enthusiastically cultivated by fanciers and country gentlemen of leisure than the game, although farmers, as a rule, have little or nothing to do with game fowls. The origin and nationality of the game fowl must remain a disputed question, inasmuch as its record is as old as the oldest written history. The game cock is designated by Wright as the undisputed king of all poultry, and requiring more careful judging in regard to shape than any other bird. There are four recognized breeds namely, game, game bantam, Sumatra game, and Malay. The varieties are legion, there being sixteen distinct sorts recognized by the American standard.

SILVER DUCKWING GAMES.

The games are all attractive in appearance, the duckwing being perhaps the most beautiful. It is characterized by exceedingly graceful form and dignified carriage and brilliantly colored plumage. The silver duckwings are purer in blood than the yellow duckwings, and are white skinned when of pure breed. The best layers, according to Wright, are the black breasted reds, with yellow legs, and the red Cheshire pile, with white legs. The worst layers are the grays. With the exception of these latter game fowls, as a rule, lay remarkably well, averaging from 200 to 260 eggs per annum.

The merits of game fowls are many and various. They rank, as already stated, in the very first class as layers, providing they have good runs. They are also the best of table fowls as regards quality and flavor of flesh. Indeed, for delicacy of flavor their flesh is beyond comparison. They do not require to be fattened and they eat comparatively little. As mothers the hens are not to be equaled. There are of course drawbacks. The size of both birds and eggs is small, and in confinement the game hen will by no means lay so well as the Brahmas, Hamburgs and many other varieties. Their quarrelsome disposition is also against them.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria.

Games cannot therefore be classed among breeds profitable for the average poultry keeper. They will, however, afford much pleasure to amateurs and others who can give their fowls ample range, being beautiful to look at and providing a constant and abundant supply of delicious eggs and delicately flavored meat.

BLACK BREASTED RED GAMES.

As our readers already know games are largely bred for the pit, and at poultry shows carry off the lion's share of premiums. The best criterion of blood in all game fowls, according to Wright, is the color of the eyes. Black eyes show dark blood, and the hens of such strain lay white eggs. Red eyes show red blood, and the hens lay pinkish eggs. Yellow eyes are inferior in spirit to the others. The sorts most used for fighting are those with black or red eyes, such as the brown breasted reds, dark grays, black breasted reds and red piles.

Cost of Raising Wheat.

A Michigan gives the Farmer a statement of what it costs him to raise 576 bushels of wheat and how much he gained:

I send my experience of cost in raising 22 acres of wheat. I think it would be a good thing if farmers knew more about what a field of grain costs them. There are many farmers that can tell at the end of the year what they have made. Farming should be looked after, and a book account kept of everything that is sold off the farm and bought. If all farmers would adopt this as a rule they could know what was making them a profit:

Valuation of 22 acres, $1,100; interest on same	$ 77 00
40 bushels of seed at $1	40 00
Phosphate	5 00
Plowing and fitting	44 00
Drilling	31 00
Twine	7 50
Cutting	30 00
Threshing	35 00
	$ 269 50
Sold 476 bushels for	420 56
Have 100 bushels	90 00
	$ 510 56

Net profit, $241.06.

Driving Horses Without Shoes.

On soft country roads farmers can save blacksmith bills by letting their horses go barefooted, where stone or rocks do not form too great a portion of the road surface. Even on frozen ground unshod horses do good work. In this latter condition of roads, the saving of calk-sharpening in time and expense is very considerable. On the ice a barefooted horse is more footed that he may be driven or ridden with safety, when unsafe for a dozen miles even with sharpened calks. Many lame horses are cured by removing their shoes. A shod horses travels on ice, and to a degree walks on stilts. An ounce at the extremity of the foot is largely multiplied in weight as compared to the carrying of its limit.

President of the Royal College of Surgeons

who ever gave a public Testimonial, and the following is

THE ONLY TESTIMONIAL HE EVER GAVE.

"If it be well to wash the skin—and we never heard the preposition questioned—it is well also that we should be familiar with the means by which that purpose may be most efficiently attained.

"We once knew a beautiful woman, with a nice complexion, who had never washed her face with soap all her life through; her means of polishing were, a smear of greasy cold cream; then a wipe, and then a lick with rose water. Of course we did not care to look too closely after such an avowal, but we pitied her, for soap is the food of the skin.—

Soap is to the skin what Wine is to the stomach;

a generous stimulant. It not only removes the dirt, but the layer which carries the dirt; and it promotes the displacement of the old cuticle to make way for the new, to increase the activity of change in the skin. Now turn we to Toilet Soaps and there we find a name engraven on the memory of the oldest inhabitant—PEARS.

PEARS' SOAP! an article of the nicest and most careful manufacture, and the most refreshing and agreeable of balms to the skin."

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

DORENWEND

ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments,

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT OF QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCY, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. The Dorenwend Electric Belt and Attachment Co., C. H. DORENWEND, Electrician. 103 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. sod w

THE MISSION SERVICES.

Saturday Night's and Sunday's Services.

A Good Congregation on Saturday Night—The Preparation for the Week's Work—Sunday's Successful Services—The Preacher's Simple, Earnest Style.

On Saturday evening at 8 o'clock there was a large congregation assembled to greet Rev. F. H. DuVernet, of Wycliffe College Toronto, who began a series of mission services at that time and to assist in his induction to the work in St. John's Parish. The Rev. Missioner seems by gifts of person, mind and heart to be especially set apart for this work, the best evidence of this fact being the success that has attended his past efforts. He spends much time in conducting missions in different parts of both Canada and the United States. His simple unaffected style, plain language and the fervid earnestness that seem to breathe through all his words, seem to place him at once en rapport with his hearers and to enlist at once the latter's attention and sympathy.

At the conclusion of the short service, Rev. Mr. Davidson formally gave the parish of St. John's into the hands of the Missioner, in full confidence, he said, that the word of God would be preached through him to the refreshing of Christians and the glory of God. The Missioner in reply simply said, "I accept the solemn charge in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

After the singing of a hymn the preacher took his place in the pulpit. Rev. Mr. DuVernet is a young man between thirty and thirty-five years of age, of medium size, with a calm, pleasant face, earnestly quiet manner and very pleasant voice, low but penetrating and most impressive in tone.

After kneeling a moment in prayer the preacher quietly remarked that at the request of the rector he had come to conduct a parochial mission, and he trusted that from first to last it might be God's work. The mission might not be a success from man's point of view, but if the Holy Spirit were present it must be a success in God's sight.

He announced as the key note of the mission the 22nd verse of the 11th chapter of St. Mark's Gospel, "And Jesus answering saith unto them, Have faith in God." To have faith in God, the preacher said, was to realize the work was altogether beyond us—it was God's work. The preacher referred to the

which, he said, was to humbly wait on God, and to pray for His presence. The work was God's, but he worked through human instruments. Another object of this service was to see if the human instruments were ready for the Master's use. He mentioned instruments, because there was not only the preacher. He wished his hearers to put it as an intense reality that they were all instruments. It was God's Holy Spirit working through a united congregation that effected great results. The work of the spirit was a mystery, but it was due to definite causes. An earnestly praying congregation was one great cause. The Missioner said he would place much of the responsibility of the success of this mission upon the congregation, upon whom depended its success. If a band of consecrated and earnest workers went forth it could not help being a success. The co-operation of the St. Andrews' Brotherhood was expected and also of each member of the congregation should do his or her share, that each one would wait on the Lord and ask Him humbly, but trustfully, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" The missioner went on to point out that there were other things necessary to constitute the congregation instruments for the work. The first was that they should be emptied of self. God would not honour us without we honoured Him in putting Him first; if we cherished some secret sin which was an obstacle in the way of the work of God's Holy Spirit. The place of blessing was at the feet of Jesus. In the second place we needed to be filled with the spirit, and that was only possible as we were and it was only the indwelling of the spirit that could drive out self. The Apostles were baptised with the Holy Ghost before they went to their work, and behold the result on the day of Pentecost and through the whole of their subsequent ministry there was a special baptism of the spirit for every special work. If the representation of the congregation present formed a centre of Christian life thoroughly consecrated to God and filled with the Holy Spirit, with God's help a great work would be done. The third need was strong faith. Lack of faith, as in the case of Capernaim, prevented mighty works being done. If the congregation breathed out doubts of the success of this mission and of its usefulness, it would be recorded against St. John's that the Lord God omnipotent could not do mighty works because of their unbelief. They should have faith that God would hear and answer prayer; that it was not our Father's will that one of these little ones should perish; that every anxious penitent sinner who bowed at the feet of Jesus would find pardon and peace. They should have faith in the truth, for it was by the truth that they were to be sanctified. The truth must at length prevail. Men might jeer now, but the time would come when they would have to confess that Jesus Christ was right and they were wrong. The preacher closed an earnest and impressive address with a solemn injunction to have faith in Jesus Christ, the way, the truth and the light—not faith in our works, not faith in our prayers, not faith in our faith, but faith in the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, and there would be no disappointment.

EMPTIED OF SELF,

A few minutes were passed at the close of the service in silent prayer for consecration afresh, and the singing of a hymn brought the service to a close.

At the Morning Service

There was a good congregation. After the usual morning service, the missioner gave a most impressive address on the subject of "Our Father," comparing the human relationship of father and child with the relations sustained to our Heavenly Father by his creatures, and pointing out the claims to our services arising out of our relations to God.

In the afternoon the children's service crowded the church with the children of both St. John's and the Mission Sunday schools. The service was much brightened by the choir of St. Andrew's Brotherhood assisting. The address of Rev. Mr. DuVernet can hardly be styled an address. It was a familiar chat with the children, marked by a winning way that rivetted the attention of the youngest. It was partly catechetical and partly in the form of a paternal talk. It was was a very bright and cheerful, yet withal solemn and impressive occasion.

Evening Service

There was a very large congregation at St. John's in the evening; the Church was crowded in every part.

The service was conducted by Rev. Messrs Davidson and Kenrick.

The Missioner entering the pulpit said that one of the chief objects of the mission was to bring those who attended it face to face with the question recorded in the 14th verse of the 4th Chapter of the Epistle of St. James —"What is your life?"—a question easily asked but hardly answered. God intended our life to grow up into His likeness. Our soul's character depended upon what it fed upon, and it was in our power to decide the nature of it. The speaker drew a sharply defined outline of what our life should be—the chief end was to grow up into the likeness of Christ. The Christian life was the brightest and happier. Even worldly pleasures of an innocent nature were enjoyed better by the Christian as a preparation for a fuller enjoyment of God's presence. The Christian's afflictions too drew him closer to God. He was content with his lot for he knows that this life is the gate to eternal rest. He was a member of the brotherhood of Christ, and in every station of life, high or low, he was called upon to imitate the Master. This was but multitudes preferred to choose for themselves, and live a life apart from God. If we yield to fleshly lusts the soul becomes a slave to the body, and the speaker sketched different types of character arising from this condition—the lazy man—the slave to business and the heaping up of wealth—(wealth unconsecrated and accursed)—the devotee of pleasure, the libertine, the drunkard, the gambler. In all these types the soul had been degraded. Another form of life without Christ was that of a more intellectual character, the pursuit of more worldly knowledge, of the good opinion of others, the latter often by deceit. All these types were due to the exaltation of self. He that exalteth himself (self—self—self, the speaker repeated) shall be abased, but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." The preacher inquired which was the life best worth living, that centered in God, or that centered in self? The brightest life centered in self was incomplete and filled with an ever unsatisfied longing; that centered in Christ was full of enjoyment here, and crowned with the hope of bliss hereafter. The Christian's life was the only one that fulfilled the object of our being, and the speaker closed by urgently appealing to each one to think calmly over the question, "What is your life?" and to answer it in the light of the Judgment Day.

LIFE AS IT OUGHT TO BE,

The first of a series of connected addresses on the subject of the Lord's prayer, was given in the church this afternoon at 4.16, and the second will be given at the same time to-morrow.

Service in the church to-night at 8 o'clock.

For Catholic Young Men.

The Splendid Quarters That are Being Provided for the Catholic Association.

The movement began two weeks ago among the young men of St. Peter's Cathedral has been crowned with success. The Catholic Association is now as assured fact. All of the $500 stock has been subscribed, and within two weeks more the club rooms will be open. The committee have secured commodious quarters in the Cox block, at the end of the south passage on the second flat. The large apartment facing the street will be the reading room, where a hundred dollars worth of periodicals and magazines will be put on the tables. Immediately behind this will be the library, where the old Separate School library, doubled in size by the addition of new books, will be open to members. These rooms are reached by different passages, so that ladies (for the membership is not limited to men) may visit the library without having to enter any of the other rooms. The

READING ROOM AND LIBRARY

will be thoroughly furnished, carpeted, heated and lighted. Overhead a suite of rooms will be devoted to amusements. These are reached by a staircase ascending from the rear passage. The first room will be arranged with folding doors to open into a long hall the whole depth of the block, for large gatherings. When not required for this purpose, the front room will be used for meetings of committees, the C. M. B. A. and E. B. A. and kindred societies. The rear apartment will be fitted up as a gymnasium and supplied with all the necessary athletic apparatus. A proficient teacher of boxing, fencing and other manly sports will be engaged to instruct the young men. Alongside these will be a billiard room and pool room, one table in each. When the premises are finished they will be the club quarters in town—a place where the young men may spend an evening in the midst of all the legitimate amusements and attractions which allure them to the tavern, but without the evil associations which are the chief objection to hotels. The laudable aim of the Association is to combine profit with pleasure, and in the reading room and library every opportunity is offered for the mental elevation of the young man. Of course the membership is confined to Roman Catholics, but no one will be excluded from visiting the rooms.

THE OFFICERS.

Following are the officers of this society, who were elected at a recent meeting, at which Mr. John McGrath presided:

HON. PRESIDENT — Right Rev. R. A. O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough.
PRESIDENT—C. J. Leonard
1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—Dr. Brennan.
2ND VICE-PRESIDENT—T. Dorle.
TREASURER—R. Sneehy.
SECRETARY—John Corkery.
DIRECTORS—J. J. Sheehy, L. Letellier, C. Dunn, A. Gough, W. Harkins and W. Rudkins.

The membership fee is only $2 a year. The treasurer or secretary will receive applications for membership.

Church Chimes.

Rev. D. McCamus, of Frazerville, preached in the Charlotte street church Sunday morning and in the George street church in the evening.

Rev. A. Bell, pastor of St. Andrew's church, Sunday night preached a sermon upon the subject of faith cure. The reverend gentleman does support the purpose modern conception of divine healing, but urges his hearers to have faith in God and the remedies He has provided, and make use of them.

At the Charlotte Street Church Sunday evening Rev. S. J. Shorey delivered an earnest address of an evangelistic character, and at the close a prayer meeting was held, at which one person stood up for prayer. The evangelistic services will be continued.

Personal.

The EXAMINER thanks Mr. J. H. Cavanah, of Lethbridge, N. W. T., for a copy of the handsome and enterprise-indicating railway edition of the Lethbridge News.

The many friends of Dr. Fife will learn with regret that the Alderman Andrews, whose sad drowning, together with his wife, is mentioned in our Winnipeg despatches, is his nephew.

The Referee was an Irishman.

Two men disputing about the pronunciation of the word "either"—one saying it was *ee*ther, the other i ther, agreed to refer it to the first person they met, who happened to be an Irishman, who confounded both by declaring "it's nayther, for its aythe." A good old Irish lady in the city of Ottawa, recently went to her grocer for some dyes. He told her he kept the right makes always in stock and introduced a package of each. The old lady critically examined each package, and laid them down, saying, "I want nayther of them, for nayther of them are bad; give me what they call the Diamond Dyes." If all who purchase dyes for home dyeing, were as particular as this old lady, there would certainly be less discomfort in dyeing and less loss of time and materials. Diamond Dyes never fail in their work, and are always reliable and eminently satisfactory.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

ONCE MORE IN THE RING.

Joe Hess Begins Another Temperance Campaign.

His Meetings on Sunday Draw Large Audiences—The Subjects for the Coming Series—"Love" and "Influence" Dealt With—Pledge-Cards and Blue Ribbons Again Prevalent.

Joe Hess, bluff, jovial, original and ardently enthusiastic as ever, was greeted by immense audiences at the opera house yesterday. It is no small tribute to his personal magnetism and power of speech that Mr. Hess is able to attract such numbers as everywhere flock to him. That he has lost none of his popularity in Peterborough was amply evidenced by Sunday's gratifying demonstrations. Plain-spoken, not eloquent in the commonly accepted sense of the term, and with a "dry" subject to handle, Joe Hess yet attracts the populace where a cultured orator would fail. The secret lies in the intense enthusiasm with which he enters the work, and the quaint but forcible originality of his language. He brings the truths home to the hearts of his hearers in a homely but none the less striking manner. He speaks from the depths of his great love for humanity, and his deep-rooted hatred of the traffic which came near blasting his life forever. What wonder, then, that his audiences catch the fervor of his words, and go again and again to hear him? The Royal Templars of Temperance, under whose auspices he speaks, will no doubt be financially benefited, and many persons saved from the evil effects of intemperance as the result of these meetings.

At the opening of the meeting in the opera house Sunday afternoon standing room was at a premium. Mr. John Carnegie presided, and had associated with him on the platform Dr. Fife, Mr. Francis Mason and Dr. Goldsmith. Joe Hess on entering the stage was heartily applauded.

After the singing of "Rescue the Perishing," which was led by the temperance choir, Joe Hess read a portion of Scripture from the fifth chapter of Galatians, beginning at the 13th verse.

NOT LEGISLATIVE, BUT PRACTICAL.

The chairmen, Mr. JOHN CARNEGIE, then made a few remarks. He had been asked how he, who had not yet declared himself for legislative prohibition, could preside at this meeting; but he wished to say, though he had not yet seen his way clear to pronounce himself in favour of legislative prohibition, yet he was a practical personal prohibitionist, and wished Mr. Hess and all temperance societies every success, and was heartily in accord with all efforts which aimed at the prohibition of the liquor traffic. A great deal had been said about the saloon-keeper, but, in his opinion, the man who bought the liquor was as bad as the one who sold it. If there were no patrons there would be no saloons. He further announced that the subjects of Mr. Hess' addresses would be:

MONDAY—To young men, with Birchall's life for a subject.
TUESDAY—Prohibition.
WEDNESDAY—License.

THE POWER OF LOVE.

Mr. HESS on coming forward was greeted with applause. He began by referring to the grand reception tendered him, which was beyond his anticipation. He loved Peterborough, and his friends in it, and it was his love that had brought him back for the third time. When he went away last April he took with him the snow and ice; and he had brought them back again this time. He then dealt with the question of "Love." More love was required in the home and amongst people. The world was dying for love—not the foolish, sentimental kind, but the love that begat kindness, gentleness, peace, joy and sobriety. The evils of the world were gaining the upper hand because there was not love enough; not the love of money—but the love which was instilled into the heart of Father Matthew, when a child, and which prompted him to undertake his grand life mission. He was a Roman Catholic but he did a noble work. The Roman Catholic church was waking up in the cause of prohibition, and the speaker looked forward to seeing it in the near future unite with the other churches without regard to creed. (Applause.) A love for water would retain vigor and manhood, beget sobriety, intelligence and progress. The speaker in Belleville in one week induced forty-six hard drinkers to sign the pledge. In Picton during his first visit a man came to him who said he was an uncle of Erastus Wiman, he had drank up two fortunes and lost wealth, honor and position by intemperance; he signed the pledge and was the first to greet Mr. Hess on his last visit to that town. The Mayor and other men in Picton had kept the pledge. It was his love for humanity that brought Mr. Hess back to Peterborough. He referred to the effectual reformation of Bros. Howson and Stephenson as evidence of work being done by the Lord. Since his last visit to Peterborough Mr. Hess has been in Colorado, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and wherever he went he found the temperance cause sweeping along, and in a few years it will sweep the liquor traffic out of existence. In conclusion he gave a striking illustration of the power of love: While in Hamilton recently he was summoned to Buffalo by a telegram that his mother was dying. He found the old lady lying apparently on her death bed. The doctors told her they could prolong her life for a few days only by the use of wine; but, raising herself on her elbow, she said impressively: "I love my boy, and if I could prolong my life for 20 years by drinking wine I would not do so for his sake." But in spite of the doctors' statements, his mother was yet living, and though 71 years of age, was likely to get better.

EVENING MEETING.

At the evening meeting Mr. G. M. Roger presided; Rev. A. C. Wilson was also on the platform. The chairman remarked that all professing Christians should take a warm interest in the temperance work. The issue was being fought out on Christian lines and should have their earnest support.

The speaker took for his subject "Influence." His temperance meetings, he said, were attended by such crowds that it was difficult to get halls large enough for the purpose; still the saloons did a thriving business. The only way of accounting for this, was that temperance people did not exert a sufficient influence. If the temperance people would come out boldly, and throw their influence in the scale, the liquor traffic would soon cease. But too many of them kept aloof and offered the excuse that they did not think they had any influence to show. That was not the case; every one of them had an influence, some greater than others, but all ought to feel the responsibility and make their influence as good as possible. Mr. Hess showed the effect of the one-man and one-woman power in the world, by citing historical references He also gave a bit of his life history, to show that his adoption of temperance campaigning had been brought about by the influence of three letters when he had become discouraged.

After the meeting the audience was invited to sign the pledges and pin on the blue ribbons which were provided at tables set apart for that purpose. Quite a number responded.

Entire Confidence Restored.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The monetary situation under the judicious policy of the Bank of England directors, assisted by the leading banks, has become unusually strong. A daily material addition to the bank stock of bullion is made. One and a-half million pounds in Russian gold is due on Monday. A million more is on the way from Brazil, three-quarters of a million from Australia and smaller amounts from European markets. The Bank of England's reserve, it is estimated, will soon reach £18,000,000. Although entire confidence has been restored in the general financial soundness, the prospect for cheaper money remains remote. The chief portion of the gold arrivals is merely borrowed and must be repaid before rates are reduced. The Bank of England directors also intend to create a strong reserve independently of the assistance of France and Russia. The discount house, therefore, expecting no decrease in the bank rate for some time, maintain quotations at 6¼ for three months and 5¾ for short. On the Stock Exchange there has been a magical recovery since Wednesday's semi-panic. In fact the advance in prices has been rather too rapid to be steadily kept up, and may soon be checked by renewed selling, especially in view of the fact that other large firms besides the Barings have masses of unmarketable securities to dispose of. Regarding the settlement beginning on Tuesday anxiety is no longer felt. Heavy differences will have to be met owing to the violent fluctuations since the last account, but stock exchange loans can now be easily obtained and the rise in values will greatly assist the settlement. Everything yesterday closed buoyant in high class securities; consols took the lead. The violent drop in South American securities is almost recovered. American railway securities have steadily been tending toward better prices. A notable feature of the week was the public investing in these stocks attracted by the low prices. Securities closed especially firm, New York quotations responding to the rise here. It is reported that Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has asked the Bank of England directors to consider whether the time is opportune for the issue of the one-pound notes payable in silver.

A syndicate has projected the formation of a new stock exchange with a capital of £1,000,000. A prominent feature of the exchange will be the abolition of the jobber system, which is only existent here. The new concern will permit only direct dealing between brokers without the medium of jobbers.

The financial crisis in London produces no great effect in Paris, except among banks interested in Argentines. After the crisis was passed general firmness prevailed on the Bourse.

At Berlin after the reaction towards a rise there was a general steady advance in prices. Prices closed firm yesterday.

On the Frankfort Boerse prices were firm during the week. At the close yesterday foreign securities showed general advance.

All Met Watery Graves.

HALIFAX, Nov. 23.—Two brothers named Alexander and John Stoddart left Clam Harbor Friday night in a sail boat, which was found adrift yesterday bottom up and a quantity of provisions in it, cast upon the shore. It is supposed the boat was upset by a squall and both men drowned. Alexander was 30 years old and his brother 22 years.

A man named Dunn Murphy, 40 years old, was accidentally knocked out of his boat while sailing alone at Shoal Bay yesterday. He swam alongside of the moving craft for some time, vainly endeavoring to get on board, and then sank before boats from the shore could rescue him.

The Archbishop at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Nov. 23.—The St. Lawrence Church, a fine new building, erected in the northern portion of the city by the Roman Catholics, was formally dedicated to-day. The dedication ceremony at 10½ a.m. was performed by Bishop O'Connor of London. At pontifical High Mass Bishop Dowling of this diocese officiated, and the sermon was preached by Archbishop Walsh of Toronto. At vespers Very Rev. Joseph McCann, dean of Toronto preached.

QUEEN WILHELMINA

THE KING IS DEAD; LONG LIVE THE QUEEN!

Parnell will Resign the Leadership of the Irish Party To-Day—Nearly One Hundred Suicides at Monte Carlo this Season.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Queen's Speech, which will be read at the opening of Parliament to-morrow, was communicated at to-night's ministerial dinners. The speech is of unusual brevity. After the customary reference to England's friendly foreign relations, the speech alludes to the negotiations with Portugal relative to Africa, and with Italy concerning East Africa, as not yet brought to a successful conclusion. A temporary arrangement with Portugal respecting the Shire River and water ways in the interior paves the way for an eventual treaty.

The hope is expressed that the negotiations now progressing with France concerning the Newfoundland fisheries will soon lead to a satisfactory settlement, and the promise is made that the papers relating to the matter will be laid before Parliament at an early date.

The Queen next alludes to the threatened potato famine in the west of Ireland. Her Majesty expresses regret at the existing condition of affairs, and says she trusts that measures will be taken to mitigate the people's distress.

The speech further says that bills will be introduced relative to land purchase in Ireland tithes assisted education and reform of private bill legislation for Scotland and extension of local government in England.

If the work of the session permits a bill relative to local government in Ireland will also be introduced.

Parliament to be Dissolved

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is learned that after the verdict had been rendered in the O'Shea case the Conservatives held a private conference at the Carlton Club and unanimously decided that Parliament should immediately be dissolved.

Parnell will Retire.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Star, the Home Rule paper in England, says it has reliable information that Parnell will retire from the leadership of the Irish Nationalists.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is stated this evening upon excellent authority that at the meeting of Nationalist members of the Commons to be held to-morrow before the opening of Parliament Mr. Parnell will announce his retirement from the leadership of the Irish party.

Mr. Davitt in a speech to-night said he believed Mr Parnell would to-morrow prove himself a greater patriot than his enemies believe him to be by taking a course that would minimize the danger to autonomy for Ireland.

The King is Dead, Long Live the Queen!

THE HAGUE, Nov. 24.—Queen Regent Emma has issued a proclamation declaring Princess Wilhelmina Queen of the Netherlands The Queen Regent says: May her throne find the solid support, fidelity and devotion of her people. I accept the regency during her minority, confiding in God, and praying that my task shall be so fulfilled as to assure the welfare of the country and the consolidation of the kingdom.

Another child thus becomes the wearer of a crown The name of Queen Wilhelmine of Holland must now be added to that of King Alfonso XIII of Spain and the King of Servia, forming the trio of Europe's baby royalty. The little Queen has just completed her tenth year, having been born Aug. 31, 1880. Young as she is, the question of her marriage has already been discussed. Her hand has already been promised in marriage to Prince William, the eldest son and heir of Duke Adolphus of Nassau, whose father becomes by reason of King William's death the Duke of Luxembourg.

William's death carried the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg to the elder branch of the house of Nassau and would make it to all intents and purposes a military portion of the German Empire. The projected marriage of the queen, however, would bring the Duchy back to Holland again, and be fully united with the throne of Holland in the children. Should the little Queen die before reaching a marriageable age the crown would pass to her aunt Sophie, Grand Duchess of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach.

Lying in State.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 24.—The remains of King William, attired in a military uniform, will lie in state in the chamber in which he died prior to their removal to the vault of the Orange family. Queen Emma last evening laid a large palm on the deathbed on which the body lay.

The president of the high court, in adjourning that body to-day out of respect to the King's memory, recalled his Majesty's services to the state and laid particular stress upon the impulse he had given to the movement for the abolition of capital punishment.

The court will go into mourning for 28 weeks for King William. The body of the King will be taken to the Hague Dec. 1, and the funeral services will be held three days later. King Leopold of Belgium and the Duke of Nassau will attend the obsequies. Emperor Francis Joseph has sent a telegram of condolence to Queen Emma.

Luxemburg and Germany.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Temps holds that it would be an insult to the Duke of Nassau to suppose he would allow German interests to overtop those of Luxemburg, and further that it would be a violation of international law to attempt to draw Luxemburg into the orbit of Germany.

Cable Flashes.

Heavy gales prevail in the south and west of England. Many vessels are seeking shelter.

The Premier of Madagascar refuses to retract the insulting expressions he used with regard to France.

Serious rioting has occurred at Hoihaw in China as a result of a tax imposed on traders. Several rioters were killed.

A committee of influential Frenchmen has been formed to take action looking to development of French commerce in Africa.

The Danish schooner Regina has been sunk in a collision with the steamer Primate off the English coast. Five of the schooner's crew were drowned.

The British steamer Calipso, from Mediterranean ports, foundered off Sangate, two miles southwest of Folkestone, after having been in collision. It is believed no lives were lost.

SHOT DEAD IN COURT.

A COURT OF JUSTICE TURNED INTO A SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

A Man Charged with Attempted Murder Kills Two Men and Fatally Wounds a Third When Asked to Plead to the Crime With Which He Is Charged.

PANAMA, Nov. 24.—The town of Rivas, Nicaragua, was recently the scene of a terrible tragedy. Thomas Martinez was arraigned in court for trial charged with attempting to murder Dr. Flores. When the charges were read and the accused called upon to plead he stepped four paces to the front, and putting his hand into his inner breast pocket exclaimed: "Gentlemen, I know the jury will condemn me, but before being condemned I must get rid of this one." He thereupon drew a revolver and shot Dr. Flores dead. Gustavo Chalnorro, who stood next to Dr. Flores, picked up a chair, but almost immediately fell to the ground, being shot through the brain. At this juncture Gregor Rojas, an old gentleman, father-in-law of the first victim, closed with the prisoner, who did not hesitate to draw the trigger, and the ball passed through Rojas' mouth, coming out of the back of the neck. He is in a precarious condition, but will probably recover. After shooting Rojas the prisoner made a dash for liberty, firing at but missing a soldier who attempted to detain him. Three brothers of the accused were waiting outside the court house. Two of them flourished revolvers, while the third assisted his brother to mount a mule. The animal did not prove of much service. Martinez attempted to escape by a street that was in course of repair, but found the road so rough that he was compelled to dismount and proceed on foot. He disappeared for the time being, but remained in the neighborhood for two or three days. He then advised his father's bailiff that he would be in the vicinity of his father's house at a certain hour and would expect to find an animal ready for him. The officials were advised and captured the man.

The Empress Visits the Hospitals.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—Prof. Lister, a leading English physician, has arrived here with his niece, whom he brings for treatment by Prof. Koch.

Empress Frederick, who has shown great interest in Koch's remedy, to-day visited the hospitals conducted by Drs. Cornet and Krause.

A special cable despatch from Berlin to The New York World says: "Four doctors in Berlin whom Dr. Koch so far has intrusted with the exclusive practice of his cure are exploiting Koch to enrich their own pockets and purposely withholding information till their personal nests are well feathered.

"English doctors in Berlin complain terly of the scant courtesy shown them. To see Koch personally is practically impossible. To procure a supply of lymph is out of the question, while admission to the hospitals to see patients operated upon is beset by so many barriers that many have given up the effort in disgust and gone home.

"There are nearly two hundred German applicants for every free bed, so that foreigners stand a very small chance. The Social Democratic press complains that this cure, like every other public benefit, is made the monopoly of the rich.

"Concerning the frantic efforts made by visiting doctors to get the lymph I can only," says the correspondent of The World, "give the following facts. In a small phial the lymph, undiluted, costs, according to Koch's price, $60. This phial when diluted will inoculate 200 patients. One London physician was offering $50 for 10 drops of undiluted lymph if delivered in time for him to catch the express for London to-night. Another English doctor who has translated several of Koch's lectures for British publication has been here waiting in vain for two weeks trying to secure the fluid, though he offered $25 for a 60 phial. The only English doctor so far who has succeeded in getting a phial of the lymph is Watson Cheyne, surgeon of King's College Hospital, London. He left Berlin yesterday with sixty drops, given him after the power of the whole British Embassy had been exerted in his favor, aside from his long acquaintance with Koch. Under the circumstances it looks as though it will be a long time before any of the precious fluid reaches America."

The Goethe Statue Washed Away.

CARLSBAD, Nov. 24.—The floods have swept away the Goethe statue. The rivers Eger and Moldau show an alarming rise since yesterday.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The recent heavy rains and the overflow of the rivers have flooded long stretches of the Manchester ship canal and in many places the works have been destroyed. Forty-five hundred navvies are idle in consequence of the overflow and at least four months must elapse before they will be able to resume work on the canal.

Muzzling the Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 24.—The Government has forbidden the newspapers to publish a petition drawn up by the Jews asking that they be placed on a civil equality with other classes in Russia. An edict to the Ministry of Lands directs that no work in connection with the Government shall be given to Jews outside of the territorial limit assigned to them.

Killed While Working in a Prison.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—The town prison at Wronke, in Prussian Poland, was the scene of a fatal accident on Saturday. A scaffolding upon which a number of men were at work making repairs suddenly gave way. Two of the men were killed on the spot and 36 were injured, 10 dangerously.

Down by the Sea.

HALIFAX, Nov. 24.—A craft commanded by Capt. Snow was wrecked on the rocks off Cape Francis, and only the captain's son was saved.

The residence of George Heath at Ward's harbor was burned yesterday and two children perished.

Two young men named Parsons and Lewis were drowned in Exploits Bay by the upsetting of a boat.

Compressed air, supplied from a central station to different houses, has lately been applied in Paris as a rival to hydraulic power for the working of elevators and lifts.

Shot His Eyes Out.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Some members of the London Gun Club, who have a portion of the Oneida Indian Reserve reared for hunting purposes, went out shooting. One of them fired at a bird, and the wad struck of shot lodged in the face of an Indian. The Indian will lose the sight of one eye and possibly of both.

VIENNA TRAIN MURDER.

TRAGIC SEQUEL TO AN AUSTRIAN ROMANCE.

A Tale of Guilt and Assassination—One of the Most Romantic Stories of Modern Times.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—The mysterious murder of the two bank messengers while in a first-class carriage on the Vienna mail train is the absorbing topic of conversation to-day. In its details, and in the general atmosphere of romance that surrounds it, it reminds many English readers of the startling incidents narrated in the well-known novel, "The Man from Scotland Yard." The victims upon this occasion were two trusted employes of a Warsaw bank, and they had been dispatched with 55,000 rubles (about $38,000) on a special and secret errand to a distant city. The reason for this errand with such a sum of money is most romantic. Some months since a sensation was caused in local society by the imprisonment of a well-known young man, whose parents were somewhat and through whose veins there pulsed patrician blood that emanated from a king and came to him only slightly diluted. One night, from the window of the house of a prominent financier on a fashionable street, were heard loud calls for the police, and when the latter reached the house they found the owner holding a young man whom, he said, he had caught in the room, which was his wife's boudoir, with a diamond bracelet in his pocket and other jewelry on the table ready to be carried away. The young man was hurried off to prison, and gave a fictitious name, under which he was tried without making any defence, convicted and sentenced, and transported to the most dreaded prison in the kingdom.

Then rumors began to circulate in the newspapers that the real name of the young man was a duplicate of that of one of the highest officials in the Emperor's household, that he was of titled birth and possessed of great wealth. Finally it was declared that the wife of the financier had gone to the Emperor and appealed to him to release the young man, confessing that he was her lover, and on the night that he was arrested was in her boudoir at her invitation, and when her husband was heard entering the house she had gone into an adjoining room, while the young man had hastily opened a bureau drawer, and, taking out her jewelry, had awaited the coming of her husband to catch him with it in his possession so that he might be thought a common housebreaker and she might be shielded.

When the Emperor heard this tale he at once gave an order for the young man's release. Everything possible was done to suppress the story, and it would probably have succeeded had it not been for the double murder. The money which the messengers were carrying was partly for the purpose of paying the husband, who in such instances is entitled under the local laws to an indemnity, and partly to satisfy obligations incurred by the young man to the prison authorities for luxuries, both claims amounting to about 50,000 roubles. The father of the young man is a director of the bank from which the money was taken, and it was he who sent it.

It is known now that two fashionably dressed young men entered the same compartment as that occupied by the messengers, and further that they requested the guard to leave them undisturbed until the end of their journey. They were, according to the description of the station officials, very dudish in appearance, dressed in the latest style and had the appearance of peaceable jeunes dorée rather than murderous conspirators. These two travelers left at Alexandrovo and no trace of them has since been found. The bodies of the messengers were found beside the track cut, gashed and mutilated. They had been stabbed to death.

Destructive Fire at London—Loss $30,000.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 24.—The stock of P. Levy, clothier, 155 Dundas-street, was badly damaged by fire and water this night. Mr. Levy's loss will be very heavy. He carried a stock of clothing, gents' furnishings, etc., the value of which he estimates at $30,000, and the greater part of it is ruined. His insurance amounts to about $15,000. A sad incident connected with the fire was the fact that the smoke invaded the premises next door of James Smith of the Albion Restaurant, who is lying at the point of death.

Two Inches of Steel in His Neck.

GANANOQUE, Nov. 24.—Angus McDonald, aged 16, was standing near a punch in the spring shop when it broke and a piece of steel flew and struck him in the back part of the right side of the neck. The steel was the end of the punch, and as it broke in a slanting direction the piece formed a wedge or triangle half an inch on each of the straight sides. He was struck by the large end and the whole piece embedded itself in his flesh and the wound closed over the sharp end. Dr. Dumble found it impossible to draw the steel out, so he made an incision at the front of the neck and shoved the steel back. It was an ugly wound, but it is thought the boy will recover.

Baby Dead, Mother Dying.

SOREL, Nov. 24.—Edward Clement dropped a glass jar containing five gallons of coal oil, which fell on the stove, and immediately the room was aflame. The mans wife, aged 32, was so dangerously burnt that she will die. A six-months-old babe asleep in a cradle perished, and when neighbors arrived and burst in the door the frantic father rushed out, bearing in his arms the child, which was burnt to a crisp.

Collision on Grand Trunk Railway.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 24.—A collision occurred on the Grand Trunk at 4 o'clock this morning in the yards here between an engine and freight train. One engine was damaged, a box car of the freight train, which was loaded with slate, was smashed to pieces and another car was badly wrecked. It was some three hours before the track was clear.

Farewell, Cruel World.

ABBOTSFORD, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Frank Rabadeau drowned herself yesterday in a mill pond while insane. Her last words were: "Farewell, cruel world."

Fell Dead from His Chair.

DIGGING THEIR WAY TO LIBERTY.

Three Brockville Desperadoes Attempt to Regain Their Liberty

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 24.—Three well-known burglars named Malone, Keefe and Kelly, awaiting trial in the county jail here, made a daring attempt to secure their liberty yesterday. They first attempted to pick out the mortar from between the bricks with a brace taken from a closet, and being discovered by Turnkey Downey subsequently endeavored to resume operations with a spoon, but were again detected. About 2 a.m. Jailer White was awakened by a noise in the cell and discovered Keefe working away with an iron handle from off the ash pail. Keefe had torn off part of his white shirt and laid it on the floor on which to let the mortar drop without making any noise against the wall, and covering the spot where he was working was placed a large table in a slanting direction to the floor. This was intended to deaden the noise also.

A MYSTERY FROM QUEBEC.

A Recently Bereaved Widower Arrested as a Coroner's Witness.

QUEBEC, Nov. 24.—A woman named Baker was found dead in her bed the other day. She was formerly the wife of one Baldwin, who some years ago was nearly roasted to death on a red hot stove by his wife's friends. Shortly afterwards Baldwin died and one of those present at the roasting, one Dick Baker, married Baldwin's widow. A few months afterwards Baker was put on trial for the murder of a carter named Pelletier and was sentenced to penitentiary for life. Twenty years after he was released, and on coming to Quebec found his wife living with one Donohue, a watchmaker. He left the pair quietly together and is now living in Montreal with his daughter Sallie, who is married to one A. Gagnon, a tavern-keeper. When the coroner was notified of the sudden death of the woman, who was 53 years of age, he caused Donohue to be arrested as a witness.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—Prof. Ramsay Wright will visit Berlin to investigate Prof. Koch's cure, Vice-Chancellor Mulock having generously offered to defray all expenses.

An unfortunate woman gave birth to a child near College-street and Spadina-avenue yesterday morning about 6 o'clock. P. C. Hendry, whom the woman had accosted, wrapped the mother and infant in his great-coat and carried them into Sheppard's livery stable and then summoned Dr. Carveth. They were subsequently conveyed to the hospital.

Sir Leonard Tilley is in town staying with his brother-in-law, Mr. W. H. Howland, Queen's Park. He is accompanied by Lady Tilley and, though not looking quite so rugged as his friends could wish, is in excellent health, cheerful and deeply interested in passing events. Mr. Howland, when asked how long his guest would remain, said: "As long as we can keep him. If the politicians will only leave him alone he will stay for some time."

Before the Common Pleas Divisional Court yesterday Mr. W. Read in the St. George accident case moved for leave to set the cases down for hearing at the present court. Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., appeared for the Grand Trunk Railway Company and opposed the motion. The appeal is from the order of Mr. Justice Rose. Leave was given to set the cases down as asked.

A motion was yesterday made in the action of Scripture v. Reilly, in which a Queen-street druggist asks for an injunction to restrain his neighbor, a furrier, from exposing in his doorway a stuffed bear because of its hiding part of the druggist's window. The defendant has served a third party notice on his landlord and brought him in as a defendant, and the master was asked for directions as to the trial. Judgment was reserved.

In the action of the Barrie Turf Club against O. W. Chamberlain, an oil merchant of Petrolia, a motion was made to change the venue from Barrie to Sarnia or some other place than Barrie. In the beginning of 1889 the turf club advertised trotting races for August of that year, and among the prizes offered was $300 and a gold medal for 3-year-old fillies, the winner to get $150 and a gold medal worth $50. There were in all 17 entries for the race, but when the day came only one filly, "Baby," owned by Chamberlain, appeared for this race. The course was gone over and the money and medal awarded to "Baby's" owner. Shortly after the races it was brought to the knowledge of the club that the filly was in reality 4 years old and an action was brought to recover the money and medal. The action was tried at the last Barrie assizes, when the jury disagreed, and now it is sought to have the venue changed to Sarnia. The master reserved judgment.

The master-in-chambers yesterday made an order in the action of Deering v. Deering for interim alimony at the rate of $10 per month. The defendant is a farmer living near Meaford and was married to the plaintiff in 1873. They have a family of eight children, the oldest being 15 years and the youngest 2 years old. The trouble began in 1888, when the husband began to ill-treat his wife, and his usage of her became so harsh that she left him and brought the present action for alimony.

Mr. A. MacMurchy, acting for the C.P.R. Company, yesterday issued a writ against Albert H. Wheeler of Meadowvale to recover two car loads of wheat at the defendant's mill there. The master in chambers granted an order to replevy this grain, which it is alleged Wheeler got from the railway company by fraud in connection with the bills of lading. There are 450 bushels of goose wheat, valued at $0 0.

Before the Common Pleas Divisional Court an appeal was heard in the case of Standard Bank v. Frind, from the judgment of Chief Justice Armour in favor of the plaintiffs. The action was one to recover the amount of a draft drawn by Dobson & Co. of Cannington on the defendants and accepted by one Irwin for them. The defendants contended that Irwin had no authority to accept drafts for them, but judgment went against them. The appeal was dismissed with costs.

The cases of McLaren v. Inspector and Greene v. The Globe will be argued before the Common Pleas Divisional Court to-morrow. The appeal in the latter case is from the order of Chief Justice Galt refusing to allow Birchall to be examined or to allow the plaintiff to put in as evidence an affidavit of the prisoner.

A writ was also issued by Gough, the cloakier, against F. R. Smith of Hamilton, for damages and to restrain him from advertising that he is selling "Gough's bankrupt stock." A short time ago Gough sold a bankrupt stock to a Milton firm, who in turn sold it to Smith, and now he advertises that he is selling Gough's bankrupt stock.

The "Not Guilty" Verdict.

The historical verdict, "Not guilty, but don't do it again," was improved upon recently by a jury at Carmarthen Quarter Sessions, says London Truth. Having to try a charge of embezzlement, where the defence was that the prisoner had spent the money in question not on himself, but in pushing his employers' trade, these twelve good Welshmen and true came to the following conclusion: "We find him guilty of receiving these sums of money, and are of opinion that he did not appropriate the money to his own use, but employed it in the interests of the firm by pushing the business, and we strongly recommend him to mercy." In other words, "Not guilty, and strongly recommended to mercy."

A magnificent specimen of the white pelican was shot a few days ago at sea off Whitstable, England. This bird is a native of Africa and India, and is also found in the southern provinces of eastern Europe

If Your Nose is on Fire.

You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1.25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

One Who Knows.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Will you allow me space in you columns to let your readers know that it is not safe to go to Stony Lake to fish unless your are in with George, the Equal Rights Fish Protector. Let me give you a sample of his Equal Rights. He fines one poor man, who lives on the shore of Stony Lake, and confiscates his nets. On the other hand he imposes a fine of only two dollars on Mr. Bennett, of Monaghan, a rich farmer What do you think of that for Equal Rights? This is a sample copy, and if you like the sample you can make a purchase by applying to George, and he will give it to you by word or by oath.

I think the men who gave George the recommendation should also buy him a book, so that he may be able put down the date when he fines the next poor old Tory.

George thinks his popularity is very large. His self esteem says, "Get away, Mr. Moore; I am the man! Get off my track. You cannot soare like me. You cannot tell the people you did fine Mr. Bennett, and then swear you did not fine him for fishing on the 22nd and did not go up the lake till the 23rd; and when I can date my conviction from the 13th to the 25th, and who dare say boob! You could not fine the Drain's when they both swear they did not set a net or catch a fish. Now, sir, I should like Mr. Fitz to tell me what he fined them for? I think it must have been because they did not set their net and catch fish for him. This must be the reason why Mr. Bennett got off with a two-dollar fine. Perhaps he gave "the protector" some fish, who also perhaps ate some of the decoy fish. Now, sir, I think Mr. Moore cannot swear so well as Mr. Fitz can, but I think he will make it interesting for him before he gets through. Mr. Fitz swore before Mr. Hall that he fined Mr. Bennett on the 23rd and took his net, but I should like him to explain to your readers how it was that Mr. Bennett returned the net to its owner on his road home on the 25th. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your space, I remain,

Yours truly,
ONE WHO KNOWS.

He Returns from the Camping Grounds.

His Condition Causes Alarm.

A well known young man in Toronto, left in August last to take a vacation; and with some others went north to camp, where sport was plentiful. He returned to Toronto, when camp was broken up in September, but arrived in such a condition as to cause alarm to his relatives and friends.

He was confined to his home for a few days before he felt the necessity of a physician. The family doctor was summoned, and at almost a glance took in the patient's condition and ailment, saying, "Mr. H——— you must not attempt to do any office work for two months to come." He prescribed for him and left.

This was unwelcome and dreadful intelligence to Mr. H———, who felt that the manager of the company might find it necessary to put some one in his place. The manager was duly notified of Mr. H———'s illness, and kindly granted him further leave of absence, which was greatly appreciated by him.

On the evening of the same day on which the physician had been called in, a very dear friend, Mr. F———, called to see Mr. H———, hearing he was ill. Mr. F——— was greatly surprised to find his friend so weak, nervous and down spirited; and after hearing what the doctor had said, and having ascertained what he prescribed, spoke as follows:—

"Mr. H———, let me kindly say that you made the first error when you left for the north to camp. You were not at that time sufficiently robust and strong for such work as camp life involves. Before you left I noted with alarm your appearance and condition; but, now to the point my dear fellow; you will allow me, as one who takes a great interest in your health and welfare, to offer a suggestion, which, if acted on, will surely restore you to strength, vigor and new life, long before these nauseous drugs and pills can do so? The remedy I would suggest is Paine's Celery Compound; I have had occasion to test it myself, and know of others who have used it and the result thus far, is ample to prove that it is what you now require. I am quite certain that your good mother and sisters will not object, even in the face of your doctor's learned opinion."

"You are weak, broken down, sleepless and irritable, you say; as well as very nervous; this makes your condition serious, but not worse than I was before I used this great remedy. You may go on for weeks under the care of a physician taking his pills and drugs, yet you are never sure of having the root of the trouble eradicated. Paine's Celery Compound is the only remedy that can meet your case, and as for efficient results, I am willing to pledge my life if necessary."

Mr. H——— with good sense used Paine's Celery Compound, and in less than ten days was able to walk out for exercise; and in two weeks was strong enough to resume his office work. His rapid and thorough cure was a marvel, not only to his friends, but to his family physician as well, who was led to see (against his will) the great medicinal value of Paine's Celery Company.

Paine's Celery Compound is now recommended by Mr. H——— to any of his friends or relatives who may be ill. He always reminds them of his own sickness and quick restoration to health.

ENTERTAINMENT AT ST. MARKS'. — The Church of England entertainment at St. Marks' Wednesday night was a most gratifying success. The Forester's Hall, where it was held, was filled to the door by an attentive audience. After a long programme, which we give below, tea was served, and the entertainment closed with some tableaux. A load (eighteen or twenty of the St. Luke's congregation came and gave considerable assistance in filling the programme. The Rev. J. W. McCleary occupied the chair.

Encores were allowed in three or four cases where it seemed absolutely necessary. The dialogues were well prepared and executed, and reflected great credit on the actors. The principal parts were taken by Mr. Allen, Miss Soules, and members of the Greystone and Wilson families. One of the tableau, "The Execution of Mary Queen of Scots," deserves special mention.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The young men's meeting Saturday evening was largely attended. Much power and blessing was manifested. Mr. George Gilchrist spoke earnest words, which had a response in many hearts. The orchestra was present and led the singing.

The consecration meeting Sabbath morning was led by Mr. Wm Freeborn, and was much enjoyed by those present.

Rev. Mr. Barker gave an impressive address at the Gospel and song service Sabbath evening. The attendance was good and fruit was borne for the Master.

LO'D MONEY BETTER THAN LIFE

Singular Story Told in a Chicago Court of Justice.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—A singular story was told in Justice Scully's court Saturday. It was brought out by the arrest of Adolph Seligman and Erma Clements on the charge of larceny. A quarter of a century ago Frank Clements left his wife and six children in Montreal and went to British Columbia. For a few years his wife heard from him, and small remittances were made to her. Then he quit writing, and all trace of him was lost. The mother moved with the children to New York, and they thought of the father and husband as one who was dead. Last September Clements returned to Montreal. He had been working in the mines of British Columbia and had acquired a competency. His family had gone to New York, as he learned, and he followed and found them. Two months ago he and his wife and Erma, who was a babe when he had last seen her, came to Chicago. Friday night Clements went to bed with $700 in a belt around his body. Two hours later he awoke and the belt was still in place, but the money was gone. His wife, his daughter and Adolph Seligman were all in the house, and Clements believed that one of them had stolen his money. He could not have his wife arrested, but he swore out warrants for his daughter and Mr. Seligman. They appeared before Justice Scully yesterday and were discharged. The daughter, Erma Clements, told a reporter a tale that differed a great deal from the story told by her father. She said that her father had money, but that he is a miser and will not spend it. "I do not like to talk so of one of my parents," she said, "but I have no love for a father who deserted me when I was a child. He has all the characteristics of a miser. Last week he hid $30 in an alley, and of course he lost it. Another time he lost $10. He has not done enough toward the support of the family to pay his own board. He wanted us to go to Mexico to live on a ranch, but we would not go to that heathenish country."

Struck a Mountain of Mica.

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 24.—Louis Victor and a party of Indians have returned from a seven weeks' prospecting trip up the North Thompson River. The country around the head waters of the river and the Tete Juans Cache was covered with a foot of snow. Notwithstanding this impediment to the work of prospecting, they located the mica mines for which they were searching, camping at the mines three weeks staking out claims. The ledge they located shows 40 feet wide and 80 feet high on the side of the mountain, and indications are that they have struck a mountain of mica. Some fine samples were secured and brought to town, the largest of which was about 10 x 8 inches surface, and almost as clear as crystal. Some cubes of almost two feet were exposed in places. The mica splits readily to any thickness desired.

There was four feet of snow on the level when the party left the camp for home, and they experienced terrible hardships on the return trip.

Signor Vassali Assassinated.

BERNE, Nov. 24.—From Bellinzona, in the canton of Ticino, comes the news that Signor Luigi Vassali, a member of the Union Liberale, was murderously attacked in a wood near Riva. The injuries he has received are regarded by the surgeon in attendance as very serious, and grave fears are felt for his life. The crime is believed to have been inspired by a desire for political revenge.

Purify the blood is of the greatest importance to health. To have pure blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

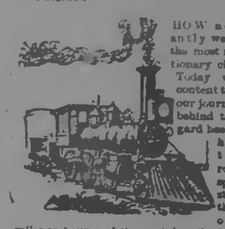
MR. VAN HORNE BLOSSOMS INTO A COMIC ARTIST.

Reflections Upon the Age of Steam—The Wonder of It—President Van Horne's Railway History—An Old Adage Falsified



HOW unconcernedly we accept the most revolutionary changes. Today we are content to make our journeyings behind the lagyard heels of a horse; to-morrow we speed by steam at the rate of 40 miles an hour and the next day the novelty and change are forgotten. To-day we are content to read the news of Europe a fortnight old; to-morrow we read at the breakfast table the doings of old world kings, philosophers and prize-fighters before. If we take the face of the clock as evidence, they have positively transpired. We do so and scarcely wonder at the enchantment. So it is with the C. P. R. Its fast trains rush through our towns bound for their far away terminus at the shores of the Pacific sea, and the vastness of the change that a few years has produced never ruffles the calm of that grey matter of the brain which physiologists tell us is the stuff that moves the world. But if you will just reflect a little, the remarkableness of the fact will begin to creep over you like goose-flesh when your grandfather's ghost pays you a visit in the still watches of the night.

I want to introduce to you to-day the Magician who has brought this wonder into being, not so much as a railway man as in another character which has been hitherto almost altogether unsuspected. There is an old saying that blood will tell, and, by aid of a couple of illustrations, I hope to be able to show that the artistic outburst which distinguished the 16th and 17th centuries in the Netherlands has not altogether died out of the descendants of those Grafs and Burgomasters who, at that time, offered such a stubborn resistance to Phillip of Spain. The Van Dykes, Vander Helsts, Vander Velts and Vander Neers, not to mention artists who had no Van before their names—Rubens, Rembrandt, Teniers, Cuyp, Wouvernians—can claim kin-ship in our own Van Horne. The two specimens of the art of this younger master here with presented will satisfy the discerning reader on that point. They were produced under the following circumstances. There was a sound of disputation by day, and Ontario's capital had gathered them her Mayor and other mighty men to fight that rheumatic chestnut—the Esplanade difficulty. The other fellows were represented by the President of the Canadian Pacific railway and that forceful man of law George M. Clark. While the merry war was in progress Mr. Van Horne who, like the gentleman in the old song, "never can keep still," was not only giving the closest attention to every word that was said, occasionally prompting his legal champion, but his fingers too were busy and anon pedding with a pencil large piece of blotting paper that lay on the table before him. The prodding seemed to be perfectly aimless, but when the conference was over it was found that the semi-occasional touches of the nervous hand had produced the results which we submit to our readers to-day. "Good wine needs no bush" it is said, and if the engraver does his duty these sketches need no words from me. They were not designated by them limner. I have taken the liberty of indicating what they represent to my eye.

THE IMPECUNIOUS GENTLEMAN OF THE OLD SCHOOL.

How many Canadians know Mr. Van Horne's life history? Well here are the landmarks of it. He was born in Will County, Illinois, in Feb. 1843. He entered the service of the Illinois Central railway as a telegraph operator at Chicago. He afterwards put in six years with the Joliet division of the Michigan Central. When he became he took service with the Chicago and Alton railway as train despatcher, then assistant superintendent of telegraphs, and later assistant superintendent of the railway. Mr. Van Horne is a living proof of the truth of that proverb about the rolling stone who has rolled around considerable moss almost all the time. In 1872 he became general superintendent of the St. Louis, Kansas city and Northern railway from that till Oct. '75 he was general manager of the Southern Minnesota line, being president from Dec. '75 to Dec. '79. From Dec. '75 to the same month in '80 he was also general superintendent of the Chicago and Alton. In Jan '80 he became general superintendent of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, a position he held for two years. In the meantime his capacity and ability as a railway man became known in the west, and the projectors and capitalists of the Canadian Pacific railway secured him as manager of that enterprise. He had not reached his goal yet, however, for his career knew no pause until in 1888 he became president of this the largest private corporation on earth.

Mr. Van Horne is a man of large frame weighing considerably over 300 pounds. He has a clear complexion and a pleasant though determined face, and as he comes firmly down the hotel stairs of a morning he is as wholesome and sturdy a specimen of the mental and physical man as we would hope to look on.

ONE OF THE THINGS
we are apt to grumble at
IN FRANCE,

THE providing of one's own soap at hotels! Permit me to remark that this is one of those things

They do manage better in France

than we do here. I am strongly of opinion that every one when travelling should carry his or her own soap as one takes one's own hair-brush or sponge. It is much more cleanly, and there can be no better providing in this respect for the hot sun and warm winds and dust of travel than a cake of which, under such circumstances, I have found very efficient in the prevention of sunburn and allied annoyances.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equaled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders can not fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its long unconditional policies and prompt its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by placing a Home in Canada, which invests all its funds in the Dominion they are benefiting themselves by creating the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own city rather than those of foreign states.

A Second Offence not Proven.

At the police court this morning T. Cavanagh was charged by Inspector Cochrane with a second offence against the Crooks Act on the 15th inst. Mr. R. E. Wood represented the prosecution and Mr. A. P. Poussette the defendant. Several witnesses were examined, but none gave any convicting evidence, and the case was dismissed.

Between the Acts.

An amusing incident occurred at the police court this morning. A couple of witnesses were sent down stairs while evidence was being taken, but when their names were called they could not be found, and the court could not proceed with the liquor case which was being tried until they returned. They had "just been out for a drink." They consider the Peterborough court a most obliging one.

Extending the Telephone.

The question of telephone lines on George street did not come up. Messrs. Frye and Kent, representatives of the companies, were present.

Mr. Dennis Fitzpatrick, now of the township of Emily, Downeyville P.O., helped in the suppression of the rising of '37-38. He served six months and was regularly discharged. He is now about 74 years of age.

Got Rid of His Burden.

The Lindsay Post gives the following account of the child desertion case, the first act of which took place in Peterborough:—Thursday morning last a man entered the Windsor house, East street, bearing in his arms a healthy infant about four weeks old wrapped in sound slumber and the ordinary attire peculiar to that stage of juvenile existence. After partaking of dinner the man stepped outside, and the proprietor, Mr. Brown, thought that he had gone to make a few purchases or meet his wife, whom he presumed must have tarried longer than intended over her shopping. Some hours passed; the youngster awoke and called himself to sleep again, but still no food and indulgent parent hove in sight. Coming on evening Mr. Brown interviewed the police, but no person answering the description he gave was confined in the cells or had, indeed, been noticed in the town, and he was forced to return home harboring the unpleasant conviction that the infant had been abandoned. Enquiries set on foot by the police next day developed the fact that the same person had been attempting to dispose of the child in Peterborough by telling different families that his wife was dead, although enquiry showed that a woman who passed for his wife at the different hotels awaited the result of his mission at a distance. The police are still on the lookout for the unnatural parent, who gave his name in Peterborough as Lyttel and again as Littleton; and in the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Brown are taking good care of the waif, who is handsome and intelligent in appearance.

That Notorious Dance.

The row which occurred at the George street dance Friday night was ventilated in the police court this morning. Isaac Fournier was the complainant in the case. He charged Chris. Graham and Chas. Pogue with assault. When the case was called the parties wished to settle, but Chief Ransel said that if it was withdrawn he would have the three of them charged with disorderly conduct. So the evidence was proceeded with. It appears that at the dance last Friday night Fournier asked one of the young ladies to dance with him. She was willing, and was floating away on his arm to join the set when Graham followed and quietly blotted at a previous engagement. Fournier generously but most ungallantly told Graham "he could have her," but the maiden was of a different mind and clutching her escort by the arm gave a peremptory "no" to the other suitor. After the "set" was finished Graham called Fournier outside and accordingly to the latter's story mildly remonstrated with him for his unfair conduct in "cutting him out" of the good graces of the young lady, by thrashing him. Charlie Pogue took a hand in, in the capacity of peace maker, and admits that in pulling the two apart he might have struck Fournier. But he states that Fournier after being released ran behind and struck Graham. The latter says the same thing, but denies having touched Fournier. He says Fournier was "wild for a fight"—which is very probable, seeing that Graham is about twice his size. However that may be, Fournier bears the marks of blows on his eyes and lips. In the melee which followed the first fracas the young ladies and gentlemen participated freely, and a partition was knocked down. They were all more or less covered with lime. Finally peace was restored on the appearance of the police, who had been telephoned for, and the dance was continued. This in brief are the facts of the disturbance. Some witnesses were called, and finally the magistrate came to the conclusion that the parties named were equally guilty, and fined them each $2 and costs.

Joe Hess on Capital Punishment

Hanging not Justifiable—Birchall's Career and Fate Furnish a Moral—Joe Hess Has "Written a Book of Himself"—Announcements.

Joe Hess is opposed to capital punishment. He says in his opinion it is judicial murder, and not in accordance with the Bible teaching. At last nights' meeting (Mr. Wm. Yelland presiding) Birchall was his theme, and he first touched upon the question of capital punishment. The government of any country, he insisted, had no right to take a man's life because he may have committed murder. The crime must be accounted for between man and his God. An argument often used in support of capital punishment was that it was a divinely appointed institution according to the Scripture passage which reads, "if any man take another's life, he shall lose his own life by the hands of man," and other similar quotations. But the speaker held that this was and old Mosaic law, enacted under a dispensation different to that in which we live, and did not apply to our times. If one of the Mosaic laws was to be thus sustained to-day, why not put the whole law into effect. Then again, capital punishment did not apparently have the effect of deterring others from committing murder. There were murderers awaiting trial or hanging in Canada than ever before. Viewed from a human aspect hanging often

FAILED IN ITS PURPOSE.

A man condemned of murder is sentenced to be hanged within a month or six weeks after his trial. This is to allow him time to repent. But does he repent? The man's whole energy is devoted to putting away the thought of death—of excluding the horrible vision of impending doom from his soul. The man is not in a fit state to repent, and very often, as in Birchall's case, a soul is sent down to perdition, unsaved and unrepentant. These afforded excellent reasons to Mr. Hess for opposing capital punishment.

With Birchall's wild career and dishonorable death for a subject, the speaker had splendid material for his address to young men. The follies of a course of disobedience, idleness dissipation and kindred sins was vividly portrayed in his own peculiar style, and the right path pointed out. The meeting was largely attended, and quite successful.

HIS LIFE HISTORY.

Mr. Hess is offering for sale his autobiography. It was written since his last visit to Peterborough, and is favourably commented on by a number of journals. The EXAMINER has not yet received a copy for review. It must, however, be intensely interesting. Very few lives have crowded into such a short period of years a variety of incident equal to that experienced by Joe Hess. The book sells for a dollar, and the money realized is to be devoted to the maintenance of his family while the writer is attending school. Joe Hess is going to school this fall and study law—not for the purpose of following the profession, but to perfect his education and his speaking, so that when Mr Hess returns to Peterborough he will, probably, be greatly changed—not in his principles, for they are not ephemeral—but in his language and style of speaking. His hosts of friends here will wish him every success with his studies.

To night the subject will be prohibition, and Joe promises a lively meeting. To morrow night the Royal Templars' anniversary tea and farewell takes place. Joe Hess will give an exhibition of club swinging.

Personal.

Orillia has organized a Board of Trade with great enthusiasm, and taken the wise step of electing Mr. Melville Millar President.

Mr. A. J. Belcher, formerly of Peterborough, is a present in Winnipeg taking the preliminary steps for making the survey of the first fifty miles of the Winnipeg and North Pacific R.R., of which he is engineer.

Mr. Ernest Jennings, who was several years ago an operator at the C. P. R. station during his father's regime as stationmaster, is in town renewing old acquaintanceships. Mr. Jennings is now working in Alabama. He finds a considerable difference in the climate of the two places.

THE MISSION SERVICES.

The Services on Monday Afternoon and Evening.

A Good Congregation—A Plain Straightforward Discourse—The Qualities of Our Great Judge.

There was a good congregation, for the hour of the day, at the 4:15 service on Monday. The missioner gave the second of his series of addresses—the first having been given on Sunday morning—on the Lord's Prayer, dealing in his peculiarly effective manner with the second clause—"Hallowed be Thy Name."

In the evening there was a large congregation. The service was very brief, being the latter part of the "Communion Service." The singing was exceedingly hearty. Some of the regular choir were in their places, assisted by a few of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood choir, but the singing was so heartily congregational that the presence of the choir was not much noted, except by way of leading.

The Rev. Missioner conducted the service without assistance, and followed it by one of his beautiful and effective addresses. No synopsis can give an idea of it and those who would hear earnest, attractive and profitable addresses should not fail to hear Rev. Mr. DuVernet. Every word seems to come from the heart; every word seems to be said for effect—in the highest sense of that expression—upon the hearts of his hearers.

The preacher took for his text part of the 7th verse of the 19th chapter of Second Corcinoles, "There is no iniquity with the Lord, our God, nor respect of persons nor taking of gifts." The judges appointed by the reformer, Jehoshephat, were required to comform to the standard of the Great Judge. We all needed to be in a position to form a judgment of ourselves. Jesus Christ said the preacher went through the kingdom of our souls to arouse to a correct conception of the standard necessary to enable us to judge ourselves. The greatest thought that could come to us was the sense of our personal responsibility. That this should be felt was the one great need of the church at the present day. The character of the Lord, our judge, as revealed in the text, showed that there was no iniquity, there was no secret sympathy with sin, such as we sometimes delude ourselves with in respect to some of our cherished sins. Men must think of the Holy God as their Judge with a sense of the deepest abasement, and a feeling that the perfect obedience he requires was his due. He required perfect obedience. God was an impartial Judge; according to the standard of the text, there was no respect of persons—all men must be weighed by the same standard. One man might not be so bad as another,

BUT ALL HAD SINNED,

and come short. There was a great difference in Christian reputation and character. The speaker showed that this was the cause why the children of so many apparently good persons turned out badly. They had a chance of seeing that the Christian character of their parents was not what their Christian reputation was before the world. Then the Great Judge was no respector of persons—He could not be bribed; the speaker denounced gift-giving as one of the curses of the land in the present day. Bribes were received by the voter for his vote, the witness in the box, by (occasionally) the judge on the bench, by the lawyer, the doctor, to the disgrace of our common humanity. But there was no bribing the Great Judge. We were slow to believe that we could not buy God's favour, but we have long cast away the idea that we can buy God's pardon by good works, by penance and fasting, and accepted the doctrine of the free grace of God. When we had pardon we had peace, but it could not be bought. What little we could do, no tears, no promise of repentance could remove the penalty which God's justice had to impose. We could not buy God's pardon by anything we could do or become. This was needless while the grace of God bringeth pardon to all God asked us to come to the feet of Jesus and accept the gifts of pardon, peace and eternal life. He that accepteth—he that hath "the Son of God hath eternal life." First let the sinner come as a humble penitent, he has nothing to wait for, the penalty has been paid by our blessed Lord, the ransom made. First come in lowly penitence and lively faith and then come with gifts of worship and works, not as bribes but as thank-offerings, love tokens presented to God.

The evening service begins to-night at eight o'clock. All seats free. Strangers made welcome and provided with hymn books.

In a letter received to-day the Lord Bishop of Toronto thus refers to the mission:—

"I feel sure the effort you are proposing is calculated to arouse and quicken the spiritual life of those upon whom the influence of the mission is brought to bear.

"My heartiest sympathy is with you and your co-workers at this time, and my earnest prayers that the services of this week may be rich in blessings to our Church and its members in Peterborough."

A box has been placed at the church door for the receipt of letters and enquiries for the Missioner, which will be dealt with at the afternoon service. The Missioner may also be seen in the vestry after any service.

WHAT IS A MISSION?

A Mission is an extraordinary call to the careless and to all anxious about eternity.

A Mission is a special effort to reach souls.

It is a revival of religion.

All persons of every denomination are begged to pray for the Mission, and to come to the Mission.

In Memory

Of Frances Anne Lush, Eldest Daughter of Mr. Henry Lush Aged 16 Years.

For the Examiner.

That young life for ten summers given
To join, dear parents, now in heaven,
Just for a little season lent;
You, by God's grace, with calm content—
Although your hearts are rent with weeping—
Resigned it into safer keeping,
She's safe and now the heavenly rest,
Safe nestled on the saviour's breast.

In rosy dawning o' life's prime
Her spirit found a fast pinions climb
Through pure white robes her expanding mind
Can wisdom of the high attained
And to her wealth of soul, and rise
To point of knowledge in the skies;
For talents well she did employ—
She'll reap in heaven greater joy.

Of noble aspirations blest,
She earned the title of the "Best,"
So unassuming did she pass
Those oldest, largest, in the class.
They, without touch of envy, said
At her success, "Frances is head."
Ah, would to all more Christ-like grove,
Preferring others themselves above!

The winning charm of modest grace,
And in its serenity of face,
Sweet, gone ess was of innocence,
And eyes that beamed intelligence;
The spirit luminous has taught
Th' nurturings of attentive thought,
Will long be treasured by the who
The gentle little maiden knew.

Like perfume rare that lingers long,
Or memory of some pleasing song
Of warbling bird that life acquire
A fragrant influence will endure;
By her remains let us seek
To hear what God to all would speak;
Mark what He means to teach us, hide,
To young and old be sanctified.

Our hearts are glad—Christ said, "With Me
To-day in paradise thou'lt be."
That when the soul's from body riven
Love's immediately to heaven;
And th' body that to dust has lain
Shall rise in with the soul again;
As Christ is, glorified shall be,
And reign with him eternally.

The Handsomest of All Coins.

This proud distinction is generally conceded to the United States' twenty dollar gold piece, a marvel of beauty in design and finish. The lovely art of God's handiwork is a handsome woman, if in the bloom of health; if she is not, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will restore her. Ladies who use this peerless remedy are unanimous in it praise, for it cures those countless ills which are the bane of their sex—irregularities, dragging-down pains, inflammation, hysteria, sleeplessness, and the "all gone" sensations which burden their daily lives. A tonic and nervine, without alcohol. b

The Wires Must be High.

Town Clerk Macdonald has received a communication from the secretary of the Fire Underwriters' Association with regard to the stringing of telephone and telegraph wires on George street. The Association requests the town, if permission is granted to any company to string wires on the principal street, to see that they are so placed as not to interfere with the operations of the firemen in case of fire. The Association says the wires must be placed at least as high as the eaves of the buildings.

An Omemee Batch of Veterans.

Still Living in Omemee and Vicinity.

Our Omemee correspondent sends us the following list of veterans of 1837-38 now living in Omemee and vicinity:—The first and most distinguished is Mr. George Morton, over 80 years of age. He served in the yeomen in County Fermanagh, Ireland, and served also in Canada in 1837 and 1838 under Captain Houston, of Cobourg, and Major Elliott. Address, Omemee. He is still able to handle the axe, shovel, spade, and go out and fish in a punt. Pte. Jerry Murphy, Pte. Thomas Rowan, Pte. Gabriel Balfour, Pte. Joseph Lowell, Pte. William Graham, Pte. Thos. Laidley, Pte. Abraham Laidley—all living yet hale and hearty in this vicinity, served in 1837-38 under Capt. Mitchell, Col. Kingsmill, Port Hope, and Major Reid, Bowmanville. The late Capt. Thompson and Col. Cottingham had their companies united in 1838, making them 100 strong. Both these as well as many of the senior officers are dead. These veterans marched all the way to Toronto to Montgomery's farm, Yonge st. cut, where a battle was fought. Some good stories can yet be told by some of the old veterans at the time they were leaving their homes for the scene of action, when tears were shed by the loved one's behind, such as "Be sure and don't forget to feed the pigs."

The election talk is now up to 75, and the wonder is how much is going to be Mr. Loudeborough's majority. Being a farmer of considerable prominence, farmers are therefore going for the man who is really going to act in their interests.

There is a grand concert in contemplation for Xmas at which Peterborough's best talent is asked to participate. People will be looking forward with great pleasure to Thos. Dunn's first appearance, the noted baritone. Quite a number of our music-loving people attended the Forester's concert at Mount Pleasant, and were highly entertained by the Peterborough talent.

West Middlesex Protest.

Speedy Disposal of the Election Petition Against Hon. G. W. Ross.

A despatch from Strathroy says:—The petition against the return of Hon. G. W. Ross as member of the Legislative Assembly for the coming session was tried here to-day and dismissed in the shortest sitting of court on record. Justices Ferguson and McMahon arrived here about 1.20, and immediately proceeded to the town hall, which is but a few yards from the station. On their taking their seats on the bench it was seen that Mr. T. G. Meredith appeared for the petitioner and Mr. John Cameron for respondent. Counsel for petitioner stated that he had looked into the evidence, and decided that it was insufficient to support the petition. Counsel for the respondent asked that the petition be dismissed with costs, which was done, Judge Ferguson remarking that it would be the duty of the court to report the respondent duly elected. The judge immediately left the hall for the station, their stay in Strathroy not being much more than ten minutes.

Springville.

Mr. Archibald Goodfellow, of Springville, weighed on his scales on Thursday, Nov. 25th, two milch cows owned by Mr. Jas. Baptie, of the Model Farm, Springville, that tipped the beam at 1620 and 1550 pounds respectively. He thinks Mr. Baptie, who aims at, and generally succeeds in being top sawyer in the full range of live stock from bees to Boxer, as well as in every other department of mixed farming, can be pointed to as a sample of the successful, all round, general purpose Canadian farmer.

News Nuggets.

—The council of the Board of Trade held a full meeting last night, and for two or three hours discussed the interests of the town.

—The Ontario Telephone Company have now about sixty of their instruments ready for operation. Their lines will be opened as soon as possible.

Story Tellers.

Sir Richard Steele said, "I have often thought that story tellers, as well as poets, are born not made." We are not positive if we can agree with the sententious Richard or not. We are unfortunate enough to have intimate acquaintanceship with a great number of story tellers, but whether they were born or made we are unable to say. Some have reached such perfection in the art that they can declare with the most provoking sang-froid imaginable, that there are other medicines equal to Beecham's Pills. But any one who has tested these Pills knows better. w48d

Her Chances Vanishing.

Mary Powers, the young woman who the other day finished a term in gaol and was thought to be an heiress, left town on Saturday. Though answering in many particulars to the Mary Powers wanted, it is not now believed she is the genuine heiress. Nothing definite has yet occurred, however to settle the question.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH AND WHAT FOLLOWED.

The Debate on the Address Completed in One Day for the First Time in Fifteen Years. The Emin Relief Expedition.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Imperial Parliament was opened to-day. The serious illness of the wife of Mr. Peel, the Speaker, necessitated his absence. Mr. Parnell took the seat he usually occupied in the House of Commons, but soon retired to the lobby, although he shortly afterwards took his seat on the third bench. The Queen's Speech was as follows:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

No change has taken place in the foreign relations during the short period which has elapsed since the close of the preceding session. The sources of European peace appear to be strengthened. I have commenced negotiations with the Government of Italy to determine the boundary which separates the territory under British influence in the northwest of Africa from that belonging to the protected empire of Abyssinia. A treaty was signed on the 5th of May last, for the purpose of the ascertainment of the boundaries between the British territory in Central Africa and the Portugal provinces of Angola Caza and Mozambique. It has however, not received the sanction of the King of Portugal. Pending further negotiations a temporary arrangement has been made in regard to the most urgent questions involved between the two countries which will be laid before you.

Negotiations have been commenced in respect of the Newfoundland fisheries question. I trust that some means may be devised which will be satisfactory to all parties.

[Conference of the Houses of Commons.]

The estimates for the ensuing year will be submitted to you at the ordinary time. Strict economy will be observed in preparing them.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

The general condition of Ireland has improved under the salutary legislation which you have applied to it, but I have learned with deep regret that a great deficiency of the potato crop in certain districts threatens a recurrence of those periods of severe distress to which the population of the western counties is peculiarly exposed by the industrial economic conditions under which the law. I trust the measures of my Government may mitigate the immediate evil and diminish the probability of its return. It appears to me desirable for the increase of contentment and the diminution of political disturbance throughout Ireland to take measures for augmenting the number of owners engaged in the actual occupation of land. A measure having this object in view will be laid before you. Proposals will again be submitted to you for remedying the difficulties which have arisen from the indirect incidence of the tithe rent charge on land in England and Wales. Other measures will be submitted for facilitating the transaction in Scotland and Ireland of the more important stages of private legislation affecting the communities. Your attention will be invited to the expediency of alleviating the burden which the law of compulsory education has within recent years imposed upon the poorer portions of my people. There are several other questions upon which legislation is desirable, but recent experience has rendered it doubtful whether the state of time at your disposal will be sufficient for the consideration of the subjects of an important character beyond those which I have referred. In order to make time for other legislation should be found, I have directed the preparation of bills for enactment of a reform system of county government in Ireland analogous to that put in operation for Great Britain for the establishment of district councils, for the extension of facilities for purchasing small parcels of land in Great Britain, for amending the law in respect to the compensation payable by employers in cases of injury to, and in their employment of, seamen, and amending the laws relating to public health, for the appointment of public trustees, and for increasing the securities of friendly societies and savings banks.

In discharge of the solemn duties assigned I command you to the guidance of Almighty God.

After the reading of the Queen's Speech, Mr. Balfour gave notice he would introduce four bills relating to Ireland: Mr. Gladstone of the introduction of a bill to remove the disability which prevents Catholics from occupying the offices of Lord Chancellor of England and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

Mr. Balfour announced that he would reintroduce the Irish land bill Thursday next.

W. H. Smith, the Government leader, intimated that the Government would take the whole time of the House until the leading bills were read a second time. He said the Government did not intend to appoint a commission to inquire into the Emin relief expedition. The Ministry, he added, was in no sense responsible for the selection of Stanley's staff.

Mr. Storey moved a resolution simply thanking the Queen for the speech addressed by Her Majesty to Parliament.

Mr. Fulton (Conservative) seconded the motion.

Mr. Gladstone's Criticism.

Mr. Gladstone said the change in the form of the address in reply to the Queen's speech appeared to proceed from the assumption that only a single amendment would be moved on the new form. Anxious as he was to expedite business by preventing discussion of topics not mentioned in the Speech from the Throne, he felt that the difficulty of thus confining the debate had been greatly increased by Mr. Smith's announcement of the Government's intention to take the whole time of the House until the Government bills were read a second time. Many members would not be willing to permit their former privileges to be so curtailed. Moreover the Government had avoided reference to some important matters. Was the House to understand that there existed nothing in the differences with the United States regarding Behring Sea that was likely to interfere with the continued existence of the friendliest relations with their both and him across the Atlantic? Right certain events in the Turkish Empire—events that had made a deep impression upon the mind and heart of the country—to be treated with silence? Although he did not expect to find in the Speech from the Throne any reference to painful statements that had been made regarding the Emin relief expedition, he desired to know whether the relations of the Government towards the expedition had been made such as to make it the duty of the ministry to take steps to ascertain what truth there was in statements that compromised the reputation of the English people for humanity. Referring to Ireland Mr. Gladstone said it was unfortunate that the Government were not content with inserting in the speech words stating the improved condition of the country, but likewise thought it necessary to congratulate themselves about the cause of the improvement whereon members of the Opposition were bound to express dissent. The list of measures which had been as a postscript to the speech places the Government in a position of no [illegible] regarding them. They [illegible] ministry had prepared a bill proposing local government for Ireland. Would the [illegible] assurance that by the country [illegible] House proceed to wait indefinitely [illegible] the convenience of the Government in order to learn how they intended to deal with the greatest questions of the day? [Cries of "Hear, hear!"]

The Government Leader's Reply.

Mr Smith, replying to Mr. Gladstone, declared that the Government had the strongest hope that the Behring Sea negotiations would prove successful. He knew no reason for apprehending any difficulty in connection with the matter. The Government sympathized with the persecuted people of the Turkish empire and took what measures were practicable to abate their sufferings. In regard to the Emin relief expedition the Government had no right to institute an enquiry, as the expedition was a purely voluntary undertaking. Regarding the distress in Ireland ample measures would be taken to meet the trouble and care for the people in every district.

Mr. Morley intimated that he would introduce a motion concerning recent events in Tipperary and Mr. Smith promised that an opportunity would be given for a full discussion of the subject.

After a few minor members had spoken the address was agreed to. This is the first time in 15 years that the address has been agreed to on the day of the opening of Parliament.

House of Lords.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—In the House of Lords this evening Baron Windsor, Conservative, moved the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Baron Ardmann (Conservative) seconded the motion. The latter as an Irish landlord denounced the assertion frequently made that the landlords desired to sell the land and supported the land bill because they wished to pocket the plunder. Many landlords, he said, would doubtless be compelled to leave the country unless they were enabled to sell their land, but as a class they desired to live in Ireland.

Earl Granville, Liberal, congratulated the Government on its being able to report prospects of permanent peace. He said Lord Salisbury had conducted the foreign affairs of the country with prudence. Though all reference to the new American tariff law had been avoided in the Speech from the Throne, he must express the regret of the Liberals at the stand taken by the Americans in favor of prohibition, which he asserted would give rise to an enormous amount of smuggling and other evils to the American people. England would find compensation in the increase in trade with Africa and the colonies. The reaction in America would operate upon European opinion as a warning against prohibitive tariffs. He asked the Premier to state what action the Government had taken in regard to the recent financial crisis and what attitude it would assume with reference to the Stanley expedition and the blunders of the Tipperary prosecutions.

Lord Salisbury then spoke. He would not say England's trade with Africa and the colonies would immediately compensate her for the loss caused by the new American tariff, but it would be a motive for preventing territory in Africa from falling into the hands of nations exercising prohibition. It was lamentably true, he said, that the colonies did not follow the motherland in Free Trade, yet it was a fact that the trade of Australia increased faster than elsewhere. The Premier said he could not now discuss the financial crisis, as negotiations in progress were of a confidential character. As to the troubles at Tipperary Lord Salisbury said the League's combination there aimed to defraud, oppress and coerce honest traders and the task of restoring prosperity to Ireland would be hopeless, unless the law was enforced and such combinations were destroyed. He approved Mr. Balfour's denunciation of Mr. Morley. The Government, he said, had firmly pursued its object of increasing the number of persons interested in land in Ireland, and thus creating a moral and political force which would frustrate the efforts of political agitators. (Cheers.)

In the matter of the East Elgin election petition Mr. Justice Maclennan yesterday made an order allowing the petitioner to deliver particulars of two new personal charges against the respondent notwithstanding that the time for delivery of same has elapsed. FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Five Killed and Three Fatally Injured by a Boiler Explosion.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 25.—About 9 this morning occurred one of the most appalling accidents ever recorded in this locality. It was the explosion of the boilers in E. D. Jewett's mill at South Bay, about five miles from this city. Five persons were killed and several others injured so badly that there is little hope of their recovery. The mangled remains of the men were found on deal piles and for some time it was impossible to definitely state how many had been killed or who they were. Of the six boilers two were blown out of the building in different directions and the other four were wrenched from their positions in the solid masonry. One of the missing boilers was found 100 feet from the scene of the accident on an embankment, while the other was in the bay, standing on its end, nearly 1000 feet from the mill. Much of the machinery was badly damaged by the explosion and the whole frame of the building was weakened. On piles of lumber about the mill blood, brains and various portions of men's bodies were scattered.

The Dead.

Henry Baird, aged 50, of Pisarince, torn to pieces. Has wife and family.

James Baird, aged 17, son of Henry, horribly mangled, died in an hour.

Bert Curry, aged 8, son of Robert Curry, employed in mill, scalded to death.

Andrew Ward, aged 24, unmarried.

Michael Lynch, single.

Patrick Lynch, R. Hayes and Peter Harrington, are certain to die.

Coroner Robinson has adjourned the inquest until Friday. The boilers were old ones and had been used in another mill which had exploded.

LETTER FROM GLADSTONE

HE CALLS UPON PARNELL TO RESIGN.

Another Meeting of Nationalist Members to Be Held To-day. Intense Excitement Over the Present Phase of the Case.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A meeting of the Irish Home Rulers was held to-day before the opening of the session of the House of Commons. Mr. Parnell was present. He was loudly cheered as he entered the room. A motion was made that Mr. Parnell be re-elected chairman of the Irish Parliamentary party. It was carried unanimously. It is announced that Mr. Parnell will retain the Leadership at the express desire of his followers.

Mr. Parnell made an address, in which he thanked his followers for his re-election. He said it was for the Irish members to decide whether he should lead them. If their decision had been a negative one, or there had been any diversity of opinion among them he would cheerfully have withdrawn from public life. Nothing but the conviction that his colleagues desired to still utilize his services in the common cause induced him to resume a position which, under his altered circumstances, exposed him, and them through him, to attacks of their opponents.

Mr. Parnell entered the House of Commons at 5 o'clock. The first member to greet him was Cunninghame Graham, who accosted him in the lobby and shook him warmly by the hand. Mr. Parnell, after congratulating Mr. Corbett, a Home Rule member, upon his recent marriage, managed to elude the crowd of journalists waiting in the lobby in the hope of obtaining an interview with the Irish leader and left the House accompanied by Justin McCarthy. The Parnellite members did not know until after the reading of the Queen's speech at what time they were to meet Mr. Parnell, who had not communicated with his followers since the sending out of the circular calling the meeting. The Nationalist members all declared that if Parnell were elected to the leadership he would receive the full support of the party. Individual Nationalists, however, recognizing the feeling of the English Liberals in the matter, expressed themselves as opposed to Parnell's retaining the leadership. No one knew what Parnell's decisions would be, but all declared he would do the right thing. The Liberal members were almost unanimously of the conviction that Parnell would have to go.

A Nationalist Meeting

The Nationalist meeting was held in a committee room of the House of Commons. Every Nationalist member in town was present and the room was crowded. Mr. Power, the chief Nationalist whip, presided, with Mr. McCarthy on his right. Mr. Parnell was cheered as he entered the committee room and took his seat on the left of the chairman. There was a general impression beforehand that Parnell would be asked to preside as usual, but when the members had assembled Mr. McCarthy's proposal that Mr. Power be made chairman was accepted. The sitting was private, but outsiders in the corridor heard constant cheering as Mr. Power explained the feeling of the Irish party toward its leader. Mr. Power referred to Parnell's services in behalf of Ireland and said he believed there was a unanimous feeling that Parnell should be re-elected chairman of the Irish party. The meeting re-elected Mr. Parnell by a unanimous vote.

Mr. Parnell, subsequent to his re-election to the Irish leadership, had a conference with John Morley and Sir Charles Russell. Notwithstanding his endorsement by the Nationalist party Mr. Parnell may for a time withdraw from Parliament.

Among those who greeted Mr. Parnell, as he made his way to his place in the House of Commons, was Jacob Bright, who rose from his seat as Parnell approached and shook the Irish leader by the hand.

A Letter from Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—At the request of Mr. Gladstone Mr. Morley has communicated to Mr. Parnell the following letter, written Monday:

Dear Morley: Having arrived at a certain conclusion in regard to the consequences of Mr. Parnell's leadership of the Irish party, I have written specially on my arrival in town and communicated from him whether I am likely to receive from Mr. Parnell himself any communication on the subject. Mr. Morley replied that he was unable to give me any information. I mentioned to him that in case after the terrible murders in Phœnix Park Mr. Parnell, although totally removed from the idea of responsibility, had spontaneously written and offered to take the Chiltern Hundreds, an offer much to his honor, but which I thought it my duty to decline. While clinging to the hope of a communication from Mr. Parnell to whom several addressed I thought it necessary, viewing the arrangements for the commencement of the session to-morrow, to acquaint Mr. Morley with the conclusion, after using all the means of observation and in reflecting in my power I had myself arrived. It was that, notwithstanding the splendid services rendered by Mr. Parnell to his country, his continuance at the present moment in the leadership would be productive of consequences disastrous in the highest degree to the cause of Ireland. I think I may be warranted in stating you so far to expand the conclusions given above as to add that Mr. Parnell's continuance as leader would not only place many hearty and effective friends of the Irish cause in a position of great embarrassment but would render retention of the leadership based as it has been upon the prosecution of the Irish cause, at almost a nullity.

This expansion of my views I begged of Mr. McCarthy to regard as confidential and not intended for his colleagues generally. It is found that Mr. Parnell contemplates communicating a letter to Mr. Morley. I would make known to the Irish party at their meeting to-morrow that such was my conclusion if he should find that Mr. Parnell has not in contemplation his withdrawal. I now write you in case he should be unable to communicate with Mr. Parnell, as I understand you may possibly have an opening to him through another channel. Should you have such an opening I beg you to make it known to Mr. Parnell the conclusion stated in this letter. I have thought it best to put it in terms simple and direct, much as I should have liked, had it lain in my power, to alleviate the personal nature of the situation. As respects the manner of conveying what my public duty has made it an obligation to say, I rely entirely on your good feeling, tact and judgment.

Signed, WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE.

It is learned that Mr. Gladstone had an interview with Mr. Parnell before the publication of the letter to Mr. Morley and that he urged Parnell to retire from the leadership of the National party. The publication of the letters caused intense excitement in the lobbies of the House of Commons. The Parnellites gathered in groups and informally discussed the situation resulting from Gladstone's action. Finally a formal meeting of the Nationalist members was called for 10 o'clock to-night.

The Liberal leaders are unanimously of opinion that Gladstone's ultimatum was an absolute necessity. Mr. Gladstone is annoyed because Parnell, at the meeting of his followers, did not mention his interview with Mr. Morley and presents keenly Parnell's disregard of his protest. Mr. Gladstone had previously intimated his intention to give no countenance to any amendment to the address if Parnell were re-elected to the Irish leadership. This explains the sudden ending of to-night's debate. The Conservatives and Unionists gleefully chatted in the House over the split in the Opposition.

A Previous Pledge.

It transpires that during the trial of the O'Shea divorce case the Nationalist members of Parliament pledged themselves to support Parnell whatever the result of the trial might be and not to consider the sentiment of the English Liberals in the matter.

Sir Charles Russell, in a speech at Hackney, said many Irish members were sad at heart because of the calamity that had befallen the cause of Ireland. He believed they wished that Parnell would bow his head to the storm and recognize the fact that he had inflicted a serious wound upon the conscience of the people of both countries, and had damaged the cause for which he had fought so long.

The Irish members met at 10 o'clock to-night, as arranged, but without Parnell, who was in another part of the House. Another meeting has been arranged for to-morrow. Several Liberal candidates have written letters announcing that they withdraw from the field, foreseeing certain defeat. The Parnellites openly assert that they mean to stick to Parnell, even if they should delay Home Rule 15 years by so doing.

BOOMING MANITOBA.

A Special Rate of $18 from Liverpool to Winnipeg.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Hon. John Carling was interviewed this afternoon by representatives of the Allan and Dominion steamship lines and Canadian Pacific Railway, who included Messrs. J. S. Allan, D. Torrance and D. McNicol, general passenger agent C.P.R. The deputation say the details of the scheme they submitted will be arranged in a few days. It is proposed to boom immigration by quoting an $18 rate from Liverpool, Eng., to Winnipeg. Tickets will only be sold at this figure to bona fide settlers.

Suspected Infanticide at Mount Forest—The Parents Arrested.

MOUNT FOREST, Nov. 25.—The body of a child about 2 years old was found in an unused cistern this morning. The cistern was closed, which at once led to the suspicion that the child had been wilfully drowned. It appears that William Coutts and his wife had lived in a house across the street, opposite that where the body had been found. They had two children and had been trying to get some one to adopt the children. They succeeded so far as the eldest was concerned, Mr. Coutts' mother undertaking to keep it. Mr. Coutts stated to his landlord that he had disposed of the other to a farmer and nothing more was thought about the matter until the discovery of the child's body. Coutts is under arrest, and an inquest is in progress.

Enormous Damage Occasioned and Many Lives Lost by Floods in Germany and Hurricanes in Austria.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Despatches from Elberfeld state that the Wappe River has risen and that five persons have been drowned in the flood. Two bridges have been carried away and other damage has been done. The neighboring town of Barmer is flooded. At Restorich, on the Warnow River, the timber yards and at Warnemunde, the outport of Restorich, the esplanade has been destroyed. Both rivers are still rising. Yesterday's flood had its origin in the bursting of the dam. When the dam gave way the river instantly rose to a great height and a volume of water ten feet deep at Carlsbad poured throughout the Alte and Neuewise, Marienbauer-street and Marketplace and the Spruudelgasse. The gas and waterworks were completely ruined. The flood continued for four hours, when the water gradually subsided. The River Eger, into which the Tepl flows, is now a vast lake. Several corpses have been seen floating on the surface, but it is believed there has been no loss of life in Carlsbad itself. Despatches from Kiel and Lubreck report those places are flooded as well as extensive tracts on the Baltic coast. Damage is enormous.

The latest despatches concerning the flooding and collapse of the Auria pit of the Bruex Mining Company at Tschansch show that the loss of life was greater than at first supposed. The number of victims is now placed at 70.

For the last three days hurricanes have been reported throughout Austria, with avalanches and floods in the mountain regions. The rivers are rising everywhere.

A Lady Member of the London County Council Heavily Mulcted.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—An important question affecting woman's rights was decided to-day in the Court of Queen's Bench, before Mr. Justice Day. An action was brought by Sir Walter de Souza against Miss Jane Cobden for the usual penalties for acting as a member of the London County Council while she was disqualified in so acting. Sir Walter, who is a member of the County Council, sued because it has been established that a woman has no right to act as a member of the council.

For some time Miss Cobden was absent from the council, but in February she reappeared and acted and voted on several occasions in her capacity of a member. In Miss Cobden's defence it was urged that Sir Walter was not a British subject and that her election had not been called into question for 12 months thereafter. The plaintiff sought to recover five penalties of £50 each and judgment was given against the defendant in the sum of £25 for each penalty, making in all a total of £125 and costs. On the application of the defendant's attorney execution was stayed in view of a possible appeal.

The Dead King.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 25.—The royal message announcing the death of King William III. and the accession to the throne of Princess Wilhelmina was read to-day in Parliament. The members rose to receive the message, after the reading of which the President of the Chambers made a brief address. He expressed the profound sorrow felt by the country over the demise of the King, who, he said, had never failed to maintain the constitutional rights and liberty of the people. He knew Parliament would honor the King's memory by proving their devotion to the young Queen and her mother, who had been bequeathed as precious pledges. The House thereupon adjourned.

The body of the King was placed in a coffin to-night. The Queen was not present. The funeral will take place Dec. 4.

Cruel to His Crew.

ANTWERP, Nov. 25.—Captain Voss, the skipper of a merchant vessel trading between Antwerp and New York, has been sentenced by the Antwerp Marine Court to seven months' imprisonment for maltreating his crew. The first officer, named Krugman, got 14 months' imprisonment for participating in the cruelties. He was also accused of murdering the second officer on the high seas, but the charge was not proved against him.

The French Tariff Changes.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The tariff committee has raised the import duty on mutton from 28 to 32 francs per 100 kilos, and has imposed duties of 20 francs per 100 kilos on pork butchers meat, 16 francs on smoked or salted pork, 50 francs on pate de foie gras and 27 francs on salt beef. The committee has also raised the duties on tinned meat, meat extracts and bouillons from 8 to 15 and 20 francs according to quality and value.

France to Expel Nihilists.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—The police to-day secretly examined a young woman who is believed to be Mlle. Bromburg, who was acquitted at the recent Nihilist trial. Numerous warrants have been issued for a simultaneous search of the houses of Russian refugees. A report is current that the authorities are preparing for a general expulsion of militant Nihilists.

Further Confirmation.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Press Association states if Mr. Parnell persists in retaining the public leadership of the Irish party Mr. Gladstone will refuse to countenance any amendment in reply to the Queen's Speech and will immediately return to Hawarden and not appear in Parliament until after the Christmas holidays.

Fight Between Socialists and Police.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—A street demonstration of Socialists was held to-day in Berlin. The police were called upon to disperse the crowds and in the melee which ensued several persons were injured. The police captured a red flag from the Socialists, seven of whom were arrested for carrying firearms.

DRY GOODS NEWS AT

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1 25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

Eggs, says the Ottawa Free Press are worth twenty-four cents a dozen in Buffalo and sixty cents in England. Will someone kindly explain why Ontario farmers should send their eggs to Great Britain rather than to Buffalo?

Mr. DEWDNEY, our exquisite Minister of the Interior, has been paying a visit to England, and on his return he reports that there is the most appalling ignorance in the old country of the resources and position of Canada. Yet we pay out about $40,000 a year for maintaining a reservoir of Canadian knowledge in London, in the person of Sir Charles Tupper, besides having provided a cottage in London at a cost of nearly $30,000, and besides a large sum spent in literature and paying agents in the old country for the express purpose of disseminating knowledge of Canada and its resources. Mr. Dewdney could not have more effectually paraded the incompetence of the immigration department if he had plastered the fact on the walls of every post office in the land.

Otonabee.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Council met Nov. 17th. All the members present. On motion the overseer of highways for road division No. 24 was authorized to extend a ditch on the 9th concession line from a culvert opposite the centre of lot 25 to the western limit of said 9th concession line. No further payment will be allowed for stones for road at Crowley's swamp. R. Ellison to be allowed 2 days statute labour in 1891 for 2 days performed in 1890 and W. J. Porter 2 days for putting in a culvert. A deputation from the South Monaghan council was heard, requesting the purchase by Otonabee of a right of way for a road through 50 acres of Robert Deyell's farm, to connect with a proposed ferry across the Otonabee river. It was proposed to close up the 13th concession line opposite the said 50 acres and give it in part payment for proposed road. No action was taken in the matter. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—J. Bennett, assisting survey, $1 50; R. Deyell, cedars, $2 80; T. Crowley, stones for crossing, $20; R. Hope, plank for Graham's hill, $7; R. M. Lyle, cleaning hall, coal oil and gas, $2; John Throop, cedars, $7.56; G. W. Rainey, balance engineer's expense re ditch, $25 43; W. Chamberlain, cedars, $3 60; G. I. Rogers, account re John Earle, $1 90. Council adjourned to 15th December to sign statement of accounts.

Apsley.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHEESE FACTORY.—Mr. W. Wilson is entering upon an industry which there is every reason to believe will be of great benefit to the country. The building of a cheese factory, which he intends to have in full working order in the spring, is far advanced. Mr. Wilson deserves every support and encouragement in this undertaking. Cheese factories are not on their trial; they have been too long in existence, and to well proved, to allow of any doubt as to their success, if the management be right. Mr. Wilson has been in this municipality thirty years, is an experienced farmer, and an honorable and trustworthy man; and the farmers around will show great want of wisdom and of regard for their own interest if they do not give him plenty of work to do. The strange thing is that in a country so well calculated for stock raising such an industry was not started long ago. One results must follow—that of vastly improving the breed of cattle.

OBITUARY.—We have to record the death of a gentleman who, though living for the last few years near Lakefield, was long the most prominent man in this locality—Mr. James Gilborne, who died at his house near Lakefield on 19th November, after only two days illness—inflammation of the intestines. Mr. Gilborne was an Englishman, born in 1826. He was probably the first settler in north Burleigh, where he located a lot in 1862. In 1863 the first post office on the Burleigh Colonization Road was opened at his house, near which he built saw and flour mills, after which he removed to Apsley. He was for many years reeve of the municipality and certainly did much towards opening up the country. A man with strong traits of character, he did not always secure the goodwill of those with whom he was brought in contact; but anyone in want, whether friend or foe, who asked for help, was very rarely sent away unaided. Requiescat in pace in a charitable consolation.

A Startling Contradiction.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says "a prophet is not without honour save in his own country," and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Indeed it is expanded into the generally accepted belief that true merit, whether it be that of an individual, or that of some medicinary preparation is much more likely to meet with popular approval at a distance than at home. Nasal Balm, acknowledged as being the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, ever offered the people of Canada, affords a striking instance of the fact that popular opinion, for once at least, is wrong. From the outset its popularity in the home of its manufacture has been unbounded and constantly increasing. In evidence of this we offer testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen who are known throughout the Dominion.

D. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville, and for the past few years President of the Ontario Creamery Association, says:—"Your Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh, accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies, but without avail, and well nigh despaired of a cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results arising from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the dropping into the throat, sweetens the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel almost like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should lose a moment in giving this remedy a trial."

James Smart, Esq. Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says: "It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse, and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm, and was relieved from the first application and thoroughly cured within twenty four hours. I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most skeptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents small size, and $1 large size bottle—by addressing FULFORD & Co., Brockville, Ont.

Registrar Williams Dead.

HAMILTON, Nov. 25.—James Miller Williams, registrar of the county of Wentworth, died this afternoon after a lingering and painful illness. Mr. Williams was in his 71st year. He came to Hamilton from the United States in his youth and engaged in business as a carriage manufacturer, oil refiner and foundryman, afterwards conducting the stamping works which bear his name. He very soon began to take an active interest in public affairs; and was a director of several insurance companies. He served in the city council, and when the Ontario Legislature was created in 1867 he was chosen to represent the city in that body. He was re-elected in 1871 and 1875. On retiring from the legislature he was appointed registrar for the county of Wentworth, and has since held that position.

He is survived by his wife, three sons—C. J. Williams, J. M. Williams, jr., and Henry Williams, all of Hamilton—and one daughter, Mrs. Beardmore of Toronto. Mr. Williams died of a complication of diseases, principally pulmonary. He was confined to his bed for two months, but had been ailing for more than a year.

Among the names already mentioned for the vacant registrarship are those of Hon. J. M. Gibson, Herbert Fairbairn Gardener, editor of The Times, Dr. McMahon, M.L.A. for the north riding of Wentworth, and Nicholas Awrey, M.L.A. for the south riding. A special runner was sent out to Binbrook to-night to notify Mr. Awrey. Mr. Gibson, it is likely, would not take the office. The fight will be between Dr. McMahon and Mr. Awrey or their nominees.

Funeral of the Late J. B. Freeman.

SIMCOE, Nov. 25.—One of the largest funerals ever seen in this county that of the late J. B. Freeman, the Liberal whip in the Ontario Legislature, took place to-day at 2 p.m. A large concourse of people assembled at his late residence, where a short service was conducted by Rev. John Kay of Brantford, assisted by Rev. A. Slaght of Waterford and Rev. William Finlay of Simcoe. The procession, which was more than a mile in length, then slowly wended its way to Oakwood cemetery. All places of business in the town were closed while the procession was passing. The pall-bearers were John Charlton, M.P., Hon. John Dryden, Dr. J. T. Gilmour, M.P.P., William Morgan, ex-M.P.P., L. L. Sovereign, warden Norfolk, and Thomas Irwin, Toronto.

Another Petition Dismissed.

STRATHROY, Nov. 25.—The petition against the return of Hon. G. W. Ross was tried yesterday and dismissed in the shortest sitting of court on record. Counsel for petitioner stated that he had looked into the evidence and decided that it was insufficient to support the petition. Counsel for the respondent asked that the petition be dismissed with costs, which was done. The judge's stay in Strathroy was not much more than 10 minutes.

Sam Hughes Nominated.

PENETANGUISHENE FALLS, Nov. 25.—At a convention of Liberal-Conservatives to-day Mr. S. Hughes of The Victoria Warder, Lindsay, was nominated as the party's standard bearer for North Victoria at the next general elections for the Dominion.

The Koch Lymph.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Dr. Shafler, who has just returned from Berlin, bringing with him three tubes of Koch's curative lymph, says he saw cases of cavities in the lungs much diminished by Koch's treatment. He consulted with Prof. Koch regarding the effect of the lymph in surgical cases. The professor did not claim he could obliterate disease in the bone. He only claimed he could arrest the progress of tuberculosis.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Dr. Jacobi has been notified that a number of tubes of Koch's lymph consigned to him will arrive Dec. 1.

Purify Your Blood

...ortance of ...the blood in ... condition is ...iversally known, ...and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing exclusive than the more conproven positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

H M. STANLEY AND BRIDE

THE GREAT EXPLORER'S ACHIEVEMENTS BRIEFLY OUTLINED.

His African Experience Forms a Fascinating Chapter in History—They Are to be the Honored Guest of the Queen City of Ontario.

Stanley, the great African explorer, is to-day the most interesting individual on the North American continent. The great audience which greeted him in New York the other night, comprised of thousands of the best people of the commercial metropolis of the United States, demonstrates that the spirit of hero-worship is not yet extinct. The tendencies of the time are in many respects prosaic, but the disposition to exalt duly those strong men who have wrought great things with great courage and constancy proves that the human heart will always respond to the same causes which set admiration ablaze in ruder ages. The African explorer, Henry M Stanley who, with his bride, will be greeted by an audience representative of all that is best in Ontario social, literary and political life on the 27th November in the Toronto Auditorium, perhaps embodies the heroic spirit in as large measure as any man of the nineteenth century. Neither has this heroism expended its ardor in splendid failures. The courage and endurance of Mr. Stanley have not wasted themselves in merely brilliant feats of travel and adventure. They have solved a great problem and added a new world to the empire of civilization. It means no detraction to the daring pathfinders who explored the Dark Continent before Stanley, and make such a galaxy of brilliant names, to say that they were literally the pioneers preparing the way for one greater than themselves.

Born of obscure stock in Wales, set down as a stripling in New Orleans, where he won his new name from a kind-hearted merchant, knocked about on both sides during the civil war—a journalist detailed to war correspondence, which was done with genuine fighting dash—all this, though not without its romance, belonged to the commonplace. His experience as a war reporter was a good training-school for those larger adventures in which he was to display the essential gifts of a great military genius. Even the successful search for Dr. Livingstone, when he marched to Ujiji in the service of the New York Herald, was not a specially remarkable feat in the annals of African travel, though magnified by its result, and notable as the feat of an inexperienced leader. It was not till after this, and subsequent to his Coomassie campaign, in which he accompanied the victorious force of Gen. Sir Garnet Wolseley in Ashantee land, that Stanley's great qualities were fully displayed.

Next, in 1874, he started from Zanzibar at the head of an admirably equipped caravan, his roving commission from the New York Herald and London Telegraph being to complete as far as possible the discoveries of Dr. Livingstone. Among Livingstone's confidences to Stanley had been the belief that the Lualaba River, which flows northwest from the Chibale hills through Lakes Bangweolo and Moero, and thence north, was the ultimate source of the Nile. The former had explored the noble river for 1,300 miles, as far as Nyangwe in Manyuema—and had there been baited by illness and lack of supplies. To follow this river to the end was Stanley's goal, and, in the teeth of incredible perils and obstacles, he followed the course of the stream for nearly 1,700 miles to the Atlantic Ocean. The explorer had satisfied himself before he had gone far in this stupendous journey that he had found the upper waters of the Congo—not those of the Nile—and that he had made one of the great geographical discoveries of the age. The regions he traversed were a terra incognita, and the people of which for the first time witnessed in him the face of a white man. The darkest secrets of Africa had been brought to light, one of the greatest river highways made accessible to commerce and civilization, and vast regions teeming with natural wealth opened to western enterprise.

The founding of the Congo Free State is a novel and fascinating chapter in the world's politics, and the direct outgrowth of Stanley's great achievement. He himself, under the auspices of King Leopold of Belgium, became the director-general of the operations which laid the foundation for a new civilization. After Stanley had substantially achieved the earlier labor of nation-building, he resigned the responsibilities to others, returning to England for rest in 1885, having been six years on the Congo.

In 1887 Stanley accepted the commission which he so lately accomplished with that energy characteristic of every step in his career so thickly crowded with exploits. This was the relief of Emin Pasha, the last of Gordon's rakeels, or sub-governors, who still exercised authority in Central Africa, and about whom absorbing interest had been aroused in Europe. Stanley went by the Congo route, and his successful return, after the most disquieting rumors as to his fate, was made the occasion for a reception by the civilized world never before given to a traveler. Among other honors he was made D. C. L. by the University of Oxford. Mr. Stanley presents a living personality as fascinating to the imagination as any of the great heroes of romance. No man of his age has embodied greater qualities of leadership or greater loyalty to duty. His courage, endurance, and patience have shown themselves inflexible under all conditions, and he has spared himself never less than he has spared his subordinates in that stream of energy needed to reach the ends he had set for himself. Mr. Stanley, it is understood, will next year resume his administrative work in the Congo Free State.

Miss Dorothy Tennant, who became Mrs. Stanley on July 12, in Westminster Abbey, before one of the most splendid audiences that ever gathered in the historic minster, had, it is understood, been engaged to the great explorer since before the undertaking of his last expedition. Nearly three years of heart-breaking suspense elapsed before her fiance returned to claim the fulfilment of his hopes. The marriage consummated under such circumstances invest the lady with a deep interest tinged with something of romance.

Mrs Stanley is the second daughter of the late Charles Tennant, formerly M. P. for St. Albans, who died in 1873. On the mother's side she is descended from Oliver Cromwell. The young lady received an excellent education at home and evinced a marked predirection for drawing and painting from an early age. She studied art under Le Gras, at the Slade School in London, and afterward under Hebner in Paris. Though passionately devoted to the pursuit of art, she has never followed it as a profession, but has largely cultivated the enjoyment of books and society. Her pictures contributed to the exhibitions of the Royal Academy, the Society of Lady Artists, the Grosvenor and the New Gallery have not failed, however, to attract favorable attention. Her delineation of the nude and her pictures of children have won special liking. Strongly moved by sympathy for the poorer classes, she has made a study of their sufferings and their needs and her name is as well known in connection with philanthropy as it is with the interests of art and society. Many of her pictures have taken ragged street children for subjects.

While a student at Paris she became a great favorite of the French statesman, Gambetta, and she painted a small portrait of him from life.

Mrs. Stanley from childhood has displayed great courage and self control. Many English women have these characteristics, but the bride of Stanley seems to have been noted for them; and when she accompanies him, as she probably will, to the Dark Continent, she will carry to her new life moral and physical endowments well fitted for its trials. Mrs. Stanley will attract not a little of the curiosity and interest centered about the remarkable man whose name and fortunes she now shares. Her character and personality seem to be fully worthy of her mate.

A Smooth Shave.

Somebody in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat tells of a new wrinkle in shaving. "A friend of mine," he says, "a few months ago told me how to shave easily and painlessly and I have never shaved in a barber's shop since. The plan is to use oil or grease instead of soap to prepare the chin and soften the beard. Vaseline is the most convenient and it should be rubbed in quite freely. Then, with a keen razor, shaving can be done quickly and without a suspicion of pain. At first I couldn't reconcile myself to doing without the orthodox lather, and used soap after the vaseline had been applied. But the soap is really unnecessary, and shaving with oil or vaseline is cleaner, as well as pleasanter, and what is more to the point, there is no irritation whatever to the skin."

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES BY THE

DORENWEND

ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments,

THE WORLD'S BEST.

ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliances. The Dorenwend is the only Medical Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT of QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the great curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the NERVOUS and MUSCULAR Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in the kind, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap article, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit, get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. The Dorenwend Electric Belt and Attachment Co., C. H. DORENWEND, Electrician, 103 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada.

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in the Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount carried during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders can fall to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life can only benefit policies and policy claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefiting themselves by creating the rate of interest here, as well as helping to build up our own capital rather than those of foreign states.

The Life of Joe Hess.

The EXAMINER has been favoured with a copy of Joe Hess' upward plunge, de tenebris in lucem—"Out of Darkness into Light." In a neatly printed and neatly bound volume of over 300 pages, Joe Hess tells the history of his eventful life. Before his conversion Hess travelled in nearly all parts of the world, and the story of his travels and the life he led are as thrilling as the pages of fiction. The story of his conversion, nearly five years since, and the narration of his public work since, mark a distinct period in the history of evangelical work and literature. Joe gives a graphic sketch of his life, (his chapter on Peterborough being particularly attractive) and though it has been at times a pretty tough one, but almost every incident is improved by a moral, and perhaps no better warning could be put into the hands of a young man than Joe Hess' life history. The book is finely illustrated. Price $1 00. Mr G. H. Howson is the local agent for the town and county, from whom copies may be procured.

Municipal Matterings.

There is beginning to be some stir in the municipal field. Nearly all the old councillors will offer themselves for re-election. The only one who has yet decided to withdraw is Mr. Adam Hall, the energetic representative of No. Two Ward. Mr Hall has been in the council for three years and has been a faithful servant of the public, particularly in his capacity of Chairman of the Charity Committee. But he has come to the conclusion that he can no longer spare the time necessary to a diligent performance of his aldermanic duties, and has decided so withdraw. This will be a great disappointment to Mr. Hall's many friends. In No. One Ward Mr. Geo. Giroux is the new candidate. In No. Two there will be a lively contest. Two new candidates are Messrs. Geo. Ball, A. V. R. Young and T. E. Badburn. Mr. Ball comes out on the Single Tax platform. Mr. Badburn did not announce his candidature until Mr. Hall had decided to resign. No new candidates have appeared yet in the third ward, but in No. Four Mr. R. M. Donnelson is in the field at the earnest solicitation of a large number of ratepayers. As the date of the election approaches probably more names will be brought forward.

After the Overcoats.

The local military authorities complain that all of the large cape cloaks supplied the volunteers by Government are not returned to the armory when ordered, and are taking steps to prevent the unlawful use or disposition of Government clothing. Some time ago one of these overcoats was taken off the back of a young man on the street. At the police court this morning a Jew named Moses Levin was charged with being a receiver of stolen property. It seems he had in his possession a military overcoat, which he sold to a boy named Thomas Scully for a dollar and a half. Levin keeps the junk shop on Hunter street lately managed by Malinsky. About a month ago Malinsky sold his entire business to Levin Bros for $150, and, according to Levin, the coat was in the shop among the other second-hand material. Capt. Denniston identified the coat as belonging to the government. The magistrate in delivering judgment said the law was very strict with regard to government property, and where stolen articles are found in a man's possession, the onus of showing that he came by it honestly rested on the defendant. In this case, however, it appeared that Levin bought the coat with the stock and could not therefore clear himself; so the defendant was dismissed on paying back the $1 50 received from the boy for the coat, and with a warning to Levin to be very careful in purchasing second-hand goods to know that they were not stolen.

Joe Hess on Prohibition.

A Stirring Time To-night—Joe's Cowboy Experience to be Given—His Prohibition Talk.

To-night the biggest of the series of Joe Hess' meetings will take place in the opera house. The gospel temperance gun on this occasion will be double-barrelled. The Royal Templars celebrate their anniversary, and Mr. Hess will make his farewell address, these events being accompanied by a tea and concert under the same auspices. An elaborate supper of oysters, cold meats, and all sorts of delicacies will be served in the spacious and gayly decorated dining hall at the opera house from 5 to 7.30 o'clock; at eight the concert will begin. It will consist of music, etc. Joe Hess' address on the subject of "Three years in the Saddle," detailing his experience as a cowboy, and an exhibition of club swinging, besides other attractions. Twenty five cents covers the cost of both portions of the entertainment; ten cents for the meeting alone.

The usual large crowd greeted Joe Hess last night. Mr. J. C. Turnbull presided. The choir was a more noticeable feature of the proceedings than formerly. Joe Hess talked on the subject of Prohibition, and gave his reasons why he was an out-and-out prohibitionist. Economy, health, intelligence, progress were results of prohibition of the liquor traffic; but it was mainly on the score of morality that the traffic was objectionable. The speaker held that the saloon was always in its influence; nothing good ever emanated from it or the liquor traffic. Should not the voters, as Christian men and men of understanding, rise in their might and crush out the evil. Prohibition was the only thing that would do it. Local option was like a pair of patched trousers—it looked pretty well, but it was only patchwork, after all. It was said that prohibition was not practicable. Thus the speaker gave emphatic denial, and quoted from the experience of towns and States across the border to prove his assertion that prohibition was not only practicable but successful. Under prohibition we would have very little use for goals and policeman, and the vast legal machinery which is continually operating in dissecting crime. To give an idea of the damage done by the liquor traffic in Ontario, the speaker quoted figures from the annual report of the Inspector of Prisons for Ontario. During last there were 12 531 committals to prison in this province, and 7,692 convictions made. Of these 6608 were males and 1084 females. The prisoners announced themselves as temperate in their habits, 3798; intemperate, 8733. The great majority were drinkers. It was said the Germans were in the country, and the Irishmen next. This was a fallacy. The statistics showed that 6 270 of the prisoners were Canadian born, 2142 were English, 2370 Irish, 644 Scotch, 840 Americans and 265 belonged to other countries. It would also be interesting to see what denominations these prisoners belonged to, for strange as it might be seen they all claimed some religion. Their 4 444 Roman Catholics, 3876 Church of England, 1610 Presbyterians, 1682 Methodists, and 816 of other denominations forcost the Provincial Government the sum of $135 983.93 to maintain these prisoners during the last year. Under prohibition, the speaker asserted, this great expense would be saved, and the number of crimes would vastly decrease. He urged the voters as they loved their homes, their children and their country to blot out the great evil of intemperance, and prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor. It had been shown that the saloon could not be regulated; the only way to avoid the evil was to stamp it out root and branch.

THE MISSION SERVICES.

The Law and Transgression.

The Subject of the Address at St. John's Mission Services—The Afternoon Meeting—A Large Evening Attendance—A Telling Address.

Both congregational and public interest are on the increase in the mission services now in progress at St. John's. At the afternoon service held at 4.15, there was a good attendance yesterday. The subject dealt with was another clause of the Lord's Prayer, "Thy Kingdom Come," a most interesting address being given thereon.

In the evening there was a large congregation. After an abbreviated evening service conducted by the Missioner alone, the address was given.

The Reverend Missioner in beginning reminded his hearers that he had the previous evening spoken of the character of the Lord our Judge—just, holy, impartial and incorruptible — to-night he would go further and speak of His holy law. In the 20th verse of the 3rd chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Romans were found the words —"Through the law cometh the knowledge of sin." On the face of it the knowledge of guilt was undesirable—that is, if we applied this to the knowledge of the sins and wickedness of others, when it became a fruitful source of evil; but a knowledge of our own sinfulness was necessary. We could not know Christ as a personal Saviour without having first come to a knowledge of ourselves as guilty sinners. Without such a knowledge God was only a name,

CHRIST A MERE HISTORICAL CHARACTER,

not a personal Saviour, and the Holy Ghost a merely theological distinction. We could not ascend to a knowledge of God till we descended to a knowledge of ourselves and our own sinfulness. The law was both a revelation of our Father's Word and it is in our hearts to convict us as guilty sinners. The personal knowledge of sin was the first step to the knowledge of Christ and Salvation. Sin was defined as a disobedience of a God of love and a disregard of His commandments. The speaker then went over the Ten Commandments seriatim. In some form or other self was practically the God of many persons, and the casting out of this idol must be done before we could have peace in believing. The command to labour six days forbade laziness and an idle purposeless life. No Sabbath was holy unless your heart came into contact with the great heart of God—the great object of the Sabbath was to keep alive the consciousness of God. The "Word of the Lord" and the "Day of the Lord" rightly obeyed and respected were defined as the bases of the worth of the individual and of the nation. We dishonored our parents when we disregarded their advice and despised their reproof; when we thrust "the old folks" aside and took their places; when we were far from home and send them no letter or token of remembrance. In like manner the speaker deals with impressing their wide application on our every day acts. Especial emphasis was placed on the disregard of the seventh commandment. The same law whose operation brought about the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah by fire, was at work sweeping thousands of men and women who disregarded the law of purity, out of the world and down to the deep damnation of hell. The speaker concluded his review by saying that all this was sin, and applied his remarks by asking his hearers—"What about your heart, is it right?" If those who were living careless lives honestly searched their hearts, they would feel such a terrible sense of their sin, that they would feel like the leper who cried—"Unclean, unclean, unclean!" The arousing of a sense of sin was illustrated by a man walking through beautiful gardens and enjoying their beauty, thought ess of their ownership or his responsibility till he is suddenly arrested by the stern notice, "Trespassers will be prosecuted." Thus sinners wandered contentedly amidst the delights of the world, careless of their responsibility, till the Holy Spirit of God aroused them to a sense of their trespass. The law revealed the righteousness of sin a necessary thing, because the human soul clung to the delusion that it can justify itself—trusting to self instead of Christ. Everyone, even the most moral, had broken the whole law, for the commission of the smallest sin showed that the root of the matter was present in the heart, which only needed development to include all the sins of the decalogue. The law could reveal sin, but could not clear of its guilt. No flesh was justified by the law, which was but a schoolmaster to lead us to Christ. The Gospel of Christ was the only remedy—Christ has redeemed us from the curse of a broken law.

At the close of the regular services an after-meeting was held for inquiry, counsel, advice and intercessory prayer, to which a large number remained.

To-night the service will begin, as usual, at 8 o'clock. The public invited. Free seats and hymn books provided.

Qualifications Before Marriage

Anglina:—"The man I marry must be handsome, brave and clever."

Tompkins:—"Dear me, how fortunate we have met!"

It would be exceedingly fortunate for some men, we think, if they carried a time before annexing themselves to some of Eve's fair daughters. Some women demand certain qualifications in men; why should not men have the same privilege?

It has been affirmed that one young man a short time ago said, that the girl he would marry, must be loving, generous, industrious and economical, and able to use Diamond Dyes.

The young man who thus spoke was in a good position, and able to marry, but did not require for a wife any of the handsome butterflies, who were lazy, listless and useless. He wanted a happy, comfortable home without useless extravagance and felt sure that a girl who could use Diamond Dyes would fill the bill in every particular.

This young man's mother had used Diamond Dyes in her happy home, and he was fully aware of the great benefits they had conferred. Young ladies it will undoubtedly be an advantage to you to learn the use of Diamond Dyes and Diamond Paints, and if some young man makes this point a "sine qui non," you will be ready for him.

Fowler's Corners.

From a Correspondent.

WEDDING BELLS.—On Wednesday, 19th inst., a most interesting event took place at the residence of Mr. John McCarrell, Fowler's Corners, it being the marriage of his youngest daughter, Miss Martha McCarrell, to Mr. Thomas Guthrie, of Emily. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Johnston. The bride, who was charmingly dressed, was supported by Miss Ettie Copeland, of Manitoba, and the bridegroom was attended by Mr. George Guthrie, brother of the groom. After a sumptuous repast the numerous guests enjoyed the evening sports very much, music being furnished by the Williamson Bros., of North Monaghan. The young couple left on the morning train by the C. P. R. for Toronto, where they intend spending their honeymoon, carrying with them the best wishes of their many friends. The presents consisted of a handsome silver watch by the groom; bridesmaid, cake stand; groomsman, Bible; mother of the bride, silver cruet; father of the bride, half dozen silver knives; Mr. and Mrs. J. Shearer Cheese Factory.

The annual fall meeting of the patrons of Shearer cheese factory was held in the factory on Tuesday, 25th when the business of the season was wound up. The factory, under the able management of Mr. Thompson, cheese maker, has had a very successful season as the following figures will show. The amount of milk delivered at the factory during the season was 1,928,926 lbs., or 642,986 standards, from which were made 181 410 lbs. of cheese, being an average of 10 63 lbs. milk for one lb. cheese. The amount received from sales of cheese is $16 652.72, being an average of 9 18-100 cts. per lb. The amount of interest received on this sum is $97.15, and the value of the whey, at 40c per standard, is $257.18 making the total aggregate value of the business done during the season $17 007 05. The greatest amount of milk received during any one month was in July, viz., 328,406 pounds, and the greatest amount from any one patron 23 065 lbs., and the average amount sent by the 81 patrons 23,813 lbs. each.

A MOST REMARKABLE BOAT.

The Major Tells of a Vessel on Which Its Passengers Could Live Under Water.

The Major had been telling of a wonderful vessel manufactured by two young Confederate naval officers. This vessel had been made of the hide of a big fish somewhat resembling a monster whale. The hide was about an inch thick, and so tough that after the meat of the fish had been rotted and dug out, and the hide had been well dried and seasoned, it had retained the shape of the fish. It was peculiarly like that of a modern ocean racer, with a sharp nose and a very narrow, long, thin body. The tail of the fish had been removed and the stern of the boat was like that of an ordinary vessel. The broad boneless tail was used as a rudder. The Major had told of how the shovel-like fins of the fish had been left on its sides and how they propelled the boat through the agency of electricity, and he had also explained how arms and ammunition had been imported from England in the hold of the boat. But he had never explained how the navigators lived through the three and a half days it took them to make the passage to England under the Atlantic.

"You know, Doctor," he said, "that water is made up of H_2O, two parts of hydrogen to one part of oxygen, and you are aware of the fact that the fluid can be changed to the gases. You know also, sir, that fish have lungs, and that their lungs separate the fluid into air on which to live. The lungs of this wonderful fish, captured by my friends, were most powerful, and after death, having been well preserved, and electricity in some manner, of which they alone had the secret, having supplied the fire of life, continued the work that had been suspended for a while by death. The lungs, sirs, pumped the water into themselves, separated the oxygen from the hydrogen, puffed the hydrogen back into the ocean and pumped the pure oxygen into a compartment, into which, as oxygen burns one up in a very short time, my friends introduced at the commencement of each voyage a certain number of small animals. After these animals had breathed sufficient carbonic dioxide into the compartment, the healthy gases were introduced into another compartment, in which my friends lived and had their being in comfort, an exhaust pipe carrying off the air after we had breathed it."

The Original Three-card Monte Man.

I found a man in my rounds yesterday who was well acquainted with "Canada Bill," the original three-card monte man, now dead.

"The three-cards monte game," he said, "was first worked by 'Canada Bill' in 1869. Bill was a Canadian, as his name indicated, and he was as stupid a looking man as one could easily find. Bill worked his game on the train usually, passing himself off as a cattleman from Texas. In 1873, after making a vast sum of money at his trick, 'Canada Bill' conceived the idea of organizing all the men inclined to be 'crooked' in the various points about which he plied his cation. He called it, as all men of his vocalling now do, 'squaring the head,' that is 'fixing the head officials of a town if possible, establishing a fence, having a 'fixed' lawyer, and ready 'straw bail property holders.' At one time he had working for him 1,000 men on the trains and in various towns and cities."—From the Kansas City Times.

FAR TOO LONG.

The list of Building Lots, Houses and Lots, and desirable business corners which I have for sale, to Rent or Exchange, situated in all parts of the Town and Ashburnham, is by far too long for my advertising space, and so long as I continue to supply my patrons with all kinds of properties on such favourable terms and at such short and small prices, I cannot afford to occupy long spaces, and must ask all who want to make money or secure cheap homes to call at my office, where they cannot fail to be suited in every respect.

$1000 OR LESS.

Invested in properties with me at present, I am confident I can return within a year with a profit of from 25 to 75 per cent., and can you have any better security than real estate? And again, I do not ask you to take my word that such will and can be done; but call and I will show it to you so clearly that you cannot fail to see it your-self. Now choose between 3 to 6 per cent., or 25 to 75 per cent., in a perfectly honest and honourable business transaction.

PARNELL STILL LEADER.

THE NATIONALIST CAUCUS ADJOURNED.

O'Brien on the Situation—The Welsh Home Rulers Support Gladstone—Parnell's Paper on Present Aspect of Affairs.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Though last night Mr. Parnell refused to call a meeting of the Irish members of the House of Commons a meeting was held in the House to-day. Thirty-eight Parnellite members signed the request for the meeting, complaining that they were not informed of all facts in connection with Mr. Gladstone's attitude towards Parnell, as set forth in his letter to Mr. Morley, when they voted yesterday to retain Mr. Parnell in the leadership of the Irish party. The action of Mr. McCarthy in not making known the contents of Mr. Gladstone's letter at the meeting of the Parnellites yesterday morning was severely criticised. A majority of the Nationalist members present at the meeting last night said they had believed previous to the meeting in the morning that Mr. Parnell after his re-election would not take an active part in politics for a few months. They now believe if Mr. Gladstone's letter had been read at the morning meeting the result of the motion to retain Parnell in the leadership would have been different. The room was carefully guarded from intrusion, a member of Parliament standing guard. Mr. Parnell was present and presided. After calling the meeting to order Parnell explained that he had reconsidered his determination and he had called the meeting at the request of the members of the party. The meeting lasted half an hour, Parnell's speech gave no indication that he intended to alter his decision to retain the leadership

Strange Scenes in the Lobby.

In the lobby of the House of Commons to-day nothing was being talked about but Mr. Parnell. The scene in the lobby was extraordinary. Excited groups of Liberal members were besieged by priests, reporters and personal friends seeking for information. In an interview Mr. Labouchère said that it would certainly prevent the Liberals' victory at the next election, adding: "We should have won with home rule, but we cannot win with home rule and adultery both."

At the Nationalist meeting Messrs. Harry and Commins were the first speakers to urge Parnell to retire. Mr. McCarthy followed with an eloquent and impassioned appeal in behalf of Parnell, upon whose sacrifices for the Irish cause he laid the greatest stress. But Gladstone's letter to Morley had materially changed the situation, and McCarthy's appeal failed of its desired effect. Mr. Sexton spoke 40 minutes. Mr. Lane appealed to Parnell to think of the Irish tenants who were waiting anxiously for a change of Government to improve their position. At the 5 o'clock meeting Mr. Sheedy adopted the same line as Mr. Lane and asked Parnell to reconsider his position if it were only for the sake of the evicted tenants in Tipperary, who were waiting for the restoration of their homes. All the speakers dilated eloquently upon Parnell's past services.

John O'Connor spoke strongly in favor of Parnell's retaining the leadership. Several members objected to postponing the decision until Monday, but a majority favored a postponement.

It is stated that at the mid-day meeting of the Parnellites at least 50 favored retaining Parnell as leader. Several others, however, had written their resignations and were ready to present them in the event of a decision that Parnell should remain. In the latter case a meeting of the Liberals was to be called to express confidence in Gladstone and to appeal to him to continue as leader of the latter.

A Caucus of the Entire Party

The meeting adjourned after nearly three hours of speechmaking in order to obtain the views of the absent members of the party. A careful enquiry brings out the fact that little doubt exists as to the upshot of the matter. When the party reassembles Monday it is probable Parnell will again be urged to retire by a section of his supporters, but already a reaction in his favor has set in, and if a vote is taken it is expected a large majority will be found on his side.

To-day's events have not relieved the tension, but rather have accentuated the complications of the situation. Mr. Gladstone's letter produced a strong impression upon the Nationalists last evening, and from the indications given at the hastily-summoned meeting it seemed that there was every reason to believe that to-day would bring about new developments which would lead to an amicable arrangement of the trouble. But although the conferences held to-day prove that great divergence of opinion exists they show that Parnell is firmly resolved to adhere to his decision, and that unless a vote of no confidence is passed by his followers he will not abdicate the leadership. To-day after a long and earnest discussion of the situation, in which the most candid and outspoken opinions were given, Parnell positively gained a victory. The members, however, who advocated his retention, deprecated the idea of a final decision until the opinion of the entire party shall have been recorded.

Salisbury's Undignified Joke

Lord Salisbury, in a speech in the House of Lords Tuesday, said the Parnellites had various modes of escaping, some preferring water and others fire escapes. The Chronicle (Tory) describes this gibe as vulgar and undignified, and adds: "Lord Salisbury might have remembered that he was addressing a chamber where six unchallenged such patterns of virtue as Marlborough, St. Leonards and Aylesbury."

At a meeting of the Vigilance Society tonight Mr. Stead made a speech in denunciation of Parnell. He met with a most boisterous reception, shouts of "sensational" and hisses and hoots mingling with the cheers of the anti Parnellites. The cheers predominated, but at the close of the meeting a large section of the audience cheered vigorously for Parnell.

Gladstone's Attitude Endorsed.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Executive Committee of the Liberal Federation at its meeting adopted a resolution expressing its complete satisfaction with Mr. Gladstone's attitude toward the question of the Irish leadership and assuring him of its hearty confidence.

The Liberal Federation Committee is receiving from the provincial Liberal associations shoals of letters and telegrams protesting against Parnell's remaining at the head of the Nationalist party. Many of the Nationalist members of parliament are greatly [illegible] at Parnell's ungracious [illegible] Gladstone. It is believed a final decision in the matter of the leadership will be made to-morrow, when it is expected replies will be received to the despatches sent to the Irish delegates in America asking their opinions on the subject. A rumor is current to-night that Parnell intends to issue a manifesto to the Irish people explaining and justifying his position. The feeling against Parnell among Irish members is increasing.

Will Support Gladstone.

The Welsh members of the party had a meeting to-day and resolved that they were convinced that the price of retaining Parnell in the leadership would be the postponement of Home Rule beyond the span of Mr. Gladstone's public life and that they are more determined than ever to rally to the support of Mr. Gladstone.

A Home Rule Criticism.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—The Freeman's Journal says: Mr. Gladstone, in his letter to Mr. Morley in regard to Mr. Parnell's position, assumes that the Irish party is a portion of the Liberal party, and that the latter party is qualified to depose the Irish leader or veto his acts. The principle of independent opposition would be isolated and broken down if this power of veto is admitted. We must never forget that Gladstone came to Parnell, and that Parnell did not go to Gladstone. It took many years of independent opposition from Parnell and the Parnellites to convert Gladstone and his party to Home Rule. How can the Liberals return to power or retain it when they get there without the Irish vote? If Parnell remained the head of a loyal and homogeneous party numbering 85 members he could compel Gladstone or any other Liberal leader to submit to the Irish party.

Deserting Him One by One.

United Ireland says: "The decision of Mr. Gladstone and other most faithful friends of the cause of Home Rule alters the situation. It is useless for us to shut our eyes to the fact that their defection will indefinitely prolong the reign of coercion in Ireland and postpone the triumph of the Home Rule movement. Only fidelity to Ireland over rides fidelity to Parnell." After paying a tribute to Parnell's services to the cause the paper expresses great regret at the absence in America of Dillon and O'Brien, whose opinion, it says, would have much weight.

William O'Brien Forsakes His Chief.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—A reporter called on William O'Brien to-night and presented a cablegram stating that the assembled Nationalists in London were expecting to hear from the delegates in America before the meeting adjourned. Mr. O'Brien said the subject was a delicate one, and he did not care to express himself further than what was contained in the following despatch, which he sent this afternoon to his friends on the other side

"In view of our obligations to Mr. Gladstone, the interest of our cause and the responsibilities we have contracted to the Irish tenantry on the faith of a general election fought in cordial alliance with the Liberal party, I would earnestly recommend the party to open immediate friendly communications with Mr. Gladstone." Mr. O'Brien added that he had wired Mr. Dillon the substance of the foregoing message.

The League in West Clare

KILDYSART, Nov. 26.—If Parnell retires from the leadership of the Irish party the branches of the National League in West Clare will dissolve. All the leaders declare that Parnell having received such marks of sympathy should remain at the head of the Nationalist party, notwithstanding the Gladstone letter.

French Opinions

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The Temps says Parnell is bitterly expiating his offence, but he will doubtless prefer to suffer a purely personal expiation rather than condemn Ireland to an unhappy defeat.

La France considers Gladstone's letter to Morley equivalent to a treaty of peace between the ex-Premier and Lord Salisbury.

MRS. BIRCHALL SAILS.

Did a Little Shopping in New York, But Is Still Far From Having Recovered.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Accompanied by her sister, Mrs. West-Jones, the widow of Reginald Birchall reached New York yesterday from Canada, en route for England. Although somewhat wearied by the long journey from Woodstock she devoted part of the afternoon to shopping and the remainder to rest, declining to see any one who called at her hotel, the Windsor. After a late dinner she and her sister went in a carriage to the White Star dock and were at once secluded in a stateroom of the Majestic which sailed early this morning.

Mrs. Birchall has scarcely begun to recover from the terrible strain to which her health was subjected for months by the position of her husband, but her friends express the belief that the ocean voyage will greatly assist her toward recovery.

Lawyer McKay accompanied the party in accordance with a promise made to Birchall before he was hanged that he would take charge of the widow after the execution and would see her off when she was leaving for England.

Both Mrs. Birchall and Mrs. West-Jones were dressed in deep mourning and wore veils and heavy black fur boas.

Aboard the Majestic last evening as the passengers arrived who are to sail upon her there was much curiosity to see Mrs. Birchall. In order to avoid the gaze of the curious as far as possible she kept to her stateroom during the greater part of the evening, only coming into the saloon to see if there were any letters or telegrams for her.

When seen by a reporter aboard the Majestic last evening Mrs. Birchall declined to say what her future plans were. Lawyer McKay said she had suffered severely from the publicity attending the trial and execution and would say nothing about the murder. Mrs. West-Jones was equally reticent. The two ladies occupy the same stateroom, forward on the saloon deck. Upon arriving in England they will go direct to the home of their father, David Stephenson, in the neighborhood of the Crystal Palace. Mr. McKay will return to Woodstock to-day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Margaret Mather is the defendant in another lawsuit. Miss Craigen, her leading lady, wants $4380 damages for breach of contract. The plaintiff says she was engaged by D. C. Willoughby for Mather at $100 per week at the beginning of the season. Afterwards Mather insisted that she never paid her leading lady over $65 per week, but she would give Miss Craigen $75. This the latter would not accept. Mather thereupon took immediate advantage of the two-week clause in the contract. The papers were served to-day.

Many Miners Killed by a Colliery Explosion—Further Damage by Storm and Flood in Germany and Holland.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—In the House of Commons to-day leave was granted Mr. Gladstone to introduce his bill removing the disability preventing Catholics from becoming Lord Chancellor of England or Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The German Floods.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The medicinal springs at Carlsbad were damaged by the floods, but the damage through the destruction of property in the town is estimated at 500,000 florins. The lower portion of Rostock on the Warnow is submerged. At Lubec the waters are subsiding. At Bodkosen the bridge over the Saale and a number of houses in the vicinity were carried away. At Jena 15 houses fell and some of the occupants were killed. The railway bridge at Schwartz has been destroyed.

Immense damage has been done by floods throughout Holland. A large number of bridges and many dykes have been destroyed. The island of Warken in the Zuyder Zee is inundated.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—In a gale off Ofoten, Norway, 40 boats of a fishing fleet were sunk and 120 damaged. Twenty-eight fishermen lost their lives.

The vessel which sunk the Sudbourn was the British ship Mongalore. All the Sudbourn crew were saved.

Mrs. Yates Discharged.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Maude Yates was discharged upon her own recognizance today. She is the daughter-in-law of the well-known novelist Edmund Yates, who several months ago secured her arrest for forgery, because she filled in a blank check sent her by her father-in-law's secretary for £100. The check, signed in blank, was one in payment of an annuity, and the secretary neglected to fill in the amount. Objection to a public trial on the part of the prosecuting witness led to the discharge.

Lady Rosebery's Funeral.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The interment of the body of Lady Rosebery took place to-day in the parish of Willesden, county of Middlesex. Many of the foreign ambassadors and all the Ministers attended the funeral. The Queen and the Prince of Wales were represented. Two hundred carriages and an immense throng of people on foot followed the remains to the place of interment.

Catholic Italian Political Party.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A Rome correspondent states that the Catholic leaders have induced the Pope to permit the foundation of a Catholic party in the Italian Parliament. He says these leaders are preparing a program for the next elections. Their idea is that the party will become strong enough to overrule all others and secure to the Pope temporal sovereignty, but without otherwise disturbing the present regime.

The German Budget.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The German budget for the coming fiscal year makes the revenue and expenditures balance at 1,130,645,885 marks. The expenditures are divided into permanent expenditures 941,135,061 marks, non-recurring ordinary 80,730,472, non-recurring extraordinary 108,780,352. There will soon be in the treasury 140,242,500 marks.

A Socialist's Objection.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 26.—Parliament to-day passed resolutions expressing condolence with Queen Emma in the loss of her husband. Mynheer Nieuwenhuis, a Socialist member, protested against portions of the resolutions in which the deceased King was referred to in terms of praise, and refused to vote.

867 Barrels of Gold.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Two hundred and sixty-seven barrels of gold, worth altogether thirty million marks (£6,500,000), passed through Konigsberg from St. Petersburg on the way to London. The money was packed in three cars, and was attended by a military escort.

Not the Man.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—A man resembling Padlewski, the suspected murderer of Gen. Sailzewskoff, was arrested here to-day. He said his name was Dombrowsky, but he admitted he knew Padlewski. The prisoner was subjected to a judicial examination, but the police failed to identify him as Padlewski.

A Britisher Expelled.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The prefect of the Department of the North has expelled a British tradesman named Black for attacking the teachers of the lay schools in that department in the Echo du Peuple.

The Influenza Spreading.

BUDA PESTH, Nov. 26.—The influenza is spreading rapidly, 3000 cases having been reported. The disease has a distinctly typhoid character. Thus far few cases have resulted fatally.

A Special Jury for Dillon et al.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—The crown has obtained a special jury for the next Assizes to try the cases of Messrs. Dillon, O'Brien, Gill, Keating and others.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Prof. Koch has taken action to prevent extortionate charges being made for treatment of patients by his method.

France is Jealous.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The French officials on the frontier here refused to admit the lymphs sent by Prof. Koch to Prof. Pasteur.

Eight Miners Killed.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An explosion occurred in a colliery near Bolton to-day. Eight miners were killed.

Cable Flashes.

Gen. Booth's fund now amounts to £60,000. Two checks for £1000 each and one for £500 were received yesterday.

The men who were arrested at Lombowitz on the Austrian frontier yesterday on suspicion of being the murderers of the two bank clerks found last Thursday in the cars of the Vienna mail train when it arrived at Kutno confessed they had committed the murders.

A Peculiar Fatality.

The boy paid no attention to the injury, since the foot was not cut and he did not experience any pain till night. Next day he was confined to his home, and yesterday he died.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Day, the Welland Murderer, Must Hang.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Two meetings were held in the city last night in the interest of Dr. Johnston's scheme for the evangelization of Central Africa. Outlining his proposed undertaking he said that his object in enlisting the services of a number of colored evangelists was to get more successfully at the hearts of the natives.

Before the Queen's Bench Divisional Court the case reserved for the court as to the receiving of certain evidence in the case of Arthur H. Day, found guilty of murdering his wife by pushing her over the bank of the Niagara River, was heard. Day was tried before Mr. Justice Rose and sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 19. The court decided against the prisoner on all points, and he will have to hang.

The Queen's Bench Divisional Court heard argument in another crown case in Reg. v. Henry Ray on points reserved by Mr. Justice Rose at the trial, which took place at Hamilton in September last. Ray was accused of bigamy and found guilty, subject to the decision of the full court. At the trial no one who was present at the first marriage was called to prove it, nor was any documentary evidence adduced, but circumstantial evidence and admissions of the prisoner were received and given to the jury. The evidence of the second wife was also received. The questions reserved for the court were 1st. Was the evidence offered and received to prove the first marriage competent evidence? 2d. Was the evidence of the second wife properly received? The court reserved judgment.

THE MEANEST OF ALL THIEVES.

Accused of Robbing a Dying Woman While He Prayed for Her.

KINGSTON, Nov. 26.—James Shannessy is in custody charged with stealing a watch and $25 from Ann Hughes, who died Friday. The accused prayed with Mrs. Hughes during her dying hours and read the Scriptures to her, and is accused of robbing her while at his devotions. The watch was recovered at a jewelry store, where it had been left for repairs by the prisoner, who says it was given him by the woman as a keepsake.

Crushed under 30 Ton of Iron.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Samuel McDowell, aged 35, was engaged with others this afternoon on the grounds of the Imperial Oil Company in raising a huge iron condenser weighing over 30 tons by means of jacks. He went underneath to arrange something when the props at one end of the immense mass gave way. The head of the unfortunate man was caught between a block of wood and the iron, crushing his skull to a jelly and killing him instantly. He leaves a widow and five children.

A Turkey's Poisoned Craw.

ORILLIA, Nov. 26.—Dr. Shaw's housekeeper was about to be married and for "the wedding feast" the Doctor purchased a turkey. In preparing the turkey the cook's suspicions were aroused and she showed the intestines to Dr. Shaw. United After Five Years.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 26.—Fred W. Sale, aged 15, ran away from his home in Woodstock five years ago, and has been living in this vicinity since under the name of Wood, never communicating with his parents. A few days ago he was converted at the revival services here, and wrote to his mother with the result that his brother came up here and the long-lost son returned home.

A Queer Wedding.

WINDSOR, Nov. 26.—Windsor is a great place for marriages, and many ministers make from $400 to $500 a year over their stipends. But they have some queer cases and one occurred Friday at the residence of Rev. Mr. Learoyd. When he came to tie the nuptial knot he found that neither the groom nor the bride could speak English, neither could they speak to each other, as one could only understand German and the other one could only speak French. Interpreters were called in, the ceremony performed, but the divine is still wondering how the courtship was conducted.

A Naughty Preacher.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 26.—Maria McGuire, wife of Rev. Hugh McGuire, rector of Christ Episcopal Church in this city, has brought an action for a separation from her husband on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment. Russia and Germany.

The troika which the czar presented to Emperor William on their recent meeting in Narva attracts great notice and is highly admired in Berlin. To manage the team a native driver was sent along with it, a stalwart Slav of great muscular power and manly beauty. His constant companion is one of the court drivers of the German emperor. The two, wa king through the streets of Berlin, talk to each other, each in his native tongue, which the other does not understand. Whenever the Russian meets a countryman he stops him unceremoniously and asks him to be the interpreter. Emperor William speaks to the driver in Russian. When the Berliners see their monarch in the Russian vehicle they say: "That's the right kind of turnout for the man who holds the reins of the triple alliance." But they forget, says a Russian paper, that the reins of that turnout are in the hands of a stalwart Slave.

It is a Mistake

To try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood reaches every part of the system expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

TURNBULL'S

KID GLOVES! KID GLOVES!

Owing to the McKinley Bill, which took effect on the 1st October in the United States, all the Kid Gloves that European manufacturers could make were shipped there before that date, to avoid the advance in duty. This being the case, the large orders we placed with French and Austrian manufacturers' agents several months ago were not filled until now; but they have come at last and open out beautifully. We have two ranges, plain and fancy backs, at $1.00 and $1.25, in Blacks, Greens, Blues, Mahogany, Tan, Brown and Terra Cotta; some very scarce shades. Every pair is warranted to us, and we also do so to our customers.

Remember the Scotch Tweed Dress Goods, the same price as Meltons. They wear and wash better, and are much heavier.

We have quantities of desirable goods in Mantle Cloths now on display. It has become a household word that TURNBULL'S is the right house for Ladies' and Children's Mantles. Every Mantle turned out guaranteed a perfect fit.

Although early in the season our Tweeds and Suitings have gone out so rapidly that it has left us with a lot of remnants suitable for Pants and Boys' Clothing, which we have marked down to remnant prices and put out on our counters. They are desirable goods, and worth remembering.

Opened out this week a job line of Dress Goods, 12½c. yd.; also a fresh lot of Flannelettes at 8c.

We claim to have the best line 5c. Grey Cotton in the country. All other Cottons proportionate value.

THE MISSION SERVICES.

The Consequences of Sin.

Wednesday Night's Services—Again a Large Congregation—Excellent Address of the Missioner—A Large After Meeting.

Continued interest is manifested in the mission services in St. John's. At the afternoon meeting there was a good attendance to listen to a most interesting address on this petition of the Lord's Prayer—"Thy will be done," which will be followed this afternoon by remarks upon "Our Daily Bread."

In the evening there was a large congregation. The service, consisting of a portion of the Litany, was conducted by the Rector.

The preacher took for his text Isaiah, chap. LIX, v 2:—

"But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid His face from you."

Last night, the speaker said, we had spoken of the knowledge of sin and only those who felt that they were sinners felt their need of a Saviour. To-night he asked them to go a step further, and consider the consequences of sin. Few men the speaker believed, steered a straight course to a hell of misery. They merely rested on their oars drifting with the current of sin, not realizing their danger till they were on the BRINK OF A SPIRITUAL NIAGARA.

All sin was committed under some sort of delusion—it will give me so much pleasure, and it is only a little matter—nobody will know it, or take notice of such a trifling matter—and is it anybody's business if it should be found out? Reference was made to the latent scepticism in the church. Let such persons doubt all, but let them not doubt that sin and its power, and sin and its consequences are a fact, the result of the operation of the law of cause and effect. Sorrow and mourning and death are linked to sin, because sin separated us from God—the only source of light and love. If you loved what God hated you and God could not be friends. You might do some good deeds, but so long as you had any pleasure in any sin you were separated from God. Was there any communion between you and God? Could you look up to God as forgiven and accepted, or when you looked up was all a blank? You might be young, but you know there is something out of tune, that you have not accepted the Saviour's invitation, "Come unto Me;" that you are separated from God. As we grew older the separation was wider, the clouds darker, and things only became worse till eternity loomed up as everlasting darkness, and we became so hardened in sin that there was no desire for communion with God. But Jesus was merciful; Jesus could save. Yet there came a time when it was too late to mend. The preacher drew an affecting parable of the woodman felling a great tree. Though called on, he would not spare it, and blow after blow came till it fell and lay as it fell, and when we stood firm in our sin and the mandate came, "cut it down, why cumbereth it the ground," every unrepentant day was like the blow of the woodman's axe, and when the axe cut through the centre of our heart it was TOO LATE TO MEND.

When Christ's "come" was changed into "depart," it was to late. No power in heaven or earth could change our condition then. There was a limit to God's mercy. Even the pitying Saviour could say, "And these shall go away, not only now, but forever, so long as God is God and sin is sin." It was not sin, but the love of sin that separated us from God, who hated the sin but loved the sinner. The speaker urged his hearers to return to God, to think of the peace and joy they were losing—the peace of forgiveness—to think of what they would lose in the world to come—God, Himself, the great-st loss—no Heavenly Father no loving Saviour—no interceding Spirit. Some might say they did their best—they lived up to the light they had. The preacher said if they acted up to the light they had they would come to Christ and be saved. A powerful appeal was made to the impenitent. It was asked if they had not wasted enough years, had they not wandered far enough from God. They were reminded of the anxiety of God for their salvation—"As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked," and he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth. It was our sin unrepented of and unforgiven that separated us from God.

After the singing of a hymn the preacher gave a typical case, taken from Holy Scripture, of how the great majority of sinners came to God. They, like the prodigal son, "came to themselves," then the decision came, "I will arise and go unto my father." They feel themselves unworthy, they confess their sins, repent and are forgiven and have peace.

The after meeting was much more largely attended than on the previous evening. After a season of intercessory prayer for the divine blessing on the Word that had been spoken, the Miss oner read a large number of requests for prayer and afterwards dealt with individual cases needing special advice.

The subject for this evening's address was announced as "The Door of Life." The public are cordially invited, and will be provided with seats and hymn books.

Women and Superstition.

Many housewives mark their loaves of bread with a cross before putting them in the oven. One explanation given for this custom is that "it prevents the bread turning out heavy." Some, again maintain that the sign of the cross "keeps the bread from growing mouldy."

We find that even in this glorious land of freedom, liberty and education, there exists superstition in various forms. It is with regret and pain that we assert, that women are as a rule more superstitious than men. There are reasons why this is so; but no reason can be given why it should continue to remain so. Probably the strongest reason that can be given why woman is more superstitious than man, is, because her mind is more easily impressed than man's, and when once impressed with a belief, it is difficult to eradicate it; this belief is often transmitted to her children.

It is for this reason—this false reasoning which partakes of the superstitious, that many women go on through life suffering greatly but silently from some ailment or disease, and vainly trying to cure themselves with some of the old fashioned remedies used by grandmothers, and long ago declared by medical authorities to be useless and often dangerous.

"It is undeniable fact," says a well known lady writer on habits of women and household economy, "that thousands of women in Canada are continually in a state of mental excitement and worry from household cares; some who are devotees of fashion, and society leaders, are exercising brains and nerves to such a degree, that they bring illness upon themselves in various forms: sometimes insomnia and irritability; sometimes nervous excitement and hysteria, and thus their existence is made miserable to themselves and all around them." We know that many of these women resort to such drugs as opium chloral and cocaine for relief, others following superstition will use old fashioned drugs and pills.

Women of our country! there are thousands of your sisters who have suffered equally as much as you have, and have been released from the bondage of disease by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. It is the remedy par excellence for you sex under all circumstances. Paine's Celery Compound gives you new life, vivacity, and fresh faces in exchange for your present condition of looking worn out, old, languid and tired of life. Use it for yourselves and daughters and the world will delight itself more in you.

If suffering from catarrh do not be discouraged because other remedies have failed. Nasal Balm gives speedy relief and is a certain cure. Try it. Sold by all dealers. sod116

Novelties in Christmas Gifts.

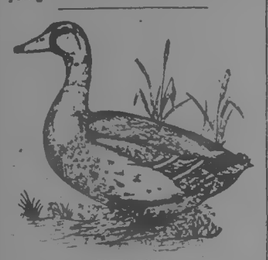
The newest work for Christmas gifts combines tinted kid and chamois with velvet for writing and toilet cases. Delicate stone tints of chamois and plush kid have sketchy flowers and figures painted for the tops of these cases, the rest being rich colored velvet. Men's shaving cases, and long cases for neckties and fine braces, are made in this way. Excellent presents are blankets of the rough silk crash, embroidered in brilliant colors with cross stitch. This crash, it will be remembered, is entirely of waste silk, exactly like coarse Russian crash, only twenty cents a yard. But as it is pure silk it forms very warm, light coverings for rheumatic persons or for the extra blanket one needs to be provided with in boarding houses. The crash is joined by stripes of embroidery in Russian styles, and one thickness is as warm as a pair of common blankets. It also makes good, big coverlets for children's and men's rooms. The crash washes like linen, and if washing silks are used for the work the result is handsome and lasting.

Sleep and Beauty.

Patti and Lucca, and all the great singers and actresses and famous beauties who, like Mme. Recamier, were wondrously beautiful at an age when ordinary women retire from the festive scenes of the beau monde, understood the value of this great restorer, and owned their well-preserved beauty to sleep. An unusually handsome St. Louis woman, who has at the age of almost fifty years the fine well-rounded figure and elastic step and carriage of a girl, the delicate, rose-hued skin and the brilliancy of youth in her eyes, says that she has made it a rule to retire at 9 o'clock, except on very rare occasions, and then she takes a nap in the afternoon to prevent the ill effects of the late hours which are to follow. Our American women of all classes need more than any other people in the world the rest and refreshment which only sleep can give to overwrought nerves and overworked systems, for nowhere else do the women live under so much physical and mental strain.

What to Do in Faints.

A young woman fainted away in a police court the other day, and the policemen, to revive her, poured a bucketful of water, more or less, upon her face. This was well meant and it was effective, but it was also cruel and unnecessary. The only really necessary thing to do for a fainting person is to place him or her flat upon the back, with the head on a level with the rest of the body or a little lower. The fainting is caused by the recession of blood from the brain, and this position by facilitating its return restores consciousness. Unless the clothing if unduly close about the neck or waist there is no need of loosening it. Cold water dashed in the face restores consciousness by suddenly shocking the system. But it's an exceedingly unpleasant performance for the person who faints, and it isn't half so speedy, which is a consideration when a lot of men suddenly find among them a fainting young woman to be cared for.



ROUEN DUCK.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

What is a Day's Labour?

One day's work for a healthy liver is to secrete three and a half pounds of bile. If the bile secretion be deficient, constipation ensues; if profuse, billiousness and jaundice arise. Burdock Blood Bitters is the most perfect liver regulator known in medicine for preventing and curing all liver troubles. 2w42d

Imperial Federation

Will present an opportunity to extend the fame of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the unfailing remedy for cholera, cholera morbus, colic, cramps, diarrhœa, dysentery, and all summer complaints, to every part of the Empire. Wild Strawberry never fails. 2w42d

Timely Wisdom.

Great and timely wisdom is shown by keeping Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. It has no equal for cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery, colic, cramps, and all summer complaints, or looseness of the bowels. 2w42d

Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! what an unatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists. dw

There must be some great merit in Scott's preparations. His Ovoronized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil has taken the first place as a cure for consumption and kindred diseases. Every druggist sells it, and no householder should be without it. The remedy is reliable and invaluable. w47ws

Purify your blood. The importance of having pure blood in order to perfect condition is generally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or we drink. There is nothing exclusively positive proven than the power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

SUNDRY AIDS TO CONVERT THE FORMER INTO THE LATTER.

Winter Fruit Canning and Preserving not an Impossibility—Mary W. Early Writes an Article Which is Better Late than Never—Household Notes.

Sometimes a housekeeper is prevented from canning and preserving in summer by sickness, the pressure of company, or some other circumstance; in this case she may do a little canning and a good deal of preserving in the late autumn, or even in the winter. Some readers may exclaim, "How is this possible except in tropical countries, where you can command fresh fruits all the year round?" Well, it is not only possible but entirely practicable.

Apples may be canned in the late autumn, or even in the winter, and the housekeeper will find few of her stores more palatable and serviceable than canned apples. Among your apples you doubtless have some which are not good keeping fruit and which rot before spring. Select these for immediate cooking and eating, and for canning. Even among the best keeping apples you will find some that are cut, or bruised or specked, and these you should pick out for canning. It is well to inspect your stock of apples weekly during the late autumn and winter, that you may promptly separate from the rest and utilize such as show indications of not keeping long.

There are two ways to can apples. You may prepare them as for apple float—peeling, coring, cutting up, and stewing them down fine. In this form they make a nice dessert in the spring with the addition of white sugar, the frothed whites of a couple of eggs, and a little cream poured over them, or they are very nice for pies. The other way is much quicker and easier. Cut them cross-wise, without peeling, as if for frying; put them in a kettle, cover them with hot water, let them come to a brisk boil, and can them. Three requisites are essential to successful canning: Have the fruit boiling hot when you are to can it; fill the vessel brimful, and seal it up so as to make it perfectly air tight, taking special pains to have the rim of the tin can bone dry, as any moisture here will cause the cement to drop off. In March or April, when your stock of winter apples will have given out, you will be glad that you have some canned ones to fall back on, and you will find that those sliced for frying will make a particularly palatable dish for a spring dinner. One advantage in late canning is that by late autumn or early winter you will have commenced to use your stock of articles canned in summer, and will, consequently, have some empty cans which you can use for apples without the expense of having to buy a fresh supply. No fruit, excepting, perhaps, the strawberry, makes a more delightful preserve than fine, well-flavored apples. Pippins are especially nice for this purpose, unless it an apple known as the "Cannon Pearmain." But almost any good apple will answer. Three-quarters of a pound of white sugar to a pound of the fruit is the right proportion for apples tolerably sweet. Make the syrup first, and after it has boiled clear add the apples. A few racemes of white ginger or a little lemon juice will improve the flavor. Some house-keepers add a few slices of lemon instead of squeezing out the juice. Apple jelly is very nice, especially that made of crab apples. In preserving, as in canning, it is the best policy to pick out apples which would not keep through the winter, although you must pick fine apples if you wish to have first-class preserves.

Another resource in winter, when one's stock of preserves begins to run low is to turn a part of your canned fruit into preserves. I have known it done with good results. Indeed, it is more readily done than to preserve fresh fruit, for you will find yourself saved a great deal of trouble when the fruit is already peeled and stoned.

If you will put watermelon rind in brine you will have an ample provision for nice preserves if you were prevented from making any in summer. But still nicer for winter preserves is the citron melon. You raise it as you do any other melon, but it never becomes good for eating, owing to its extreme toughness, which, joined with the whiteness of its flesh, makes it especially desirable for preserves. It is a lumpy, dark green melon, with mottled streaks of bright green, and with gray seeds. It keeps admirably; I have known housekeepers to lay it aside to spring before preserving it. To preserve it, pare the melon and let it stand in salt water a day or two. Soak it in fresh water till the salt taste is removed, then boil in alum water till it looks clear, and soak it in clear water one night. Make a syrup of one and a half pounds of white sugar to a pound of the fruit; boil it till clear, and add the citron. Lemon juice or sliced lemon improves the flavor, also a few racemes of white ginger. If it seems to you the ginger and other spices, if you desire them, in a muslin bag, so that they may not mar the appearance of the juice. The rinds should be boiled several hours and then taken out and the juice allowed to boil till it thickens. Although ordinary receipts call for a pound and a half of sugar to a pound of the rind, I have made very good preserves with only a pound of sugar to the same proportion of fruit. If you will dry in the sun some pieces of your melon, thoroughly well preserved, they will answer as citron for fruit.

Orange and lemon preserves are included in the list of winter preserves, and there are many different ways of preparing them. There are sliced orange and lemon preserves, orange and lemon marmalade, preserves made of orange and lemon peelings, and of these fruits mixed with apples. I know of not less than a dozen receipts for these preserves, but will not give them here, as most readers doubtless have these or equally good receipts in their cookery books. Then there are cranberries, which furnish us with materials for another nice kind of winter preserves and jelly, beautifully red and pleasantly flavored. Altogether when the housekeeper counts over all the resources within her reach in winter she will be astonished to find what a variety of preserves it is possible for her to make even when the ground is covered with snow.

How to Use Hot Water.

One of the simplest and effectual means of relieving pain is by the use of hot water, externally and internally, the temperature varying according to the feelings of the patient. For bruises, sprains and similar accidental hurts it should be applied immediately, as hot as can be borne, by means of a cloth dipped in the water and laid on the wounded part, or by immersion, if convenient, and the treatment kept up till relief is obtained. If applied at once the use of hot water will generally prevent, nearly if not entirely, the bruised flesh from turning black.

For pain resulting from indigestion, and known as wind colic, etc., a cup of hot water taken in sips will often relieve at once. When that is insufficient a flannel folded in several thicknesses, large enough to fully cover the painful place, should be wrung out of hot water, and laid over the seat of the pain. It should be as hot as the skin can bear without injury, and be renewed every ten minutes, or oftener if it feels cool, until the pain is gone. The remedy is simple, efficient, harmless and within the reach of every one, and should be more generally used than it is.

THOUGHTS FOR WOMEN.

Discomfort destroys grace.
Dress changes the manners.
Taste is the fact of the mind.
Modesty is the conscience of the body.
Woman is loveliest in womanly attire.
Men make laws, women make manners.
Time is the microscope of the judgment.
With time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes satin.
There is something of women in everything that pleases.
The greatest evidence of demoralization is the respect paid to wealth.
One cannot imagine how much cleverness is necessary not to be ridiculous.
A woman would be in despair if nature had formed her as fashion makes her appear.
A woman whose ruling passion is not vanity is superior to any man of equal capacity.
There are three things that woman throw away—their time, their money and their health.
The change of fashion is the tax that the industry of the poor levies on the vanity of the rich.
The wealthiest one is the one who is most economical; the poorest, the one who is most miserly.
The error of certain women is to imagine that to acquire distinction they must imitate the manners of men.
The knowledge of the charms one possesses prompts one to utilize them. I cannot see why women are so desirous of imitating men.

Chints Using in Bedrooms.

A pretty way to use chints in bedrooms and sitting-rooms in an English manner is to make frilled covers for chairs or lounges and have them either buttoned on or pinned with safety pins, so that they can be easily taken off and washed. These covers give a "dressed-up" look to the room and might make old chairs look as pretty in a quaint way as new ones. A bedroom with every detail carried out in chints can be make very pretty. The bedspread, toilet-covers, chair covers, table spread, curtains and portieres, all in small-patterned chints can be made into an artistic effect, and a still further accessory might be to have the ceiling covered with it, with cream-painted moldings crossing it, so as to form panels of, say, three full squares. A plain deep frieze would best suit such a ceiling in deep pink, if pink is in the chints, with picture rod of white below it, and side wall of a patterned paper in small figure and two tones of buff. Matting on the floor, with a few small rugs and the befrilled furniture, would make this a cheerfully bright interior.

Mangled By a Threshing Machine.

THEDWATER, Ont., Nov. 25.—Thomas Smith, aged 24, son of Bleakney Smith, was standing on the cap of a cylinder cleaning up, as the threshing was about done, when the cap broke and let him into the cylinder. He was dreadfully mangled and died four hours afterwards.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam Balsam for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The Large Bottles are 50c, and $1.00. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption. dw

Equal Rights.

All have equal rights in life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but many are handicapped in the race by dyspepsia, biliousness, lack of energy, nervous debility, weakness, constipation, etc., by completely removing these complaints Burdock Blood Bitters confer untold benefit on all sufferers. 2w42d

The People's Mistake.

People make a sad mistake often with serious results when they neglect a constipated condition of the bowels. Knowing that Burdock Blood Bitters is an effectual cure at any stage of constipation, does not warrant us in neglecting to use it at the right time. Use it now. 2w42d

ON SOAP,

IN RELATION TO THE COMPLEXION.

FROM AN ARTICLE BY

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, F.R.S.E.,

Lecturer on Physiology and Health under the "Combe Trust;" Editor of "Health."

"One important caution should be given, and that is concerning the use of soaps. I would strongly advise all who care for their skin to eschew the use of common soap, which simply roughens and injures the skin, and, if you will be advised by me, I would say never buy those artificially coloured and odoriferous abominations commonly sold under the name of 'Scented' or 'Fancy Soaps' which are the frequent causes of skin eruptions. If I am prepared to recommend any one soap to you, as a satisfactory and scientifically prepared article, I would certainly advise you to buy and use 'Pears' Soap.' Not merely from personal use can I recommend this soap, but I am well content to shelter myself under the names and authority of the late Sir Erasmus Wilson, F.R.S., President of the Royal College of Surgeons; of Doctor Stevenson Macadam, or of Professors Redwood and Attfield, the eminent analytical and chemical lecturers at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, who testify to its entire purity. Furthermore, I believe it to be very economical, for it contains no free water, and in this respect differs from all other soaps; hence a cake of 'Pears' is really all soap and not soap and water. I know cases of irritable skin which the whole tribe of much-vaunted 'Fancy Soaps' failed to allay, but which disappeared under the use of Pears' Soap, and for the nursery and for the delicate skin of infancy no better or more soothing soap can possibly be used. There can be no doubt that in respect of the care of children, attention to the skin is specially required. If common soaps are irritating to the skin of the adult, (as they unquestionably are), they are doubly and trebly injurious to the delicate skin of the infant and young child. I can vouch that the soap I am recommending is not merely a safe but an advantageous one. It does not irritate the skin; but, while serving as a detergent and cleanser, also acts as an emollient."

Self Application of Electricity

FOR MEDICAL PURPOSES

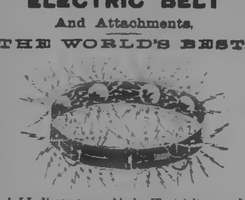
BY THE

DORENWEND

ELECTRIC BELT

And Attachments,

THE WORLD'S BEST.



ALL diseases curable by Electricity can be treated at home by the Dorenwend Appliance. The Dorenwend is the only legitimate Electric Belt made which fulfils the requirements of Electro-medical science. It is a complete BODY BATTERY. It has an independent Battery, which generates a mild, continuous current of Electricity (without shocks) and can be regulated to suit the strongest man or the weakest child. It is a CURRENT OF QUANTITY, not merely a sensation current, and the quantity current is the greatest curative. It is a successful treatment for INDIGESTION, RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, LIVER AND KIDNEY TROUBLES, WEAK BACK, SPINAL DISEASE, HEART DISEASE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, PARALYSIS, VERTIGO, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, IMPOTENCE, SEXUAL DECLINE and all diseases of the Nervous and Muscular Systems.

Remember that the DORENWEND BELT is the very latest invention in this line, and was invented by a competent electrician, and ranks as the best in the world; we defy anyone to bring proof to the contrary.

Do not class this Belt with the humbug combinations of leather and metal with which the country is being flooded. If you wish to experiment with cheap articles, buy THEM; but, if you want to procure a genuine Electric Belt and one that will be a benefit get a Dorenwend Belt.

Send name and address for Illustrated Book on Home Electro-medical treatment and mention this paper. The Dorenwend Electric Belt and Attachment Co., C. H. DORENWEND, Electrician, 103 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. ed w

The new business of the SUN LIFE was the largest ever secured in its Company's history and was equalled by but one Canadian life company. The surplus accumulated during the THREE years of the current quinquennium far exceeds the amount earned during any previous FIVE years, and the profits to Policy-holders cannot fail to be highly satisfactory. The prosperity of the Sun Life is no doubt largely due to its issuing progressional policies and paying its claims promptly. Canadians should also remember that by patronizing a Home Institution, which invests all its funds in the Dominion, they are benefitting themselves by reducing the rate of interest here, and are helping to build up our own cities rather than those of foreign states.

Under the Scow.

Geo. Adams, an employe of Calcutt's line of steamers, had an unpleasant experience the other day. The "Daisy" was towing a couple of scows up the river, and Adams fell off the stern of the steamer. He came up pretty well exhausted and very cold, but was easily rescued.

Mr. Meldrum has the matter under consideration.

Hilliard, Jno. Nugent, B Shortly, J. J. Hartley, A. E. Scots and Geo. S. Bean. The annual report was presented in printed form. It contains the fullest information concerning all the funds and operations of the church. The report shows that the George street Methodist congregation is in a flourishing condition, financially as well as in every other respect.

Should be in Every Home.

In these days of sensational newspapers, when much that is unfit for family reading is inserted because it is likely to attract readers, it is a pleasure to recommend Toronto Saturday Night as being thoroughly clean, wholesome and improving. The illustrations are numerous, artistic, humorous and timely; the faces of the great men and women of the decade and reproductions of celebrated paintings being the leading pictorial features. The articles on the questions of the day are admittedly of a high class, while being exceedingly entertaining and certain to attract and hold the attention of young people as well as older readers. Musical matters, the drama, and everything socially requisite to the enlargement of the mind and cultivation of good habits, is made a feature of this excellent publication. Two serial stories, always of absorbing interest, but pure in tone, and by the best authors, are to be found in Saturday Night—and by the way they can be found now here else as they are copyrights of the best English publications which have not appeared in Canada. The independence and friendliness of tone so characteristic of this paper has made it the personal adviser of its readers, and the strong attachment which seems to exist between the readers of Saturday Night and its editors, is certainly unique. The only explanation which can be offered is that all its articles are signed, and it has an individuality of a very pleasant sort which makes the reader feel that he is personally acquainted with each writer. Forestry.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Will you permit me, as you have taken some interest in this important matter, to say a few words to your readers on the subject?

The principles of forestry are now better understood than they were some years since, and it is well known that if we do not preserve some of the forests still standing throughout our farming country, and also plant more, we shall destroy the fertility of the land.

In an examination of a great part of Ontario this spring I found some gratifying progress was being made in tree-planting, but was unable, through illness, to continue travelling throughout the summer. I frequently, of course, receive assistance from correspondents, and would be glad if any gentleman in your neighbourhood would send any information he possesses on the subject, in answer to any or all of the following questions, in order to complete a forestry report I am now getting out, a copy of which will be sent to all who reply:—

(1.) Whether, and to what extent, lines of trees for wind-breaks or ornament are being planted, and how those planted are thriving?

(2.) Whether plantations of young trees have been set out, and how they succeed?

(3.) Whether cattle are fenced out of any portions of forest in your neighbourhood, and how it answers?

(4.) Any difference in climate, rainfall, drifting of snow, and so forth, you may have observed since the clearing of the country?

(5.) What measures, if any, would be likely to improve the existing state of affairs?

Yours truly,
R. W. PHIPPS,
(Address to) 25½ Richmond st. W.,
Nov. 25, 1890. Toronto.

Wun Lung

This is the queer name of a Chinese laundryman in Hartford, but he has probably two lungs, like most of us. Some crying babes seem to have a dozen. Lungs should be sound, or the voice will have a weakly sound. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes strong lungs, drives the cough away, generates good blood, tones the nerves, builds up the human wreck and makes "another man" of him. Night sweats, bloody spitting, short breath, bronchitis, asthma, and all alarming forerunners of Consumption, are positively cured by this unapproachable remedy. If taken in time, Consumption itself can be baffled. a

THE CAMPAIGN CLOSED.

Royal Templars' Anniversary Tea and Concert.

Joe Hess Gives Some Thrilling Tales of His Experiences—What Life in the West is Like—A Good Programme Presented—Results of the Work.

Joe Hess closed his third successful campaign in Peterborough Wednesday night. The temperance cause has received a strong impetus from his visits to Peterborough, and he leaves town, if possible, more popular than ever with all classes of temperance people. The stirring influence of his vigorous personality and urgent appeals have had, and will continue to have, a visible effect upon the temperance sentiment of the community. May Joe Hess be as successful everywhere as he has been at Peterborough. From here he returns to Toronto to fill an engagement. During the four days' campaign just closed about one hundred signed the pledge, making a total in Peterborough of fully 1,000 who have thus signified their determination to abstain from the use of liquor through the efforts of Joe Hess.

THE SUPPER.

The campaign closed last night with a grand wind-up tea and entertainment. The occasion was the anniversary of the Royal Templars—an organization which is highly commended as a useful and progressive Christian temperance society, and a great help in temperance work. The ladies, of course, took the management of the supper, and it goes without saying that it was a success in every way. Two long tables were spread in the dining hall, one for oysters and the other for cold meats. "You pays your money and you takes your choice," was the invitation on entering the door. It is an indication of the refined tastes of Peterborough people that the majority preferred the luscious bivalves. Joe Hess showed the people how he could eat oysters, as he had promised to do. The supper was excellent in every respect, and the ladies spared no pains to provide for the comfort of their guests. Besides the oysters and meats there were cakes and pastry in abundance. Several hundred appetites were appeased, and still the store of good things was not exhausted, and at the close of the entertainment a 10c. social was held for the purpose of "cleaning up." The Royal Templars are to be congratulated upon the success which attended their anniversary tea.

THE CONCERT.

At eight o'clock the opera house was well filled, though no doubt a popular misunderstanding as to the admission fee being 25c. (which was the price of both tea and entertainment) kept many away. Councillor J. J. Hartley occupied the chair. After a couple of hymns had been sung by the choir, a recitation was given by Miss Woods, of Brockville, a young lady visiting in town. She has a musical voice and displayed unusual histrionic talent, which presages a bright future for her as an elocutionist. Her selection was entitled "The Young Artist." Mrs. Seward next sang a solo in her usual good voice. Then followed the address upon

"THREE YEARS IN THE SADDLE"

by Mr. Hess. The recital of his experiences, in the "wild and wooly west" was condensed into a half hours' time, and of necessity much interesting detail was omitted, but the brief sketch was sufficient to warn young men of the temptations and hardships which attended a fast sporting life in the west. Drink was condemned by Mr. Hess as being the chief cause of all the troubles he had gone through, and he hoped his example would prevent any others trying such a dangerous course. The story will be found more elaborately in the book of his life. It reads like a chapter from a dime novel. He travelled from Chicago to San Francisco by rail and walked back on a wager (for he was a famous pedestrian) but lost by three hours only. He lost $7,000 by his failure, but he more than made it up on the way. At one time he was a live bill board. He had small advertisements stuck all over his body, and he received good money for walking with them from 'Frisco to Chicago. At another time he walked around a billiard table a distance of 50 miles, for which the saloonkeeper gave him a purse. Joe Hess had some thrilling experiences during his travels. He was one of the original discoverers of a mine that afterwards sold for $2 000 000. One night he was playing cards in the mountains when their shed was CARRIED AWAY BY A SNOW-SLIDE.

Two men were killed but Joe and another escaped. He and some companions were with Jack Heenan, the prize fighter who fought Sayers, when Heenan died at Green River. Joe travelled through Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Utah and other States. The country was very wild and wicked. Every little town was half made up of saloons. Men drank continuously, and gambled with their piles of money on one side and their revolvers on the other, and at the least word would shoot each other dead. At Silver Reef City he was in a tight corner. He was in a saloon and I dance house, and marched his girl up to the bar to have a drink. The bartender charged him a dollar. Joe "kicked," and the bartender went to throw him out, but instead he ran against Joe's left and was knocked down. Ironclad oaths were heard, revolvers clicked and Joe thought his time was come, but he escaped. The next day Joe buckled on his belt of cartridges and two revolvers, stuck a

BOWIE KNIFE IN HIS BOOTLEG,

and went out prepared to meet the bartender, who was a noted desperado and was nick-named the "Roaring Thunderbolt." But the bartender came up and shook hands, and became Joe's pal. Together they painted the town "red"—not blue, as Joe is doing these days. Joe's camp name was the Clapping Lion. In the same city one night fourteen men were killed in a quarrel in a gambling room. Joe Hess escaped with a bullet wound in his neck, the scar of which he bears to this day. The next day a woman came to the place and saw among the fourteen dead men lying about her own son. Then she shot and killed six more of the gamblers. There was a big funeral in the city that day. The men were buried in holes dug in the sand. A gambler's life in the west was an uncertain one. Joe related an incident which showed that, depraved and wicked as he was, yet he was prompt to acknowledge a wrong and ask forgiveness. From this place Joe Hess hired with a rancher and became a cowboy. He was initiated by the blanket toss and what is called "backing the broncho"—shah is, the breaking in of a wild horse. People imagine that a cowboy's life is a free and easy one. This was a great mistake. He narrated the hum-drum events of the daily life of the cowboy, and closed with a description of

A STAMPEDE OF CATTLE.

The herd of a thousand head which he was attending suddenly stampeded. Cattle on the plains frequently stampede from no discernable cause. The cowboys must then run ahead and round them up, a very dangerous job. In this instance one of his comrade's horses had been gored and the man trodden to death by the hoofs of the cattle as they tore madly over the plain. Then Joe Hess' horse was gored, but he saved himself by jumping straddle of a steer, catching it by the horns and holding on for dear life. His terrible ride was ended at what is called a jumping-off place, where a hollow in the ground intervenes. The cattle jump over this, and at the right moment Joe Hess threw himself off his beast and fell to the bottom, alive but badly hurt. He walked three days without any food before he reached camp. His address ended here.

Mr. Hess took occasion to thank the temperance people and the press of Peterborough for the kind way they had treated him, and said farewell.

THE LAST NUMBERS.

The programme was then continued. A male quartette by Messrs. A. McCallum, F. S. Hill, R. Rose and J. Miller, was well rendered. Mrs. Goldsmith gave a recitation, which pleased so well that an encore was demanded. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Daly next gave a most acceptable duet, after which Joe Hess, in athletic costume, gave an exhibition of club swinging, followed by a performance with illuminated clubs. He demonstrated that the strength of arm and agility, which won him fame in sporting circles years ago, have not yet deserted him. The programme was concluded by a cornet solo by Mr. John Miller. During the evening Mr. Seward presided efficiently at the piano.

Before the audience dispersed Dr. Goldsmith moved a vote of thanks to the press of Peterborough for the favor it had shown Mr. Hess and the temperance people. The EXAMINER returns thanks for the compliment. Dr. Stephenson, in seconding the motion, mentioned the Royal Templars of Temperance as an order which should be heartily supported, especially by young people.

After a closing hymn the audience dispersed.

A CORONER CALLED DOWN.

Afraid That Another Fellow Would Get Ahead of Him.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 26.—Three more men have died as a result of the injuries in connection with the mill explosion, making the death list eight. Coroner Robinson was serving on a circuit court jury and on the day of the accident when the court adjourned for dinner Robinson had heard of the accident and left for the scene. The Judge became highly indignant and adjourned the court. This afternoon Robinson put in an appearance and the Judge arose and demanded an explanation. Robinson offered an apology, but the judge refused to accept it. His Honor, then addressing Robinson, said: "I will venture to say that you went to prevent any other coroner holding the inquest. Your action is complete contempt of court and an outrage of the worst kind." Robinson was then dismissed from the panel and fined the full penalty.

SINGULAR ROMANCE.

An English Emigrant Girl and How She Found Her Husband.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 26.—Miss Ada Gunn, a handsome young English immigrant who came out to this country a couple of weeks ago, is in rare luck. On board the vessel there sailed with her from Liverpool an old man, who was coming out to Canada to join his son who had established himself in Port Moody, B.C. The old gentleman suggested that his son might want a wife—just such a one as his companion—and if she didn't mind he would broach the question to him when he arrived in British Columbia. Miss Gunn came on to Belleville and secured work as a domestic with S. Eustace. True to his promise the father had lost no time in bringing up the subject of the young English girl whom he had met on board the vessel, and the son was interested to such an extent that the next mail east brought an offer of marriage to Miss Gunn and enclosed in the envelope was money enough to pay her expenses across the continent to the lover whom she had never seen. It is needless to say that the young woman lost no time in communicating her acceptance of the proposal and Miss Gunn started to meet her strange lover, carrying with her the congratulations of friends whom she had met during her short sojourn in the Bay City.

Distress in Swineford.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—The people of Swineford, county Mayo, are greatly disappointed over the refusal of the grand jury to guarantee even one penny to assist in carrying out Balfour's plan to build a railroad from Colloony to Clanmorris. Crowds of people throughout the distressed district are demanding work from the priests and poor law guardians. It is admitted by the authorities that within three weeks many of the people in the Swineford district will be without food of any kind. Delegates have started for London to urge upon the Government the necessity of taking steps for the alleviation of the distress.

The Seal Fisheries.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Prof. H. P. Elliott of the Smithsonian Institute will present a report to Congress on the seal fur industry. Prof. Elliott, it is understood, will recommend that the catch of fur seals at the American rookeries be suspended for seven years. This period of inactivity he considers absolutely necessary for the preservation of the seals from utter annihilation. At the present time he estimates there are only 100,000 seal in American waters. The continued depredations by pirates and otherwise have reduced the number so that hardly a sufficient number remain for breeding purposes. It is believed Prof. Elliott's recommendation will be acquiesced in by Congress.

Heavy Mortgage Given by The J. E. Potts Salt and Lumber Company.

DETROIT, Nov. 26.—Two chattel mortgages, to the amount of $622,000, were filed with the County Clerk at Au Sable, against the personal property of the J. E. Potts Salt and Lumber Company in favor of several banks in Ontario; the Iosco Savings Bank, Oscoda; of Mrs. D. Tisdale, Simcoe, Ont., and of George Parker of Colorado. This is reported as a part of liabilities which amount to $1,500,000, for which mortgages, chattel and real, have been filed by the company in favor of creditors in different counties of the state.

Au Sable is all agog with excitement, as the company gave employment to some 1500 men in the city, the woods, and at Potts, all tributary to the firm.

Representatives of preferred creditors met at the Russell House this forenoon. Nicol Kingsmill of Toronto was there for the Dominion and Union Banks, J. A. Worrell for Bank of Montreal, M. Hay and M. A. Gilbert for Imperial Bank of Toronto, George Kappele as solicitor for Imperial Bank and J. D. Montgomery, solicitor for Bank of Montreal. George W. Yarker of Toronto was also present. President Tisdale presented a report which was accepted as satisfactory and the business will go on as usual.

Brought in His Own Prisoner.

HAMILTON, Nov. 26.—This morning about 9¼ the constable on duty at No. 3 Police Station was astonished to see a rig drive up to the door in which were two men, one of whom was bound with a stout rope. The man at liberty was James Addison, formerly of this city and now a hotelkeeper at Hall's Corners. His prisoner was Walter Laing, a young man of about 20 years of age. The charge preferred against the young fellow was that of seducing Nellie Addison, daughter of James Addison, a girl under 14 years of age. The shocking affair is said to have taken place about 11¼ last evening in a driving shed near a church in Binbrook. A brother of young Laing is also wanted by the police in connection with the case.

Broke Jail.

NAPANEE, Nov. 26.—Section boss Wallbridge of the K., N. & W. discovered two suspicious characters about the company's buildings, and had them arrested and placed in the lockup. During the night one of them took the wire bale off a water pail in his cell, and running his hand through the bars of his cell succeeded in breaking the padlock. When he got into the corridor he with ease liberated his chum, and the two with the lid from the stove pried the hasp off the door so as to let the bolt slip past, and they made their escape. The two had just served a month in the county jail.

FAR TOO LONG.

The list of Building Lots, Houses and Lots, and desirable Business Corners which I have for Sale, to Rent or Exchange, situated in all parts of the Town and Ashburnham, is by far too long for my advertising space, and so long as I continue to supply my patrons with all kinds of properties on such favourable terms and at such short and small prices, I cannot afford to occupy long spaces, and must ask all who want to make money or secure cheap homes to call at my office, where they cannot fail to be suited in every respect.

$1000 OR LESS.

Invested in properties with me at present, I am confident, I can return within a year with a profit of from 25 to 75 per cent., and can you have any better security than real estate? And again, I do not ask you to take my word that such will and can be done; but call and I will show it to you so clearly that you cannot fail to see it yourself.
